N'MASTER'S LOW OPEN ELEVATOR BINDER!

The Only Successful Low Elevator Binder in the Market

A Practical 2-Horse Binder!

It is unequalled for Simplicity, Strength, Lightness of Draft, Handiness and General Efficiency. Will handle the heaviest and most tangled grain without choking, and will pass through a 10½ ft. gate without folding. Special attention is directed to our Knotter, the brains of a Binder. It has fewer parts, is more economical, has the only Steel Cord-holding Apparatus, and the most positive movement of any knotter now built; no claptrap or makeshift affair to get out of order and a make a farmer wish he never was born.

J. LINDSEY.

Orangeville, May 6th.

Some leather's mean. Some workmen are mean. Some shoe sellers are mean. That's how mean shoes got made and sold.

Six out of every ten pairs of shoes are shams—pasted stock, "pancakes." Bits of useless leather are pressed and made into insoles, just as bits of useless wool are carded with long cotton and made into shoddy.

Never was a time when shoes looked so well and were so badly, until the shoeing of a whole family has come to be a serious task. There's no reason for mean shoes. Some shopkeepers see a reason for them in their cheapness, but if that's so, the meaner they're made, the better. (The wearer wouldn't tolerate that reason for a moment). The only room for them is the room they usurp, and the saving is a saving at the spigot to waste at the bung.

And the remedy?

There's a store where you can't buy shoddy shoes, because they don't sell them; where they have neither two prices nor two names for the same thing; where American kid doesn't pass for French, and machine-sewed doesn't masquerade as hand-sewed.

It's here. None but the best at the lowest prices, though best only means with what restrictions of price that're necessary.

For the men there's a good seamless Bal. for $1.75, and a better at $2 50, good enough to get married in. For the ladies here's some nice Dongola Shoes, Bals. and Button'd, at $2.75, the J. D. K. make (none better), as well as Toe Slippers at 85c., and Dong. Oxfords at $1.25, with childrens' shoes galore. There's no better for the money anywhere. We don't know how to sell "poor" shoes. More than that, we don't want to know.

You can get a Lady's fine Button Boot of us at 90c. a pair.

Burdock Blood Bitters

Is a purely vegetable compound, possessing perfect regulating powers over all the organs of the system, and controlling their secretions. It so purifies the blood that it

CURES

All blood humors and diseases, from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore, and this combined with its unrivalled regulating, cleansing and purifying influence on the secretions of the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin, render it unequalled as a cure for all diseases of the

SKIN

From one to two bottles will cure boils, pimples, blotches, nettle rash, scurf, tetter, and all the simple forms of skin disease. From two to four bottles will cure saltrheum or eczema, shingles, erysipelas, ulcers, abscesses, running sores, and all skin eruptions. It is noticeable that sufferers from skin

DISEASES

Are nearly always aggravated by intolerable itching, but this quickly subsides on the removal of the disease by B.B.B. Passing on to graver yet prevalent diseases, such as scrofulous swellings, humors and

SCROFULA

We have undoubted proof that from three to six bottles used internally and by outward application (diluted if the skin is broken) to the affected parts, will effect a cure. The great mission of B. B. B. is to regulate the liver, kidneys, bowels and blood, to correct acidity and wrong action of the stomach, and to open the sluice-ways of the system to carry off all clogged and impure secretions, allowing nature thus to aid recovery and remove without fail

BAD BLOOD

Liver complaint, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache, dropsy, rheumatism, and every species of disease arising from disordered liver, kidneys, stomach, bowels and blood. We guarantee every bottle of B. B. B. Should any person be dissatisfied after using the first bottle, we will refund the money on application personally or by letter. We will also be glad to send testimonials and information proving the effects of B. B. B. in the above named diseases, on application to T. MILBURN & CO., Toronto, Ont.

In the accident to the Winnipeg express on the C. P. R at Straight Lake the sum $20,000, which had been mailed from two banks at Ottawa to Winnipeg, was destroyed. One package of $10,000 has been entirely destroyed, but there are sufficient portions of some of the burned bundle to enable the bank to recover several thousand dollars. Who the actual losers will be is not known, but it is likely to fall on the banks shipping the amount.

THE "FLYING DUTCHMAN."

A Counting Monitor Which Will Amuse the Children.

One of the most [illegible]

The "Flying Dutchman."

[illegible] trick is clamped to the lamp chimney, the ring adjusted and the mercurial bead over the support in the centre. The lamp must be lighted first and the flame turned down until the device has been adjusted. When the light is turned up the device will immediately begin to move around the shade. When taken off the flame must again be lowered to allow it to cool off before removing it.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

JEWELS AND GEMS.

Some of the Hazy Pretty Things That May be Worn To-day.

Crosses in gold, silver and pearls are contesting favor with the popular locket.

Large flat lockets of heart shape and enamelled in blue have a diamond in the centre.

A novelty in lockets is one the upper half of which is of gold, the lower half being silver.

There is no limit to the number of bracelets the present fashion permits with evening toilets.

For ladies' use there are sun umbrellas fitted with watches, scent bottles and fans in their handles.

Dainty necklaces are formed of tiny gold chains knotted at short intervals with a gem set in each knot.

A double ring seen had one gold shank and one silver shank, each being set with a solitaire diamond.

There is some charming flower jewelry in which sweet pea and red clover appear to be favorite models.

It seems a trifle incongruous, but miniature copies of the souvenir spoons are masquerading as brooches.

The revival of the bading modes of the Louis XV. period insures the popularity of jewelry for some time to come.

Pearls, always in fashion, are just now exceedingly popular. The demand for fine specimens, also for rare colored ones, is great.

The latest heart jewelry is decidedly robust, with one side scrolled in irregular fashion. When there is a union of two hearts, the effect, while peculiar, is graceful.

At the present time fashion gives wide latitude for the exercise of individual taste and, as a consequence, jewelry is worn with more freedom by both sexes than before in years.

Birthday rings are beginning to be the rage among young misses all over the country. There is a pleasing sentiment about the idea that tickles the feminine fancy, and puts the manufacturer on his mettle. These rings are now produced in a profusion of beautiful styles, and are attractively displayed in large gilt-lettered trays in the jewelers' windows.—The Jeweler's Circular.

THE WOMEN AND THE WITS.

Sympathy.

Mrs. Dunce—Oh, dear! This paper has published a horrid scandal about me.

Miss Miss Ann Fussley—How terrible! How did they get hold of it?

Well Meant, but—

Dashe—Now, Miss Hanter, please look pleasant—that's it—keep that for a moment until I catch it. There. Now you may resume your natural expression, if you wish.

Not a Single Qualification.

"You speak of Adam and Eve as one of our first families; but you make a great mistake."

"Why?"

"They had no wealth, no education, and no ancestry."

Her Denial.

Goslin (8.55 P. M.)—It seems to be quite the thing to deny one's self during the Lenten season. What are you denying yourself, Miss Sharpe?

Blanche (with a good look at the clock)—I am denying myself the pleasure of gentlemen's company after 11 o'clock.

No Risk in His.

Rich Old Party—What do you want a wife for, when you can hardly support yourself? Why, sir, my daughter would starve!

Snookins (with great dignity)—Well, sir, if you are the kind of man to let your daughter and her husband starve I don't wish to enter the family."

A Suitable Present.

Mother—Freddie, to-morrow is your father's birthday and I must make him a present. Can't you suggest something he would appreciate?

Freddie (whose father is bald-headed)—Yes, ma, give him a comb. He will never part with it.

Her Numerous Knows.

He tenderly—"I love you."

She (complacently)—"I know it."

He—"I cannot live without you."

She—"I know it."

He—"I want you to be my wife."

She—"I know it."

He—"Will?"

She—"I 'no' it."

Her Note.

Her dainty envelope is square—
I think, the while its seal I tear—
So like herself, both sweet and fair;
The note inside it, too, I'll swear,
Light and diverting.
What though her heart be free from care,
And blue her eyes and soft her hair,
Her voice like southern breezes rare—
There's not one touch of feeling there;
She's only flirting.

The Smart Clerk.

Mrs. Col. Yergar broke the spout off her teapot, and not wishing to have the set spoiled, she sent her servant, Matilda Snowball, to Stein's crockery establishment, on Austin avenue, to buy one like it. There was a smart clerk named Jim Univerly in the store at the time.

"Kin yer sell me a teapot like dis heah one?"

"Oh, no, we have no teapots like that one. All our teapots have got spouts to them, but you can buy one of them and I'll knock the spout off with a hatchet, and it shan't cost you a cent extra."—Texas Siftings.

WHAT A WOMAN SHOULD WEIGH.

A woman whose height is

| Ft. | In. | Pounds Ft. | Should Weigh In Pounds | In. | Should Weigh In Pounds |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 5 | 0 | 118 | 5 | 5 | 139 |
| 5 | 1 | 124 | 5 | 6 | 143 |
| 5 | 2 | 128 | 5 | 7 | 148 |
| 5 | 3 | 130 | 5 | 8 | 153 |
| 5 | 4 | 136 | 5 | 9 | 158 |

This table is for women between 20 and 45 years of age. After that they become heavier. A woman should weigh but little less than a man in proportion to her height. The bust of a perfectly formed woman should measure ten inches more than her waist. If the waist is laced in smaller than this the abdomen is pressed down and the bosom up, causing both to billow out to an unnatural size and compressing the waist too much for either health or beauty.

Eng. Tel. Oil.

THIS stands for Hagyard's Yellow Oil, the best and promptest cure for all pain from the simplest sprain to the racking torture of rheumatism. A never-failing remedy for croup, sore throat, and pain in the chest.

WHITTLINGS.

Time is the silent barber who moves away one's top hair.

The first man to sing a blue of a ghost composition was David.

"Dove position effects sleep," asked a medical writer. It does not when the man holds the position of a night watchman.

There are no cats in Greenland, but they have a native dog there that can howl a hole into an iceberg, so the natives do not miss the cats.

It is a mournful commentary on human vanity to see the mourners looking back, on turning the corners, to see if the procession is worthy of the corpse.

"He went for a soldier," is the title of a book going through the throes of circulation as a premium. Why he went for a soldier we cannot say, but if he was an Indian, no doubt he was perfectly safe in going for a soldier.

The bridal veil originated in the custom of performing the nuptial ceremony under a square piece of cloth, held over the bride and groom, to conceal the blushes of the latter. As the marriage of a widow it was dispensed with.

LATEST FASHION.

If you don't think lace is fashionable just look at the lace counter the next time you are out shopping.

Ginghams with a lace desire can be bought. Trimmed with black velvet ribbon they are as pretty as silk.

Frills of white chiffon are gathered down the front edge of dressy street gowns with really charming effect.

Enamelled snakes are demanded in the jewelry trade and tinsel snakes from the milliner and dealer in fancy goods.

For hats elderly women may wear in the country or for shopping the quiet poke in black straw, with a touch of black lace, ribbon and subdued flowers.

Although undraped the modern skirt is not plain by any means. On the contrary, it is now being elaborated, and the lace flounce, knife pleating and velled ruffles of 1873 are being revived with fanciful touches of ribbon bows, gilt braid and beading.

Leghorns will be very good later on, as is now indicated. These have the familiar low crown and wide flap brim. The newest brims are flated and scalloped on large hats and are very neat for misses and children, with lace effects in the brims and plain crowns.

Pink still holds its own on hats and bonnets, which makes it good for the milliners, as pink will fade, whether in ribbons, flowers or crepe, and must be renewed several times during the season. Yellow and purplish shades in flowers are following closely in the affections of the public.

There is a fresh and undefinable demand for big finger rings. A girl with a silver cornered wallet goes into a jewelry store, asks to see some rings, and fits her middle finger over her glove. That means a thumb ring, and just now it is considered immensely lucky to wear one on a journey or going off.

Chocolate is becoming more and more the fashion at afternoon parties and sometimes for dinners. There is a wonderful difference in chocolate. There is certainly chocolate and chocolate, but it is most tempting when it combines a surprise in chocolate, such as a box of sardines, cigarettes, ears' tongues or lady fingers.

A novelty in lockets is one the upper half of which is of gold, the lower half being silver.

There is no limit to the number of bracelets the present fashion permits with evening toilets.

Sky ladies' sun-there are sun umbrellas dotted with watches, scent bottles and fans in their handles.

Dainty necklaces are formed of tiny gold chains fastened at short intervals with a gem set in each link.

A double ring now had one gold shank and one silver shank, each being set with a solitaire diamond.

There is some charming flower jewelry in which sweet pea and red clover appear to be favorite models.

It seems a trifle humorous, but tuberoses replace of the conventional orange blossoms are masquerading as brooches.

The revival of the leading styles of the Louis XV. period insures the popularity of jewelry for some time to come.

Pearls, always in fashion, are just now exceedingly popular. The demand for fine specimens, also for rare colored ones, is great.

The latest heart jewelry is decidedly pointed, with one side reversed in irregular fashion. When there is a union of two hearts, the effect, while peculiar, is graceful.

At the present time fashion gives wide latitude for the exercise of individual taste and, as a consequence, jewelry is worn with more freedom by both sexes than before in years.

Birthday rings are beginning to be the rage among young misses all over the country. There is a pleasing sentiment about the idea that tickles the feminine fancy, and puts the manufacturer on his mettle. These rings are now produced in a profusion of beautiful styles, and are attractively displayed in large gilt-lettered trays in the jewelers' windows.—The Jeweler's Circular.

THE WOMEN AND THE WITS.

Sympathy.

Mrs. Dunce—Oh, dear! This paper has published a horrid scandal about me.

Miss Miss Ann Fussley—How terribly! How did they get hold of it?

Well Meant, but—

Dashe—Now, Miss Hunter, please look pleasant—that's it—keep that for a moment until I catch it. * * * There. Now you may resume your natural expression, if you wish.

Not a Single Qualification.

"You speak of Adam and Eve as one of our first families; but you make a great mistake."

"Why?"

"They had no wealth, no education, and no ancestry."

Her Denial.

Coslin (5.55 P. M.)—It seems to be quite the thing to deny one's self during the Lenten season. What are you denying yourself, Miss Blanche?

Blanche (with a good look at the clock)—I am denying myself the pleasure of gentleman's company after 15 o'clock.

No Risk in His.

Rich Old Party—What do you want a wife for, when you can hardly support yourself? Why, sir, my daughter would starve!

Smooklin (with great dignity)—Well, sir, if you are the kind of man to let your daughter and her husband starve I don't wish to enter the family."

A Suitable Present.

Mother—Freddie, to-morrow is your father's birthday and I must make him a present. Can't you suggest something he would appreciate?

Freddie (whose father is bald-headed)—Yes, ma, give him a comb. He will never part with it.

Her Numerous Knows.

He ardently—"I love you."

She (complacently)—"I know it."

He—"I cannot live without you."

She—"I know it."

He—"I want you to be my wife."

She—"I know it."

He—"Well?"

She—"I 'no' it."

Her Note.

Her dainty envelope is square—
I think, the while its seal I tear—
So like herself, both sweet and fair;
The note inside it, too, I'll swear,
Light and diverting.

What though her heart be free from care,
And blue her eyes and soft her hair,
Her voice like southern breezes rare—
There's not one touch of feeling there;
She's only flirting.

The Smart Clerk.

Mrs. Col. Yerger broke the spout off her teapot, and not wishing to have the set spoiled, she sent her servant, Matilda Snowball, to Stein's crockery establishment, on Austin avenue, to buy one like it. There was a smart clerk named Jim Snivverly in the store at the time.

"Kin yer sell me a teapot like dis heah one?"

"Oh, no, we have no teapots like that one. All our teapots have got spouts to them, but you can buy one of them and I'll knock the spout off with a hatchet, and it shan't cost you a cent extra."—Texas Siftings.

WHAT A WOMAN SHOULD WEIGH.

A woman whose height is

| Ft. | In. | Should Weigh Pounds | Ft. | In. | Should Weigh Pounds |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 5 | 0 | 118 | 5 | 5 | 139 |
| 5 | 1 | 124 | 5 | 6 | 143 |
| 5 | 2 | 128 | 5 | 7 | 148 |
| 5 | 3 | 130 | 5 | 8 | 153 |
| 5 | 4 | 136 | 5 | 9 | 158 |

This table is for women between 20 and 45 years of age. After that they become heavier. A woman should weigh but little less than a man in proportion to her height. The bust of a perfectly formed woman should measure ten inches more than her waist. If the waist is laced in smaller than this the abdomen is pressed down and the bosom up, causing both to billow out to an unnatural size and compressing the waist too much for either health or beauty.

Egg. Tel. Oil.

THIS stands for Hagyard's Yellow Oil, the best and prompt cure for all pain from the simplest sprain to the racking torture of rheumatism. A never-failing remedy for croup, sore throat, and pain in the chest.

Gingham with a neat desire can be bought. Trimmed with black velvet ribbon they are as pretty as silk.

Frills of white chiffon are gathered down the front edge of dressy street gowns with really charming effect.

Enamelled napkin are demanded in the jewelry trade and tinsel napkin from the milliner and dealer in fancy goods.

For hats elderly women may wear in the country or for shopping the quiet poke in black straw, with a touch of black lace, ribbon and subdued flowers.

Although undraped the modern skirt is not plain by any means. On the contrary, it is now being elaborated, and the lace flounce, knife pleating and veiled ruffles of 1873 are being revived with fanciful touches of ribbon bows, gilt braid and beading.

Leghorns will be very good later on, as is now indicated. These have the familiar low crown and wide flap brim. The newest brims are fluted and scallped on large hats and are very neat for misses and children, with lace effects in the brims and plain crowns.

Pink still holds its own on hats and bonnets, which make it good for the milliners, as pink will fade, whether in ribbons, flowers or crepe, and must be renewed several times during the season. Yellow and purplish shades in flowers are following closely in the affections of the public.

There is a fresh and undeniable demand for big finger rings. A girl with a silver cornered wallet goes into a jewelry store, asks to see some rings, and fits her middle finger over her glove. That means a thumb ring, and just now it is considered immensely lucky to wear one on a journey or going off.

Chocolate is becoming more and more the fashion at afternoon parties and sometimes for dinners. There is a wonderful difference in chocolate. There is certainly chocolate and chocolate, but it is most tempting when it combines a surprise in chocolate, such as a box of sardines, cigarettes, eats' tongues or lady fingers.

We scarce had time to draw our breath
Ere all was lost that had been gained,
Until there came a day at last
When hope and fear were past debate,
And we could only stand and wait,
Expecting hourly "He has passed."

Ah, if we could with eager hand
Have drawn him from the shadowy shore,
Back to life's heart, until once more
He set as leader in our band.

We would not be so strained to-day,
So lost in an Egyptian night,
Like children "crying for the light"
And knowing not our future way.

But One more highly gauged his worth
And deemed him worthy of a place
Among the crowned sons of grace,
Above the petty pests of earth.

So, fold his hands upon his breast!
What we shall do I dare not say,
But he, for many a weary day
Has earned—ay, over-earned his rest.

Life should be rated less by hours
Than actions. This should dull the blow;
He died in harness! better so
Than longer life and failing powers.

He leaves behind him now a name
That shall go down from age to age
Inscribed on history's brightest page,
Of proudest worth and purest fame.

Ah-h! sophistries are all in vain!
What platitudes can stay our tears?
Let come who may in future years,
We shall not see his like again.

THROUGH the park and gardens; through the leafy glades and glens where the trees grew thickest; out beyond, among the narrow lanes, where honeysuckles trailed from hedge to hedge; and all along by the yellow borders of the sea, Sir Hilton Trewavas searched for his bride. And ever through the the feverish hours of the night, as the searchers met at stated points, in park, or wood, or on the glistening shore, where the waves sprinkled silvery light, as they fell softly on the sands with a Summer rush and ripple, the cry was still the same—No tidings! In the wood, no sound but their own footfall, and the rustle of the leaf, and the flutter of the startled bird; on the mill side, mournful echoes, like unseen spirits coming on them fitfully, bringing back the hurried steps, the murmured voices, the sharp cry, the despairing call, "Eleanor! Eleanor!" then fleeing mockingly, even as the strained ear seized a hope. On the sands, long dark shadows of rock, and clouds and little glistening pools, holding the moon, and waves, silver furrowed, rolling on the shore in a soft rush of melancholy music—nought but this, and solitude, and the night silence, star lighted.

How describe a night like this, how tell, as the hurried hours ran by, how hope rose, fell, sickened, and died? As the searchers met, they ran towards each other, calling aloud; but, as the sad answer came back on the wind, feet slackened, hands drooped, and the cheer lost as it grew pale. A thousand conjectures floated from men's lips, and seemed to fill the air.

The day being warm, had the young girl bathed, and been carried away by the tide? If so, it was vain to search till morning; then they would get boats and drags, and find her. Had she walked along the cliffs, venturing too near the edge, and slipped upon the short dry herbage, then fallen? If so, the coming waves had washed her dead form to some lonely cavern, or between some ledge of narrowed rock and, when the day rose, she would flash upon them suddenly, white and awful from such a death. Or had she, in the wood, stepped upon the Cornish viper, which lies among the fallen leaves, brown like them; and unnerved, terror stricken, and in anguish, had she died alone? Then, when the sunlight crept in upon her and deadly snake, they might come upon her as they walked; but now, beneath the moon, 'twas useless amid the dark foliage to seek for such a sight. As the men talked and whispered thus, the sun for which they longed rose upon them, and the lingering hope which the night had kept alive fled with the darkness.

Some had thought, when the day had come, they should find her sleeping—perchance in some soft glade, or beneath a giant tree—having lost her way, and grown weary and sad with waiting for the help that came not. But when the sun rose, the promise and the hope that the night had whispered of vanished with its first beams, and the men, in the chill morning air, looked in each other's faces, and saw them doubtful, uncertain, and grey with fear.

Dispirited and weary in every limb, Sir Hilton returned to the house, and met in silence the women who pressed

"Heaven forbid!" he replied. "I think she must have met with an accident—have fallen—sprained a limb, or broken it; and perhaps she lies somewhere, fainting, weak, unable to rise or cry."

"But you have searched—you have called aloud through all the night?" said Lady Trewavas.

"Yes," said Sir Hilton; "but still there is hope, unless she has fallen from the cliff, and the tide——. But we will not believe the worst just yet. Now the day is come, we shall find her."

"At home here we have passed a fearful night," said Lady Trewavas. "But for John, Mrs. Maristowe would have gone mad, or died."

"How is she?" he asked.

Sir Hilton and Mrs. Maristowe had never loved each other much, but now his voice shook as he asked for the mother of Eleanor.

"She sleeps—worn out with grief and tears," replied Lady Trewavas. "I have not waked her to tell her you are here, since it would be but useless pain."

"You have done well," said Sir Hilton. "When I come again I will bring her daughter dead or living."

Lady Trewavas looked into his face, so woe-worn and changed in a night, and her heart trembled for him.

"You are very weary," she said. "Take a few hours' rest, and let John search the while."

All through the night, John, at Sir Hilton's urgent request, had remained to comfort and guard the wretched mother, who clung to him in querulous, exasting, helpless grief. His had been a bitter task, but he had fulfilled it gently, with wondrous patience, intermingled with fits of tears like a woman; and now and then a burst of wilder grief than even the bereaved mother's, whose hand he held.

"Let John go," continued Lady Trewavas. "He has passed a weary night; the excitement of the search will be better for him than this heavy inactive grief, and rest will do you good."

"No, no," said Sir Hilton, resolutely, "I will not rest, or cease my efforts, till I have found her; and I will give to no one a task that is my own. I know to remain here inactive is a more trying part than the one I take, but at such a time John will oblige me. Tell him I thank him for his care of that poor woman this night; and say, I cannot bear to think of her and you unguarded, else I would not ask him to do so hard a thing for my sake. Where is Olive? Has she not watched with you?"

"She has been to and fro," replied Lady Trewavas, hesitating at her words; "but, for some strange reason, Mrs. Maristowe would not bear her presence. Once or twice she assailed her cruelly; she even said that had she not been locked in her room, she might have thought——"

She stopped, and looking up, met Sir Hilton's eyes anxiously. His fell, and a rush of color flew over his changed face.

"Did Olive bear such words patiently?" he asked.

"I never saw her so patient, so pitiful, so silent," replied Lady Trewavas.

Sir Hilton sighed deeply, and bowing his head in sad silence to the aged lady, whose furrowed face seemed newly lined with care, he stepped out through the window upon the lawn. The dew was fresh beneath his feet; the lark sang high above him; the perfume of a thousand flowers met him on the morning's breath, and the ceaseless roll and dash of the unwearying sleepless sea, woke the peopled earth to life. But he, like one dead in grief, neither heard, nor saw nor listened. The sun had risen that he might find Eleanor; the day was come for this, sought case. So with eyes on the ground he walked swiftly towards a group of men awaiting him, who held in their hands drags and oars; and one had a large white sheet, loosely folded over his arm, to wrap the dead in.

From the western window of her room behind the trellis of leaves and flowers, Olive watched them go down to the sea, and falling on her knees, she wept bitterly.

Winter Sports.

The gay winter season exposes many to attacks of colds, coughs, hoarseness, tightness of the chest, asthma, bronchitis, etc., which requires a reliable remedy like Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for their relief and cure. Known as reliable for over thirty years. The best cough cure.

The expulsion of the Jews from Russia is causing a large influx of pauper Israelites to England and other European countries. No doubt a large percentage of the exiles will find their way to Canada eventually. They are not a desirable class of immigrants, aside from their poverty as very few of them engage in any industrial pursuits, their natural inclinations being towards trading and dealing. If it is right to impose a tax upon John Chinaman, Isaac Shoney should not be placed upon the free list. John will work but Isaac would rather not.

Suppose alarming symptoms prove, upon investigation, to be either perfectly natural occurrences or of very slight importance. Eat and drink what you desire, as long as it agrees with you. Your stomach knows perfectly well what it can digest. Plain simple food is desirable, as a general thing; but the luxuries of the table, in moderation, will do no harm. Alcoholic beverages are not fit for habitual use. They are true medicines, and should only be used like any other medicines—under the advice of a physician. As a regular beverage they can do no good, but will almost certainly do harm. Take all the sleep you can get, but remember that the necessary amount varies greatly for different persons. Some must sleep at least nine hours, while others thrive under six. Only don't rob yourself of what you really need. The "midnight oil" is a terribly expensive illumination to burn either for purposes of labor or study. Always treat a common cold with great respect. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred it will get well anyway, but the hundredth cold, if neglected, may lead to bronchitis, pneumonia, or consumption. It is best to take no such chances. If you are sick enough to need any medicine at all beyond the simple remedies familiar to all, you are sick enough to need the attendance of a physician.

By all means take as much exercise as you can, and be in the open air as much as possible. Outdoor life is the natural condition of mankind, and the more one can have it, the better. The practice must not be carried to extremes however. There are many days when one is much better off in a warm, comfortable, well ventilated house than trying to take outdoor exercise in a midwinter storm, or under a July sun, and no one ever strengthened his constitution by sleeping with his bedroom window open with the outside temperature at zero, or allowing the snow to drift in upon his pillow.

Fresh air, sunlight, good and sufficient food, pure water, outdoor exercise, temperance in all things, and a cheerful disposition, are the chief remedies in nature's dispensatory, and are worth more than all the drugs and medicines of the shops. Dr. Holmes has truly said that if nine-tenths of all the medicines, patent, proprietary and otherwise, in the world were poured into the ocean, it would be all the better for mankind and all the worse for the fishes; and the best physician can do little without good nursing, and thus aid nature in throwing off disease.

CHEERFULNESS A COSMETIC.

It is a cosmetic which tones the heart and places bouquets all over the countenance. Cheerfulness, like most other talents and merits, is, to a large extent, the subject of voluntary culture, and the preservation of it should be looked upon as a duty which we owe alike to ourselves and society. Those who, like the generality of men, have been in the custom of yielding up their tempers as vanes to be blown about by the shifting courses of fortune, which way they will, would be surprised to know how much the lustre of the outward scene may be affected by the light within our bosoms.

JEDGE MAXEM'S POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY.

You can't measure the Union Jack with a yard stick.

Patriots like to be paid for it.

Politics can't be no cleaner than the men that makes them.

Tain't allus the uljer that does the most fitin' that gits the biggest pensbun.

If a hundred cents ain't a dollar, what is it?"

Men and measures can't be legislated honest.

All the fools an't in Parliament.

An alarming epidemic of grip is sweeping over Newfoundland. Hundreds of people are affected, the doctors are unable to attend the victims, and in some cases the doctors themselves are very sick. The mortality at Burin, Placentia and Fortune Bay is really terrible, and grief prevails in almost every household.

All Men.

young, old, or middle-aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Loss of memory, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, emissions, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face or body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eye lids and elsewhere, heartfulness, cold feets in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with unusual paleness, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. CHAPTER VI. (Continued.)

THROUGH the park and gardens; through the bosky glades and glens where the trees grew thickest; out beyond, among the narrow lanes, where honeysuckles trailed from hedge to hedge; and all along by the yellow borders of the sea, Sir Hilton Trewavas searched for his bride. And ever through the the feverish hours of the night, as the searchers met at stated points, in park, or wood, or on the glistening shore, where the waves sprinkled silvery light, as they fell softly on the sands with a Summer rush and ripple, the cry was still the same—No tidings! In the wood, no sound but their own footfall, and the rustle of the leaf, and the flutter of the startled bird; on the mill side, mournful echoes, like unseen spirits coming on them fitfully, bringing back the hurried steps, the murmured voices, the sharp cry, the despairing call, "Eleanor! Eleanor!" then fleeing mockingly, even as the strained ear seized a hope. On the sands, long dark shadows of rock, and clouds and little glistening pools, holding the moon, and waves, silver furrowed, rolling on the shore in a soft rush of melancholy music—nought but this, and solitude, and the night silence, star-lighted.

How describe a night like this, how tell, as the hurried hours ran by, how hope rose, fell, sickened, and died? As the searchers met, they ran towards each other, calling aloud; but, as the answer came back on the wind, feet slackened, hands drooped, and the cheer died away grew pale. A thousand conjectures floated from men's lips, and seemed to fill the air.

The day being warm, had the young girl bathed, and been carried away by the tide? If so, it was vain to search till morning; then they would get boats and drags, and find her. Had she walked along the cliffs, venturing too near the edge, and slipped upon the short dry herbage, then fallen? If so, the coming waves had washed her dead into some lonely cavern, or between some ledge of narrowed rock and, when the day rose, she would flash upon them suddenly, white and awful from such a death. Or had she, in the wood, stepped upon the Cornish viper, which lies among the fallen leaves, brown like them; and unsuccored, terror-stricken, and in anguish, had she died alone? Then, when the sunlight crept in upon her and deadly snake, they might come upon her as they walked; but now, beneath the moon, 'twas useless amid the dark foliage to seek for such a sight. As the men talked and whispered thus, the sun for which they longed rose upon them, and the lingering hope which the night had kept alive fled with the darkness.

Some had thought, when the day had come, they should find her sleeping—perchance in some soft glade, or beneath a giant tree—having lost her way, and grown weary and sad with waiting for the help that came not. But when the sun rose, the promise and the hope that the night had whispered of vanished with his first beams, and the men, in the chill morning air, looked in each other's faces, and saw them doubtful, uncertain, and grey with fear.

Dispirited and weary in every limb, Sir Hilton returned to the house, and met in silence the women who pressed think the night had met with an accident—have fallen, sprained a limb, or broken it; and perhaps she lies somewhere, fainting, weak, unable to rise or cry."

"But you have searched—you have called aloud through all the night?" said Lady Trewavas.

"Yes," said Sir Hilton; "but still there is hope, unless she has fallen from the cliff, and the tide——. But we will not believe the worst just yet. Now the day is come, we shall find her."

"At home here we have passed a fearful night," said Lady Trewavas. "But for John, Mrs. Maristowe would have gone mad, or died."

"How is she?" he asked.

Sir Hilton and Mrs. Maristowe had never loved each other much, but now his voice shook as he asked for the mother of Eleanor.

"She sleeps—worn out with grief and tears," replied Lady Trewavas. "I have not waked her to tell her you are here, since it would be but useless pain."

"You have done well," said Sir Hilton. "When I come again I will bring her daughter dead or living."

Lady Trewavas looked into his face, so woe-worn and changed in a night, and her heart trembled for him.

"You are very weary," she said. "Take a few hours' rest, and let John search the while."

All through the night, John, at Sir Hilton's urgent request, had remained to comfort and guard the wretched mother, who clung to him in querulous, exasting, helpless grief. His had been a bitter task, but he had fulfilled it gently, with wondrous patience, intermingled with fits of tears like a woman and now and then a burst of wilder grief than even the bereaved mother's, whose hand he held.

"Let John go," continued Lady Trewavas. "He has passed a weary night; the excitement of the search will be better for him than this heavy inactive grief, and rest will do you good."

"No, no," said Sir Hilton, resolutely, "I will not rest, or cease my efforts, till I have found her; and I will give to no one a task that is my own. I know to remain here inactive is a more trying part than the one I take, but at such a time John will oblige me. Tell him I thank him for his care of that poor woman this night; and say, I cannot bear to think of her and you unguarded, else I would not ask him to do so hard a thing for my sake. Where is Olive? Has she not watched with you?"

"She has been to and fro," replied Lady Trewavas, hesitating at her words; "but, for some strange reason, Mrs. Maristowe would not bear her presence. Once or twice she assailed her cruelly; she even said that had she not been locked in her room, she might have thought——"

She stopped, and looking up, met Sir Hilton's eyes anxiously. His fell, and a rush of color flew over his changed face.

"Did Olive bear such words patiently?" he asked.

"I never saw her so patient, so pitiful, so silent," replied Lady Trewavas.

Sir Hilton sighed deeply, and bowing his head in sad silence to the aged lady, whose furrowed face seemed newly lined with care, he stepped out through the window upon the lawn. The dew was fresh beneath his feet; the lark sang high above him; the perfume of a thousand flowers met him on the morning's breath, and the ceaseless roll and dash of the unwearying sleepless sea, woke the peopled earth to life. But he, like one dead in grief, neither heard, nor saw nor listened. The sun had risen that he might find Eleanor; the day was come for this, nought else. So with eyes on the ground he walked swiftly towards a group of men awaiting him, who held in their hands drags and oars; and one had a large white sheet, loosely folded over his arm, to wrap the dead in.

From the western window of her room behind the trellis of leaves and flowers, Olive watched them go down to the sea, and falling on her knees, she wept bitterly.

Winter Sports.

The gay winter season exposes many to attacks of colds, coughs, hoarseness, tightness of the chest, asthma, bronchitis, etc., which requires a reliable remedy like Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for their relief and cure. Known as reliable for over thirty years. The best cough cure.

The expulsion of the Jews from Russia is causing a large influx of pauper Israelites in England and other European countries. No doubt a large percentage of the exiles will find their way to Canada eventually. They are not a desirable class of immigrants, aside from their poverty as very few of them engage in any industrial pursuits, their natural inclinations being towards trading and dealing. CHEERFULNESS A COSMETIC.

It is a cosmetic which tones the heart and places bouquets all over the countenance. Cheerfulness, like most other talents and merits, is, to a large extent, the subject of voluntary culture, and the preservation of it should be looked upon as a duty which we owe alike to ourselves and society. Those who, like the generality of men, have been in the custom of yielding up their tempers as vanes to be blown about by the shifting courses of fortune, which way they will, would be surprised to know how much the lustre of the outward scene may be affected by the light within our bosoms.

ORANGEVILLE, JUNE 18, 1891.

DEATH OF MR. ALEXANDER HUSTON.

It had been known for some days that the death of this old pioneer of Caledon might be expected at any moment, and it therefore excited no surprise but genuine regret when it became known on Wednesday evening that he had passed away.

Mr. Huston was born in Sligo, Ireland, seventy nine years ago. In 1837 he married Margaret Moore, of county Derry, Ireland. He emigrated to Canada with his family in 1840, and settled in the township of York where he remained for a few years, he then removed to lot 29, centre road, Caledon, where he followed the occupation of farming to which he was quite successful, owning and working one of the largest and best farms in the township. A few years ago he retired from the active work on the farm to enjoy the peaceful quiet of his home. The remains were laid to rest in the Forest Lawn cemetery, Orangeville, last Friday afternoon, a large concourse of friends assembled to pay their respects to one who had walked in every day life fearing God and in harmony with his neighbors. Many in Orangeville and vicinity will bear pleasant recollections of this fine old pioneer who has just passed away, his warm friendly greeting, and as an honest, worthy gentleman Mr. Huston carried to his grave the warm sympathy of many old and valued friends. He leaves besides his aged partner in life, a family of three sons and four daughters, —Robert and Thomas, Toronto, and Alexander, on the homestead; Mrs. S. Henderson, Woodstock; Mrs. H. Skelton, Dundalk; Mrs. S. Delaney and Mrs. W. Forbes, Caledon. The bereaved family have the sympathy of their many friends.

OUR MARKET FOR POTATOES.

In the Big Rapids, Mich., Bulletin, we read as follows:—

"A farmer brought to town this morning about ten bushels of potatoes, and could find no market for them. He finally sold them to the Northern hotel at fifty cents per bushel."

Why do not the farmers of Michigan avail themselves of the markets of sixty millions? What is the matter with their intelligence? In this city the farmers of Middlesex at present realize over 80 cents a bushel for their potatoes —30 cents a bushel more than the Michigan farmer in his home market. Sir Richard ought to see to this.—London Free Press.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A CABLE from London announces that Sir George Stephen's new title in full as chosen by himself, is "Lord Mount Stephen, of Mount Stephen, Alberta and Duffstown, Scotland." It is really too bad that this tin-pot gentleman couldn't find a more extended title. Titles, if they hang out much longer, will soon be auctioned off at so much per yard.

IT is somewhat remarkable that Sir John Macdonald's last speech in parliament was a defence of Sir Charles Tupper, and that the last act in the public career of Thomas D'Arcy McGee was to champion the cause of the Nova Scotian leader. On the morning of the 7th April, 1868, a motion was pending in the commons for the recall of Sir Charles (then Mr.) Tupper who had gone to England to effect the mission of Mr. Howe, who was making an effort to secure the secession of Nova Scotia from the union. McGee made an eloquent speech against the motion, and in defence of Dr. Tupper. He left the house a few minutes later, and was struck down on his own doorstep.

MELVILLE CROSS.

UARY.—It is with feelings of s that we record the death of el Stubbs, carriage maker, son of Mr. John Stubbs, which occurred at his residence on Thursday evening at 10 o'clock. He was a Canadian by birth, having been born on lot 19, centre road, Caledon, thirty-six years ago. Deceased was a strict adherent of the Methodist church. In politics Mr. Stubbs was a staunch Conservative. About two years ago he married Miss Martha Limbert of Caledon, who is now called upon to mourn the loss of an affectionate husband. Deceased was a shrewd, intelligent man, quiet and retiring in his manner and highly respected by the entire circle of his acquaintances. He was content to move quietly along life's uneven journey. While yet in the prime of life he felt himself within the grasp of that fell destroyer, cancer. He struggled hard to free himself from the daily advance of that pitless foe and looked on in dismay at the unequal combat until the grim disease touched the vital spot and Samuel Stubbs passed away from all the troubles and cares of life. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon to the Charleston burying ground and was one of the largest that ever took place in the township, there being over two hundred vehicles in the procession.

BURIAL OF SIR JOHN.

The Last Sad Rites at Kingston.

ONE OF THE MOST MEMORABLE EVENTS IN THE HISTORY OF CANADA—ALL CLASSES OF CITIZENS REPRESENTED IN THE PROCESSION.

KINGSTON, June 11.—The mortal remains of the late Sir John A. Macdonald were committed to their last resting place to-day. The day was truly a memorable one for Kingston. It marks an event that cannot fade from memory. Cataraqui graveyard becomes a historic spot and thousands in the coming days will make pilgrimages here to view the resting place of the greatest governmental ruler Canada ever had in her earliest day. The day was hot, the sun shining brilliantly. The rain came down vigorously after 8 o'clock, but did not interfere with the proceedings. The city was crowded. The people began flocking in as early as 4 o'clock in the morning. They came from all parts of Canada. The entire morning was spent in viewing the remains in the City Hall; 20,000 persons in double lines passed the bier. The guards were composed of Royal Military College cadets. They remained on duty from 9 last night till 9 this morning, when they were relieved by another party. At noon the great floral heaps were removed to a prepared car. For hours the display was witnessed by all eyes. At 1 o'clock the procession began forming, and was one of the grandest ever seen in Kingston streets. It was over two miles in length and occupied over 40 minutes in passing a given point. The parade moved at 2.45 o'clock. At this time three miles of Princess street was lined with spectators. Not less than 40,000 persons viewed the solemn advance to the grave. The parade was under civic control. The stores were closed and draped. Order of the parade was thus: Route —Direct from the City Hall along Ontario street to Princess street and direct to Cataraqui cemetery.

The Masons made a great turnout, 350 strong, under marshalship of James Greenfield of Toronto. Among the distinguished representatives were J. Ross Robertson, Grand Master, B. T. Walkem, R. Gull, E. T. Malone, R. L. Patterson, W. R. Hanse, S. Davidson. Zetland Lodge, Toronto, had 27 members, Belleville 50, Napanee 20, Deseronto 15, Sussex and St. Lawrence Lodges, Brockville, Gananoque, Brighton, Odessa and Kingston had representatives. The Kingston brethren wore crape on their arms.

There were representatives from many lodges in Eastern Ontario. The Independent Order of Foresters was represented. The Catholic orders numbered 400. They were dressed in black, wearing silk hats and having a badge with the words "In Memoriam" in the lapel of their coats. Nearly every member of the fraternal societies had on a mourning emblem. It took 18 minutes for them to pass walking four abreast. The pallbearers were members of the Cabinet and Hon. J. C. Aikins. The guards extending down the entire line were composed of men of "A" Battery R. M. College, Kingston, Field Battery and 14th Princess of Wales Own Rifles. The infantry men carried their arms reversed. Col. C. Growski, representing Her Majesty, was accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Smith's A.D.C. to the Governor General. Sir Alexander Campbell, Hon. Oliver Mowat, Moderator Wardrope of the Presbyterian Assembly, and Archbishop Cleary occupied carriages. Nearly every city, town and village in Ontario was represented.

The men in line, numbering 7000, stepped off at slow pace to the music of "A" Battery and 14th Princess of Wales' Own Rifles bands combined and the Gananoque band. The solemn strains floated back as the cortege moved far into the country. Slowly the cortege proceeded and in a few minutes the thousands of spectators who had proceeded to the cemetery by rail could see the glistening helmets of the cavalrymen as they reached the top of the hill. They descended the dusty road towards the little village of Cataraqui, the streets of which were lined by the villagers and hundreds of tourists who had driven in to see the event. The cemetery looked its very best, the soft green sward, the warm summer sun and the beautiful foliage of the trees contrasted artistically with the beds of bright flowers which dotted the hillside here and there where the grave was located. The sad procession passed through the throngs of people bowed and with uncovered heads. The hearse was flanked by eight artillerymen, who on arriving at the last resting place reverently took up the remains of Canada's great statesman and carried the casket to the grave. As Archdeacon Jones stepped forward in clerical robes the harsh rattle of the timbers was heard as the workmen uncovered the grave, and there was scarcely a dry eye in the large surrounding multitude as the casket was lowered into its last resting place. Hugh J. Macdonald, Prof. Williamson, and Hon. J. A. Chapleau were prominent at the edge of the grave, and their sorrow was plainly visible as they bravely tried to bear up in their affliction. Impressive and affecting was the beautiful burial service of the Church of England, as read as Archdeacon Jones; "Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust." The words came solemnly from the preacher's lips, followed by the benediction, and Canada's greatest man was in his long last resting place. The grave was then securely sealed with several large pieces of stone-work set in the sides to make it perfectly safe, the cavity was filled in and the floral tributes placed around it. The crowds slowly dispersed and, as if to fittingly close the last scenes of a great career, a brilliant rainbow circled around the eastern sky through the sprinkle of rain then falling, and nature seemed to naturally say, "Peace to his ashes."

A guard of "A" Battery will remain in charge for a month.

An interesting feature of the parade was the presence of Indian delegations from Tyendinaga, Tuscarora and Oneida reserves. The Indians joved "Old To-Morrow," as he had been lovingly nicknamed, and by their presence they desired to manifest their grief with the nation.

It is conjectured that a specific may yet be found for every ill that the flesh is heir to. However this may be, certainly the best specific yet found for diseases of the blood is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and most diseases originate from impure blood.

The last meeting of the town council for the month of June was held in the council chamber on Monday evening. The mayor occupied the throne and Reeve Lindsey, Deputy-reeve Endacott, Ald. Coleman, Fiddis, Young, Green, Youmans and Ketchum were found in their old places. Ald. Gillespie, who is said to be looking after something higher than a common councillor, arrived down just in time to hear the sweet, though not musical words, "I move we adjourn." Only three were read and only one was ordered paid. D. Suggitt, 75cts; Post, $14.25, and Jas. McDonald, $57.60, referred to Printing and T.P. committees respectively.

ARRANGED WITH THE CADI.

The reeve read a report from the Finance committee, which had succeeded in making its regular semi yearly settlement with P. M. Pattullo regarding police court fines. The cadi has $65 in fines on hand, but he also has a contrary account for books, etc. The P. M. will pay over $50, and pay the book account to the amount of $10.35 and the town will pay him $21.55.

ELECTRIC LIGHT CONTRACT.

Ald. Fiddis rung in the S. L. committee's report. The first clause recommended that the street lighting contract should be renewed for one year at the old terms, and the second clause advised the council to consider the advisability of purchasing a plant of its own. The reeve thought a little discussion on this point would do no harm and the council went into committee of the whole. Mr. Lindsey thought the contract should be renewed for three years, and the chairman of the S. L. made a comparison of prices paid by Orangeville and those paid by other towns. Several others aired their "eloquence" on the subject, and then the mayor spoke out and said he couldn't see why the report should not be adopted. The Councilrose and the report went flying through.

The deputy reeve reported that he had received tenders for the renting of the weigh scales, and as John Hicks' tender was the highest, $108 per year, the committee recommended it should be let to him. And it was.

Ald. Ketchum, acting-chairman of the R. & B., produced a report which recommended that a two plank sidewalk be laid on Second street up to Fourth avenue. And it will be.

THE PASTORS CALL.

Rev. A. Henderson sent a memorial to the mayor praying that steps be taken to put a stop to the desecration of the Lord's day in Orangeville; and that children under 12 years of age should be kept off the streets after 9 o'clock in the evening. Revs. Hender son, Hossack and Gilmour were present and addressed the council. Rev. Mr. Henderson said a memorial presented some time ago did not receive proper attention. Sunday desecration was becoming very prevalent in town and vicinity, and he thought the running of trains on Sunday was not at all necessary. Rev. Mr. Hossack thought it would be easier to stop Sunday trains, but children should be kept off the streets at night, as home was the proper place for them. Near his residence he has known children to remain out until 12 o'clock. The mischievous urchins annoyed passers-by by pelting them with pebbles, etc., tapping windows and throwing stones at doors. As a last resort the police were called, but to prevent the nuisance he would have to remain there all night. Rev. Mr. Gilmour followed and dealt with the railway question. The railway employes, he said, had to work seven days a week, and were deprived of worshipping the Lord on Sundays. The rev. gentleman jocularly remarked that if the council didn't do right he could not excommunicate them, as none of them belonged to his church. The matter was referred to special committee consisting of Endacott, Young, Green and Ketchum.

CONDOLENCE.

Moved by Deputy reeve Endacott, seconded by Reeve Lindsey and

RESOLVED—That this council, in session assembled, desire to place on record an expression of our deep regret at the immeasurable loss sustained by our country through the death of our late lamented Premier, Sir John A. Macdonald, and that we as a body in which all political parties are represented, tender to Lady Macdonald and family in this, their hour of deep affliction, our unfeigned expression of sorrow and sympathy. And that a copy of this resolution be signed by his worship, the mayor, and clerk and be forwarded to Lady Macdonald.

THE FIRE HALL TENDER LET.

Mr. Endacott presented a report of the T. P. committee regarding the tenders for the erection of the fire hall. Only three tenders had been received, and each tender was accompanied by a marked cheque for $200. H. Haley offered to complete the building for $2,537, James McDonald $2,219, and D. McDonald $2,197, providing the eastern wall of the present building would stand, or $120 more if a new wall has to be built. D. McDonald's tender being the lowest was accepted.

SQUIBS.

The mayor thought a grant of $50 should be made to the new band, but two or three of the aldermen made a very weak kick against the motion. The band gets the shekels "just as hard."

Ald. Ketchum inquired if anything had been heard from the C.P.R. about planking the railway crossing. No'er a word.

And the meeting then pulled up stakes.

$50,000 to loan on mortgage security. Interest and expenses low, terms to suit borrowers. F. Irwin, office over Endacott Bros' store, Orangeville.

CARDWELL TORIES!

THEY HELD A GRAND MEETING AT MONO MILLS ON THE 13TH.

Tributes to Canada's Dead Statesman.

OLD OFFICERS ALL RE-ELECTED.

SPEECHES DELIVERED BY THE MEMBERS.

The annual meeting of the Cardwell Liberal Conservative Association was held in Aldom' Hall, Mono Mills, on Saturday, the 13th inst. The hall was filled by a respectable and representative body of men, Orangeville being represented by Dr. Lewis, Squire Wilson and others. The proceedings were characterized by undue solemnity, the members being much affected by the recent death of Canada's great leader. Shortly after the time advertised for the opening James Snell, Esq., president of the association, called the meeting to order and, after explaining the object of the gathering, referred feelingly to the loss we have sustained, gave a brief sketch of the state of our country at the commencement and close of the career of Sir John Macdonald, and reviewing the progress of commerce, education, telegraphy, railways and canals, he wound up with an affecting peroration to the memory of our late chieftain.

Mr. Snell then thoroughly explained the financial standing of the association, and called upon Mr. Henry Carson to assist the worthy secretary, John Wallace, Esq., to collect the membership fees and in a few minutes sufficient money was collected to pay all liabilities and leave a handsome sum in the treasury.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, Thos. Glassford, Esq., in the chair. The following gentlemen were nominated for president: James Snell, Mono; Robert Johnson, Caledon; Thos. Taylor, Albion; Joseph Leggatt, Adjala. The three last assigned reasons for not wishing to accept the position at present and Mr. Snell was declared elected. That gentleman thanked the meeting for the honor conferred on him for the fourth time, and said it was pleasing to him to know that the efforts he had put forth in the interests of the party were appreciated by the Conservatives of Cardwell. He remarked that there was a good deal of Irish blood and fight in him and the hotter the battle the better he felt. John Wallace, Esq., of Castlederg, was re-elected secretary. After thanking the association in a brief speech, he stated that in the interest of the party he was willing to act in any capacity from the door to the chair. The following were then elected vice-presidents: Mono, Henry Carson; Caledon, Thos. Glassford; Albion, Thomas Taylor; Adjala, Joseph Leggatt.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

The following resolution was then put and carried;

Moved by John Wallace, Esq., J. P. Castlederg, and seconded by Richard Allen, Esq., Warden of Dufferin, That

WHEREAS it has pleased Almighty God to take unto himself our esteemed and worthy Chieftian, the Right Honorable Sir John A. Macdonald, P.C., G.C.B., D.C.L., LL.D., Q.C., Prime Minister of this Dominion,

THEREFORE, be it resolved that this Conservative Association now assembled at this annual meeting do tender to Lady Macdonald our heartfelt sympathy and condolence in her bereavement, and it is the prayer of this Association that the blessing of the Triune God may rest upon her, her daughter Mary and the rest of the family, and that Mr. R. S. White, our representative member, do deliver to Lady Macdonald personally a copy of this resolution.

Mono Mills, Cardwell, June 13th, 1891.

Mr. Joseph Darraugh, treasurer of the association, who has been very ill for some time, was unable to attend the convention sent a communication stating that he wished to be relieved from office, but he is and has been a consistent and valued member. The meeting re-elected him treasurer and passed a resolution of sympathy with him. Our esteemed member, R. S. White, M.P., was introduced and gave an address of about a half-hour's duration, which was devoted chiefly to a reference to our late Chieftain, and expressed the belief that God would raise up a man in the interests of our country to perpetuate the work so ably commenced and followed up by the late Sir John Macdonald. Mr. White is becoming a very pleasing speaker and is evidently working his way into the hearts of the people of Cardwell. Dr. Lewis, of Orangeville, was called upon, and from the way he was received and listened to he must be a favorite with Cardwell Conservatives. He occupied his time giving a description of the funeral obsequies and giving some very sound advice on the work to be done by the party and the necessity for doing it. Although the evening was waning away Mr. John Wallace and several others were unwilling to separate without the enjoying a speech from Mr. D. J. Mungovan. He spoke for some time on the duty of the party at this time and the circumstances under which we are placed. He expressed himself pleased with the harmony of the meeting and the selection of officers and contrasted the proceedings of to day with that of a day when a candidate was being selected. He paid a tribute of respect to our late Premier, made a few remarks on Mr. White's political career and retired amid applause. Several other speakers occupied the attention of the meeting for some time, dealing with the important topics of the day.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair vigor, the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

One of the largest and most thoroughly equipped universities in America is Cornell University, at Ithaca, N. Y. About a year ago Henry W. Sage (who had already given the university about one million dollars) made a gift of $200,000 to equip more thoroughly the Department of Philosophy. After receiving this gift the trustees of the university constituted the department into a school designated the Susan Linn Sage School of Philosophy. This school is now equipped as follows: (1) One professor of philosophy, (2) one professor of psychology, (3) one professor of pedagogy, (4) one professor of the history and philosophy of religion and Christian ethics, (5) two assistant professors of philosophy, and (6) one instructor in philosophy. There is also a psychological laboratory. To the encouragement of higher studies and research in every branch represented by the School of Philosophy, there have been established for award to distinguished graduates of Cornell and other universities six scholarships of the annual value of $300 each, and four fellowships of the value of $400 each, both scholarships and fellowships being tenable for one year. Holders of these are also exempt from the tuition fee of $125.

Mr. Joseph A. Leighton, of Orangeville, who is at present writing at his graduation examination in Trinity University, Toronto, has just received word that he has been successful in winning one of these scholarships. Mr. Leighton has already won so many honors and scholarships that he can hardly keep in mind when and where he obtained them; but of all the educational honors won by Orangeville boys this is the highest. Mr. Leighton will now require to go two years to Cornell University, and then he will obtain the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. We congratulate Mr. Leighton on the distinguished honor he has obtained, and we congratulate his parents, also, on the success of their son, as they are striving hard to give him as good an education as can be obtained on this continent at the present time.

CAMILLA.

SHORT AND SWEET.—The fine rains of the past week have made the crops look first-class.....The carpenters are busy at Mr. Doney's blacksmith shop, and it is going to be a fine one.....Mr. Hamilton McKim, who went out west early in the spring, has returned home .....Teacher Bremner attended the convention at Orangeville last week.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.—When the heavy thunderstorm was at its height on Monday night the barn of Mr. Peter Forsyth was struck by lightning and completely consumed. We have not learned the particulars.

J. H. L.—Mr. Joy Honesty & Liberty Lewis, known all over this country, is again amongst us to brighten our hamlet, if not with his smiles he will with his brush, so there.

SHE'S A KICKER.—Nearly all the people of Camilla are suffering from bruises sustained at the hands—or the hind feet—of a kicking cow belonging to E. J. C. Frank says she is a hustler, you bet.

BLOUNT.

IN A NUTSHELL.—Everything is going quietly along around here.....The crops look excellent since the late rains. .....Mr. H. Carson was at the Conservatives annual meeting at Mono Mills on Saturday.

REFUSED THE OFFER.—We have it on very good authority that our esteemed citizen, George Brooks, Esq., has been offered the professorship of ignorance in the Toronto University, but, although the salary is large, he refused the offer. We are very glad George has refused to leave us, as we want at least one learned and polished gentleman in this community.

LONG EARS.—Some fellow whose ears are a little longer than his nose wrote a very nonsensical correspondence to an Orangeville paper last week, attacking THE SUN'S correspondent. He signed himself "G. B." but we can't imagine he and Professor George Brooks are one and the same person. If it was the professor it is not likely the Queen's English would have been mutilated so badly, but everyone knows who it is.

TARBERT.

BRIEFS.—Messrs. John Park and Daniel Cowan are rushing the lime business this year.....Mr. Walner, the Disciple minister, did not preach at Providence last Sunday night. He was away.

PRAYER MEETING.—Rev. H. Crozier of Grand Valley will hold prayer meeting in the school house of S. S. No. 8, Amaranth on Friday night. All should attend this meeting and encourage the good work.....Our pedagogue attended the teachers' convention at Orangeville last week.

NOT FOUND YET.—For a long time a great many of the young people have been trying to find out who THE SUN'S Tarbert correspondent is, but up to date have been singularly unsuccessful. They should subscribe for the paper themselves and not borrow it from their neighbors, and maybe then they could tell who is doing the writing.

SAD ACCIDENT.—On Sunday of last week, while on the way to church, Mrs. Robt. Philips, of Tarbert, had the misfortune to get one of her legs broken near the ankle. The horse took fright at a hat blowing off, and commenced to kick whereupon Mrs. Philips attempted to jump or was thrown out of the buggy and the leg got caught in the wheel. The injured woman was taken to Mr. T. J. Turner's and medical aid summoned. The bones were set and Mrs. Philips was afterward conveyed to her home. The pain must have been severe as the bones protruded through the flesh after the accident.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Teachings of Experience.—The united testimony of thousands extending over more that forty years, most strongly recommends these Pills as the best purifiers, the mildest aperients, and the surest restoratives. They never prove delusive, or give merely temporary relief, but attack all ailments of the stomach, lungs, hearts, head, and bowels in the only safe and legitimate way, by cleansing the blood, and so eradicating those impurities which are the source and constituent of almost every disease. Their medical efficacy is wonderful in renovating enfeebled constitutions. Their action embraces all that is desirable in a household medicine. They remove every noxious and effete matter; and thus the strength is natured and the energies stimulated.

BACK FROM THE GRAVE

A Well-Known Hamiltonian Snatched From the Jaws of Death.

HAD BEEN GIVEN UP BY THE DOCTORS AND HIS CASE WAS CONSIDERED HOPELESS, BUT HE RECOVERED IN A MIRACULOUS MANNER AND IS NOW AS WELL AND STRONG AS EVER.

Hamilton Herald, May 27th, 1891.

Although the age of miracles is generally supposed to be past, the case of John Marshall, of 35 Little William street, is about as nearly miraculous as anything that can be imagined. For three years and a half Mr. Marshall has been a victim of a disease known as locomotor ataxy, a spinal affection which deprived him of all feeling from his waist downwards, and left him a helpless cripple, given up by his physicians as incurable. To-day he is restored to health, and apart from the weakness natural to a man who has wrestled so long with a terrible disease, he may be said to be as well as ever. The story of his wonderful recovery has been heard with amazement by his many friends, for Mr. Marshall is well known in Hamilton, having lived here for nearly thirty years, and for twenty years before his illness having been manager for the Canadian Oil Company here.

One of the Herald's young men heard of the case and hunted up Mr. Marshall to get his story, which he was not unwilling to tell in the hope that his experience might be of benefit to others who are affected similarly.

"I was taken ill in August 1887," said Mr Marshall, "and for three years and a half I was scarcely able to leave my room. My illness, I believe, was the result of a fall I had a year before, and it left me helpless. I had absolutely no sensation in my body below the waist, could not feel pins stuck in me, and was deprived of the use of my limbs. For more than three years I was not able to leave the house, say more than on very fine days I might go as far as the corner, and during all that time I was never down town. I had the best medical assistance, but the doctors all agreed I could not recover. I tried all kinds of patent medicines but none of them did me any good. I also tried electricity, having as many as three batteries on me at once, but it was all of no avail

"How did you come to recover?"

"In February last some one threw in a circular about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I laid it aside, thinking it was like all the others I had tried—no good. But on April 14 I decided to give them a trial, and got a box of the Pills. Within three days I noticed an improvement, and it has continued ever since, until I am as well as you see me. I considered it nothing short of a miracle, and my friends who knew me can scarcely credit it. Why, last week, I got up one morning, took my bath, dressed myself, went to the station, took the train for Toronto and walked to my brother-in-law's, and he would not believe it was myself."

"You say you were given up by the doctors?"

"Yes, I spent hundreds of dollars in medical advice and in the purchase of all sorts of quack remedies. My physicians said my disease was incurable and that I would never be able to use my limbs again. I am a member of the Royal Templars, and I have been passed by the society's doctor as past recovery, receiving from it the total disability benefit of $1000. That is the best possible proof to me that my case was considered hopeless."

How many boxes of the Pills have you taken?"

"I am on my seventh box, but, as I told you, I got relief from the start. I consider my recovery to be wonderful, and I am recommending the remedy to every one who is afflicted as I was."

The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have accomplished such a miraculous cure in Mr. Marshall's case, say the remedy is compounded from the formula of a well-known physician, and is unsurpassed for the treatment of all diseases arising from impoverished blood or loss of vital force.

The remarkable case noted in the above article from the Hamilton Herald conclusively proves that the proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have in way overstated the merits of their remedy. Pink Pills are a never failing blood builder and nerve tonic, and are equally valuable for men or women, young or old. They cure all forms of debility, female weakness, suppressions, chronic constipation, headache, St Vitus dance, loss of memory, premature decay, etc., and by their marvellous action on the blood, build up the system anew and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow complexions. These pills are sold by all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medical Co., Brockville, Ont.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

BRIEFS.—The old Jeffery planing mill is again running under the management of Messrs. Geo. Stone & Son.... Mr. Thos. Canning, of Shelburne, has received the appointment of high constable for the county of Dufferin. Tom is to be congratulated on his promotion.

12TH JULY.—The Orangemen of Melancthon District will celebrate the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne in Shelburne this year, on Monday, 13th July. A large crowd is expected.

ASSAULT.—Mr. Myers W. Miller, of Amaranth, had Mr. Matthew Dodds, of Corbetton, up before Justices Graham and Jelly on Saturday, for assault and battery. Dodds was fined $5 and costs. Mr. F. G. Dunbar appeared for the prosecutor.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.—Magistrates Jelly and Graham gave their decision yesterday in the case of John S. Lusty, charged with perjury in a Chancery case now in progress, committing the defendant for trial. The complainant was Jas. Watson, of the 3rd line, Melancthon. Bail was accepted.

FOOT CUT.—While chopping the other day, Jos. Corbett, who works for Jas. Watson, of Melancthon, cut one foot badly. The axe entered between the big toe and the second one, cutting one of the bones of the foot. An amputation of the big toe may yet be found necessary.

HAND CUT OFF.—Thursday afternoon last Charlie Snider, 7 or 8 years of age, son of Mrs. Snider, Adeline street, Shelburne, was playing at the railway track, putting pins on the iron rails in front of a car that was being shunted. Unfortunately he let his left hand remain on the rail too long, and one car wheel passed over it, mangling it terribly. The men who were shunting the car did not see the little fellow. Drs. Norton and Rooney found it necessary to make an amputation at the wrist. To those other boys who have been in the habit of playing on the railway track, this should come as a warning not to be disregarded.

Like Paralysis.

"For years I suffered with my back which sometimes became as if paralyzed. I suffered awful agony for months and could not sleep, but now, thanks to your Burdock Blood Bitters, I am strong again, have no pain and can work well, eat well, and sleep well." —Mrs. Hammerton, 22 Charlotte St., Toronto.

Superphosphates Land Fertiliser, highly recommended, and in connection with same a price of $75.00 will be given for best acre of potatoes. Only a few sacks received.

James McCarston of Mono Centre had six head of cattle killed by lightning last Thursday night. The animals were in a field when they were struck by the electric fluid.

The Photo taken by W. Still of the Teachers' convention and the Grand Lodge of the S. O. I. P. A. are very fine. Copies can be obtained from W. Still, Orangeville, or A. E. Winton, G. P., 136 Orange ave., Toronto.

CHILD FOR ADOPTION.—The infant found in the basket on the Fergus and Orangeville road in West Garafraxa is now offered for adoption. It is a healthy male child about five or six weeks old.—Fergus News-Record.

S. O. I. P. A. CONCERT.—Tyrone Lodge of the Sons of Ireland Protestant Association held a concert in the town hall on Friday evening last, and from a social point of view it was a success. The programme, however, did not come up to expectations.

RESIGNED.—Miss Susie Varcoe, who has acted as organist of St. Mark's church for the past three months, has resigned owing to ill-health. Miss Nellie Hewat has been requested to take the position, but that lady has not decided to accept it yet.

A TASTY JOB.—Mr. A. M. Rutherford of Owen Sound has presented us with a neat, well-printed schedule and score book of the Canadian Lacrosse Association. Every lacrosse player and lover of the game should have one. The price of the handsome little volume is 10cts.

THEIR FIRST TOOT.—The Citizens' band will play in public for the first time since reorganizing, at a garden party to be held at Mr. Thos. Potter's, Mono Mills, on Friday evening. They will play a few selections on Broadway before leaving for the party. The seldom-nis band master is expected to have a first-class musical organization.

DEAD.—We are sorry to hear that Mr. James Porter of Sand Hill, father of Mr. T. G. Porter of this town, died of paralysis at Toronto on Wednesday. Mr. Porter started for the city this morning on receipt of a telegram announcing his father's death. The remains will be interred at Sand Hill to-morrow.

TEACHERS' CONVENTION.—The teachers of Dufferin held their annual meeting in the high school building here on Thursday and Friday. A large attendance was present and the lengthy program was successfully carried out. On Thursday evening they gave a very pleasing entertainment before a large audience in the town hall.

MEDICOS.—The following ex pupils of the high school have been successful at the recent examinations held by the medical council: FINAL EXAMINATION—for degree of M. C. P. S. O. (granting licenses to practice medicine in Ontario)—George Shannon, Mark Dunning, T. H. Henry; Primary Examination—George Clingman, John Henderson.

KICKED BY A COLT.—On Tuesday Mr. John White of Caledon, two or three miles from town, met with a very unfortunate accident. He was attempting to catch a colt which was running in a field, when the animal let fly its hind feet, striking Mr. White on the wrist. The bone was pretty badly fractured and under the care of Drs. Henry he will soon be all right again.

THE GLORIOUS 12TH.—The Dufferin county L. O. L. held their semi-annual meeting at Belwood on Tuesday. After some routine business had been transacted a discussion arose as to where the glorious 12th would be celebrated. A large majority were in favor of Orangeville, and, consequently this town got it. This year is a united period in Orangeville for its numerous celebrations.

A MELANCHOLY MISSION.—On Monday Mr. Davidson, baggage-master at the station here, travelled to Toronto on a melancholy errand, namely, to attend the funeral of his mother. Davidson, who died suddenly on Monday morning. The deceased lady was 78 years old, and had been enjoying good health. A ruptured blood vessel was the cause of her demise.

GARDEN SOCIAL.—The annual garden social in connection with St. John's church Sunday school, Mono Mills, will be held at the residence of Mr. Alex Speers, Sleswick (Caledon), on Wednesday evening, June 24th. Games and amusements will be provided and the Caledon East brass band has been engaged for the occasion. Tea will be served at 6:30. A large crowd will undoubtedly be present.

ARRIVED TOO LATE.—Mr. Robert Huston of Toronto, son of the late Alex. Huston of Caledon, was on a visit to New York when he received a telegram announcing his father's death, which occurred on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Huston hurried here as fast as he could, but, unfortunately, arrived too late to attend the funeral. His brother, Thomas, was also unable to attend the funeral, as he is lying at his home in Toronto ill with fever.

ANECDOTES OF SIR JOHN.—For the past three years E. B. Biggar, of Montreal, has been gathering anecdotes and facts relating to Sir John Macdonald, and the result is an anecdotic life of Sir John, which will be issued in a short time. Before going to press Mr. Biggar will be glad to receive any authentic anecdotes or reminiscences on the subject that have not yet appeared in print. Mr. Biggar's address is the Fraser Building, Montreal.

REDUCED RATES.—The union picnic under the auspices of the R. C. congregations of Orangeville, Brampton and Cataract will take place at the Forks on Tuesday next, the 23rd. The pic-nickers will go by the regular train and the management have been fortunate to secure a great reduction in rates. From Orangeville the return fare is, adults 25cts., children 15cts; Brampton, adults 30cts, and children 20cts. A great day is anticipated.

REMEMBERING THE DEAD.—The members of Harris lodge, A. F. & A. M. No. 216, will attend divine service in St. Andrew's church at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, 28th inst. After the services the brethren will proceed to the Forest Lawn and Town cemeteries for the purpose of decorating the graves of deceased brethren. It will be a pleasing sight to witness the brethren, who will be in regalia, going to decorate the graves of those who have gone before.

FEEDING CATTLE FROM TORONTO!—Mr. A. Shortreed, drover, of Fergus, last week bought two carloads, consisting of fifty head, of feeding cattle in Toronto, and shipped them to Mr. W. H. Hunter at Orangeville, to be put out on grass in that vicinity. One car load averaged about 800 lbs. each, and the other about 1000 lbs each. When it is stated that some of these very cattle were taken down to Toronto from this county last week the uncertainty of the city markets will be in a measure understood.—Fergus News Record.

EXACTLY THE WAY.—The following item can correctly be applied to a great many people, some of whom do not reside outside of Orangeville:—"Keep that out of the paper," is the cry which the local newspaper publisher daily hears. To oblige often costs considerable, though the party who makes the request thinks the granting scarcely worth saying "thank you" for. A newspaper is a peculiar article in the public's eye. The news gatherer is stormed at because he gets hold of one item, and is abused because he does not get another. Young men and often young women, as well as older, perform acts which become legitimate items for publication and then rush to the newspaper offices to beg the editors not to notice their escapades. The next day they condemn the same paper for not having published another party doing the same thing they were guilty of, forgetting apparently, their late visit to the printing office. The subscribers expect to read the news, and there is wonder when, for charity's sake, an item on the street in everybody's mouth is not found in the next issue of the paper.

SONS OF IRELAND.

The Grand Lodge Meets Here and Elects Officers.

The Grand Lodge of the Sons of Ireland Protestant Association opened its annual meeting in Tyrone lodge room at 10:30 a. m. on Friday. The following grand lodge officers were present from Toronto: A. E. Whinton, grand president; A. R. Williamson, acting grand vice-president; John McFaul, grand secretary; Follis Johnston, grand treasurer; Rev. J. C. Madill, grand chaplain; Robert Dunlop, Thos. Rooney, grand lecturers. Each lodge of the association was represented by its full complument of delegates. Reports were received showing substantial progress in each lodge of the association during the past year and a rapid growth in membership.

Grand President Whinton, Grand Secretary McFaul, and Treasurer Johnston submitted their annual reports, which were found satisfactory and adopted.

Then the grand lodge devoted its attention to the proposed amendments to the constitution, adopting some and rejecting others. Those pertaining to the benefits were exhaustively discussed, and the changes tend to the material advancement of the order.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: A. E. Whinton, Toronto, grand president, Robert Dunlop, Toronto, grand vice president, John Phillips, Toronto, grand secretary, Follis Johnston, Toronto, grand treasurer, Rev. J. C. Madill, Toronto, grand chaplain, Robert Kerr, A. R. Williamson, Toronto, grand lecturers; Wm Harding, Orangeville, grand director of ceremonies; Joseph Nelson, Thomas Rooney, Sam. Wright, Toronto, grand trustees; A. A. Hughson, (Orangeville), J. M. Dixon (Toronto), auditors. The newly-elected officials were installed on Saturday.

CONDOLENCE.

The following resolution, which was passed unanimously, has been sent to Lady Macdonald:

MADAME—Permit us to express our profound sympathy and the sorrow that pervades our circle and the national loss the country has sustained in the death of your beloved and honored husband. We earnestly desire to sympathise with you in your bereavement, and we trust God may enable you in faith to look to Him as the Comforter of all troubles; and may He sustain you under the severe trial it has pleased Him you should pass is the sincere prayer of this association.

MONO CENTRE.

LIGHTNING KILLS COWS.—During the heavy storm on Thursday last lightning played havoc around here and many thought the day of reckoning had come. The electricity struck a barn belonging to William McCutcheon, but did hardly any damage. If it had stopped here nobody would have kicked, but it flew over to James McCarston's place and did considerable damage there. Six head of cattle—5 milch cows and a bull—were standing huddled together under a tree in a field, when the bolt struck the tree and the cattle at the same time. The former was not much injured, but all the cattle were instantly killed. Mr. McCarston's loss will not be a cent short of $200.

The Ready-made Clothing is now taking the lead at Leighton's Cash Grocery, Boot & Shoe Store, Orangeville.

ERIN-GO-BRAGH!

THE IRISHMEN HAVE A HAPPY TIME ON SATURDAY

Orangeville Outpulled in the Tug-of-War—Dufferins Defeat Weston at Lacrosse—Exciting Races.

The Sons of Ireland Protestant Association spent a great day here on Saturday. About 300 excursionists arrived from the Queen city by the 10.30 a. m. train. The visitors were met at the station by about 150 members of Tyrone lodge and a large number of citizens and were escorted up town. An excellent fife and drum band accompanied the visitors. The procession marched to the market square, where brief speeches were delivered.

After dinner the visitors and a large number of citizens went up to McCarthy's grove where dancing platforms were erected. The sports took place on the high school grounds, which join the grove. The two most exciting features of the sports were the lacrosse and the tug-of-war.

DUFFERINS VS. WESTON.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the Dufferins and the Weston boys faced each other to play for a handsome lacrosse cup. Our boys had the game all their own way and succeeded in defeating the Weston lads by 4 games to 1. The best of good feeling prevailed throughout the match and rough play was entirely absent. By winning this match the Dufferins have added another trophy to their already long list of victories. They have now two or three cups on hand.

DERRY NEVER SURRENDERS.

A great deal of interest was manifested when the brown sons of Erin tried to outpull each other in the tug of war contest. Orangeville had by far the best of the "tug" and could easily have pulled the Toronto lodge all over the grounds, but luck—and something else was against them and Derry lodge, No. 3, Toronto, was awarded the trophy. This trophy was a very handsome silver tea-urn, valued at $30 and presented by his worship Mayor Clarke of Toronto. In fact, all the prizes were handsome and expensive too.

THOSE WHO WON.

The following is a list of the prize winners: 100 yards race, 1st, F. Davidson, 2nd, W. Lewellan; standing long jump, 1st, D. Craig, 2nd, W. Mulholland; girls' race, 1st, Bertha Kelly, 2nd, Addie Moore; running long jump, 1st, Robt. Shields, jr., 2nd, F. Davidson; boys' race, 1st, W. Whinton, 2nd, H. Menary; half mile race, 1st, Jas Bailey, 2nd, W. J. Craig, ladies' race, 1st, Miss Wright, 2nd, Mrs. Steel; 300 yards race, 1st, Jos. Craig, 2nd, W. J. Craig; running hop step and jump, 1st J. Moffett, 2nd, Robt Shields, jr., one mile race, 1st, J. McLean, 2nd, I. Moffett; old men's race, J. W. Ferguson and R. Dunn (tie); ladies' race, 1st, Miss Dixon, 2nd, Mrs Dunn; officers' 100 yards race, 1st, B. McGuire, jr., 2nd, Ald. Bailey (Toronto).

The visitors left for home by the 6:15 train and one and all declared they were more than pleased with the day's outing.

PERSONAL.

Miss Louie Kyle has returned home from Toronto.

Mr. Thos. Clege of Toronto called on old friends here this week.

Mrs. W. J. Neil left on Wednesday for a visit to her parents at London.

Mr. F. C. Goold, of the Bank of Hamilton, has been removed to Alliston.

Misses Bella and Jessie Love of Stanton visited Orangeville friends last week.

Miss Irwin of Shelburne, who has been visiting friends in town, returned home Tuesday.

Mrs. T. T. King left on Saturday evening on a visit to friends at Toronto and other places.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs Graham, of Shelburne were the guests of Orangeville friends on Monday.

C. P. R. Baggagemaster Davidson has been called to London owing to the death of his mother.

Mr. T. W. Chapman has been appointed deputy district high chief ranger o Canadian Order of Foresters.

Mr and Mrs. W. J Dick of West Toronto Junction spent Sunday at the residence of Mr. Dick's parents, Mill street.

Mrs J. Witter and daughter, Bessie, of Shelburne, spent a few days last week at the residence of Mrs. Kelly, Church street.

Messrs. John Willis, Toronto Samuel Henderson, Woodstock, and Hugh Skelton, Dundalk attended the funeral of the late Alex. Huston on Friday last.

A Canadian Favorite.

THE season of green fruits and summer drinks is the time when the worst forms of cholera morbus, diarrhœa and bowel complaints prevail. As a safe-guard Dr Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry should be kept in the house. For 35 years it has been the most reliable remedy.

The following report is going the rounds of the press, and the person referred to is supposed to be Frank Miller, son of G. C. Miller, who so mysteriously disappeared from Tilsonburg a little over two years ago.—A young man named F. S. Miller, who has been in the employ of Mr. William Gordon of Stratford, buying and shipping lumber in various parts of the county, has lovanted, and the chances are that Mr. John Cane, a private banker of Gorrie, Huron Co., is the poorer by his departure to the extent of $265.75.

Distrustful People.

Make an exception in favor of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Its known virtues as a cure for diarrhœa, dicentery, cholera morbus and all bowel complaints cause all who use it to regard it as the most reliable and effectual remedy obtainable.

FIRE INSURANCE.—If you want to be insured in the strongest and best companies in Canada, call on F. Irwin, over Endacott's store, Orangeville.

Vigilant Care.

Vigilance is necessary against unexpected attacks of summer complaints. No remedy is so well-known or so successful in this class of diseases as Dr Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Keep it in the house as a safe-guard.

SUPPOSED ARSENIC POISONING.

Rev. James Thompson, of Honeywood, With His Wife and One Child, Narrowly Escapes Death.

At or about the hour of noon on Friday last, says the Shelburne Economist, the people of Honeywood were thrown into a state of excitement by the announcement that the Rev. James Thompson (the Methodist minister who was succeeded a few months ago on the charge of Invery) had been poisoned, together with his wife and one child. It seems that Mrs. Thompson had prepared some arrowroot for dinner, and, before sitting down to the table, had taken a spoonful of it. Shortly afterwards she was taken sick, but not before Mr. Thompson had taken a spoonful or two of the arrowroot himself and also given some to the child. Soon all three were taken violently ill, and a neighbor was sent for Dr. Lawrence. The doctor pronounced the symptoms to be those of arsenic poisoning, and the proper steps were taken to restore the sufferers, with the result that all three are now in a fair way to recovery. Fortunately the other children were away at school at the time, and they escaped the poison entirely. It is not known how the poison got into the food. The arrowroot was purchased at Mr. McConnachie's store, and to make certain that no one else should suffer, Mr. McConnachie at once destroyed the balance of his stock of that commodity.

20 Miles to Procure Medicine.

Infield, Ont,

W. H. Comstock, Brockville.

DEAR SIR:—Am selling your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" in this locality. I have customers who come 20 miles for the sake of getting Morse's Pills. This speaks for itself as to their value. I use them in our family with "the most satisfactory results." My wife has been cured of sick-headache by their use. We could not do without them.

Yours, etc.,
A. ERAMER

There is no doubt about the best place to buy your teas and groceries. MacAdam is the leader in those lines.

Dyspepsia.

This disease may be traced to a variety of causes, such as constipation, liver troubles, improper food, etc. There is one cure—Burdock Blood Bitters—which may be thoroughly relied on to effect a permanent cure. It has cured obstinate cases of 25 years standing.

A Scotchman living in Australia and visiting his native land carried back a thistle, the emblem of Scotland, as the reader is doubtless aware. A grand banquet was held in Melbourne by 200 Scotchmen, and the thistle, in a huge vase, occupied the place of honor in the centre of the table. It was toasted and cheered, and the next day was planted in the public garden with a great deal of rejoicing. The thistle grew and thrived, and in due time its down was scattered by the wind; other thistles sprang from the seed, and their down was scattered, and in a few years the thistle had made itself thoroughly at home in all parts of Australia. It has rooted out the native grasses on thousands, I could almost say millions of acres of pasture land, destroyed sheep runs by the hundred and caused general execration of the Scotchmen who took so much pains to import the original. In a similar manner the water cress, the English Sparrow the common sweet brier and other exotics have proved very troublesome and caused immense losses.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills bring joy and health to all who use them. For all the ills that afflicts the female system they are a specific, enriching the blood, building up the nerves, and converting pale and sallow complexions into the rosy glow of health. Try them. Sold by all dealers, or sent on receipt of price—50c per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing Dr. Williams Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

Why Struggle.

WHY struggle with exhausting diseases when you may be promptly cured by the use of nature's remedy—Burdock Blood Bitters—the perfect cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, sick headache and all forms of bad blood from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

DUNN'S BAKING POWDER
THE COOK'S BEST FRIEND
LARGEST SALE IN CANADA

Orangeville, May 6th.

Some leather's mean. Some workmen are mean. Some shoe-sellers are mean. That's how mean shoes get made and sold.

Six out of every ten pairs of shoes are shams—pasted stock, "pancakes." Bits of useless leather are pressed and made into insoles, just as bits of useless wool are carded with long cotton and made into shoddy.

Never was a time when shoes looked so well and were so badly, until the shoeing of a whole family has come to be a serious task. There's no reason for mean shoes. Some shopkeepers see a reason for them in their cheapness, but if that's so, the meaner they're made, the better. (The wearer wouldn't tolerate that reason for a moment). The only room for them is the room they usurp, and the saving is a saving at the spigot to waste at the bung.

And the remedy?

There's a store where you can't buy shoddy shoes, because they don't sell them; where they have neither two prices nor two names for the same thing; where American kid doesn't pass for French, and machine-sewed doesn't masquerade as hand-sewed.

It's here. None but the best at the lowest prices, though best only means with what restrictions of price that're necessary.

For the men there's a good seamless Bal. for $1.75, and a better at $2 50, good enough to get married in. For the ladies here's some nice Dongola Shoes, Bals. and Button'd, at $2.75, the J. D. K. make (none better), as well as Toe Slippers at 85c., and Dong. Oxfords at $1.25, with childrens' shoes galore. There's no better for the money anywhere. We don't know how to sell "poor" shoes. More than that, we don't want to know.

You can get a Lady's fine Button Boot of us at 90c. a pair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

IS the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken; and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—T. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for a dressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," McArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

EXCHANGE ECHOES

A gang of juvenile thieves infest Brampton.

The Foresters will celebrate Dominion day in Brampton this year.

Mt. Forest citizens are debating over a one-horse system of waterworks.

Charles Barlwall, an Englishman, was arrested the other day at Windsor for trying to assault Sam Williams in Detroit. He had just got out of London jail, where he served a term for a like offence. He was "farmed" out to a Tilbury East farmer by his relatives in the Old Country, but did not like the work and went to London.

Honors bestowed in connection with the Queen's birthday have been announced. Robert Gillespie of Montreal, a director of the Grand Trunk Railway, has been knighted and Lieut. General Sir John Ross, Commander of the Forces in Canada, has been made a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath.

Dr. R. J. Andrews, whose journey to Kingston created such a sensation some six years ago, was married on May 24 in Grace Church, Buffalo. The doctor has reached his 53rd year, but says that he is good for another 20 years yet. The aged groom lost his former wife about four months ago.

According to reports from New Orleans the people are becoming impatient at the delays in the legal proceedings against those responsible for jury bribing that resulted in the acquittal of the murderers of Chief Hennessey. The American partners in this conspiracy had better look out. New Orleans' way of correcting abuses is not to be admired for its decorum, but it is very effective.

A hotelkeeper in the eastern part of the county of Peel had a lively time of it a few days ago. A lady arrived from Rochester claiming to be his wife No 1, whom he had deserted ten years ago. The hotelkeeper discreetly went into retirement for a few days while the alleged wife was seeking law. She was unsuccessful however, in her quest, and returned to the States.

The Key Stone.

REGULAR action of the bowels is the keystone of health. The use of B.B.B. insures it and cures constipation, dyspepsia, etc.

Miss F. Williams, 445 Bloor Street, Toronto, writes: "Have used your Burdock Blood Bitters for constipation and pain in the head with great success. I improved from the second dose."

The Earl of Clancarty died suddenly on Friday. By the Earl's death Viscount Dunlo, his eldest son, and husband of Belle Bilton, a music hall singer, becomes Earl of Clancarty and Belle becomes Countess of Clancarty. The deceased was 57 years of age, having been born in 1834. The Earldom of Clancarty was created in 1803. The new Earl is 23 years of age and has seen a good deal of life.

Aristotype is the name of a new and beautiful style of picture now made by W. Still of Orangeville. It surpasses anything yet produced in the photographic line. Anyone having photos taken at Still's can have them finished by this process.

A DEGRADED PUG DOG.

An east side saloon keeper has a pug dog that is drunk nearly every day. The dog first acquired an appetite for strong drink by lapping the contents of a pan which sits under the faucet of a beer keg in the saloon. At first he would have been quite as well pleased with water, but now he must have his "Lager" with regularity and precision, and it seems to go just to the spot where it will do the most good. His doggship gets very rocky under the inspiration of the foaming beverage, but he seldom falls down, as a man does who has a jag on, because he has twice as many legs.—Buffalo Courier.

Fishery Overseer Fraser seized over one thousand pounds of bass and pickerel at Midland on the night of the 12th instant, which were distributed among the poor by order of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

"Like Magic,"

THE effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Colds, Coughs, Croup, and Sore Throat are, in most cases, immediately relieved by the use of this wonderful remedy. It strengthens the vocal organs, allays irritation, and prevents the inroads of Consumption; in every stage of that dread disease, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral relieves coughing and induces refreshing rest.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children have been subject."—Capt. U. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medicines, I feel justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of the Pectoral is the enduring quality of its popularity, it being more salable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvelous."—R. S. Drake, M. D., Beliot, Kans.

"My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skilful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine; saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Keep the Works in good order.

WIARTON, Ont., January 15, 1891.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—Your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" are the best regulator for the system that humanity can use. Life is as the time piece: frail and delicate are many of its works. A tiny particle of foreign substance adheres to the smallest wheel in the works, and what is the result?—at first, only a slight difference is perceptible in its time-keeping, but wait you; as the obstruction grows, the irregularity becomes greater, until at last, what could have been rectified with little trouble, in the beginning, will now require the care in thoroughly cleansing the entire works. So it is in human life—a slight derangement is neglected, it grows and increases, imperceptibly at first, then rapidly, until what could, in the beginning, have been cured with little trouble, becomes almost fatal. To prevent this, I advise all to purify the system frequently, by the use of Morse's Pills, and so preserve vigor and vitality.

Yours faithfully, H. F. ATWELL.

Honors bestowed in connection with the Queen's birthday have been announced. Robert Gillespie of Montreal, a director of the Grand Trunk Railway, has been knighted and Lieut. General Sir John Ross, Commander of the Forces in Canada, has been made a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath.

Dr. B. J. Andrews, whose journey to Kingston created such a sensation some six years ago, was married on May 24 in Grace Church, Buffalo. The doctor has reached his 83rd year, but says that he is good for another 20 years yet. The aged groom lost his former wife about four months ago.

According to reports from New Orleans the people are becoming impatient at the delays in the legal proceedings against those responsible for jury bribing that resulted in the acquittal of the murderers of Chief Hennessy. The American partners in this conspiracy had better look out. New Orleans' way of correcting abuses is not to be admired for its decorum, but it is very effective.

A hotelkeeper in the eastern part of the county of Peel had a lively time of it a few days ago. A lady arrived from Rochester claiming to be his wife No 1, whom he had deserted ten years ago. The hotelkeeper discreetly went into retirement for a few days while the alleged wife was seeking law. She was unsuccessful however, in her quest, and returned to the States.

"Like Magic,"

THIS effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Colds, Coughs, Croup, and Sore Throat are, in most cases, immediately relieved by the use of this wonderful remedy. It strengthens the vocal organs, allays irritation, and prevents the threads of Consumption; in every stage of that dread disease, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral relieves coughing and induces refreshing rest.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children have been subject."—Capt. U. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medicines, I feel justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of the Pectoral is the enduring quality of its popularity, it being more salable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvelous."—R. S. Drake, M. D., Beliot, Kans.

"My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skilful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine; saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Poetry.

CANADA.

O child of nature, giant limbed,
Who standest amid the nations now
Unhonored, unadorned, unhymned,
With unanointed brow!

How long the ignoble sloth, how long
The trust in greatness not thine own;
Surely the hour cannot be strong
To bring the world alone!

How long the indecision, ere thou dare
Achieve thy destiny, or lift thy fame,—
Ere thy proud eyes behold thee bear
A nation's franchise, nation's name?

The Saxon force, the Celtic fire,
Those are thy manhood's heritage;
Why rest with helpless slaves? Seek higher
The place of race and age!

I see to every wind unfurled
The flag that bears the maple-wreath;
Thy swift keels furrow round the world
Its blood-red folds beneath;—

Thy swift keels cleave to the furthest seas;
Thy white sails swell with alien gales;
To stream on each remotest breeze,
The black smoke of thy pipes exalts.

O failures! let thy past convince
Thy future,—all the growth, the gain,
The fame since Cartier knew thee, since,
Thy shores beheld Champlain!

Montcalm and Wolfe! Wolfe and Montcalm!
Quebec, thy storied citadel,
Attest in burning song and psalm
How here thy heroes fell!

O thou that bor'st the battle's brunt
At Queenston and at Lundy's Lane,—
On whose scant ranks but iron front
The battle broke in vain,—

Whose was the danger, whose the day,
From whose triumphant throats the cheers
At Chrysler's Farm, at Chateauguay,
Storming like clarion-bursts our ears?

On soft Pacific slopes—beside Strange floods that northward rave and fall—
Where chafes Acadia's chainless tide—
Thy sons await thy call!

They wait; but some in exile, some
With strangers housed, in stranger lands;
And some Canadian lips are dumb
Beneath Egyptian sands!

O mystic Nile! thy secret yields
Before us; thy most ancient dreams
Are mixed with far Canadian fields
And murmur of Canadian streams.

But thou, my country, dream not thou!
Wake, and behold how night is done,—
How on thy breast and o'er thy brow
Bursts the uprising sun!

CHAPTER VIII.

As the sun rose flashing on the eastern window of Beavigo, the news fell on the careless household, waking all to wonder and sad thoughts. It seemed to young Vigo that the light brought the dreadful words to him, and with them a fear, a surmise, that curdled his blood as it came.

"Searched all night, and have not found her, dead or living."

It was the fop, Mr. Damerel, who spoke. All his languor gone, and his face set to lines of suspicion and cruel thought, he sat by young Vigo's pillow, and met the earnest, depreciating gaze of his blue eyes with a stern shake of the head.

"It is useless, Vigo," he said, "duty must be done. I am bound by every law, human and divine, to divulge now what you told me last night in confidence."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed young Vigo. "You cannot think—"

"No matter what my thoughts are," said Damerel. "Every fact must be related that may help to elucidate this mystery."

Young Vigo sprang from his bed and dressed himself hastily.

"You are unjust—cruel," he said, as he hurried on his clothes. "You shall not make use of my confidence to fasten suspicion on the innocent."

"The innocent clear themselves easily," returned Damerel. "And I pledge myself, to this: I will not mention that meeting between you and her, which you promised not to name. I will speak only of the interview between her and her unfortunate victim, which you witnessed secretly."

"You cannot be so mean! You will not make me speak a coward!" cried young Vigo, flashing into rage. "If you do, you and I are enemies forever."

Mr. Damerel walked up and down the room silently; the nerves in his temples stood out like cords; his face grew pale; suddenly he stopped, and seized his friend by the hand.

"Vigo," said he, "will you let a woman part us?—and such a woman! I must do my duty, even if you hate me. Heaven knows it is bitter to me, and bitterer still if it is to lose me your esteem. We have been friends from boyhood; will you desert me for such a cause as this?"

With stooped heads they looked in each other's faces, both with earnest eyes, both pale, both steady and firm.

"Damerel," said young Vigo, "I tell you yes, this will part us forever, unless you listen to me. You have no right to betray my confidence."

"Not when I suspect a murder has been committed?" said Damerel.

The low soft voice in which he spoke, made his words thrill through young Vigo's ears with a keener pang than if he had uttered them in passion. His very softness seemed to show both settled certainty of purpose, both firm belief of crime.

"There is no murder," said Vigo. "If she is dead, she has fallen over the cliff. But she is not dead—she will be found."

Mr. Damerel, in deep thought, grasped his friend's hand tighter.

"Listen," said he. "Let us make a compact. If she is dead, murdered, will you speak? If so, I leave all to you—I will not utter a word."

"If she is murdered, and I see cause to suspect—"

The unhappy young man stopped, overcome by the horror of his thoughts.

"Enough," said Damerel. "In that case you will speak?"

"I will," replied young Vigo. "So may heaven help me to do the right! I promise in all security, for she is innocent. It was a childish quarrel—a silly quarrel—empty sounds. Women fight with their tongues a hundred times a day, and never harm each other."

"Not such a woman as this," said Damerel. "But I will be silent. We are friends—fast friends. This matter shall not part us—let us swear to that; and to show you that I will not breathe a word, or act in any way except in concert with you, I will not leave your side to-day. I propose that we both go together to that place, where you saw them, and search it well, telling no one of our intention. It will be time enough to speak if we find cause.

"Agreed," said young Vigo, in a low voice. His lips were so pale they could scarcely form the words, but his eyes were fearless, and his whole face bore a resolute air of unbelief.

The young men took a hurried meal together; but before he quitted the house, Charles Vigo went to his father's room. The old gentleman suddenly aroused, starred blankly at his son.

"Father," said the young man, "the news you brought home last night of Miss Maristowe's being missing is more serious than you thought. She cannot have lost her way, or have met with some slight accident, as was supposed, for the Trewavas people have searched for her all night without finding her."

"God bless my soul!" cried the kind hearted squire. "What can have happened to the poor young lady?"

"No harm, I trust," said Charles Vigo in a trembling tone. "There is some mystery which we cannot understand; let us hope it will be cleared up to-day. Perhaps she has some other lover besides Sir Hilton."

"Young ladies don't elope now-a-days, Charles," said the old gentleman. "And besides, she seemed to me to love Sir Hilton very much."

"Never mind, father," observed young Vigo. "I still think something very commonplace will account for the young lady's absence. I am not a miracle or murder monger."

"Heaven forbid, my dear boy, heaven forbid!" said the squire.

"Father, I am going out for some hours," continued Charles. "Just shake hands and wish me well before I go, will you?"

Something in the tone of the lad's voice—for he was but a lad—made Mr. Vigo raise himself to look on his son's face. The frank blue eyes were filled with tears, and the young ruddy cheeks were white as ashes.

"Why, my boy—my dear boy—what is the matter?" said his father.

"Nothing particular, father," he replied. "I am a little out of sorts this morning—a little anxious that's all."

"Take care of yourself; my dear lad. Don't go far," said Mr. Vigo. "And as to anxiety, surely you need not be pale with grief, even if Miss Maristowe—poor girl!—be dead."

"No, father. There is no need to grieve," returned his son.

There was a grey shadow of care on his face as he turned away.

"Good-bye, governor," said he. "What a jolly dear old fellow you are!"

"God bless you, Charlie," returned his father. "Don't stay long—don't go far. You look ill."

They shook hands, Charles Vigo holding his father's hands in a nervous clasp; then with a slight laugh he stooped and kissed him, running off before the old man had time to ask another question. Bolster followed the young men as they went out.

"Let him come," said Charles, as his friend strove to drive the dog back. "Poor Bolster! good dog! You are a good friend, Bolster; you will not betray confidence. I have trusted many a secret to you and never repented."

Damerel made no reply to his friend in words, but he laid his hand on his friend's arm.

"Don't think hardly of me, old fellow," he said. "I have promised you I will not utter a word. I leave it all to you. I rely on you. I know you will not shirk a duty, let it be ever so bitter."

There was a sickening throb of pain at young Vigo's heart as he bowed assent to this, but he gave no vent in speech to his fears and sorrow.

They walked on in feverish silence nearly a mile, a desultory word or two, a whistle call to Bolster, alone breaking the quiet of the way. When they reached the hill that looked down on the sunny slopes of Trewavas, both young men, moved by a simultaneous feeling, paused and stood still. Here, in the morning sun, flushed and glittered, the old mansion, glorious in beauty and strength; here lay the soft green glades of mown turf, lovely in the sunshine; and dotting the wide spread park stood noble groups of trees, while many colored foliage trembling in the morning breeze. It was a picture of safety, honor and love—a picture not of present honor only, but of past; for it told of generations gone by, all living within the safety guards of wealth, birth and rank. It told how, within the tripple wall, the old house of Trewavas had been carried as unassailed, and hoary heads had gone down in honor to the grave, and children had played peacefully, kept unspotted from the great world of sin and sorrow lying without their pale. It told of all this, and more, much more; for it appealed, as only those grey old mansions can, to the memory, the reverence, the imagination, and tenderness of the human soul. Never before had the peace and beauty of the scene spoken so powerfully to Charles Vigo's heart; never before had it appeared to him that the peace might be a false peace, and the beauty might hide dishonesty.

Thus it stood—an English home, a sanctuary within whose safe roof lay honor, affection, happiness; or dishonor, hatred, crime. Which did it hide? And whose hand was to bear the darkening and festering within those honored walls, and show it to the astonished world?

Young Vigo turned and looked in his friend's face. Both read each other's thoughts; both walked on silently. Damerel broke silence first.

"A fair scene," said he, "but not so fair as it looks. What anguish, doubt and suspicion must be raging beneath that shining roof to day."

"I would give much to know whose guilty conscience was too much troubled to sleep last night, whose courage quailed, whose black, miserable heart quaked with fear and agony," returned Charles Vigo.

The tone in which he spoke was one of defiance and contradiction. It said plainly—"I despise your suspicions. My thoughts are not your thoughts. I throw down the gauntlet in behalf of injured innocence. Take it up if you dare." But Mr. Damerel would not accept the challenge.

"Look," he said, mournfully, "there are the boats! They have found nothing. That is Sir Hilton, standing up in the stern of the boat. It is easy to recognize his figure. I am glad we cannot see his face."

"How do you know they have found nothing?" asked Vigo, gravely.

"Cannot you see how they row to and fro, and peer into the water?" said Damerel. "Come away—the sight is dreadful! And they will not find her there."

"By Heaven, Damerel, you madden me!" exclaimed Charles Vigo. "If you utter another word like that I shall blow your brains out. Let us search this accursed place, and then you shall apologize to me for your hideous suspicions, or never more be friend of mine."

Young Vigo strode on fiercely, not looking back. Damerel followed, with a flush on his face, and his lips set firmly together. In this order, neither speaking, they plunged into the wood, and pursued the narrow path leading to the Lady's Bower.

"It was there I saw them," said Charles Vigo, in a whisper, pointing to the bower. "I stood here, behind this screen of trees. Neither saw me. She walked away on that side of the pool, her black dress trailing in the water."

"Then you search on that side, and I on this," said Damerel.

"No," said Charles, "let us look together."

They stepped forward, both in deep excitement, both wonderfully silent. The bower was beautiful and still as of old; no trace here of death or crime. Clusters of blood red eglantine hung down around it in marvellous profusion, mingled with snow-white jasmine, and glossy myrtle, and trailing honeysuckle, all sweet with the dew of the morning. Flecks of sunshine and flattering shadows of myriad leaves lay on the untrodden grass around it, and not a sound, save the song of birds, broke the stillness of the time and place.

Beneath the long, low, level of the beeches standing stately round the bower, the young men searched eagerly; then further back among interlaced boughs of hazel, dwarf oak and larch; then further still, making a wider circle around the pool, beneath pine branches, lying low and dark, and between thick brushwood, and in the hollows, shining like golden basins with the glory of the furze, and all among the the crimson foxglove, high as their hot hands, and down amid the sweet smelling fern, they sought feverishly, finding nothing.

"You see," said young Vigo, "how cruel you are, how wickedly suspicious and unjust!"

"We have not looked in the pool yet," said Damerel, walking towards it.

As if by mutual consent, though without a word, they had left this to the last. Charles Vigo now followed his friend, holding in his thoughts and fears that rushed before him, and steadying his eager panting feet, and trembling hand to quietness. Gently, but to be feel the water, they set aside the floating lily leaves and blossoms, and hanging on the brink they peered into the pool. The water was exceedingly clear; but a thousand roots lay interwoven beneath the surface, and these interrupted the view. Moreover, the gentlest hand in stirring these from side to side disturbed the soil, and this loosened, bubbled upward, mingled with the soft moss lying below, which floated to and fro, deceiving the eye.

"You perceive there is nothing here but weeds and water-lilies," said Charles Vigo, rising from his knees. "Are you convinced your suspicions are cruel and vain? Say you are sorry, Damerel, and let us go on to Trewavas and make enquiries, before we turn homewards."

"I am convinced only that without a drag we shall not find what we seek in this pool," said Damerel. "Ha! what is that Bolster has found—a snake?"

It was no snake. Young Vigo knew it at the first glance—the crimson silk cord which Olive had worn as a girdle; and, turning ghastly pale, he leaned against a tree, with a deathly sickness stealing through his veins.

The cord was lying in the water, partly tangled round the roots of the great beech, whose wide spread branches shadowed the pool; and Bolster swam round and round, holding it in his mouth, vainly striving to bring it to land.

Throughout the search the young men had made that morning, the dog had followed them, excited and eager, hunting to and fro, as for something lost; and though they had held him back from the pool, lest he should stir the water, yet, escaping from them, he had plunged in on the side opposite the bower.

"Vigo," said Damerel, "come with me to aid the dog. He is yours—I will not touch him."

Like one in a dream, Charles Vigo followed the footsteps of his friend as he ran round the pond in fevered haste.

"Shall I leave all to you, or will you have my help?" asked Damerel, grasping him by the arm.

"Bolster, Bolster, what have you there?" cried young Vigo.

His voice was so hollow, so strange, that the dog did not recognize it; he still swam about anxiously, holding the cord tightly between his teeth.

"Help me," said Charles Vigo; "hold my feet, while I stretch over. Here Bolster! hi! bring me the cord, good dog."

Bolster was in strange excitement; he beat the water with his paw, and dragged at the cord, uttering a low whine; but evidently it was so tied or tangled, that he could not obey his master.

In a moment young Vigo sprang to his feet, and dashed into the pool. The water reached nearly to his neck.

"Throw me your knife," he said to Damerel, in a low calm tone.

He threw it, the young man catching it in his wet hand; then stooping and swimming, he cut the knot that had baled the retriever; and as he did so, the dead face of Eleanor Maristowe floated upward, pale and pure, just beneath the surface of the water. A huge beech branch lying level, with leaves dipping in the pool, hid her body; but between the shining green gleamed the lilac robe, and the small white hands crossed on her bosom.

Done to death, cruelly murdered, there she lay, wonderfully beautiful, the expression on her face calm as might be an angel's sleeping in Paradise.

Stooping and holding by the branch, Charles Vigo raised her in his right arm. Then he saw her fair hair streaming over her shoulders, and the crimson cord that Olive had worn tied about her wrists.

The unhappy young man staggered and would have fallen back into the water but for Damerel's aid.

"Let the poor girl go, Vigo, and get ashore yourself," said Damerel; "you are overcome."

"I have her safely," he replied. "Bolster will help me. Go! I will not stir till I see this on the grass."

With a mist before his eyes, and hands beating the water like a dying man's, Charles Vigo reached the shore. Here he lay on the soft turf, fainting, sick, hearing nothing, seeing nothing, till he felt his friend's hand upon his brow.

"Are you better, Charlie?" he asked. "Can you listen, dear fellow, to what I have to say?"

Charles Vigo took Damerel's hand in his and pressed it; then tears burst from his eyes, and turning his face to the earth he sobbed aloud.

"Thank heaven, it was not I who found her," said Damerel, bending over him tenderly. "I knew she was here, but I am glad it was not my hand that drew her forth. You would have hated me forever. Bear up, dear fellow, bear up! You have escaped the toils of a murderess; be glad for that, and think only of your duty."

THE season of green fruits and summer drinks is the time when the worst forms of cholera morbus, diarrhœa, and bowel complaints prevail. As a safe-guard Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry should be kept in the house. For 50 years it has been the most reliable remedy.

Skirt dancing has spread unto and into the American girls' college. These hitherto august institutions have permitted only the squarest of square dances, are now commencing centaurs bewildered and fandangoes. At the girls day at Wellesley the freshmen class of girls, dressed as sailor lads, boarded a frontispiced craft and danced to songs sung by clamorers.

THE BANK OF HAMILTON.

The annual general meeting of the Bank of Hamilton was held at their head office in Hamilton on the 15th inst., when a most gratifying statement was submitted to the shareholders.

In addition to paying their usual dividend of 8 per cent., the Bank added the sum of nearly $60,000 to the reserve fund and carried $5,000 to the credit of the rebate account for bills discounted. From the profits of the year a further sum of some $90,000 was added to the reserve resulting from the sale of new stock, which was disposed of to the shareholders at a premium of 45 per cent. This makes their present reserve $600,000, being 50 per cent. of their capital, and gives to their depositors undoubted security. The total earnings for the year amounted to about 14 per cent. of their capital, an amount exceeded by only one bank in the country.

The Orangeville branch of the institution, under the management of Mr. R. T. Hann, continues to increase its usual prosperous business, and it speaks well for the business outlook of Orangeville for the future to know that the circulation of money for produce and cattle are annually growing larger.

The Bank is to be congratulated on its splendid showing and now ranks as one of the most reliable monetary institutions in Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE particulars in the East Algoma election petition case against Mr. A. F. Campbell, the Conservative elected to the Local House in June last year, which was to have been tried at the Soo on the 13th inst., have been filed. There are 45 counts, including the charges of bribery directly by the respondent and by his agents at different points on the North Shore and Manitoulin Island; also charges of treating by the respondent and his agents and of hiring tugs and conveyances. Among others is a charge against the respondent of unduly influencing the electors and interfering with the free exercise of the franchise by taking possession of one of the polling booths on the morning of election day and haranguing the crowd, so that the deputy returning officer could not open the poll till long after the proper hour.

How the Liberals can have acquired the notion that the policy approved by the people as recently as last March would be returned at this juncture is a matter of misunderstanding. Neither the question nor the character of the opposition offered by the Opposition leaders gives belief that they can secure a hearing in this country. Mr. Laurier is encumbered by opponents as strong friends political as an amiable gentleman, peculiarly fitted for the preparation of academic orations, but his ability begins and ends at that point, while about him are clustered a body of men of heterogeneous opinions, who are held together solely by the hope of office. So long as the leaders of the Liberal party are lacking in unity of ideas in a broad spirit of patriotism and in an abiding faith in their country and its institutions, so long will office remain a dissolving view to their gaze.—Montreal Gazette.

Fifteen years ago Sir John Macdonald drove from Woodstock to Ingersoll. He expressed himself as delighted with the beauty of the country he passed through. What was said in 1876 can be repeated to-day with additional force, because time has increased the beauty of this drive to a great extent. The woodland scenery, green meadows, hills and valleys, along which the river Thames serenely winds its way, are subjects fit for the brush of the artist.—Ingersoll Chronicle.

Politics run pretty high in Mimosa just now. Last Friday evening a few of the residents were congregated at the back door of a house discussing the question of who should be premier in Sir John's place. A difference of opinion was so strongly shown that one politician of the Grit persuasion thought better to put a stop to the animated discussion by treeing his opponent by the throat, and choking the toryism out of him. While it is natural that honest men should strongly hold honest convictions, a forcible inculcation of them in this fair Canada of ours is to be deplored.—Hillsburg Beacon.

For the past two years Albert Petty, an employee of the Guelph organ factory, has been troubled with the second toe of his right foot, which had attained an abnormal growth and overlapped on the great toe. Latterly it became particularly troublesome and Albert decided to have it amputated. To this end he asked a fellow workman to sharpen a chisel, and after the close of work on Friday last he held his foot on a block and asked his companion to strike off the toe with the chisel. At first his friend demurred, but finally he placed the instrument on the objectionable toe, and merely saying, "Now, Albert, turn your head away," quickly lopped it off by tapping the chisel with a mallet. Petty says he thought his friend had missed it, but when he looked down he saw that the toe had been severed. The amateur surgeon and Petty then dressed the stump and the latter walked home. The whole operation and dressing did not take three minutes, and inside of four days Petty was able to wear a boot on his right foot and is now at work again. The whole affair was an exhibition of strong nerve.—Signal.

ENDACOTT BROS.

DON'T MISS THIS CHANCE.—It will only last one week longer. The big discount sale of crockery china, glassware, boots and shoes, now going on at MacAdam's.

SUSPENDED.—Rev. James Thompson, the Methodist minister of Honeywood who is charged with preaching unorthodox doctrines, has been suspended by the conference from the ministry for one year.

SUCCESSFUL MUSICIANS. — Misses May Ritchie, Dot Reid (Orangeville), and Aggie Jackson (Mono), pupils of Miss MacKinnon, have been successful in passing into the collegiate course of Toronto Conservatory of Music.

BURGLARIZED.—One night last week a hungry thief broke into the C. P. R. freight sheds and carried off a box of biscuits. As a matter of form, the Orangeville detectives were put on the case, but, as usual, the thief has not been captured.

DUFFERIN'S FALL FAIR.—A meeting of the directors of the Dufferin Agricultural Society took place in the council chamber on Saturday afternoon, when judges were appointed and other business transacted. It was decided to hold the exhibition this year on Thursday and Friday, October 8th and 9th.

CHURCH PARADE.—As stated in last week's SUN Harris lodge, A.F. & A.M., will march in a body to St. Andrew's church at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, when the pastor, Rev. D. C. Hossack, will preach an appropriate sermon. The procession will be headed by the Orangeville Concert and Orchestra band.

HE RUN THE TOWN.—Wm. Irwin, of Orangeville, arrived in Shelburne on Monday evening on a spree. He had not been in town long before he began to run things in his own way. He was quickly run in by Constable Brundage, and was brought before Justice Graham on Tuesday morning and was fined $1 and costs or ten days in jail. He paid the fine and costs after being taken to Orangeville.—Free Press.

CONCERT.—Another pleasing high-class concert will take place in the town hall to-morrow (Friday) evening in aid of the stage improvement fund. The best possible local talent will take part, and the entertainment promises to be first-class in every respect. A crowded house should be present to greet and encourage those who are giving their time and ability to improve the stage of the town hall, a work which should properly be done by the town council.

SUCCESSFUL PICNIC.—The picnic under the auspices of the R. C. congregations of Orangeville, Brampton and Cataract, held at the Forks on Tuesday, was one of the most successful affairs of the season, and the undertaking will probably net between $250 and $300. Amusements of all kinds were provided, but the most interesting proceeding of the day was the contest for a handsome gold watch, between Misses Ada Hill, Orangeville, Dwyer, Brampton, and Mc Enenny, Cataract. Miss Hill easily captured the prize, having collected $115, while the other two young ladies collected $83 between them.

A SIX YEAR OLD GIRL DRUNK.—Probably the saddest sight ever witnessed in Orangeville met the gaze of East Broadway residents on Friday afternoon last. A six year old girl was sent by one of her mother's neighbors to buy 10 cents worth of gin for medical purposes, but instead of taking the liquor to the woman the little girl drank it to the dregs and soon became helplessly drunk. For several minutes after she swallowed the vile stuff the poor little thing threw up her hands and exclaimed, "I'm drunk!" Gin is especially noted for its knocking out powers, and it did not take many minutes for it to put the little innocent to sleep. Dr. Simpson was called to attend the little creature, but it was several hours before consciousness returned.

WHAT ARE THE DOG DAYS?—The dog days are coming. The dog days last from the beginning of July to Aug. 11. The popular theory is that they are so called because dogs then go mad; but the notion is etymologically false, besides being untrue in fact. Dogs, strange to say, are rather less liable to rabies then than at any other times. "Dog days" is really a translation of the latin 'dies caniculares"—the twenty days before and the twenty days after the heliacal rising (that is, appearance in the morning just before the sun) of the star Sirius, whom the Romans called "Canicula," or "little dog." The ancients attributed a most malevolent influence to this star—our "dog star"—and sacrificed a brown dog to it to appease its rage. If this were not done they thought that the sea would boil, the wine turn sour and dogs begin to grow mad, the bile increase and all animals grow languid. It is unnecessary to say that in the course of some ages Sirius will rise at midwinter instead of at midsummer. Perhaps some wiseacres, like those who are ready to believe in dog days and new moons changing the weather and similar impossibilities, will then give him credit for the frost and snow.

ANOTHER BAND.—Several weeks ago the Citizen's band of this town gave up the musical ghost, owing to lack of support or something of the kind, and it looked as if Orangeville would be without a musical organization for some time. However, as the corporation owned the instruments steps were at once taken to reorganize the band, and two or three weeks ago Aid. Ketelbum was appointed bandmaster. On Monday evening a meeting of veteran bandsmen was held, and the Citizens' band was re organized with the following officers: W. L. Walsh, hon. president; Stephen Wallace, president; Geo. L. Aikens, 1st vice president; Jesse Ketelbum, 2nd vice-president; John A. McMaster, treasurer; T. H. Henry, M.D., hon. secretary; J. J. Gahan, secretary. Engagement committee, Messrs. McMaster, Gahan, Stripe and Ketelbum. The new band had been practising only a short time when a few members of the defunct concern determined to start a band in opposition to the town organization. The organizing of an opposition band seems to be a little spite work; but one thing is certain, this town can not support two bands, and either the Citizens' band or the Orangeville concert and orchestra band will ultimately go under, and most assuredly it will be the former, as that band is in first-class shape. Mr. Joseph Hulse is leader of the opposition.

50,000 dozen eggs wanted at Endecott Bros., for which they will pay the highest price in cash or exchange.

FIRE INSURANCE.—If you want to be insured in the strongest and best companies in Canada, call on F. Irwin, over Endecott's store, Orangeville.

Brown & Co's drug store at Tottenham was robbed a few nights ago, the thieves scooring a revolver and $4 in cash.

CONNOR.

DEATH OF MR. SAMUEL REANEY.—It is our sad duty this week to chronicle the death of Mr. Samuel Reaney which sad event occurred at his residence on Monday, June 15 after only a few days illness. The deceased was an old and highly respected resident of Adjala and his death will be regretted by all who knew him. He was 71 years old. The remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of friends and acquaintances.

LAUREL.

The Amaranth council met here on Saturday.

SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL.—The social held in the Methodist church here on Monday evening was a success. The choir of the Methodist church, Orangeville were present and added greatly to the program which was very interesting.

ALTON.

LAWN PARTY.—On Monday evening a lawn party was given at Mr. A. Dick's residence under the auspices of the Presbyterian church. The grounds presented a very pretty appearance and in various portions of the lawn were refreshment tables, which were liberally patronized. The party was largely attended, Orangeville being well represented, and we hope it was a grand success financially.

ALBION.

OLD RESIDENT GONE.—The death of another old resident of Albion township is announced in the person of Robert Johnston, lot 3, 6th con., at the advanced age of 80 years.

GARDEN PARTY.—A garden party in connection with Snell's church, Mono, will be held at the residence of Mr. A. Stinson, lot 34, 3rd line, Albion, on Dominion day. We hope it will be well patronized.

SAD DEATH.—Miss Allie Crisp, whose parents reside at Bolton, left home a short time ago to live in Toronto. In less than two weeks she took ill and after about three days sickness she died. Her remains were brought to Bolton and buried on Tuesday, June 16. Miss Crisp was a most estimable young lady and was about 20 years old, and her very sudden demise has been a great shock to her many acquaintances here. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved family.

MONO.

PICNIC.—The picnic under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday school and congregation, Mitchell's appointment, was held in Crozier's grove, lot 5, con. 6, on Tuesday afternoon, and was very successful, although the attendance was not so large as was expected.

FIRST OF THE SEASON.—The first garden party of the season in connection with Snell's church, Mono, will be held at the residence of Mr. Alex. Stinson, lot 34, 3rd line, Albion, on Wednesday, the 1st of July. Every arrangement has been made for having a most enjoyable afternoon. Addresses will be delivered by Revs. M. L. Pearson, Orangeville, Watt and Orr, Mono Mills, and others. A football match between the Mono Mills and Maywood clubs for a ball will be one of the features of the afternoon. Numerous other amusements will be provided. Tea served from 4 to 6 p.m. Come one and all and have a pleasant time.

MARSVILLE.

ESTRAYED.—W. Woolner, lot 1, con 13, wants an owner for a 2 year old red heifer which came to his place about a month ago.

Mr. Isaac Reid of Vanatter has returned from his trip to the Northwest. Mr. Reid did not form a very favorable opinion of that country.

FOOTBALL.—The Excelsior football club played a game with the 4th line team at Orton last Saturday. The Excelsiors won by 1 goal to 0.

OSPREKE VS. EXCELSIORS.—The Excelsiors football club of this place will play a match with the Ospringe team at Orton on Dominion day.

REMOVAL.—Rev. Mr. Hall, pastor of the Methodist church here, is about to remove to Elmira. The rev gentleman was very popular and all regret his departure.

UNION PICNIC.—The Methodist and Presbyterian Sabbath schools of Price's Corners have united for the purpose of holding a grand picnic early next month. Particulars later.

RECOVERING.—On Monday June 15 Mrs. Wm. Redmond of the 11th line, underwent an operation and had a growth successfully removed from her side. She is now doing nicely, and we hope to see her around soon.

SUDDEN DEATH.—We regret this week to have to announce the death of Mrs. James McGowan, 12th con., East Garafraxa, which occurred very suddenly on Thursday evening last. The deceased lady, who was in the 58th year of her age, had been in her usual health up till the hour of her death. Mrs. McGowan was a strict member of the Presbyterian church, and her cheerful countenance will be greatly missed. The remains were interred in the Price's Corner's cemetery on Saturday afternoon, the funeral being very largely attended.

DEATH FROM A KICK.—Mr. George Allen, son of Wm. Allen, at Goldie's mill, Guelph, met with an accident on Friday, the 5th inst., from the effects of which he died the following day. The young man, 17 years of age, was employed on the farm of Mr. Robert Sinclair, con. 12 East Garafraxa. On the morning mentioned he was hitching up a team, and struck one of the animals behind without speaking to it. The horse kicked and struck him in the abdomen. The funeral on Tuesday afternoon was largely attended.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Coughs Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the respiratory organs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally, and the ointment rubbed over the chest and throat, are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic, this treatment is the easiest, safest and surest. Holloway's Pills purify the blood, remove all obstacles to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the over-gorged air tubes, and render respiration free, without reducing the strength, irritating the nervous, or depressing the spirits; such are the ready means of escaping from suffering when afflicted with colds, coughs, bronchitis, and other chest complaints, by which the health of so many is seriously and permanently injured in most countries.

A cyclone in the neighborhood of Kansas City did terrible damage on Friday and many lives were lost.

DON'T WANT OFFICE.

That's What the East Ward Councillors Think—They All Resigned.

Deputy-returning officer B. Flesher received nominations in the skating rink on Saturday to fill the vacancy in the town council caused by the resignation of Mr. R. M. Adamson, one of the East ward councillors. The hour for nominations is from 12 until 1 o'clock, and during that time Messrs. W. T. Bailey, John Crozier, James A. Patterson, George Monkman and S. B. McKitrick were nominated. A poll was demanded for all the nominees except Mr. McKitrick. When three candidates were in the field it was expected there would be a run, or at least one of them would accept the office by acclamation. But, curiously enough, not one of them seemed to be hungry for office. As a result the East ward has still only one representative at the council, and another nomination has been called for Tuesday, when it is hoped somebody will be found anxious to assume the duties of an alderman.

CAMILLA.

OFF TO UNCLE SAM.—Mr. Smith Canning is about to take a trip to the United States of America. Particulars given later.

GARDEN PARTY.—A garden party in connection with the Presbyterian church will be held at the residence of Mr Jas. Kyles to-day (Thursday).

LITTLE LOCALS.—Mr. David Allen was visiting friends at Alton on Sunday .....Rev. Mr. Campbell of Cheltenham and Rev. Mr. Ballantyne exchanged pulpits last Sabbath.

A PLEASANT TIME.—A grand picnic was held at Mono Centre on Monday last, and it was an unprecedented success. We hope it is not the last of those pleasant gatherings.

SOLD.—In order to prevent himself from committing idolatry Mr. R. Montgomery has been forced to sell his white-winged pegasus to Mr. Joy, Hockey & Liberty Lewis. J. H. L. has the call

CHARLESTON.

BRIEFS.—The Caledon council will meet here on Tuesday, July 7.....Mrs. Bell of Chicago, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cameron, returned home on Thursday accompanied by her husband, Dr. Bell.....Miss MacKinnon has been offered a position at the asylum for the insane at Orillia and intends to visit there before accepting.....The Caledon Sabbath school association will hold their annual meeting in Knox church here to-morrow.

PLEASANT OUTING.—The Methodist and Presbyterian Sabbath school union picnic, which was held at Stanley Park, was attended by a large crowd. The interested parents supplied a bountiful lunch for the children which was served to the entire satisfaction of the "small fry." Having done justice to the hearty repast, social chat was indulged in by the older people while all sorts of games and amusements were provided for the children. Revs. Wilson and Washington did everything in their power to make it the success it was.

HAPPY NUPTIALS.—A pretty wedding took place in this township on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when Mr. George Laughlin was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Jennie, eldest daughter of John Lymont, Esq., 1st line east. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's father, Rev. A. Wilson officiating. The bride was handsomely attired in a dress of cream canspore elaborately trimmed with silk lace. At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding breakfast was partaken of. The happy couple drove to Caledon East and took the evening train for Powassan where they will spend the honeymoon, after which they will return and take up their permanent residence on the 1st line, west, in the spacious residence lately built by Mr Laughlin. Both bride and groom are well known and they will have the best wishes of a host of friends for a long life of wedded bliss.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. H. Crozier visited friends at Owen Sound last week.

Mr. John Menary of Victoria, B.C., an old Orangeville boy, is home on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Menary. It is five years since Jack went to the Pacific coast and the country seems to agree with him pretty well.

Rev. Father Jeffcott of Pickering was in town this week.

Miss MacKinnon, music teacher, and Misses May Ritchie and Dot Reid attended the great Thomas' Orchestra concert at Toronto several days ago.

Harry Scott, formerly of this town, is now living at Denver, Col.

Mr. Charles Cross of Madoc, the Dufferin's new home player, has arrived in town.

Mr. J. J. Kelly was in town last week.

Miss Nellie Witter of Shelburne is the guest of Orangeville friends.

Miss Jackson, who has been attending college at Hamilton, has returned home for the summer holidays.

Mr. John Boylan, who has been a patient at the Toronto general hospital for some time past, has returned home very much improved.

20 Miles to Procure Medicine.

Inkerman, Ont., W.H. Comstock, Brockville.

DEAR SIR:—Am selling your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" in this locality. I have customers who come 20 miles for the sake of getting Morse's Pills. This speaks for itself as to their value. I use them in our family with "the most satisfactory results." My wife has been cured of sick headache by their use. We could not do without them.

Yours, etc.,
A. KRAMER

A young man named Cowan living upon the 10th concession of West Luther shot a bear one day last week. Mr Bruin had been displaying a weakness for mutton, and killed several sheep. The carcass of one of them was left where the bear could find it. The next night he returned to his repast and was shot. Unfortunately, the hide, which is a very large one, is of little value at this season of the year.

MONO MILLS.

GARDEN PARTY.—The garden party given in aid of the Presbyterian church on Thursday night last, at the residence of Mr. Thomas Potter, was well attended. The Citizen's band of Orangeville furnished music during the evening. The proceeds amounted to $25.

WEDDING BELLS.—On Wednesday the residence of Mr. John Donaldson, lot 8, con. 6, Mono, was the scene of a very happy event. It was the occasion of the happy union of his only daughter, Maggie, to Wesley Duke of the same neighborhood. Despite the very unpleasant weather a large number of guests met to witness the nuptials, which were performed by Rev. Mr. Orr of Mono Mills. The ceremony took place at 3 p.m. The groom, attended by his cousin, Mr. Wesley Kee, wore a cheerful countenance and showed no signs of his recent illness. The bride was attired in cream silk and lace, and was supported by Miss Brown of Toronto, in cream cashmere and pink. The ceremony over, the usual hearty handshaking and the wedding supper reflects great credit on the hostess. Toasts followed, and a very enjoyable time was spent listening to such repartee as married men, bachelors and single men mingled together usually indulge in. The presents, which we cannot here enumerate, were numerous and costly, both useful and ornamental. The evening was spent in social entertainment, games, plays and music of different kinds until midnight, when the company dispersed, leaving the newly-wedded pair behind with best wishes for a happy life and a pleasant honeymoon, which is being spent in a tour to Niagara Falls.

HOW SLAVIN DEFEATED KILRAIN.

The long discussed boxing contest between Jake Kilrain, of Baltimore, and Frank Slavin of Australia, for a $10,000 purse, offered by the Granite Association, took place on the 16th at the club house of the Granite Association. Slavin won. The $10 people who attended had seats on pine boards, sloping up to the roof to the right and left of the interior, while the $20 people had light wooden chairs. About 1,100 people were present. Slavin had the best of it throughout the nine rounds that were fought and knocked Kilrain down a number of times. In the ninth round Jake came to the scratch in good shape, but after Slavin had landed once or twice he was covered with blood. Jake got in two rather feeble blows on Slavin's head. Slavin was hitting as powerfully as ever. Finally Slavin hit Jake a terrible left hander on the neck and Jake went down as if shot. He managed fully rose, reeled and as the gong sounded had to be carried to his corner. Jerry Dunn gave the fight to Slavin, who shook hands with Kilrain. The audience hissed the referee's decision.

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood disease which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 126th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. E. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my home six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me as much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had taken a finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sec., Woodland, Texas.

dividend of 6 per cent., the Bank added the sum of nearly $60,000 to the reserve fund and carried $5,000 to the credit of the rebate account for bills discounted. From the profits of the year a further sum of some $90,000 was added to the reserve resulting from the sale of new stock, which was disposed of to the shareholders at a premium of 45 per cent. This makes their present reserve $600,000, being 50 per cent. of their capital, and gives to their depositors undoubted security. The total earnings for the year amounted to about 14 per cent. of their capital, an amount exceeded by only one bank in the country.

The Orangeville branch of the institution, under the management of Mr. R. T. Hesse, continues to increase its usual prosperous business, and it speaks well for the business outlook of Orangeville for the future to know that the circulation of money for produce and cattle are annually growing larger.

The Bank is to be congratulated on its splendid showing, and now ranks as one of the most reliable monetary institutions in Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE particulars in the East Algoma election petition case against Mr. A. F. Campbell, the Conservative elected to the Local House in June last year, which was to have been tried at the Soo on the 13th inst., have been filed. There are 45 counts, including the charges of bribery directly by the respondent and by his agents at different points on the North Shore and Manitoulin Island; also charges of treating by the respondent and his agents and of hiring tugs and conveyances. Among others is a charge against the respondent of unduly influencing the electors and interfering with the free exercise of the franchise by taking possession of one of the polling booths on the morning of election day and barricading the second, so that the deputy returning officer could not open the poll till long after the proper hour.

How the Liberals can have acquired the notion that the policy approved by the people so recently as last March would be returned at this juncture is a matter of astonishing understanding. Neither the quality of the men nor the character of the measures proposed by the Opposition lend any colour to the belief that they can secure a hearing in this country. Mr. Laurier is surrounded by opponents as he is among friends political as an amiable gentleman, peculiarly fitted for the preparation of academic orations, but his ability begins and ends at that point, while about him are clustered a body of men of heterogeneous opinions, who are held together solely by the hope of office. So long as the leaders of the Liberal party are lacking in unity of ideas in a broad spirit of patriotism and in an abiding faith in their country and its institutions, so long will office remain a dissolving view to their gaze.—Montreal Gazette.

Fifteen years ago Sir John Macdonald drove from Woodstock to Ingersoll. He expressed himself as delighted with the beauty of the country he passed through. What was said in 1876 can be repeated to-day with additional force, because time has increased the beauty of this drive to a great extent. The wood-land scenery, green meadows, hills and valleys, along which the river Thames serpentine winds its way, are sub lime for the brush of the artist.—Ingersoll Chronicle.

Politics run pretty high in Mimosa just now. Last Friday evening a few of the residents were congregated at the hotel and fell to discussing the question of who should be premier in Sir John's place. A difference of opinion was so strongly shown that one politician of the Grit persuasion thought better to put a stop to the animated discussion by grasping his opponent by the throat, and choking the toryism out of him. While it is natural that honest men should strongly hold honest convictions, a terrible inoculation of them in this free Canada of ours is to be deplored!—Hillsburg Beaver.

For the past ten years Albert Petty, an employee of the Gutterbib organ factory, has been troubled with the second toe of his right foot, which had attained an abnormal growth and overlapped on the great toe. Latterly it became particularly troublesome and Albert decided to have it amputated. To this end he asked a fellow workman to sharpen a chisel, and after the close of work on Friday last he held his foot on a block and asked his companion to strike off the toe with the chisel. At first his friend demurred, but finally he placed the instrument on the objectionable toe, and merely saying, "Now, Albert, turn your head away," quickly lopped it off by tapping the chisel with a mallet. Petty says he thought his friend had missed it, but when he looked down he saw that the toe had been severed. The amateur surgeon and Petty then dressed the stump and the latter walked home. The whole operation and dressing did not take three minutes, and inside of four days Petty was able to wear a boot on his right foot and is now at work again. The whole affair was an exhibition of strong nerve.—Signal.

Superphosphates Land Fertilizer, highly recommended, and in connection with same a prize of $75 00 will be given for best acre of potatoes. Only a few sacks received.

ENDACOTT BROS.

DON'T MISS THIS CHANCE.—It will only last one week longer. The big discount sale of crockery china, glassware, boots and shoes, now going on at MacAdam's.

SUSPENDED.—Rev. James Thompson, the Methodist minister of Honeywood who is charged with preaching unorthodox doctrines, has been suspended by the conference from the ministry for one year.

SUCCESSFUL MUSICIANS.—Misses May Ritchie, Dot Reid (Orangeville), and Aggie Jackson (Mono), pupils of Miss MacKinnon, have been successful in passing into the collegiate course of Toronto Conservatory of Music.

BURGLARIZED.—One night last week a hungry thief broke into the C. P. R. freight sheds and carried off a box of biscuits. As a matter of form, the Orangeville detectives were put on the case, but, as usual, the thief has not been captured.

DUFFERIN'S FALL FAIR.—A meeting of the directors of the Dufferin Agricultural Society took place in the council chamber on Saturday afternoon, when judges were appointed and other business transacted. It was decided to hold the exhibition this year on Thursday and Friday, October 8th and 9th.

CHURCH PARADE.—As stated in last week's SUN Harris lodge, A.F. & A.M., will march in a body to St. Andrew's on Sunday morning and was fined $1 and costs or ten days in jail. He paid the fine and costs after being taken to Orangeville.—Free Press.

CONCERT.—Another pleasing high-class concert will take place in the town hall to-morrow (Friday) evening in aid of the stage improvement fund. The best possible local talent will take part, and the entertainment promises to be first-class in every respect. A crowded house should be present to greet and encourage those who are giving their time and ability to improve the stage of the town hall, a work which should properly be done by the town council.

SUCCESSFUL PICNIC.—The picnic under the auspices of the R. C. congregations of Orangeville, Brampton and Cataract, held at the Forks on Tuesday, was one of the most successful affairs of the season, and the undertaking will probably net between $250 and $300. Amusements of all kinds were provided, but the most interesting proceeding of the day was the contest for a handsome gold watch, between Misses Ada Hill, Orangeville, Dwyer, Brampton, and McEnsary, Cataract. Miss Hill easily captured the prize, having collected $115, while the other two young ladies collected $83 between them.

A SIX YEAR OLD GIRL DRUNK.—Probably the saddest sight ever witnessed in Orangeville met the gaze of East Broadway residents on Friday afternoon last. A six year old girl was sent by one of her mother's neighbors to buy 10 cents worth of gin for medical purposes, but instead of taking the liquor to the woman the little girl drank it to the dregs and soon became helplessly drunk. For several minutes after she swallowed the vile stuff the poor little thing threw up her hands and exclaimed, "I'm drunk!" Gin is especially noted for its knocking out powers, and it did not take many minutes for it to put the little innocent to sleep. Dr. Simpson was called to attend the little creature, but it was several hours before consciousness returned.

WHAT ARE THE DOG DAYS?—The dog days are coming. The dog days last from the beginning of July to Aug. 11. The popular theory is that they are so called because dogs then go mad; but the notion is etymologically false, besides being untrue in fact. Dogs, strange to say, are rather less liable to rabies then than at any other times. "Dog days" is really a translation of the latin "dies caniculares"—the twenty days before and the twenty days after the heliacal rising (that is, appearance in the morning just before the sun) of the star Sirius, whom the Romans called "Canicula," or "little dog." The ancients attributed a most malevolent influence to this star—our "dog star"—and sacrificed a brown dog to it to appease its rage. If this were not done they thought that the sea would boil, the wine turn sour and dogs begin to grow mad, the bile increase and all animals grow languid. It is unnecessary to say that in the course of some ages Sirius will rise at midwinter instead of at midsummer. Perhaps some wiseacres, like those who are ready to believe in dog days and new moons changing the weather and similar impossibilities, will then give him credit for the frost and snow.

ANOTHER BAND.—Several weeks ago the Citizen's band of this town gave up the musical ghost, owing to lack of support or something of the kind, and it looked as if Orangeville would be without a musical organization for some time. However, as the corporation owned the instruments steps were at once taken to reorganize the band, and two or three weeks ago Ald. Ketchum was appointed bandmaster. On Monday evening a meeting of veteran bandsmen was held, and the Citizens' band was reorganized with the following officers: W. L. Walsh, hon. president; Stephen Wallace, president; Geo. L. Aikens, 1st vice president; Jesse Ketchum, 2nd vice-president; John A. McMaster, treasurer; T. H. Henry, M.D., hon. secretary; J. J. Gahan, secretary. Engagement committee, Messrs. McMaster, Gahan, Stripe and Ketchum. The new band had been practicing only a short time when a few members of the defunct concern determined to start a band in opposition to the town organization. The organizing of an opposition band seems to be a little spite work; but one thing is certain, this town can not support two bands, and either the Citizens' band or the Orangeville concert and orchestra band will ultimately go under, and most assuredly it will be the former, as that band is in first-class shape. Mr. Joseph Hales is leader of the opposition.

50,000 dozen eggs wanted at Endacott Bros., for which they will pay the highest price in cash or exchange.

FIRE INSURANCE.—If you want to be insured in the strongest and best companies in Canada, call on F. Irwin, over Endacott's store, Orangeville.

Brown & Co's drug store at Tottenham was robbed a few nights ago, the thieves securing a revolver and $4 in pennies.

The Amaranth council met here on Saturday.

SECONDHAND SOCIAL.—The social held in the Methodist church here on Monday evening was a success. The choir of the Methodist church, Orangeville were present and added greatly to the program which was very interesting.

ALTON.

LAWN PARTY.—On Monday evening a lawn party was given at Mr. A. Dick's residence under the auspices of the Presbyterian church. The grounds presented a very pretty appearance and in various portions of the lawn were refreshment tables, which were liberally patronized. The party was largely attended, Orangeville being well represented, and we hope it was a grand success financially.

ALBION.

OLD RESIDENT GONE.—The death of another old resident of Albion township is announced in the person of Robert Johnston, lot 2, 6th con., at the advanced age of 80 years.

GARDEN PARTY.—A garden party in connection with Snell's church, Mono, will be held at the residence of Mr. A. Stinson, lot 34, 3rd line, Albion, on Dominion day. We hope it will be well patronized.

SAD DEATH.—Miss Allie Crisp, whose parents reside at Bolton, left home a short time ago to live in Toronto. In less than two weeks she took ill and after about three days sickness she died. Her remains were brought to Bolton and buried on Tuesday, June 16. Miss Crisp was a most estimable young lady and was about 20 years old, and her very sudden demise has been a great shock to her many acquaintances here. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved family.

MONO.

PICNIC.—The picnic under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday school and congregation, Mitchell's appointment, was held in Crozier's grove, lot 5, con. 6, on Tuesday afternoon, and was very successful, although the attendance was not so large as was expected.

FIRST OF THE SEASON.—The first garden party of the season in connection with Snell's church, Mono, will be held at the residence of Mr. Alex. Stinson, lot 34, 3rd line, Albion, on Wednesday, the 1st of July. Every arrangement has been made for having a most enjoyable afternoon. Addresses will be delivered by Revs. M. L. Pearson, Orangeville, Watt and Orr, Mono Mills, and others. A football match between the Mono Mills and Maywood clubs for a ball will be one of the features of the afternoon. Numerous other amusements will be provided. Tea served from 4 to 6 p.m. Come one and all and have a pleasant time.

MARSVILLE.

ESTRAYED.—W. Woolner, lot 1, con 13, wants an owner for a 2 year old red heifer which came to his place about a month ago.

Mr. Isaac Reid of Vanatter has returned from his trip to the Northwest. Mr. Reid did not form a very favorable opinion of that country.

FOOTBALL.—The Excelsior football club played a game with the 4th line team at Orton last Saturday. The Excelsiors won by 1 goal to 0.

OSPRINGE VS. EXCELSIORS.—The Excelsiors football club of this place will play a match with the Ospringe team at Orton on Dominion day.

REMOVAL.—Rev. Mr. Hall, pastor of the Methodist church here, is about to remove to Elmira. The two gentlemen was very popular and all regret his departure.

UNION PICNIC.—The Methodist and Presbyterian Sabbath schools of Price's Corners have united for the purpose of holding a grand picnic early next month. Particulars later.

RECOVERING.—On Monday June 15 Mrs. Wm. Redmond of the 11th line, underwent an operation and had a growth successfully removed from her side. She is now doing nicely, and we hope to see her around soon.

SUDDEN DEATH.—We regret this week to have to announce the death of Mrs. James McGowan, 12th con., East Garafraxa, which occurred very suddenly on Thursday evening last. The deceased lady, who was in the 58th year of her age, had been in her usual health up till the hour of her death. Mrs. McGowan was a strict member of the Presbyterian church, and her cheerful countenance will be greatly missed. The remains were interred in the Price's Corner's cemetery on Saturday afternoon, the funeral being very largely attended.

DEATH FROM A KICK.—Mr. George Allen, son of Wm. Allen, at Goldie's mill, Guelph, met with an accident on Friday, the 5th inst., from the effects of which he died the following day. The young man, 17 years of age, was employed on the farm of Mr. Robert Sinclair, con. 12 East Garafraxa. On the morning mentioned he was hitching up a team, and struck one of the animals behind without speaking to it. The horse kicked and struck him in the abdomen. The funeral on Tuesday afternoon was largely attended.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Coughs Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the respiratory organs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally, and the ointment rubbed over the chest and throat, are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic, this treatment is the easiest, safest and surest. Holloway's Pills purify the blood, remove all obstacles to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the over-gorged air tubes, and render respiration free, without reducing the strength, irritating the nerves, or depressing the spirits; such are the ready means of escaping from suffering when afflicted with colds, coughs, bronchitis, and other chest complaints, by which the health of so many is seriously and permanently injured in most countries.

A cyclone in the neighborhood of Kansas City did terrible damage on Friday and many lives were lost.

[illegible] Mr. McIntosh. When three candidates were in the field it was expected there would be a run, or at least one of them would accept the office by acclamation. But, curiously enough, not one of them seemed to be hungry for office. As a result the East ward has still only one representative at the council, and another nomination has been called for Tuesday, when it is hoped somebody will be found anxious to assume the duties of an alderman.

CAMILLA.

OFF TO UNCLE SAM.—Mr. Smith Canning is about to take a trip to the United States of America. Particulars given later.

GARDEN PARTY.—A garden party in connection with the Presbyterian church will be held at the residence of Mr Jas. Kyles to-day (Thursday).

LITTLE LOCALS.—Mr. David Allen was visiting friends at Alton on Sunday .....Rev. Mr. Campbell of Cheltenham and Rev. Mr. Ballantyne exchanged pulpits last Sabbath.

A PLEASANT TIME.—A grand picnic was held at Mono Centre on Monday last, and it was an unprecedented success. We hope it is not the last of those pleasant gatherings.

SOLD.—In order to prevent himself from committing idolatry Mr. R. Montgomery has been forced to sell his white-winged pegasus to Mr. Joy, Hossey & Liberty Lewis. J. H. L. has the call

CHARLESTON.

BRIEFS.—The Caledon council will meet here on Tuesday, July 7.....Mrs. Bell of Chicago, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cameron, returned home on Thursday accompanied by her husband, Dr. Bell.....Miss MacKinnon has been offered a position at the asylum for the insane at Orillia and intends to visit there before accepting.....The Caledon Sabbath school association will hold their annual meeting in Knox church here to-morrow.

PLEASANT OUTING.—The Methodist and Presbyterian Sabbath school union picnic, which was held at Stanley Park, was attended by a large crowd. The interested parents supplied a bountiful linen for the children which was served to the entire satisfaction of the "small fry." Having done justice to the hearty repast, social chat was indulged in by the older people while all sorts of games and amusements were provided for the children. Revs. Wilson and Washington did everything in their power to make it the success it was.

HAPPY NUPTIALS.—A pretty wedding took place in this township on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when Mr. George Laughlin was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Jennie, eldest daughter of John Lamont, Esq., 1st line east. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's father, Rev. A. Wilson officiating. The bride was handsomely attired in a dress of cream cashmere elaborately trimmed with silk lace. At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding breakfast was partaken of. The happy couple drove to Caledon East and took the evening train for Owensound where they will spend the honeymoon, after which they will return and take up their permanent residence on the 1st line, west, in the spacious residence lately built by Mr Laughlin. Both bride and groom are well known and they will have the best wishes of a host of friends for a long life of wedded bliss.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. H. Crozier visited friends at Owen Sound last week.

Mr. John Menary of Victoria, B.C., an old Orangeville boy, is home on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Menary. It is five years since Jack went to the Pacific coast and the country seems to agree with him pretty well.

Rev. Father Jeffcott of Pickering was in town this week.

Miss MacKinnon, music teacher, and Misses May Ritchie and Dot Reid attended the great Thomas' Orchestra concert at Toronto several days ago.

Harry Scott, formerly of this town, is now living at Denver, Col.

Mr. Charles Cross of Madoc, the Dufferin's new home player, has arrived in town.

Mr. J. J. Kelly was in town last week.

Miss Nellie Witter of Shelburne is the guest of Orangeville friends.

Miss Jackson, who has been attending college at Hamilton, has returned home for the summer holidays.

Mr. John Boylan, who has been a patient at the Toronto general hospital for some time past, has returned home very much improved.

20 Miles to Procure Medicine.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Infeld, Ont.

DEAR SIR:—Are selling your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" in this locality. I have customers who come 20 miles for the sake of getting Morse's Pills. This speaks for itself as to their value. I use them in our family with "the most satisfactory results." My wife has been cured of sick headache by their use. We could not do without them.

Yours, etc.,

A. KRAMER

A young man named Cowan living upon the 10th concession of West Luther shot a bear one day last week. Mr Bruin had been displaying a weakness for mutton, and killed several sheep. The carcass of one of them was left where the bear could find it. The next night he returned to his repast and was shot. Unfortunately, the hide, which is a very large one, is of little value at this season of the year.

[illegible] Rev. Mr. Orr of Mono Mills. The ceremony took place at 5 p.m. The groom, assisted by his cousin, Mr. Wesley Kee, wore a cheerful countenance and showed no signs of his recent illness. The bride was attired in cream silk and lace, and was supported by Miss Brown of Toronto, in cream cashmere and pink. The ceremony over, the usual congratulations and the wedding supper reflects great credit on the hostess. Toasts followed, and a very enjoyable time was spent listening to such repartee as married men, bachelors and single men mingled together usually indulge in. The presents, which we cannot here enumerate, were numerous and costly, both useful and ornamental. The evening was spent in social entertainment, games, plays and music of different kinds until midnight, when the company dispersed, leaving the newly-wedded pair behind with best wishes for a happy life and a pleasant honeymoon, which is being spent in a tour to Niagara Falls.

HOW BLAVIN DEFEATED KILRAIN.

The long discussed boxing contest between Jake Kilrain, of Baltimore, and Frank Slavin of Australia, for a $10,000 purse, offered by the Granite Association, took place on the 16th at the club house of the Granite Association. Slavin won. The 310 people who attended had seats on pine boards, sloping up to the roof to the right and left of the interior, while the 320 people had light wooden chairs. About 1,100 people were present. Slavin had the best of it throughout the nine rounds that were fought and knocked Kilrain down a number of times. In the ninth round Jake came to the scratch in good shape, but after Slavin had landed once or twice he was covered with blood. Jake got in two rather feeble blows on Slavin's head. Slavin was hitting as powerfully as ever. Finally Slavin hit Jake a terrible left hander on the neck and Jake went down as if shot. He manfully rose, reeled and as the gong sounded had to be carried to his corner. Jere Dunn gave the fight to Slavin, who shook hands with Kilrain. The audience hissed the referee's decision.

You can never know till you try, how quickly a dose of Ayer's Pills will cure your sick headache. Your stomach and bowels need cleansing, and these Pills will accomplish it more effectually and comfortably than any other medicine you can find.

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

"Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. E. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me as much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, M.D., Woodland, Texas.

CARDWELL.

(News Here to Any Hour.)

Lively and varied were the trials and pains the children of this district endured endeavoring to acquire a common school education, owing to numerous impediments, but such a state of affairs will not obtain much longer. A meeting of arbitrators selected by the county council re formation of new school section in this part, was held in the court house, Orangeville, on Saturday last, about 10:30 a.m., and they decided in favor of the children of tender years. After reviewing the situation, notwithstanding the abortive efforts of a couple of Mono semi cranks (pardon the digression), who endeavored to turn the mill in the wrong direction to save their pockets, we suppose. It should be remembered that ratepayers in this local. ity (Cardwell) have in the past paid heavy taxes toward the erection of large school houses around them, and now as the remunerative period is approaching tickets of adjacent sections are expected to reciprocate and look pleasant when the tax gatherer calls around by and by. The line of demarcation is drawn and defined relative to the new S S., which is bounded on the east by Devil's Glen and on the west by the town line between Mono and Amaranth.

Mr. Editor, your regular Cardwell correspondent does not give one quarter time news. Is he taking his holidays?

BITTERS.—A great deal of attention is now directed towards Cardwell, and certainly it is an illustrious place..... The people who have visited Cardwell of late are too numerous to mention..... A nice little party from here took in Tullamore and other adjacent points last week. The good old maids of Tullamore are still blooming. Joseph, why didn't you nab one of them—that one with the short hair?

SERMON.—We understand that Rev. F Bart will preach to the Orangemen of L.O.L. 220 in Herald Angel church on the 12th of July. All are welcome.

THE RANGERS. — The Cardwell Rangers football club, under the able management of Captain J. Lundy, journeyed to Mono Mills on Friday last to play the Mono Mills club. The Rangers were very well pleased with their visit, although they had not the pleasure of beating their opponents, for a simple reason the Mono Mills boys would not kick a match game.

ANNUAL GARDEN PARTY.—The annual garden party in connection with Herald Angel church, Cardwell, will take place at the residence of Mr. Robt. Jackson, lot 10, Centre road, on Tuesday, July 7th. The ladies are working hard preparing for the event, and are determined to make this affair the most enjoyable ever held in this section. Tea will be served from 5 o'clock until 7, an programme commencing at 8. The programme includes singing, reading, recitations, etc., and the Orangeville orchestra will furnish excellent music. You will miss a grand time if you don't attend.

A SECOND NIAGARA.—One of the forty wonders of Cardwell is Canning's falls and caves and subterranean passages. Since the dawn of creation the waters of the Nottawasaga river have gamboled and leaped and roared over these falls and beyond, affording altogether a spectacle unrivalled, perhaps, for grandeur and magnificence. Following the stream a few hundred yards from this memorable place we come to a lesser cascade. There it was that a beautiful young woman, a few years ago, to still the agony of a broken heart, it is supposed, took a fatal leap into the surging waters, and when found was cold and calm in the embrace of death.

ECHOES.

I have a new boy, and we are going to have a new school, let us crow.—Wm.

I say! I say! I don't know what to say about the new school until we get it.—G. S.

Goodness gracious, we worked hard for it.—Ed. J.

My eloquence produced the desired effect.—Hugh B.

What I said was to the point.—T. H.

Do you remember what I said to the tall man who is afraid of his pocket?—Wm. E. H.

By George, how will we ever pay the taxes?—Joseph L.

Daddy, I don't want them to put a new school house at Cardwell.—M. L.

It's a caution, but people shouldn't squeal until they are hurted.—John L.

I didn't think George would have worked against us.—R. J.

We are the boys what fears no noise. Cheer up and let us forget it, the 12th July is near.—Joseph F.

Unequivocally speaking, our petition is useless.—Camilla School Master.

That's so.—John C.

Hear, hear!—Wm. R.

I didn't make my appearance at the meeting on Saturday.—W. J. M.

Certainly Cardwell should have a school, but the precedent may not be good.—J. H.

In France a fondness for cats is evidently not confined to old maids, "Paul de Kock, Theophile Gautier, Francois Coppee and Baudelaire are among some of the celebrated men who cherish pet cats, while Taine has composed a sonnet in honor of the beautiful Angora puss who is Renan's felice favorite.

BOWLING GREEN.

SOCIAL.—As there was no church here last Sunday evening quite a number of our young folks went over to Salem.....Our town and suburbs will be deserted on the 1st of July, as a great many of our citizens want to go to Orangeville and Grand Valley. The county town will draw the largest number.

HAND AMPUTATED.—On Monday last Mrs. George Hill, the lady who has been suffering from a sore hand for the past two years had the afflicted member amputated above the wrist Dr. Groves of Fergus performed the operation, and we sincerely trust Mrs. Hill will completely recover.

FINE CROPS.—The crops in this section have been greatly improved by the recent copious rains, and everything points to an abundant harvest. The old saying, "a dry May and a wet June make the farmer whistle a merry tune," is repeated quite often around here.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday evening a number of the young folks gathered at the residence of Mr. C. Wells, their leader, and presented him with a watchchain and locket as a small token of esteem for the able way he has led the choir for some time past. Mr W. Bates made the presentation, during which he delivered a brief speech. Mr. Wells replied in a suitable way, thanking his admirers for their kindness. The remainder of the evening was spent in other amusements, the crowd managing to get home shortly before Sunday morning.

Like Paralysis.

"For years I suffered with my back which sometimes became as if paralyzed. I suffered awful agony for months and could not sleep, but now, thanks to your Burdock Blood Bitters, I am strong again, have no pain and can work well, eat well, and sleep well." —Mrs. Hammerton, 32 Charlotte St., Toronto.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

DROWNED.—Last Saturday evening Frederick William Lyle Beckett, aged 15 years, son of Mr. J. K. Beckett, miller, formerly of Shelburne, was drowned in the Don river while bathing.

THE WATERWORKS.—Mr. Simpson, of Petrolia, has a number of men at work drilling the waterworks well. They are said to understand their business thoroughly. Mr. Simpson is a brother of Mr. J. J. W. Simpson, of Toronto, formerly of Shelburne.

RUNAWAY.—Last evening Mr. T. W. Kelly, his wife and two children were driving home from Shelburne, and in descending a hill near Mr Wm Watson's on the 4th line, Melancthon, the horse took fright. The democrat waggon was upset and the occupants thrown out, but none received serious injury except Mrs Kelly, who had one arm broken above the elbow.

KICKING.—This week petitions are being circulated against the carrying into effect of the bylaws for the construction of drains on Main street at present. Various reasons are given why the proposed work should not be proceeded with just now, among them being the unfulfilled promise to extend the waterworks system to Geo. Resburn's corner, and the possible expenditure of a large sum of public money are the present difficulty at the waterworks well will have been overcome.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

CALLED HOME.—Mr. George Dowdall, who had been ill with consumption for the past two years, died on Monday of last week, the funeral taking place on Wednesday.

I. O. O. F. DISTRICT MEETING.—The district meeting for the present term of the I. O. O. F. was held in the lodge room here on Friday evening last. The appointed representatives from the several lodges in the district were present, namely: Bro Carmichael, of Hillsburg; Bro. Brown, of Orangeville; Bro. McMorris, of Erin, and Bro. Watson, of Grand Valley. Bro Sproul of Hillsburg and Bro. Bradley from Orangeville were present. Bro. McMorris was elected D. D. G. M. and Bro. Brown D. Sec and Treas. The next district meeting will be held in Orangeville.

VERY SAD.—We are sorry this week to have to report the death of two of Mr. Henry Donaghy's children this week from diphtheria. The first that became a prey to the disease was Samuel Thompson, their only son, aged 2 years and 9 months, who died on Sunday morning last and was buried on Monday. The other was their eldest daughter, Mary Priscilla, aged nearly 12 years, passing away on Monday the funeral following on Tuesday. Both children were interred at Price's corner cemetery. The afflicted parents have the sympathy of all in their sad and distressing bereavement.

$50,000 to loan on mortgage security. Interest and expenses low, terms to suit borrowers. F. Irwin, office over Eudamatt Bros' store, Orangeville.

"MRS. GRUNDY."

Mrs. Grundy is a name often heard in the half playful, half satirical question. "What will Mrs. Grundy say?" Her name stands for the neighborhood, the society, in which one moves. This particular Mrs Grundy was the wife of Farmer Grundy, in Morton's "Speed the Plough," a comedy first presented in 1798 Dame Ashfield, wife of another farmer, is jealous of her neighbor, and forever wondering "What will Mrs. Grundy say?"

This is Rose Coughlan's answer to a question as to how she preserves her beauty.—"Not in wearing a steel corset I assure you, although some papers declare I fastened myself up in a cage. Fancy how one would feel? But my weight never varies. I keep my flesh off by letting my brain work. There is nothing like an active brain for reducing flesh. Then, too, I never drink while I am eating. I believe that drinking with your meals makes you grow chunky. I think American women drink too much soda and apollinaris."

A heavy rain and hail storm did damage to the extent of many thousand dollars around Thorold the other night. Hail stones as large as hen's eggs fell. There were many washouts on the Welland and Niagara railways, and trains had to be suspended. Books in many cellars were ruined and crops almost annihilated.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Mr. Forest's rate of taxation this year is 21 mills on the dollar.

Assessor F. J. Chadwick of Guelph died on Saturday morning.

Francis Morrow, aged 100, died the other day at Colgan, near Tottenham.

Montreal has determined upon erecting a statue of Sir John Macdonald on Victoria Square.

The summer girl is now in full bloom. Eat more vegetables and less meat this time of the year.

A Cleveland excursion train jumped the track Sunday afternoon. One man was killed and 30 injured.

Judge Miller died at Sale on Wednesday of last week at the ripe age of 81 years.

Herr Most, the Anarchist, was on Friday sentenced at New York to one year in the penitentiary for delivering an incendiary speech.

Mayor McShane, of Montreal, who is a devoted Roman Catholic, will lay the corner stone of the new Methodist church at Point St. Charles.

Henry C. Farming, the engineer who was found guilty of the murder of his mistress, Emily Taylor, by cutting her throat, has been sentenced to be electrocuted during the week of July 27.

On Wednesday of last week fire broke out in Garrett's at Tweed, and before it could be extinguished it spread to the Methodist church and two barns, all of which were consumed.

A party of eleven persons, living at Hiawatha, went sailing in a small yacht on Rice lake. A sudden squall capsized the craft and John Foote, his 19 year old daughter and 3-year-old baby were drowned. The others were rescued. The bodies of the drowned were recovered.

It is now commonly stated that the defalcations of John Macmillan, Paris, a well-known lawyer and town councillor, will foot up $7 000. It is alleged that the Gaunlock estate is short $1,500, Mr. Hutson, Paris, $700, the Capron estate close upon $2,000, the bank overdrawn $150, and several other parties smaller sums.

At one of the recent drawing rooms at Buckingham palace the palm of beauty was conceded to Miss Cornwallis-West, whose mother was one of Mrs. Langtry's most formidable rivals fifteen years ago.

How well we remember grandmother's attic, so fragrant with medical roots and herbs! Poor old soul, how precious they seemed to her! And yet, one bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla would do more good than her whole collection of "yarbs."

The famous old house where Peter the Great lived at Zaandam, near Amsterdam, is now being restored by order of the Czar, whose property it is. The entire house was lifted by means of cranes and a new foundation laid underneath it.

Now doth the amateur gardener make day hideous with his boasts. Also he squanderetb his wealth in garden seeds that do not thrive as well as they do on the lithographed posters of the seed warehouse. Before and after the vegetables come the blooming amateur is very brash with his mouth, but when the fruit of his small boy's toil is ripe he says never a word lest he might be called upon to share up with friends.

At Chatham some persons broke into a stable where the trotting horse Dictator was kept and literally carved his two hind legs to ribbons. If the perpetrator of such a deed is discovered we hope he may get the severest punishment the law allows. A lynching or two would stop this inhuman practice which is becoming such a pastime of late.

A Northern railway brakeman named James Read, who resides at 520 Front street, Toronto, was killed at Orillia the other day. Reid, it is supposed, was sitting on a drawhead when a quick jerk of the train threw him between the cars. He was instantly crushed to death. Deceased was a young Englishman aged 26. His body was taken to Toronto for interment. The only known relation which deceased has in this country is a school teacher whose address has not been learned.

Vigilant Care.

Vigilance is necessary against unexpected attacks of summer complaints. No remedy is so well-known or so successful in this class of diseases as Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Keep it in the house as a safe guard.

A dentist of Moscow is reported to have discovered a method of supplying the human mouth with false teeth which will grow into the human gums as firmly as natural ones. Dr. Zoumensky has performed several successful operations on dogs as well as human beings. The teeth are made of gutta percha, porcelain or metal. Holes are made at the root of the false tooth and upward into the jaw. The tooth is then placed into the cavity. In a short time a soft granulated growth finds its way from the patient's jaw into the holes in the teeth. This growth gradually hardens and holds the tooth in position.

The Chicago Woman's Alliance has prepared and submitted an address to the State Legislature, asking, among other things, that kindergartens be made a part of the public school system; that text-books be furnished free; that a State public school be established for the education of waifs, or else that homes, from which such children can attend school, be provided; that the compulsory school term be extended to twenty four weeks, and that the control of the women's departments in the penitentiaries and asylums for the blind and insane should at once be given to a board of women supervisors.

Dyspepsia.

This disease may be traced to a variety of causes, such as constipation, liver troubles, improper food, etc. There is one cure—Burdock Blood Bitters—which may be thoroughly relied on to effect a permanent cure. It has cured obstinate cases of 34 years standing.

The story of the enormous fortune accumulated by Mr. Cunliffe Lister (one of the birthday peers), says an English paper, is one of the romances of "Fortunes made in business." Going one day into a London warehouse, he came upon a pile of rubbish. He inquired what it was, and was told that it was waste silk. "What do you do with it?" he asked. "Sell it for rubbish," he was told." Mr. Lister bought it as rubbish at 4d a lb, and turned it into gold. He discovered, that is to say, how to use silk waste for the manufacture of plush and other such stuffs, and this discovery was the foundation of his second fortune. His first fortune was made by his invention of a wool-combing machine.

SUNBEAMS.

"This is a cold snap," said the sleepy girl as she partook of the ice cream.

It is surprising the amount of trouble a man will endure before it reaches him.

Failures of hatters are nearly always due to the fact that they cannot get ahead.

It is always the jaded and weary sinner who declares:—"Now I am going to swear off."

The reason some people "love at first sight" it is because they don't know each other then.

She—When is a honeymoon supposed to end? He—When the last quarter is gone, I guess.

Towsley—What makes your waiter so obsequious? Owsley—Simple enough; I feed him and he feeds me.

"Do you think, Cousin Fred, I'm very fond of dress?" "No; I don't." "Why?" "Because I don't think you wear enough of it."

Early rising isn't what it is credited with being. Who or what rises earlier than the fly? And yet see the confounded noise he makes of himself.

He (scorned)—Ah, what happiness! Now I can call you mine, love! She—So! You haven't got through with your interview with papa yet."

Squigg—"What is the worst taste in the world?" Squash—"Castor oil." Squigg—"Get out! Castor oil isn't to be compared to the man who wears a sack coat and high hat."

Young Nicely—"Yes, I know that I'm a freak, sir. I suppose, Miss Similax, that you think I'm a very hard-hearted wretch?" Miss Similax—"Yes, but your head brings the average out all right."

Mrs. Brown—"I declare! Just hear that canary sing! It's always so; every time anybody begins to play on the piano that bird begins to shatter." Mrs. White—"Yes; one would almost think the bird is human."

Pale and listless girls and prematurely aged women would soon give place to brisk, healthy, rosy females if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were used for the ills to which women are peculiarly liable. They enrich the blood, build up the nerves, and restore the shattered system, regulate the periods, etc. Try them and be convinced. Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing The Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

A few days ago a young man named John Rogers was fatally injured while assisting in the erection of a building on the farm of W. W. Scott, 8th con., Marysboro. The unfortunate young man succumbed to death on Monday morning.

Distrustful People.

Make an exception in favor of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Its known virtues as a cure for diarrœa, dysentery, cholera morbus and all bowel complaints cause all who use it to regard it as the most reliable and effectual remedy obtainable.

SOME DON'TS AS TO CONFIDENCES.

Don't confide in anyone if you can help it. If you can't speak to some one whose honor you haved proved to be above peddling stories of her friends to enliven her conversation.

Remember she who tells tales of other women will presently tell tales of you and supply as little material as possible.

Don't receive a confidence unless you know your heart is deep enough, your mind broad enough and your brain sufficiently steady to keep it honestly.

Don't be scrupulous about accepting the charge of your friend's diamonds or her purse, while hesitating not to drop hints of her innerlife, stories of her private history, which were meant for your ear only all along your conversation with men and women. Perhaps you think by this means to lessen their regard for her; but don't forget that you are cheapening yourself at the same time.

Do not feel there is no obligation where no promise of silence has been exacted. An implied confidence is ever the most binding to the upright soul.

Never forget that a betrayed confidence is a two edged sword cutting both ways, wounding the heart of one and slaying the honor of the other.

Why Struggle.

WHY struggle with exhausting disease when you may be promptly cured by the use of nature's remedy—Burdock Blood Bitters—the perfect cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, sick headache and all forms of bad blood from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

FIGS AND THISTLES.

You can't shut the devil up, but you can shut him out.

We all hate the truth that hits us between the eyes.

The moment humility undertakes to carry a flag it kills itself.

The man who tries to avoid mountains will have a very crooked road.

Never put yourself in the power of a man who will kick a dog for fun.

When a man is well satisfied with himself God is disappointed in him.

Keep a close eye on the man whose wife is afraid to ask him for money.

If you want to live long, don't try to live more than one day at a time.

The man who controls himself will also control a great many other people.

God has nowhere promised to feed the man who will not take his coat off.

Education doesn't make the man. It brings out the gold that God put in him.

What do you suppose the angels think of a man who is doing his best to die rich?

How can a man say that he is trusting God who is afraid to give him a tenth of his income?

The poor want money, and the rich want to spend it, and that's what gives the world progress.

It is hard to believe in the religion of a man who always looks as though he had just been throwing boerjacks at the cat.

There are hundreds of men who chew and smoke, who always howl when their wives want another feather on their bonnets.

It is not those who have done the most evil, but those who have resisted the most truth, who are the wickedest in the sight of God.

The devil is never scared by a handsome bible on a parlor table. The bible that makes him run is the one that is written in the heart.

The devil will see to it that no rich man who goes to hell will ever be suffered to forget the good he might have done on earth with his money.

A YOUNG WOMAN PRETTILY CLAD.

A girlish, pretty dress is made of delft blue seersucker, trimmed at the neck and around the waist with yellow crepe de chine. The skirt is made with a deep flounce on the bottom, cut on the bias, with the edges pinked and sewed on with a heading. The skirt has one on two little pleats on the hips to take away from the plainness.

The waist is fitted at the shoulder seams and caught in at the bottom of it. It slips under the dress band, which is covered with yellow crepe, and fastened in the back in a little bow of the same. The sleeves are long and full, buttoning up to the elbow.

Serious floods are reported in Illinois.

An American paper says:—At a recent examination of college girls the rhetoric included dictated paragraphs from the daily newspaper, and the spelling reduced the entire class to an average of 88 per cent. Hats, Campanini, Boulini, anaphlaits, reciprocity, Venezuela, Czarevitch, Heum, summarily, Whitelaw, Reid, Behring Sea, Father Ignatus, Blaine, Maine and Tolstoi were some of the words generally misspelled.

All Men.

young, old, or middle-aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, confusion, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face or body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eye lids and elsewhere, nervousness, sciposis in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with LEADEN CIRCLES, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension, very function wanes in consequence. Those who through abuse committed in ignorance may be permanently cured. Send your address for book on all diseases peculiar to man. Address M. V. LUBON, 50 Front St. E., Toronto, Ont. Book sent free sealed. Heart disease, the symptoms of which are faint spells, purple lips, numbness, palpitation, skip beats, hot flashes, rush of blood to the head, dull pain in the heart with beats strong, rapid and irregular, the second heart beat quicker than the first, pain about the breast bone, etc., can positively be cured. No cure, no pay. Send for book. Address M. V. LUBON, 50 Front Street, East, Toronto, Ont.

"Like Magic,"

THE effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Colds, Coughs, Croup, and Sore Throat are, in most cases, immediately relieved by the use of this wonderful remedy. It strengthens the vocal organs, allays irritation, and prevents the inroads of Consumption; in every stage of that dread disease, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral relieves coughing, and induces refreshing rest.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children have been subject."—Capt. U. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medicines, I feel justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of the Pectoral is the enduring quality of its popularity, it being more salable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvelous."—B. S. Drake, M. D., Beloit, Kans.

"My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skilful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I certainly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Towsley—What makes your waiter so obsequious? Owsley—Simple enough; I fed him and he fed me.

"Do you think, Cousin Fred, I'm very fond of dates?" "No; I don't." "Why?" "Because I don't think you wear enough of it."

Early rising isn't what it is credited with being. Who or what rises earlier than the fly? And yet see the confounded pulsiness he makes of himself.

He (excited)—Ah, what happiness! Now I can call you mine, lovely Miss—Sh! You haven't got through with your interview with papa yet."

Squizzer—"What is the worst taste in the world?" Squeezer—"Castor oil." "Squizzy—"Get out! Castor oil isn't to be compared to the man who wears a week coat and high hat."

Young Nicely—"Yes, I know that I'm a great flirt. I suppose, Miss Similax, that you think I'm a very hard-hearted wretch?" Miss Similax—"Yes, but your head brings the average out all right."

Mrs. Brown—"I declare! Just hear that canary sing! He's always so; every time anybody begins to play on the piano that bird begins to shatter." Mrs. White—"Yes; one would almost think the bird to be human."

Pale and listless girls and prematurely aged women would soon give place to bright, healthy, rosy females if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were used for the ills to which women are peculiarly liable. They enrich the blood, build up the nerves, and restore the shattered system, regulate the periods, etc. Try them, and be convinced. Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing The Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

A few days ago a young man named John Rogers was fatally injured while assisting in the erection of a building on the farm of W. W. Scott, 8th con., Marybore. The unfortunate young man succumbed to death on Monday morning.

Distrustful People.

Make an exception in favor of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Its known virtues as a cure for diarrœa, dysentery, cholera morbus and all bowel complaints cause all who use it to regard it as the most suitable and effectual remedy obtainable.

SOME DON'TS AS TO CONFIDENCES.

Don't confide in anyone if you can help it. If you can't speak to some one whose honor you based proved to be above peddling stories of her friends to enliven her conversation.

Remember she who tells tales of other women will presently tell tales of you and supply as little material as possible.

Don't receive a confidence unless you know your heart is deep enough, your mind broad enough and your brain sufficiently steady to keep it honestly.

Don't be scrupulous about accepting the charge of your friend's diamonds or her purse, while hesitating not to drop hints of her innerlife, stories of her private history, which were meant for your ear only all along your conversation with men and women. Perhaps you think by this means to lessen their regard for her; but don't forget that you are cheapening yourself at the same time.

Do not feel there is no obligation where no promise of silence has been exacted. An implied confidence is ever the most binding to the upright soul.

Never forget that a betrayed confidence is a two edged sword cutting both ways, wounding the heart of one and slaying the honor of the other.

Why Struggle.

WHY struggle with exhausting disease when you may be promptly cured by the use of nature's remedy—Burdock Blood Bitters—the perfect cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, sick headache and all forms of bad blood from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

FIGS AND THISTLES.

You can't shut the devil up, but you can shut him out.

We all hate the truth that hits us between the eyes.

The moment humility undertakes to carry a flag it kills itself.

The man who tries to avoid mountains will have a very crooked road.

Never put yourself in the power of a man who will kick a dog for fun.

When a man is well satisfied with himself God is disappointed in him.

Keep a close eye on the man whose wife is afraid to ask him for money.

If you want to live long, don't try to live more than one day at a time.

The man who controls himself will also control a great many other people.

God has nowhere promised to feed the man who will not take his coat off.

Education doesn't make the man. It brings out the gold that God put in him.

What do you suppose the angels think of a man who is doing his best in dis rich?

How can a man say that he is trusting God who is afraid to give him a tenth of his income?

The poor want money, and the rich want to spend it, and that's what gives the world progress.

It is hard to believe in the religion of a man who always looks as though he had just been throwing boulders at the cat.

There are hundreds of men who chew and smoke, who always howl when their wives want another feather on their bonnets.

It is not those who have done the most evil, but those who have resisted the most truth, who are the wickedest in the sight of God.

The devil is never scared by a handsome bible on a parlor table. The bible that makes him run is the one that is written in the heart.

The devil will see to it that no rich man who goes to hell will ever be suffered to forget the good he might have done on earth with his money.

A large, dark blue braided straw hat, caught up in the back, with loops of blue ribbon, bunches of yellow flowers in front, finishes this pretty gown.

Serious Accounts reported in Illinois.

An American paper says.—At a recent examination of college girls, the rhetoric included "dictated paragraphs from the daily newspaper, and the spelling reduced the entire class to an average of 68 per cent. Insts, Campanini, Boulini, anarchistic, reciprocity, Venezuela, Czarevitch, Baum, commercially, Whitelaw, Reid, Behring Sea, Father Ignatius, Blaine, Mahaffy and Tolstoi were some of the words generally misspelled.

All Era.

young, old, or middle-aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, qualified in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, confusion, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face or body, flushing or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eye lids and lips where, breathlessness, odpsuin in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be roused by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with strange gauze, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension, every function wanes in consequence. Those who through abuse, committed in ignorance may be permanently cured. Send your address for book on all diseases peculiar to man. Address M. V. LUBON, 50 Front St. E., Toronto, Ont. Book sent free sealed. # "Like Magic,"

THE effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Colds, Coughs, Croup, and Sore Throat, are, in most cases, immediately relieved by the use of this wonderful remedy. It strengthens the vocal organs, allays irritation, and prevents the inroads of Consumption; in every stage of that dread disease, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral relieves coughing and induces refreshing rest.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children have been subject."—Capt. C. Carter, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medicines, I feel justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of the Pectoral is the enduring quality of its popularity, it being more salable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvelous."—B. S. Drake, M. D., Bellot, Kans.

"My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skillful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine; saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lerper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.

The Safest
AND most powerful alterative is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old are alike benefited by its use. For the eruptive diseases peculiar to children nothing else is so effective as this medicine, while its agreeable flavor makes it easy to administer.
"My little boy had large scrofulous ulcers on his neck and throat from which he suffered terribly. Two physicians attended him, but he grew continually worse under their care, and everybody expected he would die. I had heard of the remarkable cures effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and decided to have my boy try it. Shortly after he began to take this medicine, the ulcers commenced healing, and, after using several bottles, he was entirely cured. He is now as healthy and strong as any boy of his age."—William F. Dougherty, Hampton, Va.
"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether. The child is livelier, its skin is fresher, and its appetite better than we have observed for months."—Frank M. Griffin, Long Point, Texas.
"The formula of Ayer's Sarsaparilla presents, for chronic diseases of almost every kind, the best remedy known to the medical world."—D. M. Wilson, M. D., Wiggs, Arkansas.

ONLY A BOX.

Only a box, secure and strong,
Rough and wooden and six feet long;
Lowly here in the dreaming vale,
Waiting to take the upheaved pale.

Only six planks, just inside,
Cold, and dark, and cheap, and dry;
Little to him if the rain be here,
Nothing has he to do but rest.

Only an open grave somewhere,
Ready to close when he goes there;
Tears and grasses and flowers sweet,
Ready to press hard upon their feet.

Only a mound of friendliest home,
Waiting to see the traveller come;
Humbly he will talk of distant lands,
He meekness seem press their hands.

He has no stories weird and bright,
He has no gifts for a child's delight;
He did not come with anything,
He had not even himself to bring.

But they will softly him await,
And he will move about in state;
They will give him when he appears
Honor and pity and tender tears.

Only a box, secure and strong,
Rough and wooden and six feet long;
Angels guide that soulless breast
Into a long and peaceful rest!

—OR—
TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER VIII.

Charles Vigo looked up at his friend, and stilled the workings of his face; in a moment more, the burst of sudden grief in which he had indulged was over:

"It is of my duty I think," he said; "but it will be a hard one. Yet, never fear, I shall carry it through."

"I know you will," returned Damerel; "I rely on you entirely. And, to show you how much I rely, I ask you to carry the news to Trewavas while I remain here with the body. You see, I do not fear that you will take advantage of this to whisper a word of flight and warning to that wretched girl."

"Damerel, you are mistaking me altogether," said Charles Vigo, "but I cannot explain myself now. Go to Trewavas! I have not the courage to carry them these tidings, and I feel weak and faint. I cannot go and return as swiftly as you can. Make all speed. I will remain here the while with this poor murdered girl."

Vivian Damerel made no demur; he was glad to take his share of the task. Now, at least, Olive Varcoe should have no chance of escaping justice. In a moment he had disappeared behind the green wall of trees hemming round the pool, and Charles Vigo was left alone with his own thoughts and the corpse of Eleanor Maristowe.

"Great Heaven! what a mockery seems this bright morning sun, so full of joy and life! How bitter the contrast between its warmth and glory and this death, murder and shame!"

Thus thought Vivian Damerel, as, with swift feet, he brought his evil tidings nearer and nearer Trewavas. Hastily brushing the dew from leaf and flower as he ran, and heedless of the song of birds greeting him from every bough, yet inwardly conscious of the beauty and peace of the scene, as contrasted with the anguish and crime of which he bore the tidings; he traversed the glades of the wood without pausing an instant; but out upon the open slope, looking down clearly upon the village and mansion of Trewavas, he stayed his steps and lingered a moment in doubt.

Surely it was his duty to go first to the little police station, and report there the discovery he had made; but he dared not do this without divulging also his conviction that Olive Varcoe was the murderess; and then he must appear at Trewavas, not as a friend, but an avenger. He would come in company with police officers, bringing with him a double misery, the news of death and crime. He shrank from the task. A thousand times he had accepted friendship and courtesy from that house; his hand should not be the one to bring infamy and shame beneath its roof. No! let the police do their dreadful work themselves; he was not called upon, surely, to be an officer of justice. It was for Sir Hilton Trewavas to send for the police, and do all that was right and befitting a man to save the honor of his family, and avenge the murder of his bride. If he failed in his duty, it would be time enough then for him to speak. Sir Hilton had discrimination and judgment. He must have seen and known long ago that his strange cousin was a passionate, vindictive girl, ambitious, resolved herself to be Lady Trewavas, and full of jealousy and hatred towards the unhappy young lady now lying cruelly murdered by the pool. Let Sir Hilton do his duty by that poor girl, whose drowned corpse the sun was shining on so gaily—a girl but yesterday so full of life and happiness, and whose sorrow and whose death came through her love for him. Let him bewail her, and avenge her as he should; it was but courteous and friendly to leave this part to him; and if he showed signs of quailing, if he dared conceive——

Vivian Damerel paused, and struck his brow with his clenched hand.

"Is that case," he said to himself, "I will speak to his brother, and John and I will drag that wretched girl to justice with our own hands."

He turned away from the village as he spoke. He hurried down the slope and through the park; he reached the great door of the mansion, and laid his hand upon the bell. But before he had time to sound the note that would have clamored of such death and woe, a tiny figure stood before him, and Olive's all very voice rang in his ears.

"Come in this way—by the window," she said, softly. "Mrs. Maristowe sleeps, so does John. Let them sleep a little longer. You bring tidings. I see it in your face."

Agitated as he was, Mr. Damerel nevertheless stood for a moment silent and amazed at the quiet self-possession of the woman, upon whose head lay all this guilt. But as he gazed steadily in to her eyes, he saw her shrink; he saw all the pain, the anguish, the horror, that she strove with such wonderful courage to conceal. The flit-color then her cheek had worn came and went in flashes; and over all her, aspect there was the shadow of an indescribed change. It was as though she had passed through a fire, or had gone down into the grave and seen the secrets of death. It was terrible to behold this girl, whose soul was surely in a flame of torture, playing her part calmly, bearing on her face, as a mask, the common conventional sympathy and pretence of sorrow the time demanded, dropping from her lips the commonplace words of every-day life, and hiding, with all the force of her character, the horrible secret that was rending her spirit.

Mr. Damerel shrank from her with ill-concealed loathing. He could scarcely persuade himself to reply to her greeting. All his affectation of speech and manner was gone; he was pale, earnest and determined.

"Lead the way, Miss Varcoe, I follow," he said, in a cold, hard tone. He pretended not to see the hand which she extended to him, and he shrank back against the carved buttress of the wall as she passed him. Olive saw this, and turning her head for a moment she gazed into his face.

Vivian Damerel never forgot that look. Olive's cheeks were white as ashes—white with a pallor like death; but in her eyes there was a great light—the light as of a fire that burned with a living flame.

What did she mean? What did her eyes say? Did they ask for justice? Was it a fire of murder, or of martyrdom? And how was it that this strange girl, yet fresh from crime, could send through his soul a thrill of pity, and a prayer to Heaven to spare her?

As he stepped on, blind in his pain, following mechanically the graceful figure whose robe swept the gravel, there rose up before his eyes a vision of the drowned girl whom he had drawn from the pool, lying on the grass, with white upturned face, appealing mutely to Heaven for justice. Before that sight his old distrust and dislike of Olive sprang up active again, and it was with a thrill of renewed horror, and a glow of shame for his false pity, that he lowered his head and entered the library, by that window, through which Olive had crept so silently the evening before.

In this room stood Lady Trewavas and Sir Hilton. Both were pale, both haggard with watching and suspense. The upright frame of the aged lady, which seventy summers had striven in vain to bend, was bowed now in a single night, and the wrinkled hand resting on her grandson's arm trembled and clutched him nervously for support.

"Damerel," said Sir Hilton, not guessing why he came, "you see us under sad circumstances. I am just returned from the beach. I have not found her. I have gained no clue——"

But at this moment he caught the look of horror on Damerel's face, and his speech remained suspended; and his eyes grew fixed in sudden expectation and terror.

"She is dead!" said Mr. Damerel. "Vige and I have found her."

"Dead!" exclaimed Sir Hilton; "dead!—How?—Where?"

There was a breathless silence for a moment; then Damerel, with earnest gaze, fixed upon Sir Hilton, said slowly, "She is murdered! We found her drowned in the pool by the Lady's Bower."

Lady Trewavas, struck senseless by his words, fell forward on her knees; her grandson held her up and placed her in a chair.

"Leave us, Olive, and go for help," he said in a hollow voice.

Before obeying him, the girl knelt down, took Lady Trewavas and hand kissed it. Tears were streaming over her face, her lips were white and trembling. In passing Sir Hilton she stopped, and clasping her hands she extended them towards him.

"Hilton!" she said.

He neither turned, nor looked, nor moved.

"Hilton!" she said again. Her voice was a cry of anguish; but he remained immovable, not turning even a glance towards her.

Then Vivian Damerel constrained himself to speak.

"Miss Varcoe," said he, "let me counsel you to be silent. It is painful to have to listen to words, which perhaps we may have to repeat in public."

Olive gazed at him in stunning wonder; then she riveted her eyes on her cousin's face; but what she saw there of stern sorrow and pain, made her turn away in despair.

"I care not where you repeat my words, Mr. Damerel," said Olive. "Hilton," she continued, turning to him, "I wanted to say, 'Forgive me! forgive all my unkindness to Eleanor!' I thought I hated her. Now she is dead; I know I never loved her; but I know, too, I never hated her. I am sorry, Heaven knows it, for this dreadful deed. Now, sir," she added, turning fiercely on Damerel, make what you can of my words."

The next moment Olive Varcoe was gone, closing the door sharply on the lifeless woman in the chair, and on the two young men, who looked on each other with resolute faces.

"The first thing to be done is to give information to the police," resumed Mr. Damerel. "I came hither at once, Sir Hilton, feeling that to be my first duty, and now I leave the rest to you."

"I will listen to all you have to say in a moment, Mr. Damerel," said replied the baronet. "For the present instant my grandmother is my first duty."

Sir Hilton turned as he spoke to the servants who entered, and gave minute orders respecting Lady Trewavas' quiet and comfort. The faintness with which she had been seized had left her, but she looked utterly exhausted, pale and haggard.

"Promise me," said the young man, bending over her, "that you will remain in your own room, and try to sleep until I return to the house. You cannot tell how much need I shall have of your help; nurse your health and strength, for both will be sorely tried. We shall have to defend ourselves."

"I certainly must go to Mrs. Maristowe," said Lady Trewavas, nervously clasping his hand.

"No; I forbid it," said Sir Hilton. "Let her sleep on; it is only merciful. If she wakes before I return—with Eleanor—" (the young man broke down here, and for a moment his voice was lost,) "then, in that case, let John go and break the news," he resumed, "but I prefer doing so myself. It is my task. All the bitterness of this misery is mine by right. Let no man interfere with me."

The fiery glance of his eye fell on Mr. Damerel, who stood upright before it, unquailing, and resentful of this delay.

"I will do all you wish, Hilton," said Lady Trewavas; "only try not to be long away."

"I will be here before Mrs. Maristowe asks a question, if that be possible," he replied.

He then looked up, steadily facing the wondering gaze of the servants.

"Miss Maristowe has been found drowned in the pool by the Lady's Bower," he said. "In all human probability her death is the result of accident, but that we shall discover on enquiry. Until my return; I desire silence—above all, in the apartments of Mrs Maristowe. I expect to be obeyed implicitly."

"Certainly, Sir Hilton," they replied.

"Give my orders to the household," he added; "and take care of your mistress. Go and call my brother, and bid him come to me."

This last command was given to a man servant standing at the door.

"John is fearfully worn out," said Lady Trewavas, turning, as she was supported from the room.

"Never mind," answered Sir Hilton. "He will bear his share of this bravely, I know."

Once more Sir Hilton Trewavas and Mr. Damerel sat over against each other, silent and alone. After a moment's hesitation, Vivian Damerel arose and spoke.

"Sir Hilton," said he, "I have observed with great regret, that you have as yet given no orders to your servants to go to the police station."

"I see no necessity, sir," replied Sir Hilton. "The police received full information last night of Miss Maristowe's absence. They searched with me this morning; they are still searching. I expect one of the men here every moment. When he arrives it will surely be time enough to send the news of our sorrow through the gossiping world."

"As you will, Sir Hilton," said Damerel. "But my opinion is not yours. Excuse me also for saying that I should consider it best to let a bereaved mother hear at once the fate of her daughter."

"Mrs. Maristowe is a guest in my house, Mr. Damerel," replied Sir Hilton. "I hope I know my duty towards her. I deem it wisest to ensure her a few hours' sleep after a night of terror and anxiety. I take the responsibility of that and of all else on myself."

Mr. Damerel bowed. With admirable presence of mind he kept the same cool courtesy that Sir Hilton had assumed, but on his face there grew a deeper and deeper shade of anxiety.

"Excuse me, Mr. Damerel," said Sir Hilton, "I expect my brother here in a moment. I wish to speak to him privately for a short time."

At this Vivian Damerel again rose, flushed and agitated.

"Sir Hilton," said he, "pardon me. Let me entreat you not to do this at present. Remember the sad necessity I may be under, to repeat every detail of your words and conduct in open court. It is my miserable duty to be obliged to say, that I more than suspect a member of your own family to be the slayer of this unhappy young lady. If, after a secret conversation with your brother, that suspected party should leave this house, the world would judge you guilty of connivance. Give me, I beg of you, the power to say, with honorable indignation, that I have seen no symptom in you of a wish to let the guilty escape."

Who can paint the agony of Sir Hilton's face as he listened to these words? He never asked who was the suspected person—he knew too well. He strove to command himself—he succeeded. He steadied his white lips, and spoke again like a man.

"Mr. Damerel," he observed, "if you constitute yourself an inspector of police I bow to your commands; but if you remain a gentleman and my friend, I speak to my brother in another room."

"What right have I to prevent you, Sir Hilton?" asked Damerel. "Only I feel it is ungenerous towards me. I came here first, instead of going to the police. I am responsible to my own conscience and to the world for that act. You should be careful not to make me repent it."

"I do not thank you for coming hither first, Mr. Damerel," replied Sir Hilton. "It can be a matter of no consequence to me or my family, whether the police are apprised an hour sooner or later of the accidental death of a young lady, surely dearer to me than to any other in the world, her mother not excepted."

"Sir Hilton, I do not presume to discuss your affection for Miss Maristowe," said Damerel. "As a bearer of evil tidings I am unwelcome. I will leave you. But be careful how you speak of 'accidental death.' I repeat that poor girl has been murdered! Her hands were tied together by the red silk cord which Miss Varcoe wore yesterday as a girdle round her waist."

The worst was spoken, and Sir Hilton staggered beneath it like a man smitten by a heavy blow. Surel until now he had been deceiving himself with the hope, that Eleanor had fallen into the pool. His face fell forward on his hands, and he remained aghast and speechless. Another voice broke the silence—it was John's.

"Heaven have mercy on us!" he said. "This if too terrible!"

"Mr. Trewavas," exclaimed Vivian Damerel, "I appeal to you. Let measures be instantly taken to put this affair in the hands of the police. We linger too long here in discussion; and we forget that the corpse of this murdered girl lies upon the grass."

At these words Sir Hilton Trewavas started up like a man new waking to his bitter grief.

"Let no man dare to touch her till I am there, he cried. 'John, I wanted you for this; my courage is gone; I cannot give the dreadful orders. Will you see to all things? Will you come with me and help to bring her home? And see that there is a cloth—a shawl—a something to cover her poor face. Merciful heaven! what have I done that this horror should come upon my house?"

Touched by his outbreak of grief, Vivian Damerel, in his respect for it, walked to the window, and turned his face away from the two brothers. In that instant of time Sir Hilton's lips whispered—"Olive!"

"Heaven alone knows the truth," said John, in a voice of anguish. "I cannot tell you. "I'll do what you bid me."

He left the room hurriedly. He seemed bewildered, scarce knowing what he was doing. Sir Hilton gazed after him, deeply disappointed.

"He has not understood me," he said to himself, "or else he will not help her to fly." Then he turned bitterly toward Vivian Damerel. "You perceive, sir," said he, "that if the murderer of my affianced wife be indeed beneath my roof—which I deny—neither my brother nor I aim at defeating the ends of justice."

CARDWELL HONORED!

The New Premier Thanks the Conservative Association.

We are pleased to see that the Conservative association of Cardwell is the first Conservative organization to receive thanks of the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott, Canada's new Premier.

The following letter speaks for itself:—

PRIVY COUNCIL,
OTTAWA,
June 22nd, 1891.

DEAR SIR,—I am gratefully obliged by your letter of the 12th instant, and beg that you will be good enough to accept for yourself, and convey to the members of the Conservative Association of Cardwell, my best thanks for their kind congratulations and good wishes upon the occasion of my appointment to the Premiership of this country.

Yours very truly,
J. J. C. ABBOTT

John Wallace, Esq.,
Castlederg, Ont.

THE JUG-HANDLED POLICY.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—The Record to day says: "Secretary Blaine, it appears by the official correspondence, struggled hard to establish a preliminary basis for reciprocity with Canada, but he had nothing substantial to offer and the Canadian officials refused to be deluded with promises that could not be construed to mean anything definite. The cool audacity that sought to impose on our northern neighbors the jug handled conditions to which Spain was forced to submit, is striking and original enough, but entirely worthless when mutual concessions are necessary."

THE SUGAR DUTY REMOVED.

Trade Bulletin.

THE Government of Ottawa deserves the thanks of the whole country for acceding to the popular request in removing at a single sweep the duty on raw sugar, which enables the great sugar refining interests of Canada to swing on again with renewed energy, without any fear of competition from our American neighbors, and at the same time manufacture as good an article as before at about 2c per lb less money. This will create a demand for sugar that will tax every refinery in the country to its fullest capacity, and an impetus to trade in other lines of business that must be productive of good to business generally. The consumption of sugar in the Dominion from this out will show an enormous increase, as consumers will be able to indulge in this luxury to their heart's content. The extra consumption will of course come largely from the masses, who will now be in a position to patronize sweet food as they have never done before in the history of the country. The Government is all the more deserving of praise for this bold and commendable stroke of policy from the fact that it involves a loss of nearly $3,500,000 of revenue, which will have to be met in a large measure by a retrenchment in expenditure, and partly by an increase in duties on spirits, ales, tobacco, malt, etc. which are the kind of luxuries that can stand a revenue tax.

SIR JOHN'S WILL.

How the Late Premier's Estate is Disposed of.

The principal points in the last will and testament of Sir John Macdonald (dated September 4th, 1890,) are made public, and comprise the following items: The executors are Hugh John Macdonald, Hon. Edgar Dewdney, F. White and Joseph Pope. These gentlemen with Lady Macdonald are the guardians of his daughter. Earnsliffe is left to Lady Macdonald for life. It may be sold, however, and the interest on the proceeds used by her, after which it passes to the daughter and then to the son. The law library goes to the son, the other contents of the house passing to his wife, together with certain investments. The proceeds of a £2,000 policy are to be invested for his son and afterwards for the grandchildren. The son also receives the moneys Sir John received from the late Miss Macdonald. As to half of the balance of his personal estate, he directs that the interest on it shall go to Lady Macdonald and his daughter during the life of both of them and to the survivor of them during the life of the survivor, and as to the other half the income is to go to the family of his son, and after the death of both Lady Macdonald and his daughter the whole of his personal estate is to go to the family of his son. The value of the estate bequeathed, apart from Earnscliffe, is between $80,000 and $90,000.

FAULTS IN ROAD MAKING.

A fault in making roads is that of excessively crowning or rounding up the centre of our roadbeds. This makes an even distribution of travel over the surface impossible and after a time, by compelling the wheels to go in the same places, produces ruts. If loaded teams are compelled to turn aside, the peculiar shape of the roadbed throws an undue pressure on the outer wheels, subjecting them to a severe strain, while the sliding sidewise increases both the draft and wear on the wood. "Cradle holes" are met with on much traveled roads, and should be filled up as soon as they start. The deeper they become the greater the force of the impact with which every passing wheel goes thumping to their bottom, and thus they grow worse in a constantly increasing ratio. Another evil in our roads is the lack of adequate under-drainage.

THE McGREEVY CASE.

Owen Murphy's Unsupported Statements of Months Past.

OTTAWA, June 23.—At the Privileges and Election Committee this morning the examination of Owen Murphy was continued. He stated that all communications between Larkin, Connolly & Co. and the Government relative to suggested changes in the Esquimalt docks were carried on through Thomas McGreevy, and in each case a substantial share in the profits was offered if changes could be procured. He testified to having personally paid to Sir Hector Langevin large sums of money which were charged to Levis graving dock profits, but could give no idea as to the time when those alleged payments were made.

The sub-committee reported that Larkin, Connolly & Co.'s checks and bill books ordered to be produced were missing, and a subpœna was ordered to be issued to Patrick Kelly, in charge of the Quebec office, to attend with them.

SIR JOHN'S ANCESTORS.

Some Interesting Facts Concerning His Mother and Her Family.

Duncan Ferguson of Boissevain, writing to the Winnipeg Free Press, says: In the many biographical sketches of the late Sir John A. Macdonald in the public press, I have not observed any account of his ancestors beyond his father and mother. They can, however, be traced back for two generations at least, and I believed the late Premier looked upon them with considerable pride. His father was a native of the parish of Darnack, Sutherlandshire, and I believe he could boast of gentle blood. But I believe he was more indebted to the maternal side of the house for his intellectual vigor and strong personality. His maternal grandmother was a daughter of Grant of Glenmorrostow, a very old family in Inverness-shire. She married Col. Shaw, who having died, she was left a widow. She married the second time Capt. Shaw, who was cornet in Lord Elisha's horse on the fatal field of Culloden, fighting for the Pretender. After the settlement of affairs, he, like many of his countrymen, took service in the British Army, where he rose to the rank of Captain, and upon retiring from the army he occupied till her death the farm of Dalnavert, in Badenoch, Inverness-shire. Here on the banks of the romantic river Spey, and under the shade of the highest and most rugged part of the Grampians, with their primeval and extensive forests, Sir John A. Macdonald's mother was born and brought up until she married Sir John's father, who had business relations in Glasgow where they resided in 1820, when they emigrated to Canada and settled in Kingston. The future illustrious statesman was then in his fifth year, having been born in George street on the 11th January, 1815, and called John Alexander. Another daughter of Capt. Shaw was married to Col. McPherson, a son of Cluny McPherson captain of the Black Watch, who with his clan espoused the Pretender's cause, was particularly obnoxious to the government, but escaped to France and died in exile. Col. McPherson and his wife died in Kingston, and are buried in the family burying place there. A third daughter of Capt. Shaw was married to Capt. Alexander Clark, who upon the death of his father in law occupied the farm of Dalnavert until his death, when he was succeeded by Hixson, Capt. Jas Clark, of the 42nd Highlanders, who also died several years ago. Capt. Alexander Clark had a large family, one of whom, being his own first cousin, Sir John A. Macdonald married, and was the mother of Hugh John Macdonald, M.P., the late Premier's only son. She died many years ago. Capt. Clark was nearly related to James McPherson, the famous translator of Ossian's poems, and was the next at law after Sir David Brewster's family to the beautiful estate of Bellville. Sir David was married to McPherson's youngest daughter, and, of course, his family came first. On the north side of Spey, opposite Dalnavert is Kurrora, a seat of the late Duke of Gordon. Here lies in a romantic spot in quiet reports the ashes of the clever and celebrated Duchess Jean Gordon, who played such a conspicuous figure in the aristocratic and political circles of the exacting days of the regency of George IV. The dukedom of Gordon became extinct in the son of the illustrious Duchess, but has been revived and attached to the Richmond family, who is both Duke of Richmond and Gordon, and Earl of Kinrara. Alongside Dalnavert is the farm of South Kinrara, where the gallant Colonel Lewis Carmichael, who commanded the Glengarry Highlanders in the rebellion of 1867 and 1868, was born. A rough but imposing monument on an Island in the St. Lawrence commemorates the event. Those were the surroundings in which the late illustrious Premier's mother was brought up. She was a lady of very superior intellect, and I believe that Sir John bore a remarkable resemblance to her.

Look out for swindlers. The country abounds with them, and they resort to all sorts of methods to trap the guileless. Do not expect to get a huge bargain from a stranger, and do not attach your signature to any document whatever for him. If you want anything in dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, hardware or any other line purchase from those who deal in them in the nearest town.

Goldwin Smith.

Goldwin Smith is opposed to Sir Charles Tupper in many ways, but doubtless both would agree that no better remedy for dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, headache, kidney troubles, skin diseases, etc., exists than Burdock Blood Bitters, the best family medicine known.

TO BE LEFT TO A COMMISSION.

The Prohibition Question as it was Settled by our Parliament.

OTTAWA, June 24.—That indefatigable prohibitionist, Mr. Jamieson, to-day had his innings. He opened by calling upon the leader of the Government and the leader of the Opposition to arise and declare themselves. He had seen Mr. Laurier on the platform of a political meeting at Montreal. He hoped that he had not changed his opinions since then—that the Parliament of Canada should have no difficulty in devising another means of raising the money which the abolition of the liquor traffic would cause the country to lose. While he did not recognize the rights of vested interests, he thought some means of buying out the whole liquor business should be devised.

Dr. Landerkin—You mean buying their votes.

Mr. Jamieson said that prohibitionists were not extravagant in their requests. At the present time 399 men of 400 were prohibited from selling liquor, and the prohibitionists asked the Government to go one better.

In amendment to Mr. Mackintosh's amendment, that the House was of opinion that a select committee should be appointed to report on the subject, Mr. Taylor moved another amendment, the gist of which was that the House thought the electorate of Canada should pronounce a definite opinion on the question. This was moved under by 185 to 7.

Then arose Mr. Foster. He announced that for reasons of his own he had for the past few years talked little of prohibition. He, however, believed in it as strongly as ever. He thought it feasible under certain conditions. The difficulties are: First, the desire for intoxicants and stimulants existing in this and other civilized countries. The power of custom is another difficulty in the way of prohibition. This will have to be reformed and overcome before we can have prohibition. The money interest is another difficulty. Another strong difficulty was the enforcement of prohibition. The difficulty of adjusting the revenue is a strong barrier. He denied emphatically that he ever stated that the loss of seven millions of revenue stood in the way of prohibition. He did not count on a dollar against the happiness or well being of one man. No better thing could be done than to exchange the seven and a half millions for a country blessed with the happiness coming from prohibition.

Mr. Foster moved for the appointment of a royal commission. This was carried by 107 to 88. Jamieson and Dickey voted with the Opposition, and Jones went back to the Ministerialists.

The House of Commons voted down by 72 to 50 a motion to adjourn on Dominion day.

WHEN Sir Richard Cartwright finds out if Sir Charles Tupper was or was not asked to form a ministry it will be interesting to see what he does with the information. His party tried to break up its opponents by making it appear that Sir Hector Langevin had been insulted by being passed over for Mr. Abbott, and then tried to make Sir John Thompson envious of his chief by praising him as the first statesman in his party. Whose feelings does Sir Richard expect to harrow by hollow adulation of the High Commissioner?—Montreal Gazette.

THOUGH the new Premier, Mr. Abbott, remarks the Toronto World, is known in Upper Canada as an able commercial lawyer and as a good business man who has made his mark in the Province of Quebec, both in political and municipal life. It is not so generally known up here that he has devoted much of his spare time to farming. He owns a beautiful estate at St. Anne's, about an hour's ride by rail from Montreal, where his herd of Guernsey cattle and Shropshire sheep have long been the admiration of the neighborhood. There is no more beautiful property in Lower Canada. It is bounded by the Ottawa River, and the grounds are laid out with all the skill of a landscape gardener. To this estate Mr. Abbott has given his personal supervision for many years. Among the sights of the neighborhood is a ruined abbey on the river side of the ground.

SHE WILL BE A PEERESS.

Lady Macdonald to be Honored by Her Majesty—A Knighthood for Hugh.

LONDON, June 24.—The colonial office has, it is said, been carefully considering the suggestion that Lady Macdonald should be raised to the peerage. Seeing that Sir John's sons are the issue of a former marriage, no question of the descent of the title arises, though it is felt natural that Mr. Hugh Macdonald should be knighted. It is also expected that Mr. Abbott will be knighted.

Sir Charles Tupper has now fully resumed the duties of the High Commissionership. It is quite untrue to say, as some Canadian papers do, that he received an invitation to form a government. He expresses relief that he has not had to decline such an invitation. Only a grave crisis in Canadian affairs can induce him to return to Ottawa.

[Since the above was put in type Lady Macdonald has become the Baroness of Earnscliffe.]

A REMARKABLE CASE.

The Strange Separation of a Georgian Bay Man and His Wife.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., June 25.—In 1860 Thomas Tisdale, with his wife and four children, residing in a Canadian village, was engaged as escort to a fishing party to Georgian Bay. When the party returned Tisdale was reported as having left the party in a rowboat, and nothing was heard from him. It was presumed that he was drowned. After several years Mrs. Tisdale married William Davis. In about four years the second husband died, and the widow married a Mr. Copeland of Tonawanda. A few days ago Tisdale appeared at Sanborn, and Mrs. Copeland being sent for, identified him as her long-missing husband. Present indications are that the third husband will have to relinquish his wife, and that she will join her fortunes with Tisdale.

Sir Andrew Clarke, Mr. Gladstone's chief physician, fears that the veteran statesman may not recover from the effects of the attack of influenza from which he suffered this spring. On his advice Mr. Gladstone has gone to Lowestoft, a seaport town, in hopes of recruiting his health.

SPECULATING IN GRAIN.

The Farmers' Alliance in Nebraska, after having the Legislature declare all warehouse public storehouses, have decided to store the new wheat dropped hold it for a rise in prices. This is the first step towards speculating in grain, and though it may succeed once in a while, it will be found to be not only shrewd in policy, but directly in good public morals. Nine times out of ten farmers make money by marketing their crops when they are ready for the market, as no one can foretell the future, and the loss of interest more than makes up for the difference in price should a higher price be obtained. The speculative feature of this plan will no doubt lead to as great evils as are found upon the Chicago Board of Trade. If the Alliance, as a body, can make money by waiting for a raise and cutting off the supply of grain as can individual farmers, and it will not be long before every farmer in Nebraska will be clamoring for a fictitious advance, which will ruin all who wait for it.—Cleveland Leader.

AMARANTH COUNCIL.

LAUREL, June 20, 1891.

The council met in the town hall, Laurel, on above date, pursuant to adjournment. All the members present. The reeve in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by J. A. Turner, that the reeve and deputy be commissioners to let contracts for repairing town line, East Garafraxa and Amaranth, opposite sec. 4.—Carried.

The council then adjourned to meet again on Saturday, August 1st, at the usual hour. M. G. VARCOE, Clerk.

SHELBURNE.

(From Free and Economist.)

TELEGRAPH POLES SHATTER.—During the thunder storm last week a large number of telegraph poles along the line to Horning's Mills were splintered by the lightning.

RECOVERING.—We understand that the young man, John Anderson, of Amaranth, who met with a serious accident several weeks ago by his horse running away, is now recovering rapidly. A large sliver that had penetrated over the eye was this week removed by Dr. Rolstin.

A BAD CUT.—Last Monday Freddy Sinclair, aged about 11 years, son of Charles Sinclair, while playing was accidentally thrown against a scythe that had been left standing in front of Doukin & Co.'s harness shop. The boy sustained a serious cut on one leg below the knee, the fleshy part being cut through to the bone and the wound being about five inches in length. Dr. Rolstin found it necessary to make several stitches.

DISASTER FOLLOWS DISASTER.—The other day Charles Valentine was loading or unloading shingles at Sam Small's mill in the New Survey of McLanthon when the horses took fright and started to run. In their way was a post to which the guy ropes that held the mill smokestack were attached, and a collision occurred, Mr. Valentine being thrown from the wagon to the ground, and the the guy wires, post and smokestack came tumbling after. Mr. Valentine, horses and wagon were not much the worse.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—Last Friday evening a garden party for the entertainment of the pupils of the public school of which Miss Addie Hall is teacher, was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hare, Violet Hill. The Shelburne Citizen's band was in attendance. The evening's enjoyment was greatly marred by an accident that happened. James Armstrong, son of Joseph Armstrong, was engaging with another young man and going at a great height, when Armstrong's foot slipped off. He held on with his hands for a moment and then fell, sustaining a compound fracture of one of his thighs and other serious injuries. At last accounts he was in a critical condition.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Sunday was the fifty-fourth anniversary of the Queen's accession.

Reports from the Ottawa district show that the crops are in fine condition.

The Dundalk Methodist church was reopened on Sunday of last week.

Letters of the Patrons of Industry have been formed in the vicinity of Dundalk.

The last letter ever signed by Sir John Macdonald was sent to Mr. E. W. Rathbun of Deseronto.

A cyclone ruined many miles of crops and injured many persons 25 miles south of Denver the other night.

The United States Government has revoked the order for 15 days' quarantine against Canadian sheep and swine.

What a rush there is to Leighton's grocery, boot and shoe store for pairs of that beautiful Ready-made Clothing.

A son of the signators of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was sold for $4,250 in London, Wednesday.

Four fifths of the tin plate works in South Wales have closed their doors for one month, throwing 25,000 hands out of employment for that time.

The house and barn of Henry Hunter, near Dalhousie, were fired one night last week. The former was saved but the latter was burnt to the ground.

Why suffer the ills peculiar to females when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will thoroughly eradicate every vestige of the trouble, and restore to your pallid cheeks the bright, rosy glow of youth and health. Try them. Sold by all dealers, or by mail, postage paid, on receipt of price (50 cents a box). Address Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

Unlucky burglars went to the risk and trouble of entering the hardware store of E. Kilmer at Durham, and cracking the safe, all for the small sum of $4. They took a revolver and two gimlets' diamonds. The safe is badly wrecked, and Mr. Kilmer's loss is about $125.

Certain changes have been made in the regulations of the school holidays we believe, which add a week to the total vacations. School will close on June 30th, and open on the last Monday in August, in towns and incorporated villages, and in the country they open one week earlier. All schools open on Jan. 3rd after Christmas holidays, and the week following Good Friday will be a vacation, instead of school commencing after Easter Monday as formerly.

No matter what may be the ills you bear from indigestion, a dose of Ayer's Cathartic Pills will ease you without question. Just try them once and be assured; they have much worse dispepsias cured. You'll find them nice and simply worth the price.

"Has Arthur quit smoking cigarettes for good?" "Oh no; only until he can get his life insured."

$50,000 to loan on mortgage security. Interest and expenses low, terms to suit borrowers. F. Irwin, office over Endacott Bros' store, Orangeville.

Thomas Caldwell of Sydenham fell off an excursion train near Renfrew last Thursday night and was crushed under the wheels. The body was picked up and turned over to Bertram Bros., undertakers, Harrowsmith. Deceased was 33 years of age.

The Australian Commonwealth.

The Australian Commonwealth will have grand results, but the results of using Burdock Blood Bitters for diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood surpass all expectations. Dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, scrofula, etc., are promptly cured by B.B.B.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

Mr. Philip has built his mill dam about two feet higher so as to raise the water to float the timber down to the mill.

Rev. Mr. Crosier, conducted the preparatory service in St. Andrew's church Orangeville, on Friday evening last.

Notices have been posted around the village prohibiting persons from throwing balls or stones, jumping, or playing any games on the street.

BEATS THE DOMINION.—On Monday we were shown a sample of wool 18 inches in length, taken from a fleece produced from a yearling lamb of the Leicester class, the property of Mr. W. W. Thompson, of Peepabun. The lamb from which the wool was taken was a small one and the fleece weighed 10lbs. If there is anything in the Dominion of Canada, or in the whole continent included, that can beat this we would like to hear of it. We are also informed that Mr. Thompson's entire flock this year averaged 8 lbs. 11 ozs. each, and for the three years previous averaged 8½ lbs! If Luther cannot come to the front in gold mines, etc., it takes the cake for the material that is most necessary the world over for clothing. Trot out your champion.

A GOOD TIME.—A jolly fishing party, consisting of Dr. Hopkins, W. R. Scott, R. F. Taylor, Thos. H. Hamilton and N. Resburn, on the invitation of Dr. Barr, M. P. P., left our town on Thursday of last week. They drove to Shelburne, where they were met by the Dr and Mr. McCutcheon, and then proceeded to Mulmur Lake, where they were stowed away comfortably for the night in a very commodious building being large enough to store away six fine bears besides on the ground floor, while the upstairs is nicely laid out as a dining room and sleeping compartments. The party speak highly of the hospitality of Dr. Barr, who did all in his power to give them a good time which they, one and all, claim they had. The weather being somewhat calm for good fishing at Mulmur Lake (although the party caught several good fish there) the Dr. proposed, after dinner on Friday, that they should pull up stakes and start for Horning's Mills which they did, spending the remainder of the day there and securing a nice catch of fish, returning home on Friday evening highly delighted with their outing. They claim that Dr. Barr is not only a good politician but a boss captain of a fishing party. Mr. McCutcheon making a No. 1 lieutenant. We learn that one of the party had an eye to business as well as pleasure as, we understand, he purchased a very valuable sow on the trip for a reasonable price, the purchase not having arrived here as yet.

The Great Female Medicine.

The functional irregularities peculiar to the weaker sex, are invariably corrected without pain or inconvenience, by the use of Dr. Morse's Indian root Pills. They are the safest and surest medicine for all the diseases incidental to females of all ages, and the more especially so in this climate. Ladies who wish to enjoy health, should always have these Pills. No one who once uses them once will allow herself to be without them. Dr Morse's Indian Root Pills are sold by all Medicine Dealers.

LAUREL.

DEATH OF MR. H. MCGOWAN.—The many friends of Mr. Hugh McGowan will hear with deep regret of his death, which occurred on Sunday last. The deceased had been suffering from consumption for about a year. He leaves four children to mourn his loss, his wife died some time ago. Deceased was 35 years old. The remains were laid to rest beside those of his wife, in the Laurel cemetery. Rev. Mr. Leonard conducted the religious service.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate to give the law courts jurisdiction in Divorce cases. This is a measure that should receive the approval of Parliament, as the present system of passing an Act in each case of divorce is very absurd. A court of law could decide these cases promptly and more satisfactorily than Parliament. Besides the cost would be much less.

Gilchrist, Kent & Co. bought a large lina of Worsted and Tweed Suits at the recent Trade Sale of Suckling & Co. These goods they are offering at about half the usual price.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against these spurious imitations, and are asked to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c a box) by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EAST GARAFRAXA COUNCIL.

The council met as per advertisement as a Court of Revision at Marsville on Saturday, May 30th. All the members were present, and having taken the oath according to statute, the clerk laid on the table the list of appeals against the assessment from John Brawley, John Greenaway, Francis Hills, Henry McGowan, James Gamble, John Carney and W. A. Hoar. Ground of appeal, too high assessed.

On motion the assessment of John Carney and W. A. Hoar was confirmed, and that John Brawley's assessment be lowered $100, John Greenaway's $200, Francis Hills' $200, Henry McGowan's $200 and James Gamble's $100.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Carroll that the assessment roll, as now revised, be confirmed.—Carried.

The Court of Revision then closed, and the members reorganized as a township council. On motion of Messrs. T. Carroll and Turner, the council went into committee on the auditor's report. Committee rose, and on motion of Messrs. Turner and Simpson, the report was received as correct for 1890.

Moved by Messrs. T. Carroll and D. Carroll, that Messrs. Simpson, Turner and the mover be a committee to examine Price's bill and have the same repaired, also McGowan's hill.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and D. Carroll, that the sum of $50 be granted on townline between Erin and Garafraxa to supplement said amount from Erin to be expended from 12th line west.—Carried.

John Turner moved, seconded by T. Carroll, that Messrs. Carroll, Simpson and Hamilton be a committee to examine and repair the road at lake on the Orangeville road.—Carried.

John Turner moved, seconded by T. Carroll, that Messrs. Hamilton, Carroll and Simpson be a committee to meet a committee from Amaranth on town line.—Carried.

T. Carroll moved, seconded by Jas Simpson, that the sum of $50 be placed to the credit of each commissioner, to be expended in improving the roads.—Carried.

John Turner moved, seconded by T. Carroll, that the solicitor be instructed to notify Mrs. White to take her in cumbrance off the road allowance, lot 14, w½ con. 16.—Carried.

Messrs. Simpson and Turner moved, that on the order of the reeve the following accounts be paid, viz.: John J. Nickle, $1 50, for letting water off the Orangeville road, and $1 to supplement Amaranth for letting water off town line; $10 for school arbitration between sections 4 and 12; assessor $3 for equalizing the assessment for union school between Garafraxa and Caledon.—Carried.

A petition was presented, signed by James B. Reid and 25 others, praying that the council pass a by law to prohibit the taxing of dogs for the present year.

On motion of Messrs. Simpson and Carroll the council adjourned, to meet again at Marsville on Saturday, the 1st day of August. JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

A garden party will be held at the residence of Mr. R. Jackson, Cardwell, on Tuesday next. Quite a number from town will be there.

Local Orangemen will attend the Methodist church on Sunday morning. Rev. M. L. Pearson, the pastor, will preach a special sermon.

The H. S. football club played two games with the Beavers at Arthur on Saturday and were defeated. Arthur wins the championship cup.

The garden social given by St. Andrew's Y. P. A. on the lawn of Mr. W. R. Kent, Mill street, on Monday evening was a most successful affair. The receipts amounted to about $50.

The electric light went out at about 11 o'clock on Saturday night and the town remained in darkness for about twenty minutes. A bolt broke in the engine and it took that length of time to repair it.

Mr. A. Godfrey and family have the entire sympathy of the people of this place in the sudden death of his daughter in her distant home in Indiana The record of births and deaths tell the sad story of the young mother's demise.—Mt. Forest Representative. The lady referred to in the above was a sister of Mrs. G. A. Campbell of this town.

NOT THE LEADER.—In our last week's issue we stated that Mr. J. H Hulse was the leader of the Orangeville orchestra band, which was organized to fill a few pressing engagements. Mr. Hulse was not the leader, and we gladly publish this in justice to that gentleman.

WHAT THE LONDON HOUSEWIVES DID.—The busy housewife in these days of fruit canning and preserving, hails with joy the removal of the duty on sugar. This is the kind of politics she can understand, and yesterday she did nothing but talk politics to her grocer —Free Press.

OPEN AIR CONCERT.—The Citizens' band gave their first open air concert, since re-organizing, on Broadway Saturday evening. A great many thought the music was a little too high up for a band of that capacity, but they should wait until the institution grows a little older before pronouncing a verdict.

THE WATERWORKS.—Work has been commenced on the ground which will shortly be covered by the new water ... building. The reservoir was ...out Saturday and it was pretty ...l up with mud. Excavations for ... foundation have been about completed and the masons will start laying the stone this week.

GARDEN PARTY.—The ladies of the Methodist church intend holding a garden party at the residence of Mr R. W Ritchie, corner of First street and Third avenue, on Friday evening the 10th. Various amusements will be provided and delicious strawberries and cream will be served during the evening. The Orchestra band will be in attendance.

SHOULD BE PUNISHED.—During the past two or three weeks several pet dogs have been poisoned by some miserable scamp who is too much of the coward to let his name be known. Last week Town Treasurer Irwin's pet was killed out by a dose of strychnine, and a few days previous several other highly ...d canines met death in the same manner. Hundreds of dogs have been ...ly destroyed in Orangeville and the cowardly perpetrator has not ...and out. If he is caught this ... should be severely dealt with.

...PLANKS.—Notwithstanding Orangeville's new departure in having a man-of-works, the sidewalks of ... do not appear to be in a better ... when there was no such official. ...side of Broadway every few steps the pedestrian takes a loose plank will fly up and the same state of affairs exists on other streets. Foreman McBride should attend to this matter right away.

STRUCK BY A DERRICK.—On Monday morning last Mr. Adam Jones, employed in one of the Mono quarries, met with an accident which might have terminated fatally. Mr. Jones is employed in the capacity of blacksmith and on the morning mentioned the man who attends the derrick left his post for a moment and requested Mr. J. to watch it during the former's absence. A huge stone was being lifted off the ground, when something broke and the handle of the machine struck him on the head, cutting it badly in several places. The unfortunate man was conveyed to town and had his injuries attended to. He is coming around all right again.

SPROUL — KENNEDY.—Mr. Thomas Sproul, of Amaranth, was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth J. Kennedy, of this town, on Tuesday evening. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. M. L. Pearson, assisted Rev. D. C. Hossack, took place in the Methodist church, and was witnessed by a large concourse of friends. The bride wore a travelling dress of brown cloth, and was assisted by her sister, Miss Nellie Kennedy, while Mr. Hugh Sproul, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman. By the marriage the Methodist church loses one of its most hearty workers, Miss Kennedy having been for years actively identified with the church and Sabbath school work. The bride was very popular with all and received many handsome presents and the good wishes from her friends for a long life of happiness.

AFTER A COUNCILLOR.—Nominations were held in the skating rink on Saturday by Deputy-returning officer Flesher to fill the East ward's vacant chair at the council board. A similiar event took place at the old stand a couple of weeks ago, but all the nominees resigned and there was nothing to do but reproduce the show. The gentlemen nominated were Messrs J. A. McMaster, George Robinson and S. H. McKitrick Mr. Robinson has resigned in favor of Mr. McMaster, and it looks very much as if the latter and Mr. McKitrick will have to fight for the office. Mr. McKitrick held a seat at the council some years ago, and we doubt very much if he is anyway anxious to return to municipal politics. On the other hand, Mr. McMaster is a young man, well qualified for the position and has a large amount of money invested in the town, and we think the East ward could not do better than send him to the council as their representative.

A DRAW.—The Dufferins played a championship series match with the Lornes at Mt. Forest on Thursday last and did better than they ever did there before. The ball was faced at 1:30 o'clock in order to let the Dufferins home by the evening train. This year's Dufferins are composed of very young players, but they can show the old heads how to play Canada's national game. The Orangeville crowd did not receive very gentlemanly treatment at the hands of the Lornes and their friends, but when they come down here the people of this town will treat them as gentlemen should be treated. Play was pretty evenly divided throughout the match, and when the Mt. Foresters could not score some of them used their sticks on kids with effect. The match resulted our in each side scoring two games when time was called, the Dufferins claimed a game which was not allowed by Mt Forest's umpire. Lacrosse should be played with as little roughness as possible, because this community doesn't want to witness any slaughter house exhibitions.

MASONS AT CHURCH.—Upon the advice of the grand master the Sunday following St John the Baptist's day has been appointed for all Masonic lodges to attend divine service. Last Sabbath being the day chosen Harris lodge No 216, A F & A. M., attended St. Andrew's church, where the pastor, Rev D C Hossack, preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon. The brethren filed out of the lodge room at 2 30 o'clock in the afternoon, headed by the Orchestra band, and about 100 of the brethren were in line. A number from the Grand Valley lodge were present and with the procession were sixteen Royal Arch Masons. After the church service was over the procession wended its way to the Forest Lawn cemetery, where five graves of deceased brethren were decorated. From the Forest Lawn cemetery the procession went to the Town cemetery and decorated four more graves, the service being read by Mr. J C Brown, W.M. The Masons were in charge of District Deputy Grand Master J C Fox and are to be congratulated on the splendid appearance they made.

FAKIRS.—A gang of fakirs and shoddy cloth peddlars came to town on Wednesday night of last week. They were speedily followed by Mr. Spears, an hotelkeeper of Orangeville, and on Thursday the gang were in the clutches of the law. They had bought a mule, harness and some other goods from Spears, for which they gave him a cheque on the Traders' Bank. Spears drove from Rosemont to Alliston to discover that the cheque was no good. In the meantime the fakirs had borrowed another man's harness, umbrellas, etc., and drove to Collingwood. Bailiff Cunnington and Chief Lewis were put on the track of the gang, and some sort of an arrangement was made. To the Enterprise it appears that the gang were guilty of obtaining goods under false pretences, and we do not understant how these crimes are hushed up as they are by money settlement It would have been to the public benefit to send the gang of toughs to gaol, as they left town to prey upon the people of the Manitoulin. Our exchanges on the Island are requested to warn their people.—Collingwood Enterprise.

TROUBLE OVER A TROMBONE.—When the Citizens' band closed up shop a couple of months ago W. H. Hill, an old member of the band, took his horn home with him and clung to it with astonishing tenacity. After the band re-organized several of the old players refused to join the new institution and Bill was among the number. The new band boys wanted the ex player to hand in the trombone, but this he sternly refused to do. The town owns the instruments of the Citizens' band, and Mayor Walsh at once issued a writ of replevin and placed it in Bailiff McQuarrie's hands for execution. The bailiff did not have a good chance to seize the instrument for several weeks until Friday night. Bill is a member of the Orangeville orchestra, which was playing at a concert in the town hall that night, and the eagle-eyed bailiff caught sight of the horn. Immediately after the entertainment the bailiff took up a position near Mr. Hill's residence and when that gentleman came in sight the former took possession of the tooter. The ex-player wanted to borrow the trombone for a couple of days, so he gave a bond and the instrument was loaned to him. And thus the trouble ended.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT.—The concert given in the town hall last Friday evening in aid of the stage improvement fund was very successful, the hall being nearly filled notwithstanding the many counter attractions. The curtain rose shortly after 8, and the chairman, Mayor Walsh, opened the program by a neat speech. He said the people of the town were greatly indebted to Mrs. R. T. Haun for the trouble she went to in getting up entertainments, the proceeds of which go to improve the town hall, the expense of which should properly be borne by the council. The orchestra played a pleasing selection and Mr. H. Huffman followed with a recitation, "Mark Anthony's Farewell to Dead Caesar." Miss Ford's singing "True Till Death" was greatly appreciated, and a request for her re-appearance was handed to the chairman. She was also presented with a bouquet. Miss Ralph, who possesses a sweet voice, received an encore after she sang "Tit for Tat." Miss Pearson sang "Marguerite" in capital style, was loudly encored and received a bouquet. Misses Van Duzer, Turnbull, Messrs. Donner, Irvine and others added greatly to the evening's enjoyment. Mrs Haun's name appeared on the program twice, and in the first part she recited the potion scene from Romeo and Juliet with great effect. The other piece which she was to recite was the murder scene from Macbeth, but the great strain of the previous few days began to tell on her and the talented lady did not feel equal to the occasion, so the chairman asked the audience to excuse her. Mrs. Haun's successful efforts to get the stage in proper shape are to be commended, and THE SUN hopes this is not the last of these pleasant entertainments.

Unbearable Pain.

DEAR SIRS,—I suffered for three days very severely from Summer Complaint, and could get no relief but kept getting worse until the pain was almost unbearable, and I was very weak. After everything else had failed I tried Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry. The first dose gave relief, and it did not fail to cure me.

ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.

An Orangeville Man Held for Smuggling Opium.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Charles Rice, alias Rodgers, a wealthy druggist living in Orangeville, Ont., was arrested here to-day charged with smuggling opium from Canada. The arrest was made as Rice was about to enter Hip Lungk Chinese store. Rice had a package containing 50 half pounds of opium, which he said he obtained at Victoria, B. C. It is thought he is a member of the notorious Gardner Labelle gang of smugglers.

The above despatch appeared in Friday's papers, but no man by that name ever ran a drug store in Orangeville. THE SUN's representative, however, learned that the smuggler mentioned above has a married sister residing in this town.

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH!

How the Day Will be Celebrated in Orangeville.

The Orangemen of this vicinity are making preparations to celebrate the glorious 12th by a grand demonstration in Orangeville on Monday, July 13. All the neighboring lodges have been invited to visit this town on that day and nearly all of them have accepted the invitation. The visiting brethren will be met at the station by the local lodges upon the arrival of the morning trains. A procession will be formed at the station headed by the Citizens band and the visitors will be escorted up to the market square where a gigantic procession will be formed. After marching through the principal streets the procession will disband for dinner. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon addresses will be delivered in the town hall by several leading speakers. Every arrangement is being made to entertain the visitors and Monday will be a big day in town.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Barr, M. P. P. for Dufferin, gave us a call yesterday.

Miss Mackintosh of Guelph is the guest of Orangeville friends.

Mr. John Paisley of Toronto paid Orangeville a visit on Dominion day.

Mr. Thos. Ryan of Toronto, formerly of this town, spent Dominion day here.

Mrs. R. Swinton of Hamilton is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wheelock, Third avenue.

Mr. F. W. Wilson of Mr. W. L. Walsh's law office has returned from a visit to Dunnville and other places.

Messrs. W. H. McBrien and Thomas Kyle of Owen Sound, both old Orangeville boys, spent Dominion day in town.

Mr. R. Young, one of the proprietors of the Commercial hotel, is seriously thinking of taking a trip to the old country next month.

Mr. A. Dafoe, Elora, and Miss B. Nixon, Fergus, both former residents of Orangeville, and the Misses Hughes of Fergus were in town yesterday.

CHARLESTON.

WEDDING.—A very pleasing event occurred near here on Wednesday last, it being the marriage of Mr. Joseph Campbell to Miss Susan Wallace. The ceremony was performed by Rev A. Wilson at the residence of the bride's mother, lot 17, 3rd con., west, Caledon. The happy couple returned to Mr. Campbell's residence in time to milk the cows in the evening. We hope luck will follow them.

ANNUAL GARDEN PARTY.—The congregation of Knox church and the Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society will hold their annual garden party on the beautiful lawn of Mr. Thomas Smith on Monday, July 13th. Brief addresses will be delivered by several well known rev. gentlemen and four of the Misses Vogan will swing the Indian clubs to music. The event of the day is a baseball match between our own Maple Leafs and the Cheltenham club, which will commence at 3 p. m. The musical program has not been neglected, the Orangeville Citizens' band having been engaged for the occasion, and it is expected the Highland pipers will be on the grounds. Refreshments from 5 to 7, a dish of strawberries free. This is the party of the season.

SLESWICK.

Rev. Mr. Morley, of Tullamore, attended the garden party at Mr. Speers last week.

SUCCESSFUL LAWN PARTY.—On Wednesday evening, June 24th, a garden party was given at Mr. Alex Speers' residence, here, under the auspices of St. John's church and Sabbath school. The beautiful grounds were lighted in orthodox style with Chinese lanterns, etc. The Caledon East band was in attendance, and their excellent music greatly enhanced the pleasures of the evening. A splendid supper had been prepared by the ladies. Rev. Mr. Watt, the pastor of St. John's church conducted the sports for the children and did everything possible for the pleasure of those present and is to be congratulated on the success which attended his efforts. The party was largely attended, Orangeville being well represented.

NORMAN, Ont., January 15, 1891.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—Your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" are the best regulator for the system that humanity can use. Life is as the time-piece; frail and delicate are many of its works. A tiny particle of foreign substance adheres to the smallest wheel in the works, and what is the result?—at first, only a slight difference is perceptible in its time-keeping, but wait you; as the obstruction grows, the irregularity becomes greater, until at last, what could have been rectified with little trouble, in the beginning, will now require much care in thoroughly cleansing the entire works. So it is in human life—a slight derangement is neglected, it grows and increases, imperceptibly at first, then rapidly, until what could, in the beginning, have been cured with little trouble, becomes almost fatal. To prevent this, I advise all to purify the system frequently, by the use of Morse's Pills, and so preserve vigor and vitality.

Yours faithfully,
H. F. ATWELL.

at the high school entrance examination here this week.

Chief Shields should make an example of certain individuals who mistake Broadway for a racecourse.

A garden party will be held at the residence of Mr. R. Jackson, Cardwell, on Tuesday next. Quite a number from town will be there.

Local Orangemen will attend the Methodist church on Sunday morning. Rev. M. L. Pearson, the pastor, will preach a special sermon.

The H. S. football club played two games with the Beavers at Arthur on Saturday and were defeated. Arthur wins the championship cup.

The garden social given by St. Andrew's Y. P. A. on the lawn of Mr. W. R. Kent, Mill street, on Monday evening was a most successful affair. The receipts amounted to about $50.

The electric light went out at about 11 o'clock on Saturday night and the town remained in darkness for about twenty minutes. A bolt broke in the engine and it took that length of time to repair it.

Mr. A. Godfrey and family have the entire sympathy of the people of this place in the sudden death of his daughter in her distant home in Indiana. The record of births and deaths tell the sad story of the young mother's demise.—Mt. Forest Representative. The lady referred to in the above was a sister of Mrs. G. A. Campbell of this town.

NOT THE LEADER.—In our last week's issue we stated that Mr. J. H Hulse was the leader of the Orangeville orchestra band, which was organized to fill a few pressing engagements. Mr. Hulse was not the leader, and we gladly publish this in justice to that gentleman.

WHAT THE LONDON HOUSEWIVES DID.—The busy housewife in these days of fruit canning and preserving, hails with joy the removal of the duty on sugar. This is the kind of politics she can understand, and yesterday she did nothing but talk politics to her grocer.—Free Press.

OPEN AIR CONCERT.—The Citizens' band gave their first open air concert, since re-organizing, on Broadway Saturday evening. A great many thought the music was a little too high up for a band of that capacity, but they should wait until the institution grows a little older before pronouncing a verdict.

THE WATERWORKS.—Work has been commenced on the ground which will shortly be covered by the new water building. The reservoir was [illegible] out Saturday and it was pretty we[illegible] up with mud. Excavations for the foundation have been about completed and the masons will start laying the stone this week.

GARDEN PARTY.—The ladies of the Methodist church intend holding a garden party at the residence of Mr R. W. Ritchie, corner of First street and Third avenue, on Friday evening the 10th. Various amusements will be provided and delicious strawberries and cream will be served during the evening. The Orchestra band will be in attendance.

SHOULD BE PUNISHED.—During the past two or three weeks several pet dogs have been poisoned by some miserable scamp who is too much of the coward to let his name be known. Last week Town Treasurer Irwin's pet was laid out by a dose of strychnine, and a few days previous several other highly [illegible] canines met death in the same manner. Hundreds of dogs have been [illegible]ly destroyed in Orangeville and the cowardly perpetrator has not [illegible]ound out. If he is caught this [illegible] be severely dealt with.

NEW PLANKS.—Notwithstanding Orangeville's new departure in having [illegible]-of-works, the sidewalks of [illegible] do not appear to be in a better [illegible] when there was no such official. [illegible] side of Broadway every few steps the pedestrian takes a loose plank will fly up and the same state of affairs exists on other streets. Foreman McBride should attend to this matter right away.

A TASTY JOB.—Everybody is admiring the handsome whole sheet posters out for the 12th of July celebration. The bills were printed at [illegible]'s Job Rooms and the work is unequalled by any other office in the city. THE SUN has better facilities for turning out first class work than any other office between Toronto and Owen Sound. If you want a tasty job give THE SUN a call.

STRUCK BY A DERRICK.—On Monday morning last Mr. Adam Jones, Homack, took place in the Methodist church, and was witnessed by a large concourse of friends. The bride wore a travelling dress of brown cloth, and was assisted by her sister, Miss Nellie Kennedy, while Mr. Hugh Sproul, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman. By the marriage the Methodist church loses one of its most hearty workers, Miss Kennedy having been for years actively identified with the church and Sabbath school work. The bride was very popular with all and received many handsome presents and the good wishes from her friends for a long life of happiness.

AFTER A COUNCILLOR.—Nominations were held in the skating rink on Saturday by Deputy-returning officer Flesher to fill the East ward's vacant chair at the council board. A similiar event took place at the old stand a couple of weeks ago, but all the nominees resigned and there was nothing to do but reproduce the show. The gentlemen nominated were Messrs J. A. McMaster, George Robinson and S. H. McKitrick. Mr. Robinson has resigned in favor of Mr. McMaster, and it looks very much as if the latter and Mr. McKitrick will have to fight for the office. Mr. McKitrick held a seat at the council some years ago, and we doubt very much if he is anyway anxious to return to municipal politics. On the other hand, Mr. McMaster is a young man, well qualified for the position and has a large amount of money invested in the town, and we think the East ward could not do better than send him to the council as their representative.

A DRAW.—The Dufferins played a championship series match with the Lornes at Mt. Forest on Thursday last and did better than they ever did there before. The ball was faced at 1:30 o'clock in order to let the Dufferins home by the evening train. This year's Dufferins are composed of very young players, but they can show the old heads how to play Canada's national game. The Orangeville crowd did not receive very gentlemanly treatment at the hands of the Lornes and their friends, but when they come down here the people of this town will treat them as gentlemen should be treated. Play was pretty evenly divided throughout the match, and when the Mt. Foresters could not score some of them used their sticks on kids with effect. The match resulted our in each side scoring two games when time was called, the Dufferins claimed a game which was not allowed by Mt Forest's umpire. Lacrosse should be played with as little roughness as possible, because this community doesn't want to witness any slaughter house exhibitions.

MASONS AT CHURCH.—Upon the advice of the grand master the Sunday following St John the Baptist's day has been appointed for all Masonic lodges to attend divine service. Last Sabbath being the day chosen Harris lodge No 216, A. F. & A. M., attended St. Andrew's church, where the pastor, Rev D C Hossack, preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon. The brethren filed out of the lodge room at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, headed by the Orchestra band, and about 100 of the brethren were in line. A number from the Grand Valley lodge were present and with the procession were sixteen Royal Arch Masons. After the church service was over the procession wended its way to the Forest Lawn cemetery, where five graves of deceased brethren were decorated. From the Forest Lawn cemetery the procession went to the Town cemetery and decorated four more graves, the service being read by Mr. J C Brown, W.M. The Masons were in charge of District Deputy Grand Master J C Fox and are to be congratulated on the splendid appearance they made.

FAKIRS.—A gang of fakirs and shoddy cloth peddlars came to town on Wednesday night of last week. They were speedily followed by Mr Spears, an hotelkeeper of Orangeville, and on Thursday the gang were in the clutches of the law. They had bought a mule, harness and some other goods from Spears, for which they gave him a cheque on the Traders' Bank. Spears drove from Rosemont to Alliston to discover that the cheque was no good. In the meantime the fakirs had borrowed another man's harness, umbrellas, etc., and drove to Collingwood. Bailiff Cunnington and Chief Lewis were put on the track of the gang, and some sort of an arrangement was made. To the Enterprise it appears that the gang were guilty of obtaining goods under false pretences, and we do not understant how these crimes are hushed up as they are by money settlement. It would have been to the public benefit to send the gang of toughs to gaol, as they left town to prey upon the people of the Manitoulin. Our exchange on the Island are requested to warn their people.—Collingwood Enterprise.

TROUBLE OVER A TROMBONE.—When the Citizens' band closed up shop a couple of months ago W. H. Hill, an old member of the band, took his horn home with him and clung to it with astonishing tenacity. After the band re organized several of the old players refused to join the new institution and Bill was among the number. The new band boys wanted the ex player to hand in the trombone, but this he sternly refused to do. The town owns the instruments of the Citizens' band, and Mayor Walsh at once issued a writ of replevin and placed it in Bailiff McQuarrie's hands for execution. The bailiff did not have a good chance to seize the instrument for several weeks until Friday night. Bill is a member of the Orangeville orchestra, which was playing at a concert in the town hall that night, and the eagle-eyed bailiff caught sight of the horn. Immediately after the entertainment the bailiff took up a position near Mr. Hill's residence and when that gentleman came in sight the former took possession of the tooter. The ex-player wanted to borrow the trombone for a couple of days, so he gave a bond and the instrument was loaned to him. And thus the trouble ended.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT.—The concert given in the town hall last Friday evening in aid of the stage improvement fund was very successful, the hall being nearly filled notwithstanding the many counter attractions. The curtain rose shortly after 8, and the chairman, Mayor Walsh, opened the program by a neat speech. He said the people of the town were greatly indebted to Mrs. R. T. Haun for the trouble she went to in getting up entertainments, the proceeds of which go to improve the town hall, the expense of which should properly be borne by the council. The orchestra played a pleasing selection and Mr. H. Hoffman followed with a recitation, "Mark Anthony's Farewell to Dead Caesar." Miss Ford's singing "True Till Death" was greatly appreciated, and a request for her re-appearance was handed to the chairman. She was also presented with a bouquet. Miss Ralph, who possesses a sweet voice, received an encore after she sang "Tit for Tat." Miss Pearson sang "Marguerite" in capital style, was loudly encored and received a bouquet. Misses Van Dusen, Turnbull, Messrs. Donnor, Irvine and others added greatly to the evening's enjoyment. Mrs. Haun's name appeared on the program twice, and in the first part she recited the potion scene from Romeo and Juliet with great effect. The other piece which she was to recite was the murder scene from Macbeth, but the great strain of the previous few days began to tell on her and the talented lady did not feel equal to the occasion, so the chairman asked the audience to excuse her. Mrs. Haun's successful efforts to get the stage in proper shape are to be commended, and THE SUN hopes this is not the last of these pleasant entertainments.

Unbearable Pain.

DEAR SIRS,—I suffered for three days very severely from Summer Complaint, and could get no relief, but kept getting worse until the pain was almost unbearable, and I was very weak. After everything else had failed I tried Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry. The first dose gave relief, and it did not fail to cure me.

Keep the Works in good order.

NEWMAN, Ont., January 13, 1890.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—Your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" are the best regulator for the system that humanity can use. Life is as the time-piece: frail and delicate are many of its works. A tiny particle of foreign substance adheres to the smallest wheel in the works, and what is the result?—at first, only a slight difference is perceptible in its time-keeping, but wait you; as the obstruction grows, the irregularity becomes greater, until at last, what could have been rectified with little trouble, in the beginning, will now require much care in thoroughly cleansing the entire works. So it is in human life—a slight derangement is neglected, it grows and becomes, imperceptibly at first, then rapidly, until what could, in the beginning, have been cured with little trouble, becomes almost fatal. To prevent this, I advise all to purify the system frequently, by the use of Morse's Pills, and so preserve vigor and vitality.

Yours faithfully,
H. F. ATWELL.

DEAR SIR,—For many years, I have been a firm believer in your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills." Not with a blind faith, but a confidence wrought by an actual personal experience of their value and merit. My business is such that I spend much of my time away from home, and I would not consider my travelling outfit complete without a box of Morse's Pills. Yours, &c.,

WEDDING.—A very pleasing event occurred near here on Wednesday last, it being the marriage of Mr. Joseph Campbell to Miss Susan Wallace. The ceremony was performed by Rev A. Wilson at the residence of the bride's mother, lot 17, 3rd con., west, Caledon. The happy couple returned to Mr. Campbell's residence in time to milk the cows in the evening. We hope luck will follow them.

ANNUAL GARDEN PARTY.—The congregation of Knox church and the Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society will hold their annual garden party on the beautiful lawn of Mr. Thomas Smith on Monday, July 13th. Brief addresses will be delivered by several well known rev. gentlemen and four of the Misses Vogan will swing the Indian clubs to music. The event of the day is a base-ball match between our own Maple Leafs and the Cheltenham club, which will commence at 3 p. m. The musical program has not been neglected, the Orangeville Citizens' band having been engaged for the occasion, and it is expected the Highland pipers will be on the grounds. Refreshments from 5 to 7, a dish of strawberries free. This is the party of the season.

SLESWICK.

Rev. Mr. Morley, of Tullamore, attended the garden party at Mr. Speers last week.

SUCCESSFUL LAWN PARTY.—On Wednesday evening, June 24th, a garden party was given at Mr. Alex Speers' residence, here, under the auspices of St. John's church and Sabbath school. The beautiful grounds were lighted in orthodox style with Chinese lanterns, etc. The Caledon East band was in attendance, and their excellent music greatly enhanced the pleasures of the evening. A splendid supper had been prepared by the ladies. Rev. Mr. Watt, the pastor of St. John's church conducted the sports for the children and did everything possible for the pleasure of those present and is to be congratulated on the success which attended his efforts. The party was largely attended, Orangeville being well represented.

BOYS MAKE MEN.

When you see a ragged urchin
Standing wistful in the street
With torn hat and kaseian trowsers,
Dirty face and bare red feet,
Pass not by that child unheeding—
Smile upon him, much as, when
He's grown old he'll not forget it,
For remember—boys make men.

Have you ever seen a grandsire,
With his eyes aglow with joy,
Call to mind some act of kindness
Done for him when but a boy?
Or relate some slight or coldness
With a brow all clouded, when
He recalled some too thoughtless
To remember—boys make men.

Let us try to add some pleasure
To the life of every boy,
For each child needs tender interest
In its sorrow and its joy.
Let home charm your boys by brightness.
They avoid the household when
It is cheerless. Make them happy,
For remember—boys make men.

SUNBEAMS.

The bow-legged man has the budge on the bicycle.

Venison is sometimes deer at any price, but oftener it isn't.

Speaking about ornithology, did you know that larks are bred from swallows?

The whole trouble with some men who get ahead fast is that it is the big head that they get.

No one feels poorer than the rich man whose income has just been reduced by 5 per cent.

The worst thing about life is that there are so many who are too old to start over again.

Fellows—"Misfortunes never come alone." Bellows—"You mean a loan never comes during misfortune."

Ten thousand dollars is altogether too much to pay for a wife who can be bought for that.

De Beere—"Your painting has one quality at least, that of innocence." De Smeere—"Innocence." De Beere—"Yes. It is so artless."

Mrs. Hicks—"What an idea to name the baby Macbeth; what does it signify?" Hicks—"It signifies something that murders sleep.

She—Would you believe that vicious little Mrs. Weston has taught her baby to call its father "grandpa." He—What did she do that for? She—So that Weston shan't forget that he is old enough to be her father.

"Well, was it yes or no with her?" "It was both." "Both! How's that?" "Well, I asked her if she was going to give me my answer, and she said yes then I asked her what was the answer, and she said no."

A lady wrote to an editor for a receipt for pies and the editor replied that he would send the receipt as soon as he received the pies. That's a new way to make pies but it's a winner if it goes.

Theater manager—In my new play I'm going to have a tank of real water, a real engine, and a real patrol wagon. Can you suggest anything else? Tomnik—Yes; you might try a real actor or two.

"And she married that man to reform him?" "Yes." "And how does she get along?" "Splendidly. You'll see her in a moment. She is dressing herself to go down to get him out of jail."

"Ah, my friend, creeds are nothing. The actions are everything. We judge a man by what we see him do." "Not always. There's the lazy man, for instance. We judge him by what we don't see him do."

Husband—"What was that you were playing, my dear?" Wife—"Did you like it?" "It was exquisite!" "It is the very thing I played last evening and you said it was horrid." "Well, the steak was burned last evening."

The Usual Way.

THE usual way is to neglect bad blood until boils, blotches and sores make its presence forcibly known. Every wise person ought to be careful to purify the blood by using the best blood purifier and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. Its purifying power is unrivalled.

BOYS ON THE FARM.

Boys, stick to the farm. A great many of you think that the large towns and cities afford better advantages educationally, socially and financially than the farm. As a rule it is not so. Educationally, the city may have some advantages, but any energetic country boy can get an education. To get a common school education he has a much better chance than the city boy; while socially and financially the chances are certainly in favor of the farm. In the city you may get what sounds like big wages, but after you have paid your board and other expenses you have but little if any more than you could have made on the farm. Then, too, the company which a new boy in the city gets into is generally not of the best and if he is entertained he must expect to pay for it. You cannot leave your work at any time, then, to go to a picnic or an excursion, or hitch upon the evening to go pleasure riding, as you do on the farm. Although farming is called hard work the average farmer can take life about the easiest and pleasantest of the hard working class.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Soldiers and sailors.—These well-known and easily used remedies are especially serviceable and convenient for those who, like soldiers and sailors, are exposed to great changes of climate, and the hardships inseparable from their calling. Many of the diseases engendered in the system from these and other outward causes can be checked and controlled by attention at their outset, and in Holloway's remedies will be found a ready means of relief, without hindrance from duty. Many a man is invalided and rendered more or less a burden to himself and friends from neglect of the early symptoms of his complaint, which calamity might be averted by timely resort to the use of Holloway's Pills and Ointment.

Superphosphates. Land Fertilizer, highly recommended, and in connection with same a prize of $75.00 will be given for best acre of potatoes. Only a few sacks received.

ENDACOTT BROS.

"Excuse me, George, but when I saw you a year ago your face was covered with pimples; it seems to be all right now." "Yes, sir; that's because I stuck to Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the greatest blood medicine in the world. I was never so well in my life as I am now."

WRITING FAMOUS POEMS.

Gray's immortal "Elegy" occupied him seven years.

Bryant wrote "Thanatopsis" in the shade of a grand old forest—a fitting place for such a theme.

Cowper wrote one of the drollest and quaintest English ballads, "John Gilpin's Ride," when he was under one of those terrible fits of depression so common to him.

Geo. Lyle wrote his beautiful composition, "Antony and Cleopatra," which begins, "I am dying, Egypt, dying," on the night before his death. He had premonition that he was going to die the next day.

The noted poem "The Falls of Niagara" was written in fifteen minutes by J. G. C. Brainard, the editor of a small paper in Connecticut. He wrote it under pressure, in a response to a call, "more copy."

"After the Ball," the little poem which has made the name of Nora Perry known in the world of letters, was jotted down on the back of an old letter, with no idea of the popularity it was to achieve on the page of a noted magazine.

Thomas Moore, while writing "Lalla Rookh," spent so many months in reading up Greek and Persian works that he became an accomplished oriental scholar, and people find it difficult to believe that its scenes were not penned on the spot, instead of in a retired dwelling in Derbyshire.

Poe first thought of "The Bells" when walking the streets of Baltimore on a winter's night. He rang the bell of a lawyer's house (a stranger to him) walked into the gentleman's library, shut himself in, and the next day presented the lawyer with the copy of his celebrated poem.

The "Old Oaken Bucket" was first suggested to the author, Samuel Woodworth, in a bar-room. A friend with whom he was drinking, said that when boys the old oaken bucket that hung in his father's well was good enough for them to drink from. Woodworth immediately went home and wrote the famous poem.

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. R. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Frisia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Giles Hasel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Well, was it yes or no with her?" "It was both." "Both! How's that?" "Well, I asked her if she was going to give me my answer, and she said yes then I asked her what was the answer, and she said no."

A lady wrote to an editor for a receipt for pies and the editor replied that he would send the receipt as soon as he received the pies. That's a new way to make pies but it's a winner if it goes.

Theater manager—In my new play I'm going to have a tank of real water, a real engine, and a real patrol wagon. Can you suggest anything else? Tomcink—Yes; you might try a real actor or two.

"And she married that man to reform him?" "Yes." "And how does she get along?" "Splendidly. You'll see her in a moment. She is dressing herself to go down to get him out of jail."

"Ah, my friend, creeds are nothing. The actions are everything. We judge a man by what we see him do." "Not always. There's the lazy man, for instance. We judge him by what we don't see him do."

Husband—"What was that you were playing, my dear?" Wife—"Did you like it?" "It was exquisite!" "It is the very thing I played last evening and you said it was horrid." "Well, the steak was burned last evening."

The Usual Way.

THE usual way is to neglect bad blood until boils, blotches and sores make its presence forcibly known. Every wise person ought to be careful to purify the blood by using the best blood purifier and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. Its purifying power is unrivalled.

BOYS ON THE FARM.

Boys, stick to the farm. A great many of you think that the large towns and cities afford better advantages educationally, socially and financially than the farm. As a rule it is not so. Educationally, the city may have some advantages, but any energetic country boy can get an education. To get a common school education he has a much better chance than the city boy; while socially and financially the chances are certainly in favor of the farm. In the city you may get what sounds like big wages, but after you have paid your board and other expenses you have but little if any more than you could have made on the farm. Then, too, the company which a new boy in the city gets into is generally not of the best and if he is entertained he must expect to pay for it. You cannot leave your work at any time, then, to go to a picnic or an excursion, or latch upon the evening to go pleasure riding, as you do on the farm. Although farming is called hard work the average farmer can take life about the easiest and pleasantest of the hard working class.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Soldiers and sailors.—These well-known and easily used remedies are especially serviceable and convenient for those who, like soldiers and sailors, are exposed to great changes of climate, and the hardships inseparable from their calling. Many of the diseases engendered in the system from these and other untoward causes can be checked and controlled by attention at their outset, and in Holloway's remedies will be found a ready means of relief, without hindrance from duty. Many a man is invalided and rendered more or less a burden to himself and friends from neglect of the early symptoms of his complaint, which calamity might be averted by timely resort to the use of Holloway's Pills and Ointment.

Superphosphates. Land Fertilizer, highly recommended, and in connection with same a prize of $75 00 will be given for best acre of potatoes. Only a few sacks received.

ENDACOTT BROS.

"Excuse me, George, but when I saw you a year ago your face was covered with pimples. It seems to be all right now." "Yes, sir; that's because I stuck to Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the greatest blood medicine in the world. I was never so well in my life as I am now."

[illegible] editor of a small paper in Connecticut. He wrote it under pressure, in a response to a call, "more copy."

"After the Ball," the little poem which has made the name of Nora Perry known in the world of letters, was jotted down on the back of an old letter, with no idea of the popularity it was to achieve on the page of a noted magazine.

Thomas Moore, while writing "Lalla Rookh," spent so many months in reading up Greek and Persian works that he became an accomplished oriental scholar, and people find it difficult to believe that its scenes were not penned on the spot, instead of in a retired dwelling in Derbyshire.

Poe first thought of "The Bells" when walking the streets of Baltimore on a winter's night. He rang the bell of a lawyer's house (a stranger to him) walked into the gentleman's library, shut himself in, and the next day presented the lawyer with the copy of his celebrated poem.

The "Old Oaken Bucket" was first suggested to the author, Samuel Woodworth, in a bar-room. A friend with whom he was drinking, said that when boys the old oaken bucket that hung in his father's well was good enough for them to drink from. Woodworth immediately went home and wrote the famous poem.

Cotton Root Compound.

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. R. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Poloma, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hauel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

WHEN they find how rapidly health is restored by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The reason is that this preparation contains only the purest and most powerful alteratives and tonics. To thousands yearly it proves a veritable elixir of life.
Mrs. Jos. Lake, Brockway Centre, Mich., writes: "Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an

AS ALL THE VILLAGE GOSSIPS SAY.

It happened on a summer day,
About a mile from town,
While not gay eyes were looking up
And brown eyes looking down,
That Summer day, that golden day,
As all the village gossips say.

The path was but a narrow one,
O'erhead the branches met;
On either side sprang daisies pied,
Wild rose and violet,
And so they lingered on the way,
As all the village gossips say.

A kiss is such a little thing
When no one's by to see,
Except, perhaps, a wayside rose,
Or pink anemone.
It answered for this small delay,
As all the village gossips say.

But sweeter far another kiss
Within the kirk of town,
When wedded eyes look gladly up
As wedded eyes look down,
And blessings on their bridal day
As all the village gossips say.

OLIVE VARCOE
—OR— TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER VIII. (Continued.)

If Vivian Damerel felt inclined for a moment to answer hotly, the sight of the bearers standing silently on the lawn, checked him.

"The men are here, Sir Hilton," he said, softly. "Let us go with them."

The affianced husband of Eleanor Maristowe looked out from the window upon the dreadful group, and shuddered from head to foot. Perhaps at that moment he remembered he had been but a cold lover to the murdered girl; he remembered he had wooed her more for his own sake than for hers; he had wooed her to save himself from a more loving and less prudent marriage. And she lay dead now, of one day of heat and dust such as this has the victim of this mistake—this sin—the victim of his worldliness, and of Olive's jealousy.

The sight of grief is so softening to the human heart, that anger fades away before it; hence Vivian Damerel's anger melted, and his distrust vanished, as he witnessed the anguish that neither manliness nor pride could control. It was but yesterday, when he would have pointed out Sir Hilton Trewavas as of all men the most happy, and the most favored of fortune. Now all was changed, and the cup given to him to drink was bitter indeed. A most foul, a most treacherous murder had been committed on a young, defenceless girl, who was not only his guest, but his affianced bride. And circumstances of his own making had surely led to this dire event. Nor was this all; the murderer was one of his own household, his own blood—a lady, young, beautiful as her victim, and one whom, in his youthful folly, he had loved or feigned to love. And now honor, the rites of hospitality, the respect due to his betrothed's family, and to the murdered victim herself, demanded that he should not shield this unhappy, maddened girl beneath his roof, or connive at her escape, but yield her up to the hands of justice. No matter that perchance his was the fault, because in his pride of rank, his pride of worldly position, his pride of power, he had played with a human heart as with a toy. No, it mattered not for this. Still it was his task to give up the criminal to the blind vengeance of the law, and to tear out his deepest secret for the rabble to read and rend. And when this girl, whom he had maddened by his love and his indifference, should kneel down lonely in prison to pray or to despair, how would he feel? Great Heaven, how could he bear the sight and live?

Somewhat in this way ran Vivian Damerel's thoughts as he followed Sir Hilton's steps silently through the shrubbery; and Sir Hilton's own thoughts went much in the same current, except that they had a bitterness of remorse and anguish too deep for words to express. Vainly he might tell himself that hundreds of men and women had done idly what he had done, and no tragedy, no deed of blood had followed. No, his conscience answered; not visibly, perchance, had crimes come, but surely sorrow has been heaped upon sorrow through the sins of heartless vanity; and love won and flung away comes back to the human soul in countless shapes of vengeance. Not always certainly with the dagger and the bowl, and the red hands of murder, but such things are. And at times, when they ooze upwards through the smiling surface of life, and appear in our daily journals, they startle for a moment the idle and the careless into a passing thought of fear. For one brief instant a light flashes through the soul, showing that human passions are earnest and true; was one for good or evil; and that man, or that woman, who dares for pleasure, or for vanity, to crush a heart, and fling it away bruised and bleeding, sows seeds in it of sorrow and of sin, of which fleshly eye may not see the root, but which the spirit of the sufferer feels, as he curses in bitterness the hand that planted them. Long after these had faded, and remorse, and ruin destroyed, and the made of life ran down to join that great desert of weary and misery, where so many victims lie slain or perishing.

"Good Heavens!" said Sir Hilton Trewavas to his heart, "what have I done? If Olive had been one of the girls of the world, if she had crushed all feeling from her heart and had married for wealth and had gone through life a hypocrite and a liar, I should have fattered myself I had not sinned. Or if, discontented and soured, with all the springs of her life turned to bitterness, she had lived and died useless, I should still have walked on, unscathed in conscience. But she was not a woman to do either of these, or to pine away and die with gentle, half-uttered reproaches on her tongue. No; she is a creature of fierce blood. I have been blind. I should have seen and known that I was playing with fire, and it would scorch me. Heaven keep me my senses! My brain gives way! How shall I save her?"

"Hilton," said John's quiet voice as he separated himself from the group of men. "I have been thinking I had better not go with you to the wood. The police, who have been searching on the beach, are come up, having heard the news; and the inspector he tells me is bound to leave a couple of men in the house for the present."

"So they suspect one of my household!" exclaimed Sir Hilton.

"It seems so," replied John; "and since the ladies have no protector——"

"You are right," interrupted Sir Hilton. "You are always thoughtful and kind, John. Heaven bless you, old fellow!"

Hearing a conference between the brothers, Mr. Darmurel, moved by the instincts of a gentleman, retired a pace or two, and Sir Hilton, bending forward as he grasped John's hand, found a moment to whisper, hurriedly: "Save Olive! Take a boat! The steamer a Falmouth, for Lisbon, leaves at nine."

With a swift, dark flush upon his face of horror, pain, and astonishment, John started back, and gazed at his brother.

"Olive," he murmured, "Olive, is it possible you think that she—my brother—my dear brother, do not be led away by appearances. My life on it, Olive is innocent."

John spoke vehemently, and, catching a single word of the sentence—Olive's name—Mr. Darmerel's momentary pity fled.

"It is a hard thing to utter," he said, in a low voice, to the inspector; "but I think it my duty to say that you ought to keep a strict watch, and not allow any one to leave Trewavas."

"I have given orders to that effect, sir, already," was the reply.

All this took but a few moments to utter, and then the party moved forward rapidly towards the wood. As they disappeared within the line of trees, Sir Hilton turned, and waved his hand impatiently to his brother, for John was standing with his head bent and his hands clasped, like a man stunned, bewildered, and powerless.

CHAPTER IX.

On every side a wall—a wall of dislike, suspicion, distrust; and Olive, beating her hands against it in vain, ceased at last her efforts, and sat down in silent despair. The horrible secret that her heart held was killing her; yet she would not tell it. Bewildered in every other thought, numbed in every other faculty, in this alone she was clear and firm. She would die rather than confess the truth. Shut up her soul for ever, the secret of this crime might kill her, but it should not make her a babbling coward. She had yearned for revenge—revenge for what she had once fancied and called life long injuries; and now vengeance was in her hands, and she found the cup bitter as poison and gall.

What shadows now seemed the little slights she had suffered, the small spite of servants, and the sneers of a mean world! Was it worth while for these to draw down upon their heads death and disgrace, and all the unutterable anguish of the murderer's doom? No, a thousand time no. Better brave, better bear all things, than bring the shame of a public death upon them. How should she escape? What should she do?

The unhappy girl looked around upon the walls of her room, as upon a prison, and flinging herself upon the floor, she lay there silent and helpless. She had no tears, no sobs, for here was a grief that reached down to the soul's utmost depths, long passing that surface sorrow which finds an interpreter in groans and sorrow.

As she lay thus, a slight sound at the door aroused her. She started up in terror, and passed her hand hurriedly over her face, as though by the gesture she sought to wipe away the dire shadow there, the dreadful look of haggard woe and pain that sat upon it.

"Come in," she said, in a clear voice.

She unbolted the door noiselessly as she spoke, but there was no response, and the lock was not turned; then she opened it, and looked out into the corridor. There was no one there, and not a shadow or a footstep near; yet again the slight sound smote her ear, and closing and bolting that door softly, she ran to the other—the one opening on the upper stairs—and stood there listening. There was a shrinking terror in her eyes, a nervous clasping of her hands together, that told her fear; but this time she did not speak. Doubtless she herself expected to be question ed; she looked for some human voice, some accent she dreaded to hear, but a dog's whine answered the low tap of her fingers on the panel, and in surprise she opened the door to Bolster. He came bounding in, and laid at her feet a red cord, drenched with water, and soiled with weeds and slime.

Olive gazed at the cord with distended eyes, and face from which every vestige of color departed; then, falling on her knees, she placed her arms round Bolster's neck, and leaning her head there, she wept.

Perhaps these tears saved her life, for when she arose again, the unnatural tension of her features was gone, and the ghastly look they had worn was changed to one more healthful, speaking more of life and hope. Patting the dog on the head, and whispering, "Silence!" she made him be still, while she crept softly down the turret stairs. Over head she heard John in his painting-room, and this accounted for the door at the foot being partly open, but there was no other sound, no other creature near. Had any one seen Bolster? Oh that he could speak, and tell her!

Then a joyful thought struck her. Of course no man had seen him, for then he would have stopped the dog, and taken the cord away. No, he had not been seen. He had come through the deepest recesses of the wood, and entered the house by this secluded window, near which it was rare indeed for any foot to stray.

Olive clasped her hands in thankfulness, and a smile of joy broke over her face. Then she called in a whisper, "Bolster, Bolster!" The dog heard her and came panting down the turret stairs, bounding on her to lick her face and hands. She knelt down, and clasped his neck again.

"Bolster! good Bolster!" said she, "go back to your master, and say I thank him. Say he has saved my life, and made me his forever."

Tears streamed down Olive's face now, and the dog looked at her with wistful eyes.

"Go!" she whispered; and Bolster obeyed her. She watched him bound through the library window, and disappear among the thick shrubs; then she crept softly to her room again.

On the floor lay the red cord. Olive regarded it with a look of horror. Twice she laid her hand over it, and twice she scattered it away, shrinking from the hideous contact. Then nerving herself, she gathered it up at last and gazed upon it with perplexed uncertain eye. In a moment she went to the chimney, and opening the little door or valve which closed the stove, she thrust the rope as high up as she could place it. This position did not seem safe, but it was as safe as any she could think of now.

Scarcely had she done this, and washed her slightly soiled fingers, ere a man's hand tapped on the outer door—the door on the spiral stairs. She seemed to know instinctively it was John, for she uttered his name in a low voice, and in a moment he stood before her. He was very pale. He had been weeping bitterly.

"Olive," said he, "Hilton has begged me—"

"Hilton! what of Hilton?" she cried with her old fierceness. "I want to hear nothing of Hilton."

John stood before her meekly, not lifting his eyes.

"I do not wonder at that," he said. "Olive, I am not come to insult you yet perhaps you will think I am if I tell you what Hilton says."

"What are a few insults more or less to me?" said Olive. "Who is there in this house that has not insulted the poor relation?—the wretched girl dependent for her bread on the Trewavas bounty?"

"Not me, Olive," replied John, in the same sad voice; "nor Hilton either, I hope."

"Hilton has insulted me most of all," she said. "His kindness was an insult. His love—for he did make love to me—a keener insult still; for he showed me it was an idleness—scarce worth an explanation to a poor girl like me—a pastime flung away when he sought a wife."

"Don't, don't speak of her!" shrieked John. "Be ungrateful if you will to all who have cared for you; but let the dead rest."

Olive looked on his white woe worn face, and was softened.

"Heaven help you!" she said. "You loved her, John."

The workings of John's face were terrible; he sunk down in a chair, and gave himself up to the grief that convulsed his frame. Olive did not aid him, or go near him with a kindly word or a friendly touch; she simply waited silently till he had calmed himself; then she said, "Try to tell me what Hilton says. I will listen."

"He did not say it, but he thinks it," said John. "Mind, Olive, it is not I who so mistake you."

John looked in Olive's face imploringly, then dropped his eyes.

"He thinks you guilty of this murder," he said.

There was a moment's silence, and the beating of Olive's heart could be heard.

"And how did you answer him?" she asked.

"Oh Olive, I told him not to be deceived by appearances. I said I would stake my life on your innocence."

Olive gazed into John's face a moment, then she covered her eyes with her hand, and shuddered visibly. It was strange that she did not assert her innocence, or utter one word exculpatory of herself.

"Here is money," said John, "all gold—notes might be dangerous—and I have a boat under the rocks by the Lovers' Seat. There is time to get you on board the steamer——"

"What do you mean?" asked Olive, rising, and shrinking away from him.

"I am only obeying Hilton," he replied. "Don't think that I counsel you to go, Olive. "Hist! is any one listening? Hilton said, "Save her—take her by sea! Now will you go—will you escape, Olive?"

"No!" exclaimed the girl, in a resolute voice. "Tell Hilton I would not let him save me. I will stay here and bear the worst."

"You are right, Olive," said John, in his saddest voice. "Let the guilty flee. Let the miserable secret villain who has done this deed, give up his neck to the hangman, or lie down in some ditch to die, as he doubles and turns to escape justice. But, Olive, why should you suffer? Will you let me save you?"

Olive hesitated, then she raised her eyes and looked him steadily in the face.

"No," she said, "you shall not save me, John. The whole world should not bribe me to take safety from your hands. Go in peace I will save myself."

John turned away, groping for the door like a blind man. He had not given her his hand, he had not spoken to her with any of his old affection and kindness, and yet Olive called him back.

"John," said she, "promise that you will do nothing rash in the hope of screening me. Leave me to defend myself. Circumstances may be strong against me, but not strong enough to hurt a hair of my head. Go, do not be afraid for me."

"Are you cunning and secret enough Olive?" asked the young man, turning on her his mild, wistful eyes.

Something in this question tried her sorely.

"How dare you ask me?" she said. "Go. I want to be alone."

But still he lingered. "You will tell Hilton," said he, "that I asked you to escape?"

"I will tell him that I utterly scorn and reject any offer of his to aid me," replied Olive. "I will bear this alone, as I have borne all else. No, not all. You helped me, John, to bear my rejection, my love, my jealousy; but you cannot help me in this. Would to heaven I had given you better counsel, and not have added fuel to your misery—I who knew you!"

Her whole aspect changed as she spoke, and she burst into bitter tears. John looked at her with an anguish equalling her own. His tears seemed to scorch his eyes, for he pressed his hand upon his brow, and went away softly, uttering not a word.

Imagination may be vivid and faithful, but how both pale away in the presence of reality! It is the sorrow seen which is the mightiest in its appeal to the soul; and before it all hearsay, all relation, seem feeble as a shadow.

Death in connection with Eleanor was unnatural, and murder horrible, and in hearing of them and believing them, Sir Hilton Trewavas fancied he had felt the worst. He was mistaken. It was only when he saw her that he realized the truth, and felt in every shuddering fibre of his frame, how cruel a murder he had indirectly helped to do. So young, so beautiful, so beloved, she lay before him on the damp grass, dead, her long hair escaped from its net, streaming over her shoulders, her wet garments clinging to her rounded limbs, her fair young face, with the seal of death upon it, upturned to heaven, crying mutely, pitifully for vengeance.

It was a sight never to be forgotten. Men wept as they looked upon it, and for a moment all self-possession and calmness were lost. The man who should have been her husband knelt down by her side, and took her hand in his. On the cold finger glistened the diamond ring of betrothal—the ring which, only a few days ago, he had replaced on her warm hand, with the kisses and tears of reconciliation. Tears fell on it now, burning tears of bitterness, of remorse, of agony.

"Let no one touch her but me," he cried, fiercely, as the inspector of police knelt on the other side of the corpse, and took up the right hand.

"Excuse me, Sir Hilton," said he; "I am bound to do my duty, sir. Mr. Damerel spoke of a cord—a red cord—tying the wrists. I do not see it. I am looking for it."

THAT MAIL CONTRACT.

Mr. McMullen Brings the Matter up in the House—Knocked out by E. S. White.

On Wednesday last in the Dominion House of Commons Mr. Jim McMullen, M. P. for North Wellington, waded into the Government for having deprived Mr. Robert Mann of his contract of carrying the mail between the Orangeville postoffice and the C. P. R. station, all on account of his political leanings. After the hero of old Rideau hall carpets delivered this "great" speech, Mr. E. S. White, the young member for Cardwell, stood up and replied and succeeded in knocking the aforesaid hero out in the first round.

Mr. White said the charge made by Mr. McMullen, that the Government had dismissed the Orangeville mail contractor because of his political leanings, was baseless, and was simply the result of Mr. McMullen's diseased imagination. (Hear, hear.) Mr. White happened to be thoroughly familiar with all the facts in connection with the case, and would narrate them to the House in order that it might be seen what foundation there was in Mr. McMullen's statement: About a year ago it was known that the mail contract at Orangeville would expire, he that the contract should be put under in order that an opportunity might be given to all who desired in their bids. The Postmaster-General promised to do this, but owing to some mistake in the office the contract was renewed to Mr. Mann, the gentleman to whom Mr. McMullen had referred. He (Mr. White), remonstrated with the Postmaster General, and as a result the contract was cancelled and tenders were asked for. The new contract was $55 a year less than the amount heretofore paid to Mr. Mann. Politics had nothing to do with the matter; it was simply a business transaction, Mr. Mann having the same privilege of tendering as every other citizen. (Hear, hear.)

WHERE CANADA SHINES.

This Year's Harvest Promises to Beat all Previous Records.

Canada seems likely to retain its enviable position of pre-eminence in open competition with the grain markets of the whole world. The glowing reports which come down from the vast wheat belts of the North-west promise this year a harvest that for immensity of yield and healthy per centage of quality will outrival the famous season of 1887. The country has never had the prospect of such a magnificent harvest as the one promised this year.

Wheat, oats and barley are said to be considerably in advance of the average time and wheat is at least 10 days ahead of 1890. The growth is everywhere vigorous and healthy, and is already beginning to head out. The yield will in all probability be an immense one. Hay is plentiful, and root crops, especially potatoes, never looked better. The weather is everywhere favourable, and the few storms which have occasioned damage will make no appreciable difference in the average yield.

The crops around the great district of Brandon never looked better than they do this year, especially on light lands. Wheat at Portage la Prairie is heading out very heavily. A large per centage of wheat around Virden is also out in head. Harvesting will begin about the middle of August.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

OUR own Mr. Semple of Centre Wellington and Mr. McMullen of North Wellington voted for the Dominion House to sit on Canada's national day. Mr. White of Cardwell voted for the motion to adjourn.

THE antagonism to the idea of the Dominion Parliament sitting on Dominion day is mitigated, says the Montreal Gazette, by the thought that, anyway, it has brought the end of the session nearer, and when Parliament spends a day discussing how far the name Canada is applicable to Mr. M. C. Cameron on the end of the session is earnestly to be desired. Everybody knows Mr. Cameron.

FOR many years Sir John A. Macdonald was the target of the abuse of the party which opposed him, and there was no charge too serious for the organs of the Liberals to make against him. He was accused not only of all manner of political chicanery, but of financial dishonesty. He was often said to be interested in vast and corrupt schemes which he lent his assistance for the end of his own enrichment. Yet, now that he is dead, it proves that he leaves behind his homestead and an estate of some $90,000. With his capacity he might have made five times this sum at the bar or in the business. Politics pays a man's vanity and starves his pocket, and looking back over the career of this truly remarkable statesman one is moved to ask whether the game is indeed worth the candle.—Detroit Free Press.

THE evidence given by Mr. O. E. Murphy, in the Tarte-McGreevy investigation on Friday, was not a surprise to those who knew the witness. In New York he was a betrayer of public trust and a financial defaulter and came to this country a fugitive from justice. He admits that he robbed the New York excise board of $50,000. He lies in this country gone about under several names. By his previous evidence he declared himself to be party to a conspiracy to obtain from the Ontario Government by wrongful methods, money he and his associates were not entitled to. All this, of course, has nothing to do with the truth or falsity of the charges he has been brought up to substantiate. It makes it more imperative, however, that people should wait till all the evidence is heard before forming a judgment. Mr. Murphy is a very poor witness to condemn an honored public man by.—Montreal Gazette.

The American wife of Sir William Gordon Cumming is said to be worth $10,000,000.

PROMOTION EXAMINATIONS.

Public School Scholars Who Passed.

SALEM.

A GREAT NOTE.—On Dominion day the people of this vicinity who did not go to Orangeville were very much startled late in the afternoon by a grand turnout driving through the streets. After thoroughly investigating the matter the detective came to the conclusion that it was the baby lovers returning from the great celebration at Dufferin's capital.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.—The editor of THE SUN would kindly inform several busybodies around Salem that Mr Hugh Dodds or his son Robert do not write the Salem correspondence for this journal. Our correspondent, whose name we are not at liberty to give occasionally cracks harmless jokes at the expense of two or three fault finders. These individuals should be able to take a joke when it is remembered they have gall enough to beg their neighbor's paper.—ED.

Several days ago John Reid, Esq of Mimosa, was driving his team past Leatham's saw mill, town line, Erin, his horses became frightened and ran away. Mr. Reid was walking by the side of the wagon, and the sudden jerk pulled him over on his face. The only damage was to his proboscis which sustained considerable loss of cuticle while acting as a ploughshare.

A marvellous escape from a stroke of lightning is reported from the 7th con. of Whitby township. Miss Maw was attending to her household duties when the storm came along and was in the act of fastening the kitchen door when a brilliant flash and peal of thunder came and burst open both doors. The electricity seized a dipper which Miss Maw held in her hand, and snatched the bowl off one end of the handle and the ring from the other. The bare handle was left in the young lady's hand.

$50,000 to loan on mortgage security. Interest and expenses low, terms to suit borrowers. F. Irwin, office over Endscott Bros' store, Orangeville.

A GREAT DAY!

THE BIGGEST CELEBRATION YET.

Plenty of Fun for the Multitude.

10,000 VISITORS HERE.

INTERESTING LACROSSE, BASEBALL AND FOOTBALL MATCHES.

MLLE. MAYO TAKES A BIG DROP.

The Program Faithfully Carried Out —Dominion Note.

The Dominion day celebration in Orangeville on Wednesday of last week was the biggest and most successful event ever held in this part of the country, and it was a suitable way to observe the 24th anniversary of this thriving Dominion. Every member of the Citizens' committee is entitled to the thanks of the people of the town, for the success of the demonstration, to a great extent, depended upon their efforts, and, we are glad to say, they did their duty faithfully, sparing neither time nor expense.

In the early hours of the morning rain was falling to beat the band and prospects for a successful day looked very blue indeed. But on towards 6 o'clock the showers ceased and the morning was all that could be desired. Jupiter Pluvius held aloof until about 3.30 in the afternoon, when two or three very heavy showers fell. Those who were fortunate enough to get under cover were all right, but many ladies and gentlemen were overtaken by the rainstorm before they succeeded in finding shelter, and when the showers passed over hundreds of people were thoroughly soaked and their garments clung to them like Sally clings to her bean. The rain quit once more, the sun shone brighter than ever and the multitude soon forgot their unpleasant experience.

The Dominion day celebration at Dufferin's go ahead capital has always been a success because the committee of management never advertise anything they do not intend to have, and each succeeding year Orangeville's great demonstration grows more important, both in attractions and number of spectators present. But as the expense increases the admission fee is kept down to the last notch, 15 and 10 cents for adults and children respectively. In the afternoon there could not have been less than 10000 people on the grounds.

Shortly after 7 o'clock people began to pour into town and at 8 the Citizens' band marched to the C. P. R depot to welcome the visitors who came by the Owen Sound and Teeswater trains. The Orangeville and Shelburne bands played our guests up town, and a couple of hours afterwards the Alton and Caledon East bands arrived, accompanied by a large crowd from the south. From that hour until 12 o'clock they listened to the bands or took in the sights of the town.

OFF TO THE GROUNDS.

Shortly after 12 o'clock an imposing procession formed on the market square and marched up First avenue to Faulkner street, thence down Broadway to the starting point and up Second street to the exhibition grounds, where the sports were to take place. The order of the procession, which was witnessed by thousands, is as follows:—

Carriage containing Hon-Pres. J. S. Youmans, Pres. Harry Gillespie, Vice-Pres. W. Wallace, Sec'y. T. H. Henry, Treas W. M. Green, and Marshall John Aiken, jr.
Trotting Dog "Doc" with his owner and driver.
Shelburne Citizens' Band.
Royal Gibson Tuscarora Indian Lacrosse Club, with Squaws.
Dufferin Lacrosse Club.
Alton Brass Band.
The Milne Troupe of Highland Dancers and Bagpipers.
Young Lansdowne and Owen Sound Lacrosse Club.
Prof. Bready and Mlle Mayo of Cleveland, balloonist and aronaut.
Caledon East Brass Band.
The Dorenwend Troupe of Acrobats, with comic Clowns.
Alton and Toronto Baseball Clubs.
Orangeville and Elora Football Clubs.
Orangeville Citizens' Band.
Carriages, &c

It was not many minutes after 1 o'clock before the sporting events commenced, and then seven or eight different exhibitions were going on at the same time. Six members of the Dorenwend acrobatic troupe, ably assisted by two mirth provoking clowns, did some of the best trapeze work ever seen and their other acrobatic exhibitions were simply wonderful. While two of their best men were doing some thrilling feats on the trapeze, which was about fifteen feet from the ground, a rope broke and they fell to the platform beneath. How they escaped being seriously injured is miraculous, but as it was they were compelled to lay off until the evening. Other members of the troupe filled their places and the wonderful exhibition continued. The Milne troupe of Highland dancers sprang into favor instantly, and after each performance were loudly applauded. The troupe is composed of two ladies, two gentlemen and a bagpiper, and they were all togged out in beautiful Highland costumes.

The world-famed trotting canine "Doc" was present, but neither horse, man nor Indian were willing to try conclusions with him. Mr. Ketchum, the owner of the dog, offered any man $25 and 200 yards start if he could beat "Doc" in a half mile race. Finally a race was arrange between "Doc" and a mule. The dog, which was hitched to a nice little silky cad driven by young Harry Ketchum, trotted the half mile in grand style while the long eared antagonist quitted the whole distance and took second place.

LACROSSE.

The great lacrosse match (Wednesday) was between a crack team of the Tuscarora Indians and the Dufferins. The Orangeville boys were on the field the brawny braves taking Gleason to the Dufferins 1. Manager Gibson said a SUN representative that he brought up his best team and it was just nothing to impossibility to defeat them. The young Lansdownes were fortunate than their seniors when they crossed sticks with a junior club from Owen Sound. The Lansdownes had everything their own way, taking 4 straight games after forty five minutes play.

BASEBALL.

A rattling game of baseball between the Alton club and the Dunnellon aggregation of Toronto was in progress when the rain began to fall. The Alton boys had 2 runs to their credit while their city rivals had only 1. The match was declared in favor of the former team and they were presented with a $15 silver cup.

KICKERS.

The High School Junior football club and the Moon Centre boys tackled each other and put up a first-class game. Each side made determined efforts to capture the handsome silver trophy offered by the celebration committee. After playing the allotted time the high school kickers were awarded the match, they having scored 4 goals to Moon Centre's 1.

The foot and bicycle races were cleared off on account of rain.

MLLE. GOES ALOFT.

All afternoon everybody was longing to see Mlle. Mayo, the Cleveland, O., balloonist, make her aerial trip. After the heavy rainstorm had passed the sun shone beautifully and at five minutes past 5 the monster balloon shot up in the air with the clever aronaut sitting on a bar twenty feet below. The great air ship made a beautiful ascent, and when Mlle. Mayo was eight or nine hundred feet above the ground she cut loose from the balloon. The parachute instantly spread out and the plucky lady reached Mother Earth in safety within a distance of two hundred yards from where she soared aloft. Twenty minutes afterwards the balloon fell on the farm of Mr. John White, two miles from Orangeville, in the township of Caledon. Mlle. Mayo was loudly cheered, for she certainly displayed plenty of nerve.

IN THE EVENING.

The grounds were brilliantly illuminated by electricity and long before 8 o'clock hundreds of visitors were enjoying themselves. Previous to the march to the grounds the four bands united and paraded Broadway, the effect being something wonderful. The program included exhibition by Dorenwend acrobatic company, the Milne Highland dancers and a weird Indian concert, all of which were witnessed by interested crowds. The gigantic display of fireworks was not up to the standard, owing to the cloudy state of the atmosphere. The different bands discoursed music during the afternoon and evening. The program was finished by half past 10, and at 11 o'clock two special trains on the Owen Sound and Elora branches left the station, carrying hundreds of our tired but well pleased visitors to their homes.

And thus ended Orangeville's great annual holiday for 1891

DEMONSTRATION DOTS.

Only one arrest was made during the day.

Pickpockets were conspicuous by their absence.

Photographer Adair photographed the Indians on Thursday morning.

Mlle. Mayo, the balloonist, left for Cleveland, O, the following morning.

The dusty lacrosse players from Tuscarora did not leave town until Thursday evening.

The hotels and ice cream parlors reaped a great harvest, but very few drunks were to be seen.

Secretary T. H. Henry was 23 years old on Dominion day. Tom has been secretary of the celebration committee for three years.

Michael Free, the witty Irishman, and Jack Harkaway, the comic clown, caused many a dry old cough to smile. Michael and Jack are a great team.

Constable Hubbard arrested a fellow from swayback for jumping the fence. He was let off by paying 15 cents and promising to never do the like again.

The small admission fee of 10 cents for children and 15 cents for adults caught the crowd about right. Mr. Forest's tax is 15 and 25 cts. respectively.

The total receipts amounted to $1056, while the expenses are about the same, and the committee will not have to draw on their reserve fund of $350 which lies in the bank.

The public wedding did not take place, neither bride nor bridegroom putting in an appearance to capture the beautiful bedroom suite offered by Beswick & Aikin.

Frank Cousins and Joe Kelly had two refreshment booths in full blast all day, and they raked in a good many shekels. They enriched the celebration fund by $85 for the privilege of dispensing lemonade, etc.

The three visiting bands cannot be too highly praised, for they filled their engagements in a most satisfactory manner. Shelburne's band and our own Citizens' band were about equal, and the Alton and Caledon East bands were not far behind.

Unbearable Pain.

DEAR SIRS,—I suffered for three days very severely from Summer Complaint, and could get no relief, but kept getting worse until the pain was almost unbearable, and I was very weak. After everything else had failed I tried Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry. The first dose gave relief, and it did not fail to cure me.

Georgetown has got electric light at last, and prides itself on being the first town in the county of Halton to be lighted by electricity.

Cold, cough, coffin is what philosophers term "a logical sequence." One is very liable to follow the other, but by curing the cold with a dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, the cough will be stopped and the coffin not needed—just at present.

50,000 dozen eggs wanted at Endscott Bros., for which they will pay the highest price in cash or exchange.

The Usual Way.

THE usual way is to neglect bad blood until boils, blotches and many pimples make its presence forcibly known. Every man or woman ought to be careful to purify the blood by using the best blood purifier and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. Its purifying power is unrivalled.

Mr. Fred Ritchie, formerly of J. S. Leighton's grocery store, has accepted a situation with Messrs. Gilchrist & Kent.

Mrs. Dodds of Au Sable, Mich., daughter of Mr. James Cameron of Caledon, is spending a few weeks at her old home.

Mrs. Joseph Gordon, who has been seriously ill for some time, is, under experienced medical skill, recovering her wonted health and strength.

Mrs. Joseph Morrison, of Richmond Hill, together with her son and daughter, was visiting her sister, Mrs. R. W. Medley, during the past week.

Mr. Jarmiah Skelton and family of Tilbury Centre, formerly of Orangeville, are spending a few days with Mrs. Skelton's parents, Mr. and Mrs Wm. Hall, west Broadway.

Rev. D. C. Hossack, the esteemed pastor of St. Andrew's church, left on Monday for a month's vacation. He will visit friends at Port Perry for a few days, after which he will take a trip to the Northwest.

Misses Dolan and Van Dusen, teachers at the public school here, left last Thursday to visit friends at Barrie and Owen Sound respectively, after which they will visit Chicago and other American cities.

Miss Marguerite E Marshall, one of Orangeville's amiable and fair young ladies, has just completed a very successful session at the College of Music, Toronto, under the tutorship of the distinguished Professor F. H. Torrington.

MONO CENTRE.

SICK.—Mrs. Wm. Henry, who has been in indifferent health for some time, is progressing slowly.

CONVALESCENT.—We are glad to state that Mr. Andrew McCague, who has been so ill for the past week, is convalescent.

HAS GOOD EFFECT.—By the number of picnic parties that visit this place we are led to the conclusion that our recommendation of the scenery here in THE SUN has not been without effect.

BEAUX AND BELLES.—Several of our young men, accompanied by their fair companions, took in the attractions in Orangeville on July 1st, and appeared well satisfied both with themselves and the celebration.

RELIGIOUS—Mr. J. A Leighton, of Orangeville conducted the service in St. Matthew's last Sunday evening... Rev. F. Woodger, preached his first sermon, to a large and attentive congregation in the Methodist church, Relessey, last Sunday morning.

PLATED WELL.—Our junior football club felt rather sore, after their defeat, but think they did fairly well under the circumstances. They hope, however, to cross "shins" with the Orangeville boys again before the season closes. The members of the club also take this opportunity of thanking the members of the celebration committee for the gentlemanly treatment received at their hands.

PERSONAL.—Miss Emily Glover is visiting friends in Arthur at present... Mr. Alex. Moore, of Listowel, who has been visiting friends in Mono for the past two weeks, returned home Monday...Our old friend, Mr. James McDonald, of Farmington, renewed old acquaintances round the Centre last week. It is needless to add that he was warmly received, and royally entertained at his old trysting place... Mr. E. A. Glover, who has been teaching at Connor, and Mr. J. J. Scott, engaged in the same profession at Singhampton, are spending their holidays under the parental roof.

J. M. BENNETT'S cellar is full of Bottled Ale and Porter. May also be had in kegs of 8 and 16 gallons each.

It Saved His Life.

GENTLEMEN,—I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, for it saved my life. We have used it in our family when required ever since, and it never fails to cure all summer complaints.

FRANCIS WALSH,
Dalkeith, Ont.

There are 8,250,000 Roman Catholics in the United States.

VANATTER.

CROPS.—Crops are looking well here, though hay will be rather light.

SURPRISING CHANGE.—From present appearances, in the the near future a couple of young ladies are likely to become Black.

BUILDING.—Mr. S. H. Puttullo is erecting a bank barn, for which the stone work is about finished by Mr. D. H. Hunter.

AT THE EXAMS.—Miss Lucy Moore, daughter of Mr. G. Moore, wrote at the entrance examination in Orangeville. We hope she will be successful.

COW HURT.—A valuable cow belonging to Mr. D. Ferguson tore one of her teats nearly off in going through a wire fence the other day. Barbed wire fences are dangerous unless they are kept in good repair.

REPAIRED.—Under the supervision of Mr. J. B. Reid the gravel road, at what used to be called the lake, has been repaired in first-class style, showing that Mr. Reid understands how a job should be done.

THE WEATHER.—After a few cool days the weather has again become warm and it is rumored (I won't say how true) that so infatuated have some young men become with the heat that there are one or two who would like to be—Cooked.

MANITOBA CROPS.—A letter from Mr. W. H. Ferguson, one of the young men who went to Manitoba last spring, speaks in glowing terms of that country. He lives near Pilot Mound and says that they have had abundance of rain and that crops are very promising indeed.

SICK.—Mrs. J. B. Reid was in town on Monday and when on her way home was taken so ill that she had to remain at Mr. J. A. Simpson's and a doctor sent for, who pronounced her disease inflammation of the bowels. As medical aid was so promptly called in it is hoped she will be all right again shortly.

LAWN SOCIAL.—The lawn social at the residence of Mr. Thomas Simpson on Monday evening was a grand success. A most exciting game of football took place early in the evening and it was amusing to see how the young men and boys tripped one another up in spite of all association rules or we may add any other rules. There were many present from Orangeville, some of whom walked out, and one and all felt themselves amply rewarded for their trouble.

EXAMINATION.—School closed here on June 30th. Mr. Black, the teacher, held a public examination on Friday, which I am surprised to say very few of the parents attended. This is certainly not the way to encourage either the teacher or pupils. Mr. J. C. Reid of Orangeville, however, was present during the afternoon and assisted Mr. Black in the work. After hearing the different classes he addressed the children, pointing out to them the importance of an education and the necessity of regular attendance and close application in order to obtain it. He also congratulated the pupils on the very good order and, as a sequence, the improvement of the scholars.

FIRE INSURANCE.—If you want to be insured in the strongest and best companies in Canada, call on F. Irwin, over Endscott's store, Orangeville.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against these spurious imitations, and are asked to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c a box) by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Born

HALL.—In Orangeville, on Friday, July 3, the wife of Wm. Hall, C. P. R. mechanic, of a son.

Died.

MONTGOMERY.—At Toronto, on Friday, July 3, Rachael Curry, wife of Mr. David Montgomery, aged 28 years.

FRENCH.—In Amaranth, on Sunday, July 5 William John French, aged 11 months and 5 days.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Coal, Public Buildings," will be received until Thursday, 23rd July next, for coal supply, for all or any of the Dominion Public Buildings.

Specifications, form of tender, and all necessary information can be obtained at this Department on and after Monday, 13th June.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted bank cheque made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to five per cent. of the amount of tender, which will be forfeited if the party decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or if he fail to supply the coal contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The department will not be bound to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,

E. F. E. ROY,
Secretary.

ALL COMING HERE.—As the glorious 12th draws near, neighboring lodges have accepted the invitation to celebrate the battle of the Boyne in Orangeville. Mt. Forest and Erin lodges have decided to come to the loyal capital of Dufferin.

to the Government for having deprived Mr. Robert Mann of his contract of carrying the mail between the Orangeville postoffice and the C. P. R. station, all on account of his political leanings. After the hero of old Rideau hall carpets delivered this "great" speech, Mr. R. S. White, the young member for Cardwell, stood up and replied and succeeded in knocking the aforesaid hero out in the first round.

Mr. White said the charge made by Mr. McMullen, that the Government had dismissed the Orangeville mail contractor because of his political leanings, was baseless, and was simply the result of Mr. McMullen's diseased imagination. (Hear, hear.) Mr. White happened to be thoroughly familiar with all the facts in connection with the case, and would narrate them to the House in order that it might be seen what foundation there was in Mr. McMullen's statement: About a year ago it was known that the mail contract at Orangeville would expire, he said, and that the contract should be put up to tender in order that an opportunity might be given to all who desired to put in their bids. The Postmaster-General promised to do this, but owing to some mistake in the office the contract was renewed to Mr. Mann, the gentleman to whom Mr. McMullen had referred. He (Mr. White), remonstrated with the Postmaster General, and as a result the contract was cancelled and tenders were asked for. The new contract was $55 a year less than the amount heretofore paid to Mr. Mann. Politics had nothing to do with the matter; it was simply a business transaction, Mr. Mann having the same privilege of tendering as every other citizen. (Hear, hear.)

WHERE CANADA SHINES.

This Year's Harvest Promises to Beat all Previous Records.

Canada seems likely to retain its enviable position of pre-eminence in open competition with the grain markets of the whole world. The glowing reports which come down from the vast wheat belts of the North-west promise this year a harvest that for immensity of yield and healthy per centage of quality will outrival the famous season of 1887. The country has never had the prospect of such a magnificent harvest as the one promised this year.

Wheat, oats and barley are said to be considerably in advance of the average time and wheat is at least 10 days ahead of 1890. The growth is every where vigorous and healthy, and is already beginning to head out. The yield will in all probability be an immense one. Hay is plentiful, and root crops, especially potatoes, never looked better. The weather is everywhere favourable, and the few storms which have occasioned damage will make no appreciable difference in the average yield.

The crops around the great district of Brandon never looked better than they do this year, especially on light lands. Wheat at Portage la Prairie is heading out very heavily. A large per centage of wheat around Virden is also out in head. Harvesting will begin about the middle of August.

EDITORIAL NOTES

OUR own Mr. Semple of Centre Wellington and Mr. McMullen of North Wellington voted for the Dominion House to sit on Canada's national day. Mr. White of Cardwell voted for the motion to adjourn.

THE antagonism to the idea of the Dominion Parliament sitting on Dominion day is mitigated, says the Montreal Gazette, by the thought that, anyway, it has brought the end of the session nearer, and when Parliament spends a day discussing how far the name Annexation is applicable to Mr. M. C. Cameron on the end of the session is earnestly to be desired. Everybody knows Mr Cameron.

FOR many years Sir John A. Macdonald was the target of the abuse of the party which opposed him, and there was no charge too serious for the organs of the Liberals to make against him. He was accused not only of all manner of political chicanery, but of financial dishonesty. He was often said to be rested in vast and corrupt schemes which he lent his assistance for the sake of his own enrichment. Yet, now that he is dead, it proves that he leaves behind him his homestead and an estate of the value of $90,000. With his capacity he might have made five times this sum at the bar or in the business. Politics pays a man's vanity and starves his pocket, and looking back over the career of this truly remarkable statesman one is moved to ask whether the game is indeed worth the candle.—Detroit Free Press.

THE evidence given by Mr. O. E. Murphy, in the Tarte-McGreevy investigation on Friday, was not a surprise to those who knew the witness. In New York he was a betrayer of public trust and a financial defaulter and came to this country a fugitive from justice. He admits that he robbed the New York excise board of $50,000. He has in this country gone about under several names. By his previous evidence he declared himself to be party to a conspiracy to obtain from the Ontario Government by wrongful methods, money he and his associates were not entitled to. All this, of course, has nothing to do with the truth or falsity of the charges he has been brought up to substantiate. It makes it more imperative, however, that people should wait till all the evidence is heard before forming a judgment. Mr. Murphy is a very poor witness to condemn an honored public man by.—Montreal Gazette.

The American wife of Sir William Gordon Cumming is said to be worth $10,000,000.

SALEM.

A GREAT NOTE.—On Dominion day the people of this vicinity who did not go to Orangeville were very much startled late in the afternoon by a grand turnout driving through the streets. After thoroughly investigating the matter the detective came to the conclusion that it was the baby lovers returning from the great celebration at Dufferin's capital.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.—The editor of THE SUN would kindly inform several busybodies around Salem that Mr Hugh Dodds or his son Robert do not write the Salem correspondence for this journal. Our correspondent, whose name we are not at liberty to give occasionally cracks harmless jokes at the expense of two or three fault finders. These individuals should be able to take a joke when it is remembered they have gall enough to beg their neighbor's paper.—Ed.

Several days ago John Reid, Esq of Mimosa, was driving his team past Leatham's saw mill, town line, Erin, his horses became frightened and ran away. Mr. Reid was walking by the side of the wagon, and the sudden jerk pulled him over on his face. The only damage was to his proboscis which sustained considerable loss of cuticle while acting as a ploughshare.

A marvellous escape from a stroke of lightning is reported from the 7th con. of Whitby township. Miss Maw was attending to her household duties when the storm came along and was in the act of fastening the kitchen door when a brilliant flash and peal of thunder came and burst open both doors. The electricity seized a dipper which Miss Maw held in her hand, and snatched the bowl off one end of the handle and the ring from the other. The bare handle was left in the young lady's hand.

The Program Faithfully Carried Out —Dominion Note.

The Dominion day celebration in Orangeville on Wednesday of last week was the biggest and most successful event ever held in this part of the country, and it was a suitable way to observe the 24th anniversary of this thriving Dominion. Every member of the Citizens' committee is entitled to the thanks of the people of the town, for the success of the demonstration, to a great extent, depended upon their efforts, and, we are glad to say, they did their duty faithfully, sparing neither time nor expense.

In the early hours of the morning rain was falling to beat the band and prospects for a successful day looked very blue indeed. But on towards 6 o'clock the showers ceased and the morning was all that could be desired. Jupiter Pluvius held aloof until about 3:30 in the afternoon, when two or three very heavy showers fell. Those who were fortunate enough to get under cover were all right, but many ladies and gentlemen were overtaken by the rainstorm before they succeeded in finding shelter, and when the showers passed over hundreds of people were thoroughly soaked and their garments clung to them like Sally clings to her beau. The rain quit once more, the sun shone brighter than ever and the multitude soon forgot their unpleasant experience.

The Dominion day celebration at Dufferin's go ahead capital has always been a success because the committee of management never advertise anything they do not intend to have, and each succeeding year Orangeville's great demonstration grows more important, both in attractions and number of spectators present. But as the expense increases the admission fee is kept down to the last notch, 15 and 10 cents for adults and children respectively. In the afternoon there could not have been less than 10000 people on the grounds.

Shortly after 7 o'clock people began to pour into town and at 8 the Citizens' band marched to the C. P. R depot to welcome the visitors who came by the Owen Sound and Teeswater trains. The Orangeville and Shelburne bands played our guests up town, and a couple of hours afterwards the Alton and Caledon East bands arrived, accompanied by a large crowd from the south. From that hour until 12 o'clock they listened to the bands or took in the sights of the town.

OFF TO THE GROUNDS.

Shortly after 12 o'clock an imposing procession formed on the market square and marched up First avenue to Faulkner street, thence down Broadway to the starting point and up Second street to the exhibition grounds, where the sports were to take place. The order of the procession, which was witnessed by thousands, is as follows:—

Carriage containing Hon. Pres. J. S. Youmans, Pres. Harry Gillespie, Vice-Pres. W. Wallace, Sec'y, T. H. Henry, Treas W. M. Green, and Marshall John Aiken, jr.
Trotting Dog "Doc," with his owner and driver.
Shelburne Citizens' Band.
Royal Gibson Tuscarora Indian Lacrosse Club, with Squaws.
Dufferin Lacrosse Club.
Alton Brass Band.
The Milne Troupe of Highland Dancers and Bagpipers.
Young Lansdowne and Owen Sound Lacrosse Club.
Prof. Bready and Mlle Mayo of Cleveland, balloonist and aeronaut.
Caledon East Brass Band.
The Dorenwend Troupe of Acrobats, with comic Clowns.
Alton and Toronto Baseball Clubs.
Orangeville and Elora Football Clubs.
Orangeville Citizens' Band.
Carriages, &c

It was not many minutes after 1 o'clock before the sporting events commenced, and then seven or eight different exhibitions were going on at the same time. Six members of the Dorenwend acrobatic troupe, ably assisted by two mirth provoking clowns, did some of the best trapeze work ever done and their other acrobatic exhibitions were simply wonderful. While two of their best men were doing some thrilling feats on the trapeze, which was about fifteen feet from the ground, a rope broke and they fell to the platform beneath. How they escaped being seriously injured is miraculous, but as it was they were compelled to lay off until the evening. Other members of the troupe filled their places and the wonderful exhibition continued. The Milne troupe of Highland dancers sprang into favor instantly, and after each performance were loudly applauded. The troupe is composed of two ladies, two gentlemen and a bagpiper, and they were all togged out in beautiful Highland costumes.

The world-famed trotting canine "Doc" was present, but neither horse, man nor Indian were willing to try conclusions with him. Mr. Estchum, the owner of the dog, offered any man $25 and 200 yards start if he could beat "Doc" in a half mile race. Finally a race was arrange between "Doc" and a mule. The dog, which was hitched to a nice little sulky and driven by young Harry Kestchum, trotted the half mile in grand style while its long-everything went off well, many of straight games after forty five minutes play.

BASEBALL.

A rattling game of baseball between the Alton club and the Dominion aggregation of Toronto was in progress when the rain began to fall. The Alton boys had 8 runs to their credit while their city rivals had only 1. The match was declared in favor of the former team and they were presented with a $15 silver cup.

KICKERS.

The High School Junior football club and the Mono Centre boys tackled each other and put up a first-class game. Each side made determined efforts to capture the handsome silver trophy offered by the celebration committee. After playing the allotted time the high school kickers were awarded the match, they having scored 4 goals to Mono Centre's 1.

The foot and bicycle races were cleared off on account of rain.

MLLE. GOES ALOFT.

All afternoon everybody was longing to see Mlle. Mayo, the Cleveland, O., balloonist, make her aerial trip. After the heavy rainstorm had passed the sun shone beautifully and at five minutes past 5 the monster balloon shot up in the air with the clever aeronaut sitting on a bar twenty feet below. The great air ship made a beautiful ascent, and when Mlle. Mayo was sight or nine hundred feet above the ground she cut loose from the balloon. The parachute instantly spread out and the plucky lady reached Mother Earth in safety within a distance of two hundred yards from where she soared aloft. Twenty minutes afterwards the balloon lit on the farm of Mr. John White, two miles from Orangeville, in the township of Caledon. Mlle. Mayo was loudly cheered, for she certainly displayed plenty of nerve.

IN THE EVENING.

The grounds were brilliantly illuminated by electricity and long before 8 o'clock hundreds of visitors were enjoying themselves. Previous to the march to the grounds the four bands united and paraded Broadway, the effect being something wonderful. The program included exhibition by Dorenwend acrobatic company, the Milne Highland dancers and a weird Indian concert, all of which were witnessed by interested crowds. The gigantic display of fireworks was not up to the standard, owing to the cloudy state of the atmosphere. The different bands discoursed music during the afternoon and evening. The program was finished by half past 10, and at 11 o'clock two special trains on the Owen Sound and Elora branches left the station, carrying hundreds of our tired but well pleased visitors to their homes.

And thus ended Orangeville's great annual holiday for 1891

DEMONSTRATION DOTS.

Only one arrest was made during the day.

Pickpockets were conspicuous by their absence.

Photographer Adair photographed the Indians on Thursday morning.

Mlle. Mayo, the balloonist, left for Cleveland, O, the following morning.

The dusky lacrosse players from Tuscarora did not leave town until Thursday evening.

The hotels and ice cream parlors reaped a great harvest, but very few drunks were to be seen.

Secretary T. H. Henry was 23 years old on Dominion day. Tom has been secretary of the celebration committee for three years.

Michael Free, the witty Irishman and Jack Harkaway, the comic clown, caused many a dry old cough to smile. Michael and Jack are a great team.

Constable Hubbard arrested a fellow from swayback for jumping the fence. He was let off by paying 15 cents and promising to never do the like again.

The small admission fee of 10 cents for children and 15 cents for adults caught the crowd about right. Mr. Forest's tax is 15 and 25 cts. respectively.

The total receipts amounted to $1056, while the expenses are about the same, and the committee will not have to draw on their reserve fund of $350 which lies in the bank.

The public wedding did not take place, neither bride nor bridegroom putting in an appearance to capture the beautiful bedroom suite offered by Beswick & Aikin.

Frank Cousins and Joe Kelly had two refreshment booths in full blast all day, and they raked in a good many shekels. They enriched the celebration fund by $35 for the privilege of dispensing lemonade, etc.

The three visiting bands cannot be too highly praised, for they filled their engagements in a most satisfactory manner. Shelburne's band and our own Citizens' band were about equal, and the Alton and Caledon East bands were not far behind.

Unbearable Pain.

DEAR SIRS,—I suffered for three days very severely from Summer Complaint, and could get no relief, but kept getting worse until the pain was almost unbearable, and I was very weak. After everything else had failed I tried Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry. The first dose gave relief, and it did not fail to cure me.

The Usual Way.

THE usual way is to neglect bad blood until boils, blotches and super paks its presence forcibly known. Every wise person ought to be careful to purify the blood by using the best blood purifier and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. Its purifying power is unrivalled.

Miss Annie Gillespie has returned home to spend the summer vacation.

Miss Ellen Hewitt, of Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. R. B. Brett.

Messrs. McNichol, Jaco and McClelland, of Alton, spent Sunday in town.

Miss Ethel Brown, of Tottenham, visited at Mr. O. W. Sydie's last week.

Miss Ida Meredith arrived home last week, after visiting Brampton friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bell leave on Tuesday next on a visit to Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Caldwell, of Rush City, Minn., is visiting her uncle, Town Treasurer Irwin.

Master Jack and Charlie Henry are visiting their uncle, Dr. S. M. Henry of Harriston.

Mr. Isaac Erskine, of Alton, has secured a situation in May's harness establishment.

Editor Mortimer of the Shelburne Free Press, dropped in to see us on Tuesday evening.

Miss Ethel Stewart, of Alliston, is visiting at Mr. F. C. Stewart's residence, Zina street.

Miss Annie Medley is spending her holidays with Mrs. Joseph Mortson and family, of Richmond Hill.

Mr. A. E. Henderson, of Toronto, son of Rev A. Henderson of this town, visited his parents here last week.

Mr. N. J. Sproul, a rising young divine, occupied the pulpit in St. Andrew's church on Sunday morning.

Mr. Rigby Swinton of the head office of the Bank of Hamilton, Hamilton, is spending a few days with friends in town.

Miss Annie Morrow has returned home from Edgington, Parry Sound district, where she has been teaching school.

Mrs. Symons, mother of Mrs. R. T. Haun, who has been suffering from a stroke of paralysis, is gradually improving.

Mr. Fred Ritchie, formerly of J. S. Leighton's grocery store, has accepted a situation with Messrs. Gilchrist & Kent.

Mrs. Dodds of Au Sable, Mich., daughter of Mr. James Cameron of Caledon, is spending a few weeks at her old home.

Mrs. Joseph Gordon, who has been seriously ill for some time, is, under experienced medical skill, recovering her wonted health and strength.

Mrs. Joseph Mortson, of Richmond Hill, together with her son and daughter, was visiting her sister, Mrs. R. W. Medley, during the past week.

Mr. Jermiah Skelton and family of Tilbury Centre, formerly of Orangeville, are spending a few days with Mrs. Skelton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hall, west Broadway.

Rev. D. C. Hossack, the esteemed pastor of St. Andrew's church, left on Monday for a month's vacation. He will visit friends at Port Perry for a few days, after which he will take a trip to the Northwest.

Misses Dolan and Van Duzen, teachers at the public school here, left last Thursday to visit friends at Barrie and Owen Sound respectively, after which they will visit Chicago and other American cities.

Miss Marguerite E Marshall, one of Orangeville's amiable and fair young ladies, has just completed a very successful session at the College of Music, Toronto, under the tutorship of the distinguished Professor P. H. Torrington.

MONO CENTRE.

SICK.—Mrs. Wm. Henry, who has been in indifferent health for some time, is progressing slowly.

CONVALESCENT.—We are glad to state that Mr. Andrew McCague, who has been so ill for the past week, is convalescent.

HAS GOOD EFFECT.—By the number of picnic parties that visit this place we are led to the conclusion that our recommendation of the scenery here in THE SUN has not been without effect.

BEAUX AND BELLES.—Several of our young men, accompanied by their fair companions, took in the attractions in Orangeville on July 1st, and appeared well satisfied both with themselves and the celebration.

RELIGIOUS—Mr. J. A Leighton, of Orangeville conducted the service in St. Matthew's last Sunday evening... Rev. F. Woodger, preached his first sermon, to a large and attentive congregation in the Methodist church, Belfrey, last Sunday morning.

PLAYED WELL.—Our junior football club felt rather sore, after their defeat, but think they did fairly well under the circumstances. They hope, however, to cross "shins" with the Orangeville boys again before the season closes. The members of the club also take this opportunity of thanking the members of the celebration committee for the gentlemanly treatment received at their hands.

PERSONAL.—Miss Emily Glover is visiting friends in Arthur at present... Mr. Alex. Moore, of Listowel, who has been visiting friends in Mono for the past two weeks, returned home Monday...Our old friend, Mr. James McDonald, of Farmington, renewed old acquaintances round the Centre last week. It is needless to add that he was warmly received, and royally entertained at his old trysting place... Mr. E. A. Glover, who has been teaching at Connor, and Mr. J. J. Scott, engaged in the same profession at Singhampton, are spending their holidays under the parental roof.

J. M. BENNETT'S cellar is full of Bottled Ale and Porter. May also be had in kegs of 8 and 16 gallons each.

It Saved His Life.

GENTLEMEN,—I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, for it saved my life. We have used it in our family when required ever since, and it never fails to cure all summer complaints.

FRANCIS WALSH,
Dalkeith, Ont.

There are 6,250,000 Roman Catholics in the United States,

COW HURT.—A valuable cow belonging to Mr. D. Ferguson tore one of her teats nearly off in going through a wire fence the other day. Barbed wire fences are dangerous unless they are kept in good repair.

REPAIRED.—Under the supervision of Mr. J. R. Reid the gravel road, at what used to be called the lake, has been repaired in first-class style, showing that Mr. Reid understands how a job should be done.

THE WEATHER.—After a few cool days the weather has again become warm and it is rumored (I won't say how true) that so infatuated have some young men become with the heat that there are one or two who would like to be—Cooked.

MANITOBA CROPS.—A letter from Mr. W. H. Ferguson, one of the young men who went to Manitoba last spring, speaks in glowing terms of that country. He lives near Pilot Mound and says that they have had abundance of rain and that crops are very promising indeed.

SICK.—Mrs. J. B. Reid was in town on Monday and when on her way home was taken so ill that she had to remain at Mr. J. A. Simpson's and a doctor sent for, who pronounced her disease inflammation of the bowels. As medical aid was so promptly called in it is hoped she will be all right again shortly.

LAWN SOCIAL.—The lawn social at the residence of Mr. Thomas Simpson on Monday evening was a grand success. A most exciting game of football took place early in the evening and it was amusing to see how the young men and boys tripped one another up in spite of all association rules or we may add any other rules. There were many present from Orangeville, some of whom walked out, and one and all felt themselves amply rewarded for their trouble.

EXAMINATION.—School closed here on June 30th. Mr. Black, the teacher, held a public examination on Friday, which I am surprised to say very few of the parents attended. This is certainly not the way to encourage either the teacher or pupils. Mr. J. C. Reid of Orangeville, however, was present during the afternoon and assisted Mr. Black in the work. After hearing the different classes he addressed the children, pointing out to them the importance of an education and the necessity of regular attendance and close application in order to obtain it. He also congratulated the pupils on the very good order and, as a sequence, the improvement of the scholars.

FIRE INSURANCE.—If you want to be insured in the strongest and best companies in Canada, call on F. Irwin, over Endacott's store, Orangeville.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against these spurious imitations, and are asked to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c a box) by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Coal, Public Buildings," will be received until Thursday, 23rd July next, for coal supply, for all or any of the Dominion Public Buildings.

Specifications, form of tender, and all necessary information can be obtained at this Department on and after Monday, 13th June.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted bank cheque made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to five per cent. of the amount of tender, which will be forfeited if the party decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or if he fail to supply the coal contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The department will not be bound to accept the lowest or any tender.

STRIKE.—Shortly after 9 o'clock on Friday four laborers employed clearing out the waterworks reservoir struck work for an increase of wages. The men have been receiving $1.25 per day and they thought they were entitled to $1.50. The employes did not inform the F. & W. chairman of their intention to strike, and when that individual learned what was up he at once paid the men off and let them go. Constable Hubbard speculated on the work and now he's boss of the job.

I. O. O. F OFFICIALS INSTALLED.—At the regular meeting of Maple Leaf lodge, No. 76, I. O. O. F., held in their lodge room, Jackson block, on Thursday evening, the following officers were installed: D. B. Brown, P. G., Robert Hughes, N. G., F. B. Parker, V. G., W. W. Bradley, R. S., George Cobean, P. S., Richard Mortimer, T., J. A. Glover, W., J. H. Riddell, C., Richard Kyle, O. G., Fred Bradley, R. S. N. G., J. J. White, L. S. N. G., John Brown, R. S. S., Joseph Ogston, L. S. S.

BROKE HER ARM.—Little eight year old Mabel Hall met with a very serious accident on Monday afternoon and it was very fortunate that it was not attended with fatal results. The little girl and several companions were playing on the roof of a shed in the rear of Mr. J. S. Feed's bank, east Broadway, when Mabel became overbalanced and fell to the ground, a distance of ten or twelve feet, lighting on her arm. The force of the fall was such as to break her left wrist in two places. The break is a very bad one, but under medical attendance the little sufferer will soon regain the use of the injured limb.

AT LAST.—The unfortunate East ward has at last its full share of councillors. At the nomination last week three candidates were nominated, Messrs J. A. McMaster, George Robinson, and S. H. McKitrick. They all resigned except the last named gentleman, and he had the field all to himself. It takes two or more persons to make a fight, as a man cannot have much satisfaction fighting with himself, therefore Mr. McKitrick slipped in without opposition. Either one of the three gentlemen mentioned above would make a painstaking representative. Mr. McKitrick has had a great deal of municipal experience and THE SUN hopes he will be able to give a satisfactory account of himself when his term of office expires.

ON ITS EAR.—Last week's Mt. Forest Representative felt very sore over its puffed-up Lornes failing to defeat the Dufferins of this town at a game of lacrosse played there recently. The Rep, we are informed, mistate matters when it says the Dufferins forfeited the match by stopping play at 3:30 o'clock in order to catch the train for home. At the district meeting held here early in the season it was agreed that which ever club scored the most games before that hour should be awarded the match. Previous to this arrangement the other clubs of the district had to remain at Mt. Forest over night and thereby would loose at least a day and a half. When the Lornes are winning at home everything goes all right, but when they begin to lose—well, they don't treat their visitors as they should.

A FORMER MONO RESIDENT DEAD.—At Toronto on Friday last death removed a former resident of Mono in the person of Rachael Curry, wife of Mr. David Montgomery. The deceased lady was 38 years of age and had resided in the township of Mono until a year and a half ago, when they removed to the city. Mrs. Montgomery had not enjoyed good health for about two years, having suffered from that incurable disease, cancer in the breast. The sorrowing members of the family—a husband and two daughters—have the sincere sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement. Six years ago they lost five children by diphtheria, the remains came to Orangeville by Saturday evening's train and were conveyed to the residence of her father, Mr. Jas H. Curry, lot 5, con. 5, Mono, the funeral taking place on Sunday, which was very largely attended.

GETTING BETTER.

The Injured Acrobats Are Rapidly Recovering.

TORONTO, July 6, 1891

Editor SUN, Orangeville.

DEAR SIR.—Doubtless some of your readers would like to hear of the progress made by the two trapeze performers who where injured by the breaking of the loop during the performance at Orangeville on Dominion day. Both are doing nicely and will soon be around all right again. One of them, Mr. Ashley, did not feel his injuries so much till the next day. However, the soreness and stiffness is rapidly going away and they are limbering up. It was a narrow escape for both particularly for Mr Power who was underneath, and we can be thankful that it did not turn out worse. The true cause of the accident was that the loops were already rather worn and the action of the rain I noted to still weaken them more and when the heavy drop was made on them they gave way with the consequences you know. We all wish to convey our thanks for the kind gratitude expressed by the people of Orangeville and visitors for the condition of the injured, also that the kindly services of Dr. Henry were fully appreciated. The committee also and every thing in their power. Jack Harkaway and Punk Plunk Pinto send their regards to everybody and wish to express their thanks to the owner of their companions, the mule and horse and dog. They are in good spirits and hope that the public enjoyed their frolics as much as they did themselves. Concluding, I beg to congratulate Orangeville and the committee for their successful demonstration.

Yours truly,

C. H. Dorenwend.

CHARLESTON.

MARRIED.—Miss Wilson, daughter of Rev. A. Wilson, was married here yesterday. Full particulars next week.

GARDEN PARTY.—Don't forget the garden party to be held on the beautiful lawn of Mr. Thos. Smith, on Monday evening next. Strawberries free. The citizens' band of Orangeville will be present and discourse sweet music during the evening. All are invited.

MONO.

GARDEN PARTY.—The congregation of St Paul's church, Mono, intend holding their annual garden party on Friday evening, July 10, at the residence of Mr. James Quinn, sr., lot 22, con. 1, Adjala. Games and amusements of various kinds will be provided. Tea served at 6:30. We hope to see a large attendance.

The Australian Commonwealth.

The Australian Commonwealth will have grand results, but the results of using Burdock Blood Bitters for diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood surpass all expectations. Dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, scrofula, etc., are promptly cured by B.B.B.

THE CONTRACT RENEWED FOR THREE YEARS LONGER.

T. P. C. BUYING ANOTHER BIG BELL.

T. T. KING'S LONG LEASE

Letter From Lady Macdonald—The Chief's Financial Fall—Other Interesting Notes.

The aldermen of this monster celebrated town assembled in the council chamber on Monday evening after an interval of three weeks. About a dozen interested spectators and three gentlemen of the press, who by cruel fate have to attend such gatherings, constituted the audience. There was only one vacant chair at the table and that belonged to Mr. S. H. McKitrick, the East ward's new member who has not yet taken the oath of office.

The following batch of

were presented and ordered paid: H. Flesher, $2.50; J. Huskinson, 80c.; D. McDonald, $308.50; Jas. Graham, $40.50; Jno. Hicks, 2.55; Wm Irwin, $8.25; Dominion Express Co. 60c; Post, $2.50. Bills from Rosewell & Hutchinson, $5.11; D McDonald, $5.35; A. Jones, $10; R Irvine, $14.20, were referred to their respective committees.

FROM LADY MACDONALD.

The mayor received the following letter from Mr. Joseph Pope:—Lady Macdonald desires me to ask you to be good enough to convey to the members of the corporation of the town of Orangeville her grateful thanks for their tribute of respect to the memory of Sir John Macdonald, and sympathy with her in her affliction.

WHO'LL BE LIVING THEN?

Mr. T. T. King communicated his desire to lease a strip of land in the rear of the waterworks for a term of 99 years, for which he would contribute $5 per annum. As all of us will have quitted this vale of tears long before that time it was thought wise to leave the matter to the T. P. committee for report.

Inspector of Weights and Measures Lyons of Ottawa wrote certifying that the town weigh-scales were all O. K.

FOR HIGHER EDUCATION.

Mr. John Kearns of the high school board informed the council that they would require $1,150 as the town's share to keep things in running order at the high school for the next year. This grant is something like $200 more than last year.

LAND INUNDATED.

Dr. Henry and several other owners of land along the river Credit complained that the river-bed was blockaded with rubbish and that the water overflowed their land, rendering it almost useless. Mr. Thos. Stevenson addressed the council later on in the evening, and the matter was referred to the R. & B. committee.

A NEW BELL.

Deputy-reeve Endacott brought down the T. P. committee's report and moved that the council go into committee of the whole. The report recommended that 2150 lb bell be purchased from McNeilly Bros., bellfounders, of Troy, N. Y., for the sum of $486. Several offers were received from other manufacturers, but the Troy firm got the call. Mr W. T. Bailey was appointed overseer of works while the waterworks building is in course of construction.

ILLUMINATION.

Ald. Fiddis, chairman of the S. L. committee, read a very extended report from that committee. The council went into committee of the whole on the matter and remained there for nearly an hour. The company offered to supply the town with 26 arc lamps on the streets for $1 250 per year and 20 incandescent lights in the town hall and council chamber for $50 more. The report said the offer was too high and Mr J. S. Leighton one of the shareholders, addressed the council. After talking the matter over for some time it was agreed to put in 25 incandescent lamps free. The committee rose and the report was adopted.

Ald. Ketchum read the R & B report. Four hundred and seventy dollars have been expended on the streets this year.

Ald. Gillespie rung in the F. & W. report. The reservoir had been cleaned out and a grant of $50 was asked for it was given.

SQUIBS.

Chief Shields, who receives 10 per cent for looking after the dog-tag industry, was voted $15 as his percentage.

Ald. Fiddis moved that the council adjourn until the first Monday in August, but the fathers objected to taking their holidays before that month.

MARSVILLE.

NOTHING IN IT.—The people of this township, no doubt, were considerably amused over alleged correspondence that appeared in one of your town papers last week regarding the doings of the township council and unnamed leading men. Whoever wrote the article did not know whereof he spoke, or else he is a condrmed ass. To make a statement that the ratepayers of this township are deprived of their franchise by hole-and corner meetings of leading men is nothing short of throwing a slur on the intelligence of the people. The elections, as the nameless scribbler stated, are not settled by hole and corner meetings, but are determined by the votes of intelligent ratepayers. The people are not waking up to see the sad state of things, because such do not exist, and there will be no shaking up of dry bones on nomination day, because this municipality has no use for such a commodity. Everything is running satisfactorily in municipal matters here, and nobody is kicking up a racket except a disappointed Orangeville printing office. The council holds public meetings, and there is no star-chamber business about it; and, moreover, the minutes are published regularly in THE SUN, the only reliable newspaper published in the town. If the kickers, who are very, very few in number, attended the council meetings or read THE SUN they would feel like crawling into a knot hole and pulling the hole in after them.

LAW'S ARM TOO SHORT.

It Cannot Reach the Boys who Desecrate the Sabbath.

In the last issue of a local journal a charge is made against Police Magistrate Pattullo to the effect that he had refused to take informations from the chief of police against boys for disgraceful conduct about the C. P. R. station on Sunday afternoons. In accordance with our duty as an independent journal and leader of public opinion, we sent our reporter to interview the P. M. on subject, and showing him a copy of the paper, which he had not before seen, the justice said he had no remembrance of the happening of the circumstances mentioned. He also informed the scribe that last week the chief did lay information against a number of "kids" for bathing in public places, but that on the following day after the summonses were made out the informations were withdrawn. The magistrate also said he remembered the chief making mention of boys loitering about the station, and discussing the desirability of proceedings, but neither he nor the town officials could find any law or town by-law broad enough to overtake such cases, and the court did not deem it a part of its duty to summon a lot of boys for the purpose of giving them a moral lecture and then discharge them because there is no "move on" bylaw under which to convict.

The magistrate does not appear to think the police court is a good substitute for parental discipline. He thinks that if parents, by pernicious precept, worse example, and neglect to send their children to public or Sabbath schools, allow their children to grow up morally blind, they must expect them to appear before a police court, but not for minor offences which parents should correct but under serious charges which will bring disgrace in families and imprisonment to the offender.

We are not apologizing for the P. M., but so far as we see he has no desire to shirk his duty or to refuse to deal with informations for charges cognizable to the law or town by law, but he does not purpose that his court shall take the place of other moral forces which should do their share toward the well ordering of the community.

As there does not appear to be any law to reach the offence complained of by the journal in question, and which are really doing much hurt to many of the youths of the town, and as parents will not do their duty by their children, we would suggest that the complaining editor and other benevolently disposed persons, including the P. M., should collect things astray in an upper chamber on Sabbath afternoons and read to them the shorter catechism, and by good precept and better example make them better citizens, and in some degree modify the evils resulting from vicious and cruelly neglectful parentage.

The Great Female Medicine.

The functional irregularities peculiar to the weaker sex, are invariably corrected without pain or inconvenience, by the use of Dr. Morse's Indian root Pills. They are the safest and surest medicine for all the diseases incidental to females of all ages, and the more especially so in this climate. Ladies who wish to enjoy health, should always have these Pills. No one who once uses them once will allow herself to be without them. Dr Morses Indian Root Pills are sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Mr. Carl Martens a well known musician, died at Toronto Monday.

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use.

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

Kennedy's Pills.—The Great Blood-Purifier is the life, and so far pretty our health—and all our enjoyment depends. These Pills thoroughly cleanse the vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that means strengthen and invigorate the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, express accumulated matter, and establish the circulation and secretions throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Kennedy's Pills exercises marvellous power in giving tone to debilitated and wanted constitutions. These pills remove dyspepsia, both in the bowels and stomach, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or have from some cause lost their tone.

ARCHIVES OF ONTARIO TORONTO

Mr. J. A. Glover, the well-known [illegible]ander, has accepted a situation at [illegible] house.

A [illegible] bootblack arrived in town [illegible] and is busily engaged raking [illegible] fences.

The Citizens' band will hold an open-air concert on Broadway to-morrow (Friday) evening.

Guiness's Dublin Porter and and Bass's Ale, in Pints and Quarts, kept constantly in stock at J. M. Bennett's.

A large number are writing at the teachers' examinations, which opened in the high school here on Tuesday.

Pure Grape Wines and Brandies, for medicinal purposes, always to be had at J. M. Bennett's Wine & Liquor Store.

The Citizens' band did not materialize on Saturday evening, and, consequently, there was no open air concert.

A very successful lawn social was held at the residence of Mr. Thos. Simpson, Vanatter, on Monday evening.

Our correspondents would oblige us very much if they could manage to get their productions in this office a little earlier.

Most likely a lacrosse match will take place on Monday, July 13th, between the Dufferins and some neighboring team.

Irish Whiskies a specialty. Gooderham & Worts' 5 and 7 year old kept as staple goods at J. M. Bennett's Wholesale House.

A garden party will be held at the residence of Mr. R. W. Ritchie to-morrow (Friday) evening. Music by Orchestra band.

Town Orangemen will attend the Methodist church on Sunday morning next, the 12th. The Citizens' band will accompany them.

A train load of excursionists from Toronto visited the Forks on Friday, but the downpour of rain prevented many from leaving the cars.

A team of horses attached to a farmer's wagon took a dash up Broadway on Friday afternoon, but were stopped before any damage was done.

A garden party in aid of St. Paul's church, Mono, will be held at the residence of Mr James Quinn, sr., lot 22, 1st con., Adjala, to-morrow (Friday) evening.

The loose planks on the sidewalk on Broadway, which were referred to in last week's SUN, have been nailed down, and now you can walk along without tripping.

The street light contract has been renewed for the next three years. Twenty-three lamps are on the streets now, but this number will be increased to twenty-six.

The town hall and council chamber will soon be illuminated by twenty-five sixteen candlepower incandescent lights instead of two twelve hundred candle power arc lamps as at present.

Orange Wiley, Daniel Calder, Peter Campbell and Ernest Delaney, were each fined $1 and costs by P. M. Patton in yesterday for trespassing on the C. P. R. cattle grounds on Sunday and abusing the cattle.

The attractions of a trip to Mackinac Island via the [illegible] and [illegible] round-trip [illegible] to this [illegible] their ap[illegible] the [illegible] man whose spring suit was too pretty to allow of his wearing an overcoat has been literally confined in goose flesh.

In a letter from his old friend, E. P. Gordon, surgeon of the Empress of Japan, to Dr Tom Henry it is learned that the last of the beautiful tourist boats of the C. P. R. Co., has arrived safely in port at Vancouver. The next time it touches Vancouver will be Sept 1st.

BORN, MARRIED AND DIED.—There were registered at the town clerk's office during the month of June 2 births, 1 marriage and 3 deaths.

A BAD GASH.—Last evening a thirteen-year old boy named Thompson, who resides in the vicinity of the C. P. R. station cut his knee cap so badly that it required several stitches to close the wound.

ALL COMING HERE.—As the glorious 12th draws near, neighboring lodges have accepted the invitation to celebrate the battle of the Boyne in Orangeville. Mt. Forest and Erin lodges have decided to come to the loyal capital of Dufferin.

POSTPONED.—Owing to the unfavorable weather the garden party announced to take place at the residence of Mr. Robert Jackson, Cardwell, on Tuesday has been postponed until this Thursday evening. The Orangeville Orchestra band has been engaged and a pleasant time is anticipated.

LACROSSE MATCH.—An interesting game of lacrosse will be played here on the exhibition grounds on Wednesday, July 15th, between the Dufferins [illegible] and the Excelsiors of [illegible] intermediate champions of [illegible]. An interesting and good [illegible] of lacrosse may be expected, [illegible] called sharp at 3 o'clock. Admission [illegible] gentlemen 15c., ladies and [illegible] 10c.

[illegible] STRIKE.—Shortly after [illegible] Friday four laborers employed [illegible] tended with fatal results. The little girl and several companions were playing on the roof of a shed in the rear of Mr. J. S. Feed's bank, east Broadway, when Mabel became overbalanced and fell to the ground, a distance of ten or twelve feet, lighting on her arm. The force of the fall was such as to break her left wrist in two places. The break is a very bad one, but under medical attendance the little sufferer will soon regain the use of the injured limb.

AT LAST.—The unfortunate East ward has at last its full share of councillors. At the nomination last week three candidates were nominated, Messrs J. A. McMaster, George Robinson, and S. H. McKitrick. They all resigned except the last named gentleman, and he had the field all to himself. It takes two or more persons to make a fight, as a man cannot have much satisfaction fighting with himself, therefore Mr. McKitrick slipped in without opposition. Either one of the three gentlemen mentioned above would make a painstaking representative. Mr. McKitrick has had a great deal of municipal experience and THE SUN hopes he will be able to give a satisfactory account of himself when his term of office expires.

ON ITS EAR.—Last week's Mt. Forest Representative felt very sore over its puffed-up Lornes failing to defeat the Dufferins of this town at a game of lacrosse played there recently. The Rep, we are informed, mistates matters when it says the Dufferins forfeited the match by stopping play at 3 30 o'clock in order to catch the train for home. At the district meeting held here early in the season it was agreed that which ever club scored the most games before that hour should be awarded the match. Previous to this arrangement the other clubs of the district had to remain at Mt. Forest over night and thereby would loose at least a day and a half. When the Lornes are winning at home everything goes all right, but when they begin to lose—well, they don't treat their visitors as they should.

A FORMER MONO RESIDENT DEAD.—At Toronto on Friday last death removed a former resident of Mono in the person of Rachael Curry, wife of Mr. David Montgomery. The deceased lady was 38 years of age and had resided in the township of Mono until a year and a half ago, when they removed to the city. Mrs. Montgomery had not enjoyed good health for about two years, having suffered from that incurable disease, cancer in the breast. The sorrowing members of the family—a husband and two daughters—have the sincere sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement. Six years ago they lost five children by diphtheria, the remains came to Orangeville by Saturday evening's train and were conveyed to the residence of her father, Mr Jas H. Curry, lot 5, con. 5, Mono, the funeral taking place on Sunday, which was very largely attended.

GETTING BETTER.

The Injured Acrobats Are Rapidly Recovering.

TORONTO, July 6, 1891

Editor SUN, Orangeville

DEAR SIR,—Doubtless some of your readers would like to hear of the progress made by the two trapeze performers who were injured by the breaking of the loop during the performance at Orangeville on Dominion day. Both are doing nicely and will soon be around all right again. One of them, Mr Ashley, did not feel his injuries so much till the next day. However, the soreness and stiffness is rapidly going away and they are limbering up. It was a narrow escape for both particularly for Mr Power who was underneath, and we can be thankful that it did not turn out worse. The true cause of the accident was that the loops were already rather worn and the action of the rain united to still weaken them more and when the heavy drop was made on them they gave way with the consequences you know. We all wish to convey our thanks for the kind solicitude expressed by the people of Orangeville and visitors for the condition of the injured, also that the kindly services of Dr Henry were fully appreciated. The committee also did every thing in their power. Jack Harkaway and Punk Plunk Plinkend their regards to everybody and wish to express their thanks to the owner of their companions, the mule and horse and dog. They are in good spirits and hope that the public enjoyed their frolics as much as they did themselves. Concluding, I beg to congratulate Orangeville and the committee for their successful demonstration.

Yours truly,
C. H. Dorenwend.

CHARLESTON.

MARRIED.—Miss Wilson, daughter of Rev. A Wilson, was married here yesterday. Full particulars next week.

GARDEN PARTY.—Don't forget the garden party to be held on the beautiful lawn of Mr. Thos. Smith, on Monday evening next. Strawberries free. The citizens' band of Orangeville will be present and discourse sweet music during the evening. All are invited.

MONO.

GARDEN PARTY.—The congregation of St Paul's church, Mono, intend holding their annual garden party on Friday evening, July 10 at the residence of Mr. James Quinn, sr., lot 22, con. 1, Adjala. Games and amusements of various kinds will be provided. Tea served at 6.30. We hope to see a large attendance.

The Australian Commonwealth.

The Australian Commonwealth will have grand results, but the results of using Burdock Blood Bitters for diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood surpass all expectations. Dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, scrofula, etc., are promptly cured by B.B.B.

an interested spectators and three gentlemen of the press, who by cruel fate have to attend such gatherings, constituted the audience. There was only one vacant chair at the table and that he longed to Mr. S. H. McKitrick, the East ward's new member who has not yet taken the oath of office.

The following batch of

were presented and ordered paid: H. Flesher, $2.50; J. Huskisson, 80c.; D. McDonald, $308.50; Jas. Graham, $40.50; Jno. Hicks, 2.55; Wm. Irwin, $8.25; Dominion Express Co. 60c; Post, $2.50. Bills from Rosewell & Hutchinson, $5.11; D McDonald, $5 35; A. Jones, $10; B Irvine, $14 20, were referred to their respective committees.

FROM LADY MACDONALD.

The mayor received the following letter from Mr. Joseph Pope:—Lady Macdonald desires me to ask you to be good enough to convey to the members of the corporation of the town of Orangeville her grateful thanks for their tribute of respect to the memory of Sir John Macdonald, and sympathy with her in her affliction.

WHO'LL BE LIVING THEN?

Mr. T. T. King communicated his desire to lease a strip of land in the rear of the waterworks for a term of 99 years, for which he would contribute $5 per annum. As all of us will have quitted this vale of tears long before that time it was thought wise to leave the matter to the T. P. committee for report.

Inspector of Weights and Measures Lyons of Ottawa wrote certifying that the town weigh-scales were all O. K.

FOR HIGHER EDUCATION.

Mr. John Kearns of the high school board informed the council that they would require $1,150 as the town's share to keep things in running order at the high school for the next year. This grant is something like $200 more than last year.

LAND INUNDATED.

Dr. Henry and several other owners of land along the river Credit complained that the river-bed was blockaded with rubbish and that the water overflowed their land, rendering it almost useless. Mr. Thos. Stevenson addressed the council later on in the evening, and the matter was referred to the R. & B. committee.

A NEW BELL.

Deputy-reeve Endacott brought down the T. P. committee's report and moved that the council go into committee of the whole. The report recommended that 2150 lb bell be purchased from McNeilly Bros., bellfounders, of Troy, N. Y., for the sum of $486. Several offers were received from other manufacturers, but the Troy firm got the call. Mr W. T. Bailey was appointed overseer of works while the waterworks building is in course of construction.

ILLUMINATION.

Ald. Fiddis, chairman of the S. L committee, read a very extended report from that committee. The council went into committee of the whole on the matter and remained there for nearly an hour. The company offered to supply the town with 26 arc lamps on the streets for $1.350 per year and 20 incandescent lights in the town hall and council chamber for $50 more. The report said the offer was too high, and Mr J. S. Leighton one of the shareholders, addressed the council. After talking the matter over for some time it was agreed to put in 25 incandescent lamps free. The committee rose and the report was adopted.

Ald. Ketchum read the R. & B report. Four hundred and seventy dollars have been expended on the streets this year.

Ald. Gillespie rung in the F. & W report. The reservoir had been cleaned out and a grant of $50 was asked for. It was given.

SQUIBS.

Chief Shields, who receives 10 per cent for looking after the dog tag industry, was voted $15 as his percentage.

Ald. Fiddis moved that the council adjourn until the first Monday in August, but the fathers objected to taking their holidays before that month.

MARSVILLE.

NOTHING IN IT.—The people of this township, no doubt, were considerably amused over alleged correspondence that appeared in one of your town papers last week regarding the doings of the township council and unnamed leading men. Whoever wrote the article did not know whereof he spoke, or else he is a condrmed ass. To make a statement that the ratepayers of this township are deprived of their franchise by hole-and-corner meetings of leading men is nothing short of throwing a slur on the intelligence of the people. The elections, as the nameless scribbler stated, are not settled by hole and corner meetings, but are determined by the votes of intelligent ratepayers. The people are not waking up to see the sad state of things, because such do not exist, and there will be no shaking up of dry bones on nomination day, because this municipality has no use for such a commodity. Everything is running satisfactorily in municipal matters here, and nobody is kicking up a racket except a disappointed Orangeville printing office. The council holds public meetings, and there is no star-chamber business about it; and, moreover, the minutes are published regularly in THE SUN, the only reliable newspaper published in the town. If the kickers, who are very, very few in number, attended the council meetings or read THE SUN they would feel like crawling into a knot hole and pulling the hole in after them.

officials could find any law or town by-law broad enough to overtake such cases, and the court did not deem it a part of its duty to summon a lot of boys for the purpose of giving them a moral lecture and then discharge them because there is no "move on" bylaw under which to convict.

The magistrate does not appear to think the police court is a good substitute for parental discipline. He thinks that if parents, by pernicious precept, worse example, and neglect to send their children to public or Sabbath schools, allow their children to grow up morally blind, they must expect them to appear before a police court, but not for minor offences which parents should correct but under serious charges which will bring disgrace in families and imprisonment to the offender.

We are not apologizing for the P. M., but so far as we see he has no desire to shirk his duty or to refuse to deal with informations for charges cognizable to the law or town by law, but he does not purpose that his court shall take the place of other moral forces which should do their share toward the well ordering of the community.

As there does not appear to be any law to reach the offence complained of by the journal in question, and which are really doing much hurt to many of the youths of the town, and as parents will not do their duty by their children, we would suggest that the complaining editor and other benevolently disposed persons, including the P. M., should collect things astray in an upper chamber on Sabbath afternoons and read to them the shorter catechism, and by good precept and better example make them better citizens, and in some degree modify the evils resulting from vicious and cruelly neglectful parentage.

The Great Female Medicine.

The functional irregularities peculiar to the weaker sex, are invariably corrected without pain or inconvenience, by the use of Dr. Morse's Indian root Pills. They are the safest and surest medicine for all the diseases incidental to females of all ages, and the more especially so in this climate. Ladies who wish to enjoy health, should always have these Pills. No one who ever uses them once will allow herself to be without them. Dr Morses Indian Root Pills are sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Mr. Carl Martens a well known musician, died at Toronto Monday.

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use.

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMPOUND

BRONCHITIS

136 Lexington Ave.,
New York City, Sept. 19, 1890.
I have used the Flax-Seed Emulsion in several cases of Chronic Bronchitis, and the early stages of Phthisis, and have been well pleased with the results.
JAMES K. CROOK, M.D.

CONSUMPTION

Brooklyn, N.Y., Feb. 14th, 1890.
I have used your Emulsion in a case of Phthisis (consumption) with beneficial results, where patient could not use Cod Liver Oil in any form.
J. H. DROGE, M. D.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 20th, 1890.
I can strongly recommend Flax Seed Emulsion as helpful in the relief and possibly the cure of all Lung, Bronchial and Nervous Affections, and a good general tonic in physical debility.
JOHN F. TALMAGE, M. D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 10th, 1890.
I regard Flax Seed Emulsion as greatly superior to the Cod Liver Oil Emulsions so generally in use.
D. A. CORTON, M. D.

WASTING DISEASES

137 West 54th St.,
New York, Aug. 6, 1890.
I have used your Flax-Seed Emulsion Compound in a severe case of Mal-nutrition and the result was more than hoped for—it was marvelous, and continuous. I recommend it cheerfully to the profession and humanity at large. M. H. GILBERT, M.D.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

People Wonder

WHEN they find how rapidly health is restored by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The reason is that this preparation contains only the purest and most powerful alteratives and tonics. To thousands yearly it proves a veritable elixir of life.

Mrs. Joe. Lake, Brockway Centre, Mich., writes: "Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an in my condition, my appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life, and I cannot thank you too much."

"We, the undersigned, citizens of Brockway Centre, Mich., hereby certify that the above statement, made by Mrs. Lake, is true in every particular and entitled to full credence."—O. P. Chamberlain, G. W. Waring, O. A. Wells, Druggists.

"My brother, in England, was, for a long time, unable to attend to his occupation, by reason of sores on his foot. I sent him Ayer's Almanac and the testimonials it contained induced him to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using it a little while, he was cured, and is now a well man, working in a sugar mill at Brisbane, Queensland, Australia."—A. Atswell, Sharbot Lake, Ontario.

THE WORLD'S WEDGE.

When they were united in wedlock,
He loved her fondly, I know,
For he often kissed her so kindly,
And tenderly told her 'twas so;
Often he'd sit him close by her
And call her his dear little wife;
He'd say as he smoothed her dark tresses
That she was the joy of his life.

If she felt her work grow aweary,
Or passed a sad, gloomy day,
Or a tear should steal to her eyelids,
How quickly he'd kiss it away.
Often and often she'd wonder
If woman had ever before
Been blessed with such a companion,
Or would be again evermore.

Time rushed them right into the future,
And somehow they drifted apart,
Though the gulf that keeps them asunder
Was shallow and near at the start,
His business was urgent and pressing,
Her turned to burdensome care,
And the troubles and sorrows of others
Neither seemed willing to share.

She sits at the head of his table,
With dignity wears his proud name;
She gives him the courtesy due him,
He graciously gives her the same;
Their halls are filled with bright splendors
They visit the witty and wise;
To the world they are happily living,
And yet they live in disguise.

Often her heart with its aching
Sighs for an old happy day,
When he, with his love and his kindness,
Kissed softly her tears all away.
The world with its beauty and gladness
Can ne'er fill the void in a heart,
Nor bind in a loving affection,
Together those drifted apart.

OLIVE VARCOE

—OR—

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER IX. (Continued.)

SIR HILTON TREWAVAS started to his feet, and retired a step or two from the body. This search was more than he could bear. It was not enough that Eleanor was murdered, but Olive must be murdered! Fate was too bitter against him.

"Mr. Damerel," said the inspector, "you spoke of a cord. I don't see it, sir."

"It was here when I left this place," said Vivian Damerel, looking up, angry and bewildered. "Look for it, pray! It was hanging loosely on the wrist. You will remember I told you we cut the knot, which was caught or entangled in a branch.

"It is not here, sir," said the inspector. "Perhaps Mr. Vigo has it. He watched the body while you were away."

"Vigo!" cried Vivian Damerel, "Vigo! do not go away. You are wanted."

When the party came up from Trewavas, they found Charles Vigo seated in the place where Vivian had left him, with his face turned away from the corpse. After a greeting almost silent in its painfulness, he had quited the group, out of respect to Sir Hilton's grief, which he was unwilling to witness. Now, on hearing his friend's voice, he came towards them slowly.

"We cannot see anything or any cord here sir," said the inspector. Have you got it, sir?"

"No, certainly not," replied Charles Vigo.

"But, Vigo," expostulated Vivian Damerel, "no one has been here but you, and the cord was on the poor girl's wrists when I left you."

"Indeed!" said Sir Charles Vigo, turning on his friend; "are you sure of that?" "I am positive," replied Damerel.

"Then look for it," responded Charles Vigo; "for if your statement be correct, and there was really a cord, it must certainly be here now, as no human being has been near this spot but me."

"If there was really a cord!" cried Damerel, in indignant astonishment. "You know there was."

"Excuse me, Damerel," said Charles; "you are too warm. I am not contradicting your statement. "I am taking for granted there was a cord, since you say there was; but where is it?"

In vexed wonder and annoyance Mr. Damerel aided the men in their search around the body, on the grass, by the brink of the pool, and beneath the branches. Of course there was no cord. They found, however, the book Eleanor had been reading, and a gold bracelet she had worn. Of these the inspector took possession.

"It was no robber who attacked her," he remarked, "for her ring is on her finger, and her purse untouched. What sort of cord was it, gentlemen, that you found?"

"I am not saying I found a cord," returned young Vigo. "It is Mr. Damerel who asserts he saw one."

"You will not dare to say that you saw no cord!" cried Damerel,—"that you did not see and handle the cord that Miss Varcoe wore yesterday on her waist for a girdle?"

"This is serious," observed the inspector. "It will be my duty, I fear, to arrest this young lady—that is, if you persist in your statement, Mr. Damerel."

"I persist in speaking the truth," he replied. "Charles Vigo, you are mad!"

Sir Hilton Trewavas here came forward.

"Gentlemen," said he, sorrowfully, "this is surely no time for dispute. Aid me to take this poor girl home to Trewavas, and leave the police to search for this missing cord, if there be one."

He, too, had dared to say "if," and Vivian Damerel felt himself greatly exasperated; yet affection for his friend kept him silent. He imagined that Charles Vigo had hidden the cord, and that his infatuation for Olive was driving him mad.

"I persist in saying there was a cord and it was Miss Varcoe's," said Damerel. "I saw her wear it three days ago."

At this moment Bolster stole up silently, and licked his master's hand. Charles Vigo started violently, and his face flushed. Then kneeling down, he let the dog jump on him, and, with his paws on his breast, press his honest head against his cheek. When the young man rose from his knee, there was a gleam of hope in his blue eyes, which he hid with drooping lids.

"It is strange, gentlemen, that you cannot agree on this important point," said the inspector. "Sir Hilton, the men are ready. I await your orders."

They took the dead girl up, and bore her gently along, her lover walking by her side, the others following—the most mournful procession that had ever entered the old mansion of Trewavas.

Then they came through the wood into the park, where a silent crowd met them, uncovering as they passed, and so on to the house, and up the great staircase into Eleanor's own room, where they laid her upon the bed. Then the men, with hushed tread, and tears upon their faces, stole away, giving place to women, who, mourning and weeping, arrayed her, with soft hands, for her bridal with the grave.

Sir Hilton had been obeyed. Through all the dreadful hours of this sad morning Mrs. Maristowe slept, happily unconscious of the ghastly truth. Voices and steps had both been hushed as they approached her room, and no hideous whisper of murder and of death had as yet fallen on her ears. Sir Hilton, true to his word, took the terrible duty upon himself of breaking to her the mournful news.

Awoke for that purpose by her maid, Mrs. Maristowe rose and dressed, feebly anxious for tidings, pitifully nervous and weak. She was a woman not used to strong emotions—one whom the world had used gently, and whose soul was too narrow either to bear or to feel a mighty grief. When the dreadful words were spoken that struck her childless, she gazed helplessly on Sir Hilton's face, and then broke out in querulous, useless reproaches.

"It is your fault," she said "yours. You are a cruel, heartless man. It was John who loved Eleanor! It was a revelation, but one so true, that all the shadows that before had pointed at it, now gathered together, like a cloud of facts, admitting no disbelief. Quiet, patient John! so silent, so forbearing, hiding his sorrow without complaint—had he indeed given him so hard a burden to bear?" Overwhelmed, he stood mute, shrinking at his own thoughts, trembling at the bereaved mother's cries and sobs.

"Drowned!" she cried; "how can Eleanor be drowned? Then you rowed her yesterday on the sea, though you told me you had not."

"No; no; she was drowned at the Lady's Bower," replied Sir Hilton; "they found her in a pool there. Doubtless it was an accident; she slipped her foot and fell in perhaps, and being unaided and alone——"

John had entered and heard this. He was white as ashes.

"Hilton," he said, in his quietest, saddest voice, "tell the truth; it is more merciful to tell it at once. Mrs. Maristowe, your daughter was murdered—cruelly, fiendly murdered. The wretch who has done it must hang; for if he be not hunted through the world, he will live a horror, a curse to others and to himself."

John took the shrieking woman in his arms as he spoke, as if to comfort her, and pressing her head upon his breast, he turned his white face towards his brother. Then Sir Hilton saw how woe worn it was, how stamped with agony and living patience it was, and seeing this, he knew that the worldly-wise, the coldly-calculating love that he had given to the dead girl was like a feeble lamp compared to the burning sun of John's passion.

"You loved her!" shrieked Mrs. Maristowe, clinging to the stricken man. "A mother's instincts are always true. I will take comfort from your voice. I will be led by your hand to look upon her dead face. Oh John, must we bear this?"

The young man trembled from head to foot, but he bore up the shrinking woman bravely.

"Be it so. I will lead you to her," he said, "Hilton stand aside. This is my task, think what you may. I loved her better than you. Let the stronger love have the deeper bitterness. You cannot drink my cup for me, though you try."

It was true; and Sir Hilton, chastened, stood aside and let his brother pass. He had striven to take upon himself the hardest part, but his feeble, prudent love was trampled down by this rush of passion, and he stood silent, and felt like an intruder, as he gazed upon John's deeper agony; yet he followed them instinctively into that hushed and silent room, where she lay dead upon her white couch.

Conventional, a shadow of fashion and of the world as she was, Mrs. Maristowe was a mother, bereaved of her only child, and all there was of depth, and of feeling in her unimpassioned soul, burst forth as she gazed upon the dead face of her daughter. Kneeling down, she pressed her in her arms, and shrieked, "Eleanor! Eleanor!" in a voice that rang through the old house, reaching Olive in her chamber as she too knelt, closing her ears with her hands, to shut out the dreadful sound.

The wretched mother kissed her child again and again, then she called John forward—John, who with hand on his eyes stood shrinking in the doorway.

"John," said she, "you loved her. You may kiss her before I shut her face away from the light."

John rushed forward, and flung himself on his knees by her mother's side. His patience, his courage, his meekness were gone; he was wild, incoherent,—almost savage.

"Mine now," he murmured; "Mine in death! Oh, Eleanor! no worldly selfish love can take you from me now! Here at last my despised affection, my broken heart are triumphant? Who has such a right as I to touch your dead lips? Oh, Eleanor! my love! my love!"

With his arm beneath his head, he kissed her, raining tears upon her face

In the midst of her grief, Mrs Maristowe glanced upon Sir Hilton a look of angry triumph. She was glad that he could see how much greater was John's love than his. But the look was lost, for Sir Hilton was too utterly broken down to heed it. He came forward slowly, and stood by John's side. His very soul within him was moved by his brother's grief, and the secret of his love.

"John," said he, putting his arm about him tenderly, "come away; this is too much for you to bear. Mrs. Maristowe, she was to have been my wife. I am not without heart, not without love for her."

He stooped as he spoke, and would have touched her cold cheek with his lips, but John—meek, quiet John—turned on him fiercely.

"Let her be, Hilton!" he cried. "She was yours living, she is mine dead. You shall not touch her. I loved her, what does it matter, telling my secret now; I loved her long before your prudent, cautious pride fastened greedy eyes upon her, and chose her for a wife. Let her be, I say! I did not intrude my wretched love upon you when she was yours, why intrude yours upon me now she is mine?"

He held his brother back with the force of a madman, and in the fixed glare of his eye there was a look of madness, or of wild grief akin to it, that startled away from Sir Hilton's mind all feeling of anger.

"John," said he, drawing gently back, "surely this is an unseemly struggle. I yield her to you dead, as I would living, had you been frank with me, and had she wished it. But I truly believed she loved me, and me only," he added, in a sad, low tone.

John looked upon him in a wild way, and Sir Hilton caught him in his arms as he fell forward senseless. They carried him to another room, and revived him slowly. He awoke at first for a moment calmly, then there grew a look of horror upon his face, followed quickly by the old meekness natural to him, and taking his brother's hand, he thanked him, and said he felt better, and would go away and try to sleep.

"Hilton," he pleaded, in that quiet voice of his, which came back now in all its old sweetness, "I fear I have talked too wildly. I could not help it. Even now I am not myself. Mrs. Maristowe, you will give me the key of that room to keep? I cannot bear that any other hand than mine should guard her."

Mrs. Maristowe yielded to his wish. She had locked the door, and now gave him the key; he kissed it with a sad smile.

"No one can touch her now," he said, with a ring of mournful triumph in his voice.

Sir Hilton led him away kindly; for he needed kindness and attention more than the unhappy mother, who sank down on her bed to weep and cry. In his own room John looked sorrowfully upon his brother.

"I gave your message to Olive," he said, "but she would not listen; she would not go. She is at Trewavas still. She scorns your aid, she says, and she will not be saved by you. She will save herself."

"It wanted but this to fill my cup," said Sir Hilton, bitterly.

"Do not fear for Olive," continued John. "She is a marvellous girl; she will clear herself. And besides, I swear she is innocent; she has not done this deed, Hilton."

"I wish I could think so, John," said his brother, with a heavy sigh. "Try to sleep for an hour, and then I will come to you again, and we will see what can be done. It is useless to talk now; you are too weary, too worn, to understand me."

John acquiesced, seemingly glad to be left alone with his grief, and Sir Hilton, closing the door softly, went with a heavy heart to the hall, where the inspector of police awaited him.

"Mine is a hard duty, Sir Hilton," said the inspector, rising, as the baronet entered, "and I wish to do it with every respect to your feelings, and, as far as possible, to your wishes also. I went to the little station here, sir, and telegraphed for orders. In the message sent back I am commended to gain all the information possible, and I am told to remain here, and take every precaution that—that none of the household——"

"Escape," concluded Sir Hilton. "Do your duty, inspector. I can have nothing else to my to you but that."

"Of course, Sir Hilton," continued the inspector, "respected as you are in the county, you will be anxious, for the sake of your family, to clear up the mystery; and you may rely on my using my utmost skill to discover the right party. Have you suspicions yourself, sir, pointing to any person?"

"None," replied Sir Hilton, abruptly. "My belief is, that the poor girl slipped into the pool accidentally, and was drowned."

"Then you don't regard Mr. Damerel's story of a rope, sir?" inquired the inspector.

"No replied Sir Hilton. "I always took him to be a nervous, effeminate sort of man, given to exaggeration. I would take young Vigo's word a hundred times against his; and if he says there was no cord, I should believe him, and not the other."

The inspector was silent, and Sir Hilton went on warmly.

"It is far more likely, more natural to think, that she was drowned by accident," said he. "What human being could have a motive for killing so young, so gentle, so innocent a creature?"

"Jealousy is a cruel thing, sir," said the inspector, looking him in the face suddenly. "Jealousy has committed many a murder."

Sir Hilton Trewavas colored to the brow.

"Have you anything more to say to me that must necessarily be said?" he asked coldly.

"Very little, Sir Hilton," began the man, and then he hesitated. "The fact is, sir," he resumed, "Mr. Esliek, the superintendent of the district, will be here in an hour or two. I thought it best to send for him, sir, as I know you, as a magistrate, would like this matter cleared up as quickly as possible. I hope you'll excuse my not having waited for your orders, Sir Hilton. I saw you were much flurried, sir, so I took upon myself——"

"You telegraphed for Mr. Esliek?" said Sir Hilton.

"Yes, sir, and I have taken the liberty of asking Mr. Damerel and Mr. Vigo to stop here to see him," replied the man. "You are not offended, sir, I hope?"

"Offended!" said Sir Hilton. "You have only done your duty. I must do mine. I must send a message to the coroner."

Blindly hoping something from the clash of pompous magistrates with the fussy little coroner, Sir Hilton sent his telegram in feverish haste. With answering speed the coroner fixed the inquest for two o'clock the next day at the Trewavas Arms, in Trewavas Churchtown. And the jury—all men from the parish of Trewavas, and all dependent in different ways on the Trewavas family—were summoned by the constable that evening, and desired to attend punctually.

LEARN A TRADE.

A Chicago correspondent writes: There is an enormous number of unemployed Canucks in this city. They would be far better off at home than here. There are thousands of them, and most of them with good educations. In my opinion the so called "higher education" of your people is being overdone. When they leave college they are of no earthly use for business. I could write you a book full about the men who have gone through the Toronto University, and are working here for $30 a month.

I put an advertisement in the paper here on Sunday for a book-keeper, "Canadian preferred," and the one insertion of this brought me 498 replies, and out of these 132 had been through the Toronto University. This was last fall and the state of things is not much better now than it was then, and yet in all this interesting panorama of magnificent business and plenty of work, we cannot find good practical men with mechanical heads as salesmen, to whom we would willingly pay a good salary; and why is this so? Simply for pride on the part of our young men who prefer a so called "higher education" rather than soil their fingers with a mechanical training which would fit them for good and lucrative positions in the future.

ORANGEVILLE, JULY 16, 1891.

HER MAJESTY'S MAILS.

SINCE the Orangeville mail contract business was referred to in the House of Commons several days ago a great deal has been said about the matter by Mr. Mann, the late mail contractor. THE SUN has already devoted space to the subject, and has defended the course pursued by Mr. R. S. White, the young and talented member for Cardwell. Mr. Mann has had the contract of carrying the mails between the postoffice and the C. P. R. station for a number of years. His contract expired several months ago, but through some mistake in the P. O. department it was renewed for a term of four years. Mr White, who had previously obtained the Postmaster Generals word that tenders would be asked for, drew that official's attention to the error, and the contract was immediately cancelled. Was there anything wrong in this? If so we fail to see it. Tenders were then called for and six persons responded, Mr. Mann included. In due time the tenders were considered and the contract was awarded to the lowest tenderer. If there was anything crooked about cancelling Mr. Mann's contract why did he afterwards put in a tender? Mr Joseph Haddock, the present mail carrier, is doing the same work as satisfactorily as his predecessor for $55 a year less. These are undisputable facts and should convince any fair-minded individual that Mr. Mann has not been unfairly dealt with. It was only a matter of business and each received fair play. In our mind this is a case of "much ado about nothing."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

OUR friend "Don," in Toronto Saturday Night, thinks reports of executions should not be published. "Don," we thought you possessed a level head.

CANADA is generally looked upon by the people of the United States, as well as by the Canadians themselves, as very much more steady and prudent in all things than its great neighbor. The Canadians have maintained so strenuously that they believed in being sure, even if it were necessary to be a little slow, that other people have often taken them at their own expense.—Cleveland Leader.

ALL the New York papers, irrespective of party, are demanding the repeal of a clause in the electric execution law, which prohibits the publication of reports of executions and many are in favor of abolishing capital punishment. The papers publish such reports, however, and say they will continue to do so; and certainly the American people have a perfect right to know whether their murderers are painlessly killed or sizzled to death by electricity.

PARTYISM in politics has gone mad, says the Georgetown Herald, in Canada. We believe every man ought to be a politician in the highest sense of the word, but we do not believe that he ought to allow his party feelings to run so high that he will rejoice in the fact that political iniquity is discovered and proven to exist even amongst the ranks of his political opponents. Just now many of the Reform papers are expressing the keenest pleasure over the down fall of Thomas McGreevy, M. P., and the probable exposure of Sir Hector Langevin. There is not a single regret for the crime, not a thought of the influence of such dishonesty upon the public morals, not a reference to the fact that every citizen shares in the opprobrium which attaches to the down fall of a public man, but only joy at the thought of the possible influence the exposure may have in giving their party the reins of power. We are glad to say that there are some noble exceptions both amongst politicians and newspapers and we hope their numbers may increase. Let us look for and desire justice but let us feel and express regret at immorality and crime wherever it is found to exist.

Mr. H Falconer, of Shelburne, intends exhibiting four prize winning dogs at the bench shows to be held in Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and other places this fall.

WANTED FOR FORGERY.—W. B. McMillan the complainant in the Riverview chariva ri case reported last week, is now wanted on the charge of forging some promissory notes which he had discounted at the private bank of Wm. Lucas & Co., Dundalk. Warrants have been issued for his arrest. He left home on Friday, saying he was going to see the parties from whom he claimed to have received some of the notes, and was last seen walking on the railway track below Shelburne. McMillan has been quite a noted character in and around Riverview since taking up his abode there, and his case is one of absorbing interest to the people of that locality.

THAT BAND TOURNAMENT.—Loud complaints are being made that the band tournament at Mount Forest last week was not fairly conducted. Bands that had competed in first-class competitions—such as the Berlin band and the Truax band of Walkerton—were, contrary to rules, pitted against the little bands from surrounding places. Several protests have been entered, so we are informed, but Shelburne is "not in it." Our boys went to Mount Forest prepared to play in a second class competition—not to compete with bands like those above named, but, having expressed their opinion of the Mount Foresters' violation of all established rules and customs, they will let the matter drop.

Two prisoners escaped from the Central prison on Thursday.

COMMEMORATION OF THE BATTLE OF THE BOYNE.

Twelve Lodges Celebrate the Twelfth in Orangeville.

SPEECHES ON FIRST AV.

A GRAND PROCESSION AND EVERYBODY HAPPY.

Ever since Orangeville was a little village the Glorious 12th of July has been, with few exceptions, royally celebrated in this town. The 12th fell on Sunday this year, and the celebration took place on Monday the 13th. Celebrations were held in every hamlet and town around us, but they could not induce twelve lodges that decided to come to Orangeville to accept their invitations.

'Twas early in the morning when the Hockley lodge arrived, which was shortly afterwards followed by several more. Mr. James Dawson was master of ceremonies and rode a light colored horse in grand style, although it is fifteen years since he was in a saddle. Shortly after 8 o'clock Marshal Dawson took his place in front of the Citizens' band, Orangeville L. O. L. No. 635 bringing up the rear, and a was made. The down trains pulled into the station and about one hundred and fifty Orangemen from Mt. Forest alighted. The two lodges that came from Mt. Forest were composed mostly of young men and they were all dressed alike. Their dress consisted of white garibaldies and black trousers, with a stripe of Orange down each leg, and Orange colored sash with blue tassels tied around their waists. They were certainly the nicest dressed lodges that we have seen for some time. The procession was re-formed and a march up town took place, the band playing the selections in good style. While this was going on county lodges kept coming in, and at 10:30 a grand parade took place to the station to meet the up trains. A large number of Orangemen and the Charleston lodge arrived by this train and the procession returned up town to the market-square. The remainder of the morning was spent in viewing the town and renewing old acquaintances.

AFTER DINNER

the celebration commenced in earnest. A great procession was formed on the market-square and marched through the principal streets. The following is the order of the procession:

THE SPEECHES.

The procession halted at the town hall where the speeches were to be delivered, but the spacious building could not accomodate half the crowd, so they adjourned to First avenue where everything passed off pleasantly. County Master James Snell was chairman and made a fine opening address. He was followed by Dr. Lewis, Mayor Walsh, Rev. F. Burt, Cardwell, and Rev. Mr Williams, Mt. Forest. We were unable to procure a report of the above named gentlemen's speeches. Rev. Mr. Hambley, of Caledon East, was the last speaker. His subject was "The Aim and Object of the Orange Association." The Rev. gentleman said the training a child receives is seen in the course he adopts in after life. If Protestant principles are instilled in his being under the parental roof they are seen developing themselves in the future. There is something inspiring about such gatherings. At the sound of the cannon the war-horse has all his animal life aroused, and at the sound of fife and drum it is a summons to Orangemen and true Protestants to gird upon them the armor of loyalty and go forth to celebrate the greatest victory ever achieved by man. This of all victorys deserves celebration. The American nation celebrates their Independent Day. The Israelites, by the stones they erected, taught the generations the wonderful things God had done for them; likewise we, as Orangemen, by our yearly celebrations of the battle of the Boyne, teach the youths of our land that on this date William Prince of Orange, by the Grace of God, secured to Protestants the privilege of worshiping God under their own vine or fig tree. Thus our aim is to keep alive in the minds of the people the fact that Rome at this time was exerting a widespread influence, not for good but for evil. Also that Rome, though conquered, is neither dead nor idle, but is doing her utmost to secure the ground she lost. She is not where the battle of the Boyne left her, but has wriggled into politics, into our state schools, and given this fair Dominion endless trouble. Hence our aim is to keep this alive in the hearts of our people, the fact that none live to conquer and exterminate everything associated with Protestantism. Our aim is to encourage civilization by the enlightening and upbuilding influence of education. Any enterprise that has for its aim the glory of God and the good of man receives the sympathy and hearty support of Orangemen; this, Rome opposes, keeping her people in the dark. Our aim is to inculcate wholesome principles, if a man has good principles Orangeism does not destroy, but developes such principles. The necessity of the Orange Association is grounded upon the position which Rome occupies, viz: that of an enemy, being opposed to an open Bible and the Protestant religion.

DRUM BRAZE.

Marshal Dawson was the right man in the right place.

The east Broadway hotels did a rushing trade during the day.

The stores were handsomely decorated for the occasion.

Dick Brandon, all the way from Owen Sound, was filing for Aaron L. O. L. No. 427.

Very few drunks were to be seen on the streets and everybody conducted themselves in a seemly manner.

THE "SUN DANCE."

Broadview, Assa., June 16, 1891.

To the Editor of THE SUN:

DEAR SIR:—Having learned that the Indians on the reserve near this town were making extensive preparations for their yearly "Sun Dance," I had a great desire to attend the celebration and, if possible, learn something of its nature and what the various performances throughout the course of the dance signified. This is the crowning event of the year in Indian life and every Indian for miles around is expected to be present at this heathen act of worship, which, as they think, will render propitious the Good Manitou who may have hidden his face from them on account of their evil deeds and thus allowed the Evil Manitou to cause misfortune, sickness and death among their tribes. Invitations were sent to the Sioux and Stonies by the Crees to attend the dance which was to be held the 2nd and 3rd of June on their reserve, about 10 miles north-east of Broadview and 6 miles south of the Qu'Appelle river.

The programme of the dance did not commence until late in the afternoon of June 2nd, owing to the rain which fell in torrents the greater part of the day, but towards evening the clouds dispersed and the sun shone down in mild radiance upon the assembled tribes into whose darkened hearts the Sun of Righteousness had never yet sent his kindly beams. On the morning of June 3rd I accompanied my friend, Mr. Halsall, the Methodist Missionary at B., set out to the dance in a small sulky drawn by a spirited little Indian pony.

'Twas a lovely afternoon, everything being refreshed by the previous day's rain seemed to shed forth life and joy. Fair nature robed in her loveliest resplendent in the morning beam presented to the eye a scene of beauty beyond description. Our trail lay in a winding course along hillside and through valley, our rolling prairie dotted with green bluffs from which the feathered tribe warbled out their songs of melody, while numbers of gophers ran to and fro on all sides, popping in and out of their holes as if they were playing hide and seek with the sunbeams. Wild flowers—nature's gems—lined our way, filling the mild western breeze with their rich fragrance. Here and there in low lying valleys could be traced the outline of a beautiful little lake, on whose bosom the wild duck sported away its sunny hours, while far in the distance could be seen the lofty banks of the Qu'appelle rising in majestic grandeur to a height of some hundreds of feet.

Soon the distant beat of drums mingled with wild yells told us we were nearing the scene of the dance.

A strange feeling seemed to steal over me with the thought that we would soon be alone and unarmed amidst a host of wild Indians and Halfbreeds, who, if they wished, could overpower us in a moment. What a sight to behold, as we ascended a little hill by the side of our way and caught a glimpse of the situation. There upon a small plain enclosed by bluffs were not less than one hundred and thirty tents, on the canvas of which were painted figures of animals and birds indicative of the character or rank of the inmates. About three or four hundred ponies were grazing around the tents or in the bluffs seeming to enjoy their holiday quite as well as their masters. In the centre of the grounds was erected the great tent constructed of popular poles sitting on their ends around a circumference of 120 feet and meeting in the centre at a height of 20 feet. In and around this tent sat or stood not less than 1000 Indians and Halfbreeds, dressed in their best, the faces of the Indians being painted fantastically wild. Horsemen were stationed around the tent, who prevented our approach until we paid them a small sum of money. In the interior but, around part of the circumference of the tent, were two rows of cell like booths, about 6 x 2 feet and 3½ feet deep containing 3 dancers. These booths were constructed of popular poles interwoven with bows while from above hung flags and tapestry of various kinds and colors forming a sort of canopy for the dancers and partially screening their almost nude and hideously painted persons from public gaze. Each one blew a whistle and dancing up and down kept time to the beat of drums and tom tom (a dried buffalo skin) played by 16 drummers, who sat on the ground in a circle inside the dancers. These unfortunate creatures had to dance for 3 days and 2 nights without either food or drink to expiate for some sin they had committed that the Good Manitou might not be offended, that he might return to them and put to flight the Evil Manitou who troubled them. In an inner semi circle were the chiefs of the several tribes, the medecine man, and others of rank, while around the centre pole those who had to make propiation for special offences went through a cruel process of torture such as to create in one a sickening sensation. These poor victims are despised by every one, and all kinds of enumity is heaped upon them if they but flinch from the cruel knife, or show signs of pain or faint under their sufferings. Fifteen of these unhappy beings were to be tortured 12 of whom had been before we arrived but the remaining 3 were quite enough to make us disgusted with such a horrid sight.

The first we witnessed was a chief's son, known by the whites as "Old Billy" sullen and sad he sat in the centre of the heathenish throng, streaks of paint imitating blood ran down from his eyes. In his hands he held 2 flags—emblems of some spirit—and covered his body, which was painted yellow and dotted with blue, partially from sight. There was a moment of deadly silence not a whisper was to be heard even the dancers had crouched to the bottom of their booths, yet every eye was bent on Billy, who sat awaiting his doom. Then advances four Indians with blankets and other wrappings around them, followed by the medecin man who chosen some kind of herb and held in one hand two wooden pins, and in the other a hawk's wing and a knife. These having surrounded Billy, the medecin man caught the flesh of the unfortunate man's breast on one side, drew it out, pierced it through and inserted a wooden pin. Similiarly he did with the other side. To these pins were attached the ends of two ropes the other ends of which were attached to the top of the tent. Billy was raised to his feet and then thrown violently backward striking the ropes at full tension and drawing out the flesh and skin of his breast about five inches. Then he reared and danced for nearly an hour trying to tear out the pins at the same time keeping his hands behind his back and allowing his whole weight to be thrown on the ropes. During this time the other dancers were busy dancing and blowing their whistles. The drummers beat the drums and tom-tom, and every one generally set up a most frightsome howl. When Billy was about exhausted, having failed to tear out the pins from his breast, the medecin man caught him, fanned him with the hawk's wing, drew out the pins with his teeth, spat into the gashes the spittle from the herb he had been chewing and then led Billy trembling away. In the case of another the pins were put through the back of his shoulder the ropes attached to a horse which was driven quickly around the outside of the tent tearing loose the pins which took pieces of flesh and skin with them.

As I looked upon these unhappy beings I thought, surely doubly blessed is he who knows his sins pardoned through the merits of his Saviour—who dances because he is a child of God—in contrast to the poor benighted Indian who dances in such torture to make propitiation to some unknown spirit. At the close of this ceremony the chief of the Crees addressed the assembly speaking in a loud, hasty manner. He began by eulogizing our present government, and spoke very highly of her Majesty the Queen, and went on to say:—that this indeed was a great gathering, that the occasion of their meeting was a vast importance to the race; that the yearly celebrations were of great antiquity, but that they would soon be at a close, owing to the white man. He also spoke in flattering terms of their guests the Sioux and Stonies, and at the close grew somewhat humorous, saying that it was now dinner time, and that every nitch was to take the squaw of his choice to dine. Then he sat down amid wild applause and continued beating of drums. His speech was responded to by chiefs of the Sioux and Stonies but as my Halfbreed interpreter did not understand their dialect I was unable to learn what they said. The afternoon performance was the most solemn as well as the most interesting part of the ceremony, it being the occasion of the dance known as the "pow wow." During this dance two beautiful little ponies, some rifles and a number of blankets were brought as offerings to the Good Manitou, that the spirit of the chieftain's daughter, who was then at the point of death, might be admitted to the Happy Hunting ground. After a half hour's preparation in a small tent at some distance twelve Indians, led on by two chiefs, marched towards the large tent, followed by horsemen who stood as sentries around the outside. Two small boys rode on the two ponies and took their stand near the centre-pole of the tent around which the rifles and blankets were piles. They were all dressed very grandly, especially the chiefs and the twelve who were to lead the dance their moccasins were one mass of bead-work, strings of bells hung from their leggins, around their bodies they wore skins of animals profusely trimmed with beads and ribbons and on their heads they wore hawks heads and wings with buffalo horns sitting erect and projecting forward. In their hands they carried daggers, tomahawks, rifles and other warlike weapons, and forming a circle prepared for the dance.

Chief Chappawns now gave an address, stating that this dance would please the Good Manitou to whom he now brought these gifts, and spoke very affectionately of his daughter for whom they were offered. These articles were taken by the Stonies, the chief of whom in return made an appropriate speech. Then the dance began. The beating of drums the ring of the tom tom, the gingle of the bells and the wild yells of the Indians in all quarters rose a din that could be heard for miles around. One who has not witnessed the like can not imagine anything so unearthly. The dance ceased at intervals during which various braves were called upon to give an account of their adventures and tell what daring deeds they had done. The first said he had killed five horses belonging to the black feet (a tribe of hostil Indians near the Rocky Mountains) and took one scalp. The next told that he had stolen sixty horses from the same tribe, while a third said he had fasted four days. A forth said every time he went to the home of the Black feet he took a scalp and a fifth that he had killed two squaws and stolen fourteen horses etc. A volley of applause poured fourth from all sides when each darling deed was related.

This ended, brought the day's performance to a close, and we returned to Broadview as the sun was sinking low in the western sky, being glad to mingle again with our own people after a day of such wild adventure.

WENT UP IN SMOKE!

THE LENNOX HOUSE DESTROYED.

It is now about two months since the incendiary, who has cursed this town for many years by his presence, applied his torch to the waterworks buildings, and since then the people were beginning to imagine that he had gone away on a prolonged holiday. They were wrong for he made his appearance about 3.30 o'clock yesterday morning. At that early hour the bell on St. Mark's church rang—or tolled—its warning notes, and soon the firemen were on their way to the scene of the conflagration. Engineer Pickering, who resides about 100 yards from the waterworks, was awakened and in a very few minutes afterwards had steam up. As the erection of the new buildings is proceeding considerable time was lost turning the water supply into the reservoir, but, on the whole, the engineer acquitted himself creditably at this his first fire. Meanwhile the firemen had their hose laid and were throwing a into the burning structure. The Lennox house was a two-story brick building situated on east Broadway, and has been managed for the past two years by Joseph Edmunds. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, as the first flat was pretty well saturated with coal oil, and great volumes of black smoke poured out of all the windows.

The property was mortgaged for all it was worth and we believe there is an insurance of $3000 on the building. Thomas Chittick, occupied the eastern part of the building as a shoemaking shop and residence. His loss is covered by a $150 insurance policy in the Lancashire Assurance Co. Mr. Edmunds has his furniture insured in the Commercial Union for $1100, but says it will not cover his loss.

WHERE IS THE STRANGER?

The SUN's representative was among the first who arrived at the fire, and the proprietor of the house informed them a stranger was sleeping in a room on the second flat. After some difficulty a ladder was procured and raised to the stranger's bedroom window. The smoke was terrific, but one of the brave fellows fought his way through and searched the room. Even the bed tick was thrown out of the window, but no trace of the mysterious stranger could be found. Later on the firemen gave the premises a thorough search, but met with similar success.

EDMUNDS' STORY.

A SUN reporter interviewed Mr. Edmunds, who told the following story: Some time after three o'clock I was awakened by loud reports, such as the discharges of a gun, which were made by bottles exploding. I jumped out of bed and opened the door but the intense heat drove me back. I then closed the door and dressed myself. After I was dressed I opened the door and made my way to the stairs, and when half way down I lost consciousness. When I came to I found myself lying at the hall door at the foot of the stairs. I arose and found it unlocked, though I am positive I locked it at night. Had it been locked I don't think I could have escaped. A stranger came to the house and ordered a bed and I showed him to his room about 11. We were the only persons in the house and I did not see or hear him go out.

CHARLESTON.

The Caledon township council will meet here on Tuesday, August 11th.

EXAMS.—At the entrance examinations to the high school, held here two weeks ago, 14 candidates wrote. The results will be published next week.

HOME.—Mr. Peter Anderson, who has been attending the Orangeville high school and who wrote for a second class certificate, has returned home.

VERY SUCCESSFUL.—A very pleasant lawn party was held on the beautiful grounds surrounding the residence of Mr. Thos. Smith, on Monday evening, the proceedings being under the direction of the authorities of Knox church. A splendid supper had been prepared by the ladies. The tables were prettily arranged and were indeed very inviting. The programme consisted of music, speeches, etc, and the Indian club swinging by the Misses Vogan was loudly applauded. Rev. A. Wilson gave a short address in his usual good style. He heartily thanked those present for their attendance. Rev. Mr. Orr of Mono Mills, Rev. Mr. Hagar and Mr. W. L. Wilson also gave short addresses which were listened to attentively. Mr. George Atkinson ably filled the position of chairman. Mr J. L. Dodds and other gentlemen did everything possible for the enjoyment of all. Mr. Smith, on whose grounds the party was held, was as genial as ever and made every one feel at home, which added immensely to the successful termination. The programme pleased the large audience and Orangeville Citizens' band rendered choice music during the evening. A large number were present from Orangeville and other places and $132 was cleared. After the National Anthem had been rendered by the band, all started homeward, well pleased with the way in which they had spent the evening.

WEDDING BELLS.—One of the most fashionable weddings of the day took place at the Presbyterian church here on Wednesday of last week, when Mr. Robert Ross of Toronto and Miss Christena Wilson, daughter of Rev. A. Wilson, of this place, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by Rev. H. Crozier of Grand Valley and Rev. Mr. Woosley of Toronto. The bride was elegantly attired in a cream silk gown and was assisted by Miss Nellie Wilson and Miss Woosley of Toronto, the groom being supported by Mr. Wilkes and Mr. Lauder of Toronto. A large number of invited guests from a distance were present. After the ceremony, the young couple accompanied by their friends, repaired to the parental residence of the bride, where a magnificent wedding dinner was in waiting, toasts were proposed. Dinner over a pleasant time was spent in music, social chat and viewing the many handsome presents, which were valued at over $160. The happy couple received the hearty congratulations of many friends and acquaintances on the consummation of this auspicious event, and left on the evening train for their future home in Ashland, Wis.

SUITS FOR SLANDER!

TWO INTERESTING ACTIONS AGAINST ORANGEVILLE MEN.

J. A. McMaster Sues W. Cruikshanks and W. J. Conron Takes a Fling at S. Savage.

During the past couple of weeks two or three suits which involve a large amount of money have been entered against citizens of this town, but neither of the actions will be tried at the fall assizes owing to the legal vacation expiring within ten days before the assizes open here, which does not leave time enough to the lawyers to make the necessary motions. Both suits will be watched with interest by the public.

MCMASTER VS. CRUIKSHANKS.

Mr. J. A. McMaster, proprietor of the McMaster Harvesting Machine Works, has issued a writ in the High Court of Justice against Mr. William Cruikshanks, agent for the Turnbull self binder, which is manufactured at Oshawa. The former charges the latter with slandering him and sues to recover $5000 damages. The writ was served one day last week. N. G. Bigelow, Q.C., Toronto, is acting for Mr. McMaster, and Myers & Robb are looking after Mr. Cruikshank's interests.

WANTS $5000, TOO.

Mr. W. J. Conron has issued a similar writ against Mr. Savage. Both these gentlemen are engaged in the cattle trade and are well known to the people of this section of the county. Mr. Conron resides at Weston and Mr. Savage is a resident of Orangeville. The latter is chairman of our public school board and is highly respected. The alleged slander is said to have taken place about the first of June. Myers & Robb are the plaintiff's solicitors and Mr. W. L. Walsh has been retained as the defendant's counsel.

BLOUNT.

HE IS SILENT.—I see your Blount correspondent has been silent for some time past and if it is not asking too much I wish you would put in this little budget.

A CAUSE FOR WONDER.—We wonder what made Hammond think his calf was dead. Tommy H. says it's as big as a yearling now. L. W. wondered all the time if the blamed thing died so suddenly.

BRIEFS.—Haying is the order of the day. Bob McKim says he has a fine crop and Dick is the boy who can handle it.....Postmaster Woods is studying out another new poem.....We think this city has no use for an assistant-postmaster.....Jim Hammond was playing with the Orangeville band on Monday.....The people are in a flurry to know if Hammond thought the school meeting was to be held at Brooke's. Jim should try and be a little sharper in future.....A number of bachelors in this vicinity are seriously thinking of getting married.

DEATH OF AN OLD RESIDENT OF AMARANTH.—Mr. Wm. Tate, a well known and highly respected resident of Amaranth township, died at his residence near Waldemar on Wednesday, July 1st, at the ripe old age of 78 years. The deceased was ill but a few days and his death was a great shock to his family. Being of a kindly disposition, he had many friends, and by his industry and care was very prosperous. The funeral took place on the following Friday to the Grand Valley cemetery and was very largely attended.

SUCCESSFUL GARDEN PARTY.—As was expected, the garden given at the residence of Mr. R. W. Ritchie, corner of First street and Third avenue, on Friday evening under the auspices of the Methodist Ladies' Aid Society was an unqualified success. The ladies had everything prepared for the occasion and an excellent bill of fare was the result. The lawn was brilliantly illuminated and the Orangeville orchestra discoursed music during the evening, and a merry time was spent by all. The receipts amounted to $44.

GENUINE DOMESTIC ECONOMY.—About the handiest little article about a household was shown to us the other day by Mr. J. W. Dutton of Guelph. The article is in the form of a hat and clothes-rack and is manufactured by Mr. J. J. Hazelton of the same city and it is only to be seen to be appreciated. When not in use it can be folded on the wall, and a house is not complete without one. Many public offices and leading hotels have adopted them. The price, which is only 50 cents, is within the reach of everybody.

PRINCE FREDERICK SEIZED.—Duncan Hyndman of Grand Valley Out., owns the horse Prince Frederick, which has won considerable money in last week's races at Windsor. Some time ago A. E. Pilkey of Chatham advanced Hyndman some money, which he alleges he could never recover. After obtaining judgment against Hyndman, he seized Prince Frederick at the race track, and came near breaking up the programme, but Hyndman produced the amount of the judgment instanter, and the horse was released in time to satisfy those who had placed their money on him.

TOOK A TUMBLE.—While the Citizens' band was coming home from a garden party at Charleston on Monday evening an accident occurred which happily did not result seriously. The big carryall in which the boys were riding was descending a hill on the centre road just as it joins Broadway, when the harness broke and the horses were unable to hold back the rig. The wagon ran off the road and went tumbling down the steep bank and the boys jumped over each other in their endeavors to get out. No one was badly injured, but the musical aggregation looked pretty sleepy when they arrived in town half an hour afterwards.

DUFFERINS V. EXCELSIORS.—The most scientific lacrosse match played in Orangeville for many a day took place on the exhibition grounds yesterday afternoon between the Excelsiors of Brampton and the Dufferins of Orangeville. Play was pretty evenly divided, the ball not remaining in any part of the field long at a time. The visitors took the first two games, the Dufferins taking the next and the Brampton boys the fourth. Our boys won the next two, making the match a tie. When time was called after two hours' playing the sphere was dodging around the Excelsiors' goal. The Brampton umpire gave his team a game which the Dufferins disputed, but very generously allowed.

A CHILD'S SKULL FRACTURED.—Last Sunday as Mr. Walter Smith of lot 4, 17th con., East Garafraxa, was taking his wife and family out for a drive an unfortunate accident occurred, which resulted seriously though not fatally. As the party was descending a very steep hill the leather which holds the neckyoke broke and the tongue of the vehicle dropped down. The wagon ran against the horses, which became unmanageable and dashed away. The occupants were thrown violently to the ground and all were more or less injured. Mr. Smith's little seven year old daughter sustained a slight fracture of the skull, but the doctor who was called in entertains hopes of her recovery.

ORANGEMEN'S CHURCH PARADE.—Over one hundred members of L. O. L. No. 635 and neighboring lodges attended divine service at the Methodist church on Sunday morning last. The brethren met in their lodge room, Still block, about 10 o'clock and at 10.40 formed a procession, headed by the Citizens' band which played select music, and marched down Broadway to Second street and up First avenue to the church. Rev. M. L. Pearson preached an appropriate sermon paying a high tribute to the order. After church the procession was reformed and the line of march was up First avenue and Zina street to Faulkner street, thence down Broadway to the lodge room. It was an imposing procession.

WE DO IT EVERY TIME.—Our spicy little exchange, the Hillsburg Beaver, has the following good words to say regarding our monster demonstration:—The Dominion day sports in Orangeville were a grand success. The committee tried to carry out their program to the letter, and though the rain interfered greatly with their efforts yet they succeeded well. There was no fake sword contest and all the performers did their parts in a satisfactory manner. One of the most interesting parts of the program to the people of this village was the baseball match, Alton vs. Dauntless of Toronto for the simple reason that playing with the Alton team were three Hillsburg boys. Only three innings of the game were played, Alton winning by a score of 2 to 0. Both the runs scored were made by Hillsburg boys, "Cap" Howe making one and Geo. C. Lacey the other.

RELIEVED OF HIS BOODLE.—Harry Holton is a young Englishman and he makes Owen Sound his headquarters. Harry also works sometimes and saves considerable of his money. He evidently became tired of the "Liverpool of Canada" and longed for a change. With this idea firmly fixed in his mind and $40 in his pocket he boarded Friday morning's express and a couple of hours afterwards arrived in this "blooming" town. Harry had not been in Orangeville very many minutes before he began to "bowl up," and when the shades of evening fell he was in a pretty muddled condition. Several boys took pity on the young man and escorted him to a neighboring grove, where they proceeded to go through his pockets. When our northern visitor came to he found that he had not even a cent, and it is said the young scamps robbed him of $25. C. ler Shields is on the trail.

SHOULD HAVE BEEN CLOSED.—"Dooney" writes to THE SUN as follows: "Myself and no doubt many other respectable residents of this town were surprised and mortified to see a dance hall in full blast on east Broadway on the 12th of July. I thought so far as Orangeville is concerned that this kind of indecent money grabbing schemes were stopped years ago, but I see I was mistaken. Just imagine what visitors to the town would think when walking along the street to see twelve or fourteen girls and as many tough-looking boys engaged in a regular hoe down. I am told that some of them danced from 2 in the afternoon until nearly 12 at night, when the father of two of the girls came and took his daughters home. I think the mayor or the chief of police should have stopped the disgraceful performance. I am not a saint myself, but I hope the like of this will never occur in Orangeville again."

STOLE A COW.—James Smith is only 18 years old, but at the present time is a first class candidate for the penitentiary. James is an assisted emigrant, having been shipped from London some time ago by some so called philanthropic society. As is frequently the case this class of people do not make the very best of citizens and James increases their number by one. The lad is employed by a farmer named Armstrong in Caledon and on fairday he went to Mr. David Watson's, 2nd line of the same township, and took a cow out of the field. He drove the animal to town and disposed of it to Mr. James Bennett, Paisley house, for the sum of $16. Smith represented that he owned the cow, but Mr. Bennett suspected all was not right and declined to pay Smith for some time. Later on in the day Mr. Watson called in search of the cow and very few minutes afterwards Mr. Jim Smith was occupying a cell in "Castle" Sutherland. His trial takes place before P. M. Pattullo this afternoon.

What's The Reason?

The causes of summer complaint, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera morbus, etc., are the excessive heat, eating green fruit, over exertion, impure water and sudden chill. Dr Fowler's Wild Strawberry is an infallible and prompt cure for all bowel complaints from whatever cause.

Lord and Lady Aberdeen will visit Canada in the fall

To the Editor of the Sun:

DEAR SIR,—Seeing that you have published Mr. R. S. White's version of the cancelling of the Orangeville mail contract, will you kindly allow me space in your columns to give the public my version of the case? The public will then be able to see that I was treated by the post office department, at the instance of Mr. White, in a most unfair manner; in fact no private individual would dare to violate a solemn contract in the way that the Postmaster-General has done. My contract for the conveyance of the mails here being to expire on the 31st of December last, I applied in October for a renewal of my contract for a further term of four years from the 1st of January, 1891. The Postmaster-General replied that he had the matter under consideration and that he would be advised in due course what his decision was. In about ten days from this I received notice from the Postmaster-General that on account of the faithful performance of the service and the very reasonable rate that I was doing the work for he had decided to renew my contract, also stating that a new contract would be forwarded for my signature. This was done about the 15th of November last and I entered into a new contract with the Postmaster-General for the carrying of the mail for a further term of four years from January 1st, 1891, furnishing bonds to the amount of $500 that I would faithfully execute the contract for the full term of four years. This contract was entered into on the part of the Postmaster General after due deliberation on the matter and was renewed by him for the reason stated above, and any unbiased mind must admit that the contract was as binding on the part of the Postmaster-General as it was on me, but Mr. R. S. White does not appear to think that there was any obligation on the part of the government to live up to their contracts, for he stated in the House of Commons that as soon as he learned that the Postmaster-General had renewed my contract he at once asked that it be canceled, which the Postmaster General promptly did at his bidding. Mr White also stated in his place in the House that the contract had been awarded to the lowest tender. This I most emphatically deny, as I know positively that the man who put in the lowest tender was J. J. White of this town and he has never performed the services, and the contract is now being performed by Mr. Joseph Hulcher, whose tender was considerable higher than Mr White's. I think when the general public know that I was dismissed from a contract just entered into and that the work is not being performed by the man who put in the lowest tender but by a man who was one of the hardest workers for Mr R. S. White and whose tender was considerable higher than Mr. J. J. White's, they will at once see that Mr White did not "knock our worthy representative for North Wellington out in the first round," but that he convicted himself before the country as a man who shirks and says the Government should recognize no obligations where party interests are to be benefitted by their violation.

Yours Truly,

ROBERT MANN.

ELBURNE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MASONIC.—On Sunday afternoon Lorne Lodge, No. 377, A. F. & A. M., proceeded in a body from their lodge room, headed by the band, to the Methodist church, where service was conducted by Rev. Dr. McRobbie, assisted by Rev. H. W. McTavish. The church was crowded and an interesting discourse was addressed to the Order by the Rev. Dr. McRobbie.

DROWNED.—Mr. Thomas Lounds, brother of Mr. Wm. Lounds, of Honeywood, was drowned on Wednesday of last week at Holstein. The deceased was on a visit to his brother, Rev. Geo. Lounds, and went in bathing and it is supposed he took cramps and was drowned. He was alone at the time. He was just recovering from a severe attack of la grippe.

FARMERS' MILL.—At the Farmers' Institute meeting held at Horning's Mills on the 20th inst., a resolution endorsing the action taken by the advocates of the Farmers' Mill was unanimously adopted, and the subscribers to the stock be and are hereby notified to meet at McLean's hall, Horning's Mills, on Friday, the 10th inst., at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing provisional directors and taking steps for organization and incorporation.

KICKED BY A HORSE.—Last Friday Mr. Wm. McNabb, of Rosemont, received a terrible kick in the face from a stallion in his stable. The animal had been crowding him in the stall, or been guilty of other misbehavior, and Mr. McNabb proceeded to correct him with a whip, with the result that he received a kick in the face that fractured his lower jaw and inflicted terrible wounds in his face. After telling his little son to run for the doctor, and not to inform his mother, he became insensible. The boy, however, told his mother, and they managed to get him into the house. For some time the man's life was despaired of, but at last accounts he was apparently better. Dr. Island is in attendance.

GRAND VALLEY.

Mr John Reith, painter, had a narrow escape on Monday. A scaffold gave way, and John fell to the ground, a distance of about 12 feet, receiving a few cuts and bruises. He will survive as the fall has not completely disabled him from work.

SUNDAY SELLING.—On Thursday hotelkeeper Clark was up before Wm. Osbourne and R. Phelp, J. P's., on a charge of violation of the Crook's Act. The case was adjourned for one week to secure further evidence although the evidence given was strong enough to convict.

At the city hall St Louis, June 27, Mrs. J. F. Godrich, of Pittsfield, Mass., yesterday asked for help to recover her 16-year old daughter Clara, who eloped in a balloon from Pittsfield Decoration Day with an aeronaut named Walter Cooper. Decoration Day, dressing herself in a suit of her brother's clothes, Clara eluded her parents and made her way to Pittsfield. Her father pursued and reached the fair grounds just in time to see his daughter being borne into the air in a balloon with a young aeronaut. Mrs. Godrich has been pursuing the couple ever since and swears to kill her daughter's betrayer on sight.

A CHARIVARI CASE.

Four Riverview Young Men Fined $5 and Costs Each.

(Shelburne Economist.)

Last week we announced that local magistrates would, on Saturday afternoon, sit in judgement on six young men of Riverview. The charge against them was that of committing "an offence against the statute respecting public morals and public conveniences, on the public street of said village, by wantonly and maliciously disturbing the peace and quiet of the inmates of informant's dwelling." The cases were heard by Magistrates Graham and Jelly in the town hall, here, at the time above stated. It appears that the complainant, W. E. McMillan, and a Miss Hayes, daughter of Wm. Hayes, had been away getting married, and some of the boys awaited their return, and according to one of the witnesses, demanded "five dollars, a dance, or a charivari!" McMillan swore that he agreed to give them a dance if they would wait for a week. This did not seem to be altogether satisfactory, and a further demand was made for money to treat the crowd, McMillan refusing to accede to their demand. Then the charivari started, and with the exception of a short "recess," as it was called, continued until one or two o'clock in the morning. Cow bells, circular saws, iron shafting, fire arms, &c., were used in rendering the charming chorus, while "the human voice divine," as was testified on oath, was elevated to more than its wonted pitch. It was great fun for the boys, but the price came rather high to a few of them, while others whose names came out in evidence were not summoned and have so far got clear. Four out of the six summoned, viz., Thos. Jordan, Sim Markle, Geo. Vance and Geo. Smith, were fined $5 and costs each—in all $10.65 each—while Thomas Roach and Alex. Jordan, against whom there was no evidence, were acquitted, the complainant having to pay the costs in their cases. Mr. F. G. Dunbar appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Lemon, of Dundalk, for the defence. The whole of the afternoon and evening was taken up in hearing and deciding the cases.

Some one asks, "Who is the really happy man?" Some other man.

One trouble about unpleasant people is that it generally seems impossible for them to get out of the way.

"What would you do, John, if I got up in the middle of the night, as some enthusiasts do, to play the violin?"

"I would get up and play the hose."

"Harry," she whispered, "why don't you say something?" "Because," he answered, between his teeth, "I have just swallowed a mosquito and don't want him to escape."

"I believe a woman may sometimes reform a man."

"And what do you think so?"

"Yes, we have no record of Cain ever doing any more after he got a wife."

"Am I as dear to you as ever, George?" asked the wife, caressingly.

"My love," answered George candidly, "since you took to tailor-made clothes you grow dearer and dearer every day."

He—How prettily the moonlight falls upon the sea and on the beach.

She—Yes, but don't you think it is even more beautiful still among the boulders away from the hotel?

It had occurred to her that he, too, might be bolder over there.

"Your graduating dress is a perfect poem, I understand."

"Oh, it is just lovely! Why the trimmings cost more than the dress itself!"

"So I heard. By the way, what is the subject of your graduating essay?"

"The Frivolities of Fashion."

Goldwin Smith.

Goldwin Smith is opposed to Sir Charles Tupper in many ways but doubtless both should agree that no better remedy for dyspepsia constipation, biliousness, headache, kidney troubles, skin diseases, etc., exists than Burdock Blood Bitters, the best family medicine known.

---

He—You love me now, and you'll be faithful to the last won't you? She—Yes dear, our engagement shall never end.

For Many Years.

WE have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for many years in our family and find it an excellent medicine for all forms of summer complaint. John A. Valens, Valens, Ont. Fowler's Wild Strawberry. Price 35c., sold by all dealers.

---

Some evil disposed person, whose permanent residence should be in the penitentiary, poisoned the creek on the Normosa road, near Mr. Rivers', with Paris green. It was put in the creek on Schnitter's farm at about forty rods from the road, and where 100 cattle drink. Some families use water from the same source for domestic purposes. Fortunately it was discovered before accomplishing the deadly purpose intended.

All Men.

Young, old, or middle-aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, emissions, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face or body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eye lids and elsewhere, basfulness, colporia in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be roused by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with LARGE CIRCLES, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension every function wanes in consequence. These who through abuse committed in ignorance may be permanently cured. Send your address for book on all diseases peculiar to man. Address M. V. LUBON, 50 Front St. E., Toronto, Ont. Books sent free sealed.

Heart disease, the symptoms of which are faint spells, purple lips, nutsbness, palpitation, skip beats, hot flashes, rush of blood to the head, dull pain in the heart with bad, strong, rapid and irregular, the second heart beat quicker than the first, pain about the breast bone, etc., can positively be cured. No cure, no pay. Send for book. Address M. V. LUBON, 50 Front Street East, Toronto, Ont.

KANSAS PHILOSOPHY.

A good conscience is a good sleeper.

People sometimes keep their secrets in order to keep their friends.

There is a constantly growing demand that other people be good.

A man never outlives those who have seen him make a fool of himself.

No man is without a friend as long as his mother lives, or in need of pity if he has a wife who believes in him.

Woman's love is the anchor which keeps a man's life in safety, or is the reef upon which his life is hopelessly wrecked.

Don't be too profuse in your thanks of the man who lets you have your own way. He may be doing it to save you of a folly.

A man was never so rich or so powerful that he had friends who would care for his children if he should become suddenly poor.

supposed he took cramps and was drowned. He was alone at the time. He was just recovering from a severe attack of la grippe.

FARMERS' MILL.—At the Farmers' Institute meeting held at Horning's Mills on the 20th inst., a resolution endorsing the action taken by the advocates of the Farmers' Mill was unanimously adopted, and the subscribers to the stock be and are hereby notified to meet at McLean's hall, Horning's Mills, on Friday, the 10th inst., at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing provisional directors and taking steps for organization and incorporation.

KICKED BY A HORSE.—Last Friday Mr. Wm. McNabb, of Rosemount, received a terrible kick in the face from a stallion in his stable. The animal had been crowding him in the stall, or been guilty of other misbehavior, and Mr. McNabb proceeded to correct him with a whip, with the result that he received a kick in the face that fractured his lower jaw and inflicted terrible wounds in his face. After telling his little son to run for the doctor, and not to inform his mother, he became insensible. The boy, however, told his mother, and they managed to get him into the house. For some time the man's life was despaired of, but at last accounts he was apparently better. Dr. Island is in attendance.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

Briefs.—New sidewalks are being laid down on many of the streets.

A tramp about as well known as the potatoe bug in this vicinity, received a lively chase from a milk house a few days ago.

The East Luther Agricultural Society will hold their Annual Exhibition on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 6th and 7th.

The large number of new residences and business places erected lately have added materially to the size and appearance of the town.

Some horses broke into the Grand Valley cemetery knocking down one of the monuments and otherwise damaging some others.

Mr John Reith, painter, had a narrow escape on Monday. A scaffold gave way, and John fell to the ground, a distance of about 12 feet, receiving a few cuts and bruises. He will survive as the fall has not completely disabled him from work.

SUNDAY SELLING.—On Thursday hotelkeeper Clark was up before Wm. Osbourne and R. Phelp, J. P's., on a charge of violation of the Crook's Act. The case was adjourned for one week to secure further evidence although the evidence given was strong enough to convict.

As there is no royal road to learning, so there is no magic solution for diseases. The effect, however, of taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for blood disorders comes as near magic as can be expected of any mere human agency. This is due to its purity and strength.

The village of New Durham, near Guelph, is excited over the discovery of a human skeleton. Some men were engaged at work in Mr. J. Hall's yard, when they came upon a box containing the bones of a man, about whom nothing is known.

The Grand Trunk System.

THE Grand Trunk system differs from the human system in that the same medicines are not alike in all of the ailments of the human system. Hence no four patent medicines and still claim to be as good as Burdock Blood Bitters. A trial will soon convince you of this. B. B. B.

Northwest Mounted Police captured 180 gallons contraband whiskey at Regina recently.

Imperial Federation.

WILL present an opportunity to extend the fame of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry throughout the world. Imperial Federation is the watchword, extend the commerce, increase the wealth of the mother and all summer complaints, to every part of the Empire. Wild Strawberry is the remedy.

Three men were badly hurt in a scaffold accident at St. Thomas on Saturday. One may die.

There are 6,250,000 Roman Catholics in the United States.

Ayer's Pills Vigor has long held the first place as a nerve strengthener in the estimation of the public. Indications are that this preparation will even continue close to the hair and gain upon the public in visible laldness and a few fortnights on the scalp.

The Great Female Medicine.

The Pills special irregularities peculiar to the weaker sex, are invariably corrected without pain or inconvenience, by the use of Dr. Morse's Indian root Pills. They are the safest and surest medicine for all the diseases incidental to females of all ages, and the more especially so in this climate. Ladies who wish to enjoy health, should always have these Pills. No one who ever uses them once will allow herself to be without them. Dr Morses Indian Root Pills are sold by all Medicine Dealers.

At the city hall St Louis, June 27, Mrs J. F. Godrich, of Pittsfield, Mass., yesterday asked for help to recover her 16 year old daughter Clara, who eloped in a balloon from Pittsfield Decoration Day with an aeronaut named Walter Cooper. Decoration Day, dressing herself in a suit of her brother's clothes, Clara eluded her parents and made her way to Pittsfield. Her father pursued and reached the fair grounds just in time to see his daughter being borne into the air in a balloon with a young aeronaut. Mrs. Godrich has been pursuing the couple ever since and swears to kill her daughter's betrayer on sight.

Captains William A. Andrews and Josiah W. Lawlor have started to race in lifeboats across the Atlantic for $5,000 and a silver cup. The start was made from Ocean Pier, Crescent Beach, last week, and the finish will be at Land's End, England. The boats are made of white cedar, and are fifteen feet over all.

AND most powerful alterative is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old are alike benefited by its use. For the eruptive diseases peculiar to children nothing else is so effective as this medicine, while its agreeable flavor makes it easy to administer.

"My little boy had large scrofulous ulcers on his neck and throat from which he suffered terribly. Two physicians attended him, but he grew continually worse under their care, and everybody expected he would die. I had heard of the remarkable cures effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and decided to have my boy try it. Shortly after he began to take this medicine, the ulcers commenced healing, and, after using several bottles, he was entirely cured. He is now as healthy and strong as any boy of his age."—William F. Dougherty, Hampton, Va.

"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether. The child is livelier, its skin is fresher, and its appetite better than we have observed for months."—Frank M. Griffin, Long Point, Texas.

"The formula of Ayer's Sarsaparilla presents, for chronic diseases of almost every kind, the best remedy known to the medical world."—D. M. Wilson, M. D., Wiggs, Arkansas.

OF PERFECT FORM.

I see her where the shadow lie
Beside a shelvy stream;
Where the yellow bees go humming by,
And starry daisies gleam.

How dainty fabrics, furbelowed,
Concealed her symmetry;
Her only gown the light, which showed
Her perfect form to be.

Those shimmy flaxes so fifty dressed,
Those big brown eyes and bills,
Had foiled an artist at his best,
And filled him with despair.

And here, such quaintly, quiet ways,
Illumed by soft alarms;
What could I do but gaze and gaze—
And gase upon her charms!

But why those chilling glances, love—
That frown upon your brow?
You surely may not jealous of
A dear prize Jersey.

The Story Teller.

OLIVE VARCOE

—OR—

TRUE TO THE LAST.

ALL this did not prevent the arrival of Mr. Eslick, who, driving to the house in a light dog-cart, entered freely and affably into conversation with every human being he met on the road. By these means that smiling gentleman soon collected a mass of information, that would have filled three columns of a daily paper, but was scarcely useful for any other purpose. Nevertheless, his seeming energy and his presence soothed and pleased poor, sobbing, feeble Mrs. Maristowe, who implored him to find the murderer of her child at once. Then she plunged into her grievances, her suspicions, her dislikes, and, rambling as her talk was, she nevertheless instilled a large amount of distrust into Eslick's mind concerning Sir Hilton and Olive.

For motives of his own, he had presumed that it was due to Mrs. Maristowe, as the mother of the murdered girl, to seek a private interview with her before speaking to any of the Trewavas family; and now, having seen her, it was with a mind doubly prejudiced that he sought a moment's conversation with Lady Trewavas.

Somewhat surprised that he asked for her instead of for Sir Hilton, that lady, leaning on the arm of her grandson, entered the room, and bowed to him without speaking.

"Cannot I see your ladyship alone?" asked the affable Mr. Eslick, with a beaming smile.

Much amazed, Lady Trewavas hesitated, but Sir Hilton spoke for her.

"This matter concerns me, Mr. Eslick," he said, haughtily; "and I consider, therefore, that all you may have to say to Lady Trewavas, you can say with more fitness to me. I am ready to hear you, sir."

"You will excuse me, Sir Hilton," said he; "I wished to make things pleasant, that was all. And as I have a few remarks to make respecting yourself, I thought it would be more agreeable to your feelings not to be present. Duty is often disagreeable, Sir Hilton, and I am sure you will feel for me, if I am obliged—"

"I need no apologies, Mr. Eslick," interrupted Sir Hilton; "pray proceed. Nothing you can say will effect me."

Receiving this rebuff with the same happy smile with which he would have taken a compliment, Mr. Eslick turned to Lady Trewavas.

"You have seen no reason to suppose that Miss Maristowe would commit suicide, madam?" he asked.

"None, sir," was the reply.

"But she was unhappy," he continued; "she was jealous of a young lady in your house, named Varcoe. Your grandson—excuse me, Sir Hilton—showed symptoms of a greater affection for the lady than for his affianced wife—at least, so I have been informed.

Sir Hilton bit his lip in silence, and Lady Trewavas replied coldly. "You have been misinformed, Mr. Eslick. I never saw Miss Maristowe unhappy but once, and that was when there was a little quarrel between her and my grandson."

"Ah," said Mr. Eslick, "they quarreled!"

"And were reconciled immediately," said Lady Trewavas.

"Excuse me, Mr. Eslick," interposed Sir Hilton, impatiently, "I look upon these questions as impertinent. They in no way conduce to the discovery of the manner in which Miss Maristowe met with her death."

"You think so," returned Mr. Eslick, smilingly. "But don't you perceive, Sir Hilton, how much more agreeable it will be to the feelings of all concerned, if I can gain evidence of this young lady being likely to commit suicide? If she did not throw herself into the pool, the inference is, some one pushed or flung her in."

"Or she may have fallen in accidentally," said Sir Hilton.

"With her hands tied tightly together?" asked Mr. Eslick. "Really, Sir Hilton!"

Mr. Eslick's smile as he said this was delightful; it beamed with the milk of human kindness.

"There is no proof that her hands were tied," said Sir Hilton, heavily. "The evidence of this is so slight, so conflicting, that I have not even named the matter to Mrs. Maristowe."

"I am aware of that fact," said Mr. Eslick, with another smile, "but I have deemed it my duty to mention it to that lady. And, although the rope has mysteriously disappeared—rather singular that the chief proof rests in the black marks round the wrists of the unfortunate young lady."

Sir Hilton had not heard a word of this; he turned pale, and for a moment could not recover his self-possession.

"I cannot see the necessity of prolonging this conversation, Mr. Eslick," he resumed. "The inquest will take place to-morrow, and then, and not until then, I shall be ready to answer any questions put to me."

A most courteous and delighted smile illumined Mr. Eslick's countenance as he replied to this.

"As you please, Sir Hilton," said he. "Only I am sure you can enter into my feelings, and understand how agreeable it would be to me to be able to say that I found you eager to reply to all inquiries, and thirsting with anxiety to discover the perpetrator of this crime. For the honor of your house and your name, Sir Hilton, and your position as a magistrate, I expected to find you, of all men, most desirous to penetrate this mystery. A mystery excites all minds, Lady Trewavas, even when it is not a secret so near home as this is; but really, Sir Hilton—setting aside all higher motives—appears to have no curiosity respecting this murder. Upon my word, one might almost suppose he had found out all about it."

The strictly amiable smile with which this was said, made Sir Hilton start forward, as if to grasp the man by the throat, but Lady Trewavas drew him back with a nervous hand.

"Your remarks are of little consequence to us, Mr. Eslick," she observed. "Sir Hilton Trewavas is too well known to need your evidence as to his honor, or his anxiety to discover the mystery of a crime perpetrated on his own domain, the victim of which is his guest and his affianced wife. Your language, sir, is an insult."

With her thoughts upon that little turret chamber, where Olive—shunned, avoided by all—sat alone, Lady Trewavas trembled as she spoke, and her lips quivered painfully.

"Madam, I am delighted to hear you speak indignantly," said Mr. Eslick, beaming with smiles. "I should be so grieved to be compelled to suppose that you and Sir Hilton Trewavas were with holding information, which might materially assist the police in their efforts to discover the truth."

"I withhold no information!" exclaimed Sir Hilton, hot with anger. "My evidence will be forthcoming at the right time. And I desire to know by what right you came hither, when as yet there has been no inquest, and no reason seen to suspect a crime at all?"

"No reason, Sir Hilton!" cried Mr. Eslick. "Then your brother magistrates and you differ."

The serene, smiling man here drew from his pocket a slip of paper.

"You perceive, madam—my lady," said he, "your family is one of such distinction in this county that I would not presume to act without orders. I called on my way hither on the deputy-lieutenant, Sir Anthony Roskelly, and he, being willing to take a painful duty off Sir Hilton's Trewavas's hands, has commissioned me to investigate the matter, but with every delicacy, my lady, and every regard to your wishes. Would you like to see Sir Anthony's written orders, sir?"

"I have not the honor of Sir Anthony Roskelly's acquaintance," said Sir Hilton, thrusting the papers aside. "His orders, I presume, are for you, not for me."

"Have I your permission, sir, to carry them out?" said Mr. Eslick. "It would be very painful to my feelings to place myself in antagonism with you, sir, and you see it would look bad in the eyes of the world, if we did not agree on these points. It would look very bad if I were obliged to say that Sir Hilton Trewavas threw any obstacle in the way of the police."

Mr. Eslick's smile was seraphic in humanity and kindness as he uttered this.

Indignant, sorrowful and exasperated, Sir Hilton Trewavas felt, nevertheless, that he must submit to the pressure of circumstances around him. A ruthless, cruel murder had been committed on a young girl, his guest, his betrothed wife; and it was, therefore, not for him to cavil at the officiousness of the police, and of his brother magistrate, an enemy and neighbor, Sir Anthony Roskelly.

There is no spite like neighborly spite. In country towns and country places, the man who lives next door to you commonly bears you no good will. Sir Anthony Roskelly had been in youth a lawyer's clerk, who married his master's widow and prospered. He traded in coal and copper, iron and tin. An energetic, unscrupulous, wily, grasping man, he grappled with fortune and held her fast. Poorer men went down before him like straws, and he took their places, and grew fat on their spoils. The world said he deserved success, and applauded him; but a few, standing out of the world, held aloof from his prosperity half angry at it, half indignant that such vulgar insolence, such cruel rapacity should be crowned with riches. Among these were Sir John Trewavas, Sir Hilton's grandfather. The lawyer's widow died when Sir Anthony—then Mr. Roskelly—was still young enough to woo a second wife. Elated by wealth, he proposed to Miss Tregwythen, a lady belonging to one of the oldest families in the county. She refused him; and married his enemy, Sir John Trewavas. Thenceforward there was a thorn in the rich man's side. Disappointed in his own county of marrying for birth, he went to London and married for wealth. He espoused the kitten of a baronet brewer, and at his father-in-law's death the baronetcy was bestowed upon him. But his marriage was not happy, and domestic squabbles filled up the measure of his discontent. Adding sore to sore, he brought his fields hedge to hedge with the Trewavas estate; and all that a money-loving, soured mind could do to irritate and annoy, he did relentlessly.

This was the man, who, availing himself of the time and the opportunity, now flung a missile into his enemy's house hold, in the shape of a policy spy, who, with smiling face, spied out the weakness of the land.

True, Sir Hilton Trewavas need not have endured his presence; but torn by anguish and horror, at times believing Olive innocent, at times guilty, and through all seeking blindly to save her, he submitted to the yoke imposed on him, fearing to bring down suspicion on her head if he appeared too unwilling to second the officious effort of Sir Anthony Roskelly to discover the murderer of Eleanor Maristowe.

"Do your duty as you think best, Mr. Eslick," he said, in that cold, calm voice that commands respect; "but remember, that I, too, am a magistrate, and I don't approve of the manner in which Sir Anthony Roskelly has thought fit to act. In conjunction with my brother magistrate and friend, Mr. Vigo, I shall take steps to discover the mystery of this unhappy death, if there be a mystery. Meanwhile, if you imagine that you can further the ends of justice by hearing the details which Mr. Vigo and Mr. Damerel may be willing to furnish you, you are welcome to speak to these gentlemen in my justice-room. But I object to having my servants questioned and examined. They will give their testimony to-morrow at the inquest, when I shall do my utmost to bring everything fully before the coroner; and that I consider a better and clearer way to gain the truth, than this un English manner of hunting up evidence which Sir Anthony Roskelly pursues."

Mr. Eslick beamed with smiles while he listened to this.

"Very good, Sir Hilton," said he. "Would you like to be present, sir, when I speak to these gentlemen?"

"No," replied Sir Hilton.

"But I should," said Lady Trewavas who had hitherto remained quiet during this interview. "I chose to be present at every conversation, which an emissary of Sir Anthony Roskelly's may hold beneath my roof."

She rose and came forward as she spoke, and Sir Hilton glanced with sorrowful pride on her noble bearing. It is sad to see a bitter misfortune fall upon the last days of the aged, but Lady Trewavas was equal to the burden. Not a shadow of her stateliness was abated; not a quiver broke her voice.

"Go, mother," said her grandson; "I can trust to your courage."

CHAPTER X.

Sir Hilton listened, and heard the door of the justice room shut; then he sought feverishly through the house for Olive. Now this smiling, cunning spy of Sir Anthony was safely engaged, he might speak a word to the wretched girl, and urge her to fly. Why should he let his enemy triumph over him, and gloat upon the shame and agony of his household? But he could not find Olive.

"Miss Varcoe, sir?" said a servant. "I saw her go into the garden while you were talking to Mr. Eslick. Are you going for her, sir? Mr. Damerel will not see Mr. Eslick until she comes in."

Sir Hilton hurried through the shrubberies, never catching a glimpse of her form till he reached the entrance to the fruit garden, and there, at the most secluded side, standing near a large pile of burning weeds, he saw her. He stood still a moment to look at the small resolute figure, that, unconscious of his presence, gazed down upon the smoke and flame with large, wistful eyes; but as he drew nearer, he did not even glance at her, or approach closely.

"What are you doing here, Miss Varcoe?" he said.

His voice was harsh, not unkind, yet it had a touch of coldness—almost of hatred—in it, that rang through Olive's heart. She shivered as she heard it, but she did not turn her face upon him or lift her eyes from the ground, as she replied, in a quiet way, cold as his own, "I am waiting for the gardener. I have sent him to gather me some flowers."

"What a time to wish for flowers!" said Sir Hilton.

Olive was silent. The burning pile of weeds stood between them, and the crackling flames and their wreath of smoke went up like a pillar of separation. Sir Hilton did not cross it to approach her.

"You had better not wait for the flowers, Miss Varcoe," he said. "My enemy has found me out. Sir Anthony Roskelly has sent the superintendent of police here: he is speaking to Damerel. I hear that Mr. Vigo refuses to utter a word, except in your presence. Will you go up to the house?"

Did Sir Hilton see the crimson flush of fear, and then the dead whiteness on her face? She clasped her hands together, not with the old passion, but with a serious restraining of herself pitiful to see.

"I cannot go just yet," she replied "I want to stay here a little while."

"In this smoke?" said Sir Hilton. "It will be more prudent not to show any fear, any avoidance."

This last was said in a low voice; and leaning forward to speak it, he could not but see her face. It was deathly white, but there was something in it he could not read—half scorn, half sorrow.

"I want no advice, Sir Hilton Trewavas," said Olive. "It will be more prudent in you to leave me. Think of yourself."

Sir Hilton's face flushed. Was she daring to call him selfish and a coward? Great Heavens! if she were innocent, what horrible injustice he had done her in his thoughts.

"You want no counsel and no friendship?" said he. "Do you guess what people are thinking—are saying?"

"I guess all," she replied. "Will you go away, Sir Hilton?"

He hesitated, feeling an indignant heat again within his blood. Why would she not say that she was innocent and spare him all this shame and horror?

"Have you nothing to say to me before I go?" he asked.

"Nothing," was the reply.

As the words passed her lips, Olive glanced up at Sir Hilton with an appalling agony in her eyes, and saw his look of anxiety change to disappointment—change to loathing and horror.

"When this is over," he said, "I shall leave England, perhaps for years, perhaps for ever. And after to-day circumstances may occur to render speech between you and me impossible. If you have a word to utter, say it now."

"Go away! go away!" she cried, impatiently; "you try me too much."

"You will say nothing?" he continued.

"Yes, I will say this," she replied, clasping her hands together tightly. "Do not leave England on my account. I shall soon spare you the pain of my presence. I stay here only to answer any accusations brought against me; then I leave Trewavas for ever.

"Good Heavens!" exclaimed Sir Hilton. "And you think to escape—you who would not fly this morning, when there was time?"

"The offer came from you," she replied. "I could not accept honor, safety, friendship from you, much less cowardly flight."

"It is only innocence that can stay and face justice," he said. "Olive, are you innocent! Speak! for the love of mercy, speak!"

His passion had broken bounds, and burst forth in voice and gesture as he spoke. Olive did not answer him. A dead silence was creeping through all his veins, a dead silence blanching lip and cheek, and then Olive sank upon her knees, with head bowed down and hidden in her hands. For one horrible moment of agony Sir Hilton thought she was going to confess, but she sprang up, as though strengthened by that short failing of her courage, and showed him her face, not tear-stained by remorse, but proud and defiant, though sorrowful.

"Go!" she said; "I will never bring shame and disgrace upon your house. Do not fear it. You desire to hear me say that I am innocent, because I am beneath the Trewavas roof, because I have Trewavas blood in my veins—simply for that; nothing more. I am sorry, for your pride's sake, that I can tell you nothing. Do go away," she added, with a burst of her old petulant imperative manner. "I hate your questions. You annoy me. I want to be alone."

"You have not answered me," said he. "Will you answer me."

"No, never!" cried Olive, fiercely. "Will you leave me alone, Sir Hilton? Can you not see I am mad, miserable, and longing for solitude?"

He would have left her, but at this moment there was a footstep on the gravel, and Olive's white face turned so deathly at the sound that he stood still, uncertain and alarmed. It was only the gardener, holding in his hand a bunch of lovely flowers, all white.

"There is no jessamine here," said Olive, taking them in her trembling fingers. "Go, Simon; do gather me a spray or two of jessamine and tale Sir Hilton with you—he is wanted at the house."

"And so are you, miss," said the old man. "The folks were asking me just

AN EXCELLENT APPOINTMENT.

We are pleased to be able to inform our readers that Mayor Walsh has been appointed revising officer for North Wellington in the place of the late Judge Drew. This appointment places upon Mr. Walsh the responsibility of preparing and revising the Dominion voters' lists for that constituency during the present summer and of holding a court of revision in every municipality within its limits in the fall. The work is of a responsible and onerous nature, so much so that in every constituency where it is possible to do so a judge is selected for the position. There are only two other constituencies in Ontario in which the revising officers are practising barristers and the conferring of this office upon Mr. Walsh, therefore, speaks volumes for the reputation which he has made for himself, professionally and otherwise.

CAMPBELL RETAINS THE SEAT.

Unsuccessful Attempt to Unseat the Member for East Algoma—Shabby Conduct.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. July 17.—The trial of the petition against the return of A. F. Campbell for East Algoma took place here this week, commencing on Monday at 10 a. m. and concluding this morning. In every part of the riding the greatest interest was manifested, and as usual the Government officials characterized themselves by the most unseemly conduct, severely censured by the learned judges. These officials, undaunted even by the presence of the Premier, who attended court part of the time, resolved by hook or crook to unseat and if possible to disqualify Mr. Campbell, the successful candidate on June 5, 1890, who fairly won the riding after the most spirited campaign that ever took place in this district.

Forty five charges were preferred in the petition and evidence of the most flimsy nature was adduced in support thereof. Justices Osler and Ferguson presided, and after four days examination dismissed each and every charge as groundless and totally unsupported by the evidence. The trial throughout proved conclusively that a fair election had taken place. One Provincial Government official was severely reprimanded by their lordships in open court for tampering with a witness called by the petitioner, as their lordships remarked he narrowly escaped being detained in durance vile much longer than he would care to remain. It was shown in evidence that affidavits and declarations had been procured from witnesses in support of the charges while said witnesses were under the influence of liquor.

Never was the rottenness of an election petition more fully shown up than in this trial, and the more respectable Reformers, who discountenanced the protest and would not subscribe a dollar towards the support thereof, are now almost rejoicing at the lamentable exposure of the attempt.

CARDWELL.

SICK.—We are very sorry to hear that Mr. Robt Jackson, an old and respected resident of this place, has been confined to his bed for the past week, suffering from a severe cold which he contracted several days ago. We hope he will soon be around again.

CROPS.—The farmers around here have commenced harvesting their barley and fall wheat. The crops are excellent..... Mr. John and Miss McKim of Orangeville spent Sunday with friends here..... It is said several members of the Ranger football club have been picked to make a tour of England in the fall.

A GREAT SUCCESS.—The garden party held here on Thursday, the 9th inst. in aid of the funds of Hearld Angel church was a gigantic success. The spacious grounds of Mr Robt. Jackson was placed at the disposal of the multitude and everybody enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Loads of Orangeville people came to swell the gathering, and the county town people were heartily thanked. Mr J S Leighton of Orangeville occupied the chair and discharged his duties in a pleasing and satisfactory manner. Rev F. Hart, the popular minister, made a few pleasing remarks and Revs G. B. Morley of Tullamore and Chilcock and Deputy reeve Island delivered pithy and humorous addresses. Rev Mr. Morley's old friends were glad to see him looking so well and his right hand must have been pretty tired when he got through the hand shaking ceremony. Miss Howard and Miss Annie Jackson and Messrs. Thos. Donher, Harry Culp, Geo. Reid sang songs which were well received. Miss Ida Leighton of Orangeville gave a recitation in her usual good style. The receipts amounted to over $62.

It was The O Gorman Mahon, the fine old Irish gentleman whose death was chronicled recently, who introduced Parnell to Mrs. O'Shea. He was a man of extreme punctiliousness and when the scandal became public it was believed that he would challenge the uncrowned king to a duel. Had the meeting been brought about it would have been the seventeenth affair of honor that The O Gorman Mahon had taken part in.

The late P. T. Barnum made the following offer to the city of Philadelphia. It was never accepted:—

"I will undertake to give bond for the fulfilment of a contract that if the city of Philadelphia will stop selling liquor, and give me as much as was expended for liquor last year to run the city next year, I will pay all the city expenses, no one shall pay taxes and there shall be no insurance on property, and a good suit of clothes shall be given to every poor man, woman and child, and a barrel of flour to every needy and worthy person, and then I shall make half a million dollars by the operation."

The Queen has sent an autograph letter of condolence to Lady Macdonald.

Senator W. H. Ross, the leading statesman of Indian Territory, died suddenly Tuesday.

William Johnston, M. P. the supreme grand sovereigh of the Orange Order, arrived in Toronto on Wednesday from Ireland.

C. W. CONSERVATIVES

HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING AT FERGUS ON MONDAY.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

A Large Gathering Assemble—Resolutions of Condolence—Confidence in the Government.

The annual meeting of the Conservative association of Centre Wellington was held at Fergus on Monday, the 20th inst., at the hall of Mr. Hugh Roberts, the president. The attendance was surprisingly large in view of the fact that haying had just commenced. Over sixty members of the association were present, including representatives from every municipality in the riding. Orangeville was represented by Mayor Walsh, Dr. Lewis, John Crozier and J. E. Booth. From East Garafraxa were present W. H. Hunter, Thos. Hamilton (reeve), Thos. Walker and J. B. Reid. The old war horses from the west were there as usual, the familiar faces of President Hugh Roberts, John Beattie, J. C. Morrow, beaming as kindly as of yore upon the assembled faithful. The meeting was called to order shortly after 2 p. m. Before the transaction of the regular business Dr. Lewis moved an appropriate resolution dealing with the death of Sir John Macdonald, which was adopted. A resolution expressing confidence in the Abbott administration was enthusiastically carried. Resolutions expressing condolence with the family of the late Judge Drew, recommending the promotion of Judge Chadwick to the position of senior judge and the appointment of James Muir, Q. C., as junior judge, and expressing the confidence of the association in Mr. W. H. Hunter were adopted. The old officers were re-elected, except that Dr. Lucy of Drayton became 2nd vice president in the place of Mr. John McGowan. Satisfactory arrangements were made for the thorough revision of the voters' lists and for carrying to a successful issue the pending protest against the election of Mr. Semple, after which one of the most harmonious and satisfactory gatherings in the history of the constituency came to an end.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

SENT TO JAIL.—Mr. John Pigott, of Melanothon, was charged with assault before Justices Brown and McCue on Saturday last. The complainant was J. H. Leador. As Pigott was unable to pay the fine he was committed to jail for 10 days.

MELANCTHON'S NOVELTY.—For the first time in the history of the township of Melanothon an appeal against the assessment roll has been made to the county judge. The appellant is Dr. Holstio, and he complains that his farm property is too highly assessed. Decision was to have been given yesterday afternoon.

ACCIDENT.—While descending the hill near Mr. Geo. Shepherd's place, north of Primrose, last Thursday evening, an elderly gentleman and a young lady were thrown from a wagon to which a team of colts were hitched. A pin which held the neckyoke slipped from its place and let the wagon come against the horses. Fortunately the driver managed to rein the animals into the fence and they were stopped. The man's face was cut and bruised, but the young lady escaped unhurt.

HARD ON THE EDITOR.—The Creemore Star of a recent issue contained the following: "There was an old lady from the Mulmur vicinity who went to Burlington on the last excursion. It was her first trip on the cars. When she reached the door she timidly knocked for admission." A friend of the old lady writes as follows to the Free Press: "The next time Mr. J. B. Sparr, of the Creemore Star, comes to see the said old lady's daughter he will get a timid knock on the nose for his humorous remarks."

FARMERS' MILL.—At the meeting held at Hornings Mills on the 10th inst., for the purpose of electing directors and taking steps towards incorporation, the following were appointed for that purpose, viz. Alex Tupling, John F. Breen, Wm Henry, Thomas Barber, Robt. Matthew, R. Fewster, V. Bates, John A. Best, Geo Laking, Edward Ferris and R. Slack. Mr. J. F. Breen very ably filled the chair and Mr. H. H. Walker made an efficient secretary, to whom a cordial vote of thanks was tendered for their services.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

ELECTROCUTED.—Mr. James Scott, con. 9, Tarbert, had 2 fine ewes and 5 lambs killed by lightning on Tuesday night. The thunder storm that evening was very heavy, almost a continuous roll and flash.

OUT.—Ned Woolaston, who was sent down to Orangeville for thirty days for threatening to mash the county constable, is now at liberty after a service of 9 days in the county castle.

ACCIDENT.—The other day Mrs. McKinney had the misfortune to fall down cellar, breaking her collar bone and dislocating her shoulder. Under medical care the aged lady is doing as well as can be expected.

RAISED.—Mr. Robt. Dawson, jr., of the 8th con., Amaranth had the frame of his large barn raised on Wednesday last. Mr. R. Dixon did the work in one day with the assistance of a few hands, giving the greatest satisfaction. How different from the old pike process and the army gathering.

HOME FROM MANITOBA.—Mr. Joseph Crewson, son of L. D. Crewson, of Peepabun, is home on a month's visit to his parents from Manitoba. Mr. Oscar Crewson, who went to Manitoba about a month ago has returned, but he intends to move out there and go into mixed farming as soon as he disposes of his farm here.

The collision between the Canadian Pacific steamer Athabasca and the steel steamer Pontiac Tuesday week, by which the latter was sunk near Sault Ste. Marie, will give rise to one of the most remarkable collision suits ever tried on the lakes. The Pontiac was insured in the London Lloyds for something like $175,000. The Athabasca carried collision and liability insurance in English companies. The legal fight will thus be made between English underwriters, and will become very interesting. Attorneys have been retained on both sides and preparations made for the battle.

A WEARY SESSION!

THE COUNCIL'S DELIBERATIONS ON MONDAY NIGHT.

S. H. McKitrick Takes the Oath of Office—More Money Voted for Roads—Bylaws, Etc.

The brilliant electrical illuminator was not working in the council chamber at 8:05 o'clock on Monday night, but a few moments afterwards the lamp struck up a dazzling light and everything connected with the room of "wisdom" reflected its old-time appearance. The chief thing that characterized the meeting was the awful slowness in transacting aldermanic business. Mayor Walsh was absent and Reeve Lindsey occupied the bench. The worthy reeve did not exercise his right in making the councillors toe the order scratch, because some would say he would be a despot when he became mayor, and his time for that office will come in 1892 if we know what's what.

S. H. IN THE RING.

Mr. S. H. McKitrick, the newly-elected member for the East ward, took the oath of office a few minutes before the council commenced business, and during the evening expressed sensible opinions on several matters.

When the gong called the gathering to order three reporters and one ratepayer had the auditorium all to themselves and the local legislators were around the table inside the railing. Reeve Lindsay was acting mayor and Deputy reeve Endacott, Ald. Ketchum, Green, Coboan, McKitrick, Young, Gillespie and Fiddis assisted in "rushing" the business through.

MONEY FOR EDUCATION.

Mr. J. S. Leighton sent in a communication from the public school board informing the council that the board would require $4,300 for public school purposes for the next twelve months.

A DUAL ASSESSMENT.

Wm. Cruikshanks communicated the fact that his property had been assessed twice, and that the collector had remitted him $[illegible]. The collector will be reimbursed that sum.

AN UNFOUNDED REPORT.

Some man in Toronto heard that Orangeville was preparing to put in a waterworks system and he wrote a letter saying he would be only too happy to prepare the plans—if he was remunerated, of course. As a waterworks system is what the town wants, the people will not have it and the report was tabled.

KING WANTS THE EARTH.

Several weeks ago Mr. T. T. King offered to rent a portion of the lot in the rear of the waterworks for a term of 99 years, but before the matter could be dealt with by the council he withdrew his offer. He is now desirous of purchasing the land and is willing to give $25 for it. A great deal of time was wasted in arguing about what might be in the future. Ald. Green thought a street should be opened on the property and taxes would soon be realized. The matter was finally left to the T. P. committee.

THE SCALES AGAIN.

Deputy-reeve Endacott read the T. P. committee's report, which recommended that $40 be expended on the town weigh scales. It is proposed to erect a fence around the scales to facilitate the weighing of cattle, sheep, etc. Plans and specifications were prepared, but it is reported a more complete apparatus is at Maxville. However the report passed and it is unlikely a delegation will be sent thither.

Acting R. & B. Chairman Ketchum read a report from that committee. It suggested that $100 be spent in gravelling Mill street from Broadway down to the grist mill and from the skating-rink to the station; that $100 be spent on east Broadway; also that the Credit river be cleaned out, the expense not to exceed $20. The council went into committee of the whole, as it did on the previous report. Even more time was wasted in debating than in the previous report. The report in its entirety was adopted.

Two by laws authorising the mayor to sign the electric light and waterworks contracts were rushed through, after which the council adjourned.

THE JOHN ROBINSON SHOW.

Presenting a New Factor in Tented Amusements.

Solomon, the sagest and grandest of the Hebrew patriarchs, when he uttered that phrase, since become an axiom, that "there is nothing new under the sun," could he revisit the glimpses of the moon," would find that while his axiom still finds verification, yet that old things have become new in the reproduction and rehabilitations of the scenes, episodes and incidents characterizing his long and memorable reign. In placing before the people, by the John Robinson's show, the grand biblical spectacle of "Solomon, his Temple, and the Queen of Sheba," a realistic, living illustration of the most impressive scenes and events of biblical history is presented in vivid and entrancing form, and offers the most enjoyable and mind-nourishing afternoon and evening's entertainment ever projected or conceived. The glories, the grandeur and the greatness of Israel's wisest king are lavishly portrayed, and the most salient features and incidents of his noted regal administration find apt and accurate illustration. This gorgeous and resplendent spectacle is from the master mind of Mr. John Rettig, whose former biblical spectacular productions have made him famous, and who prides himself on this, the CHEF-D'OEUVRE of his art. It certainly is a master-piece of policy in the management of the John Robinson show to thus so materially and acceptably augment their already stupendous exhibitional enterprise, which, as almost every body is aware, is characterized as exhibiting the biggest and best circus, the most interesting menagerie and the largest hippodrome on the continent. The combined exhibitions, of which it may be said that they are given without additional entrance fee, are to display at Orangeville on August 4.

Ex-Warden Bedson, of Stoney Mountain penitentiary, who arrived at Ottawa a few days ago on a trip for the benefit of his health, was seized in the Victoria Chambers with a paralytic stroke. His right side is paralysed and his condition, owing to feeble health is looked on as critical. Since the above was written the ex warden has died.

TEMPERANCE SERMONS.

Rev. E. L. Pearson's Sermons in the Methodist Church on Sunday.

Last Sunday the congregation of the Methodist church declaimed to the cause of temperance, the sermons, prayers, hymns and scripture lessons, all leaning to that subject. The morning text taken by the pastor is in Romans 14th Chap., 21st verse. The preacher began by saying that the Methodist church was a total abstinence society, all its ministers being required to give an assurance of temperance principles before they could be ordained, and all its members being under obligation "not to use intoxicating liquor as a beverage. He then dwelt on the doctrine of the brotherhood of man and proceeded to show the baneful effects of intoxicating liquors, and how their use was the cause of so much evil in the world. Then the preacher enforced the scripture doctrine which his text contained—namely, that it was the duty of every Christian man, and every one who acknowledges the brotherhood of man, to abstain from the use of that which is working so much destruction. The sermon closed with an appeal to parents.

In the evening a large congregation assembled and the pastor again occupied the pulpit. The anthem of the choir was well rendered, and, as usual, Miss Haley's organ playing was of a high order. At the close of the service Mrs. Chapman sang "Have Courage My Boy to Say No" with good effect. The sermon was preached on the 25th verse of the 19th Acts. Two gatherings were held, Mr. Pearson said, in Toronto during the week: One was the annual gathering of the teachers of the United States and Canada. The purpose of their convention was the consideration of the best methods for promoting the culture of the young. Their meeting was a great blessing and in proportion, as their objects are realized, will the community be benefited. The other gathering was of liquor-sellers who were called together to decide the momentous question, whether they should charge 5 or 10 cents for a glass of whiskey. They seemed regardless altogether of the moral welfare of their patrons, and sought only to promote their craft, and just in proportion as the traffic in which they are concerned is promoted does society become debased and degraded. The liquor traffic was then arraigned as the deadly and unpitying foe of the home, the church and the nation. Recently petitions had poured into parliament from the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, and though the prayer of the petitions, which asked for prohibition, was not answered, yet progress in that direction was made. An increased duty had been put on liquors, and this seems to have aroused the sellers. Nothing but prohibition, the speaker said, would ever accomplish our country's deliverance from the ravages of intemperance. The license system was a failure. It is not the regulation of the evil, that should be aimed at, but its destruction. Last Sunday continued the speaker, I spoke of errors of Romanism, but I believe there are millions of pure and good people in that church, and their object is to be good and do good. But the object of the rum traffic is simply the enrichment of those engaged in it, regardless of the present or eternal welfare of those to whom they sell. That the time will come when the advocates of temperance shall gain the victory, there is no doubt. God is in this movement, and God is more powerful than dynamite, and selfishness, and political trickery.

BAPTIST PICNIC.—The Baptist Sunday school held a very pleasant outing at the Forks last Thursday afternoon. It was well attended.

FIRE INSURANCE.—If you want to be insured in the strongest and best companies in Canada, call on F. Irwin, over Endacott's store, Orangeville.

TOWNSHIP COUNCILS.—Mono township council will meet at Mono Centre on Friday, July 31. Amaranth and East Garafraxa councils meet on Saturday, August 1, at Laurel and Marsville respectively.

KEYS LOST.—A bunch of keys was lost either in the postoffice or on Broadway on Monday evening. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving them at THE SUN office or J. J. White's implement rooms, east Broadway.

CIVIC HOLIDAY.—A petition has been presented to the mayor, signed by a number of citizens praying that Wednesday 5th of August be appointed our civic holiday. The mayor has been pleased to grant their request.

METHODIST S. S. PICNIC.—The annual picnic of the Methodist Sunday school was held at Dufferin lake on Friday last and was a most enjoyable affair. A large number took advantage of the opportunity to spend the day at the lake.

CHURCH CHANGES.—There will be no morning service in the Baptist church next Sunday as the pastor, Rev. J. E. Gilmour, will occupy the pulpit in St. Andrews. In the evening, however, services will be held in the Baptist church, but not in the Presbyterian.

ORANGEVILLE VICTORIOUS.—On Monday the Orangeville tennis club went over to Fergus and played two matches, one with the Fergus club and the other with a club from Guelph. The Orangeville players succeeded in defeating both clubs by a comfortable score.

THE COW THIEF.—James Smith, the emigrant boy who stole a cow from David Watson of Caledon a few weeks ago, still sits in his prison cell at "Castle" Sutherland and whiles away the pleasant summer hours. He will come up for trial before P. M. Pattullo at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

SEE TO IT.—It is very important that every Conservative should understand that names on the voters' list as "income voters" or "owners' sons" will not appear on the new list unless they make fresh applications. No taxes are incurred by votes under income or as owner's sons.

TOWER OR SPIRE?—The committee who have charge of the rebuilding of the spire on St. Mark's church have not yet decided whether they will build a spire or tower. The members of the committee are about equally divided on the subject and a meeting will be held this evening to settle the matter.

COMMENCED WORK.—On Monday a gang of stonemasons commenced laying the foundation for the new waterworks buildings. The stone used is extra large, and as Joe Riddell is boss of the job we may be sure nothing but first class work will be done. W. T. Bailey is the town's overseer, and he will receive $25 for his services.

HAVE SOME GET ABOUT YOU.—Mixed Stocks, a paper published in Chicago in the interests of business men, says, "When we receive a letter from a store keeper who has no printed letter head on envelope we wish we could see the writer personally and tell him what wholesale firms say of retail dealers who neglect to print there name, town and business."

WILL CURE BLACK KNOT.—It has been discovered that black knot on plum and cherry trees can be not only prevented from spreading but actually killed by simply painting them with red oxide of iron in linseed oil. The disease is making great havoc of the fruit trees in all parts of Ontario, and if this simple remedy is effective, no time should be lost in making the application.

FOR CHILD DESERTION.—Just as we go to press information has been received that a prominent farmer in Caledon was arrested last night and taken to Guelph jail on a charge of deserting a child on the Orangeville and Fergus road, west Garafraxa, one or two months ago. Full particulars appeared in THE SUN at the time, and next week we will have an extended report of the arrest. Startling disclosures are expected.

EDGAR HAS WED.—At 11 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Edgar Bowles of the firm of Green, Bowles & Co., Orangeville, was married to Miss Rose Homuth, eldest daughter of Mr. J. J. Homuth, merchant, of Wingham. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist church of that place and was witnessed by a large number of friends. The newly married pair will reside on west Broadway in future. THE SUN extends its congratulations.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—While at the Methodist S. S. picnic at Dufferin lake on Friday a number of the boys went in for a swim, but one or two narrowly escaped coming out alive. Willie Hunter, a boy employed in a Broadway store, took a cramp and sank once or twice. When he was going down a third time he grappled a companion around the arms and took him to the bottom. When they came to the surface again Walker Kearst caught them and held the "rattled" boys until a boat came to the rescue. It was a pretty narrow escape, though.

A WEST GARAFRAXA SHOOTING CASE.—Thos. Garvin, an old man of 60 years, was charged with shooting Wm. Byers, of West Garafraxa, on the 16th. The prisoner was before Judge Chadwick on Saturday last and pleaded not guilty, and elected to be tried by Judge Chadwick on Thursday next. The chief facts are that he is the owner of a farm, subject to life lease, on that day had some dispute about the cherries on the trees, and fired his shotgun at Byers, several of the shot unfortunately hitting him. The prisoner's explanation is that he did not intend harm, but only to frighten him. Mr. Peterson appeared for the Crown.—Guelph Mercury.

A MINISTERIAL MISHAP.—Rev. M. L. Pearson, the esteemed pastor of the Methodist church, met with a painful accident while coming up from the C. P. R. station on Friday evening last. The rev. gentleman attended a Sunday school picnic at Dufferin lake during the day, and when he alighted from the train he was pretty well laden with baskets. When opposite Lindsay's elevator a man who was walking ahead of Mr. Pearson stepped on an unnailed plank, the end of which flew up and struck the pastor on the face, inflicting several painful wounds. Although the rev. gentleman was pretty badly shaken up, he preached two excellent sermons on Sunday.

INSURANCE CLAIMS UNSETTLED.—The insurance claims resulting from the late Lennox house fire still remain unsettled. The inspectors were in town last week inquiring into the cause of the fire, and we believe they have come to the conclusion that Mr. Edmunds is strictly honest in the matter. The insurance of $2,100 was on the building alone, but the company is prepared to rebuild it or settle the claim by paying $1,700 or thereabouts. Mr. Edmunds insurance of $1,200 on the contents of the hotel will probably be adjusted in the course of a few days. Mr. Chittick, whose shoemaking establishment was in the building, has been offered $55, but has not accepted it yet.

ADVERTISE ESTRAY ANIMALS.—The laws of Ontario provide that a person taking up any stray stock shall give notice of such taking up by publishing a notice three times in a weekly newspaper, if one is published within the section, where the estray was taken up; and if the property is not called for within 3 weeks after the first insertion of the notice the finder shall go before a justice of peace and make oath as to the finding and advertising. If the property is not claimed within one year and should not exceed fifty dollars in value it then belongs to the party taking the same up, if over fifty dollars in value it shall be advertised by the justice and sold, and the excess of all expenses shall be paid over to the county treasurer. Any person taking up an estray and neglecting to cause the same to be advertised and appraised, shall be liable to a fine of twenty dollars. The estray law applies also to any other personal property which may be found in like manner.

AN EAST GARAFRAXA SWAIN IN TROUBLE.—Sometime about the end of June one of East Garry's thrifty young men paid a Sunday evening visit to his Amorette and remaining to a late hour some of his many rivals removed the harness from his horse. When the simple swain went to start for home the loss stared him in the face, but being a youth of many resources he mounted his gray mare and rode calmly home, fully realizing that a lark had been played on him and expecting that the harness would be returned in due time. He kept his own counsel, not giving away the joke. But it was too good to keep, and one of the parties suspected gave the "thing away," which was the first known in the neighborhood of the affair. Still the patient lover awaited, but the missing harness did not turn up, and he finally swore out a warrant and now Constable Hubbard is securing the swamps of East Garafraxa and the premises of the persons suspected, and that which in the first place was intended as a harmless joke may prove a very serious offence. We withhold names for the present, but when the case is tried in the Orangeville police court THE SUN will contain a full report.

A GREAT MACHINE.

The McMaster Binder is Doing Big Work this year.

The McMaster self binder, which is manufactured in Orangeville, is doing great work in the grain fields this season. This machine is the simplest, lightest, cheapest and best ever constructed.

The following testimonials are among the many received:

Albion, July 22nd, 1891.

J. A. McMaster:

This is to certify that, having purchased one of your Low Elevator Binders this season and having tried it in fall wheat, part of which was soft and green, on soft bottom and bad side hills, I must say it was as easy on a team as a Beatty reaper. It does not throw the weight on the horses' necks, and is very easily turned at the corners. I am particularly pleased with the knotter, which is very simple and a sure tier. JOHN MAY.

Norval, July 21, 1891.

J. A. McMaster, Esq.,

Having purchased one of your McMaster Open Elevator Binders, 5½ ft cut, I beg to say that it gives splendid satisfaction. It makes the best and cleanest sheaf of any binder I have ever seen, and with your cutter-bar I can cut as close to the ground as a mower. I had no trouble lifting fall wheat which was badly down and tangled, and your knotter is perfection, being very simple and sure. Yours truly,

GEORGE PETTIGREW.

WALDEMAR.

SUDDEN DEATH.—The death took place suddenly on Sunday morning of Adam, youngest son of Mr. Henry Talbot. The young man had been blind for a year, but otherwise was in apparent good health up to retiring on Saturday night. Early Sunday morning he complained of a severe pain in the head and before medical aid could be summoned he had passed away. The remains were interred in the Town cemetery at Orangeville on Tuesday.

JOE THE JOKER.

He writes a Pleading Letter to the Police-Magistrate and is set at liberty.

Mr. Joseph Agnew is a well known character around Orangeville, and when he sojourns in town he can always be found on the south side of east Broadway. Frequently, very frequently, Joe takes an overdose of forty-rod and brings his powerful lungs into play. For this, more than once, Joe has been a guest up at the "castle," and each time his sojourns there become a little longer. Several months ago Joseph was run in and P. M. Pattullo sentenced him to six months in Orangeville's free boarding house. The large-hearted P. M., however, gave Joe the option of shaking the dust of this town from his feet and not showing up again for six months. On several occasions Joe dropped in to see how the town was getting along, but when Chief Shields hove in sight he always disappeared. Joe is a loyal man and he could not let Dominion day go by without celebrating it in his own peculiar style. He loaded up with "tangle-leg," and after having a big time laid down to take a nap. The chief of police ran across Joe and thought it was a pity to see him sleeping on the street when Gov. Sutherland had a few unoccupied beds left. Now, Joseph was accordingly invited to share the governor's hospitality, and a tear trickled down his cheek when the thought struck him that he would have to do time for the next six months. Hundreds of thoughts flashed through his mind as to the possibility of his getting a reprieve, and in a moment of excitement he took his pen in hand and wrote P. M. Pattullo these few lines, hoping to find the magistrate well as it left him at present:

Castile Sutherland,
July 11.

To the Honorable magistrate.

Sur—I am in sutherlands Jug let me out for the 12th of Ireland my boon is aking to march with the Gallant Boys of mono Charlie will bring this Letter and Send your Order to let me go by return of him Mr. patello do not Fail to let me out to attend church with the Boys tomorrow I will go to your own church if you will give me 2 months Freedom in the summer i will S.rve you in the castile for 4 months next winter my face will not Be seen orangeville after the 12th till the snow flys your Servant Joe Agnew.

This epistle struck one of the numerous tender spots in the P. M's heart, but he did not comply with the request immediately. Joe's affectionate letter haunted him from day to day and finally the cadi completely collapsed and on Thursday ordered the cruel iron door to swing open and restore Joe to liberty, sweet liberty! Joe immediately betook himself to the country and hasn't shown up since.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against these spurious imitations, and are asked to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c. a box), by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE BANK CAVED IN

And Buried Wm. Collister—His Cellar-Door and Several Ribs Broken.

A very serious accident occurred at the waterworks shortly after five o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. Building operations are going on there and hands in the work—Wm. Collister, was engaged digging a trench for the foundation when the bank caved in, burying the unfortunate man up to the neck and breaking his collarbone and several ribs. Four or five of his fellow workmen sprang to their comrade's assistance and dug him out as quickly as possible. Dr. Lewis was on the spot a few minutes after the accident occurred, and the injured man was immediately conveyed to his home in the East ward and his injuries were attended to. It will be five or six weeks before Collister can resume work, and he has the sympathy of all in his misfortune. Neither contractor McDonald nor any of the workmen are to blame for the mishap, as it was purely an accident, and we all know accidents are liable to occur at any moment.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

An Ingersoll jeweller has a watch that is 120 years old.

The Quebec Legislature stands prorogued until August 31.

Count Mercier arrived at Quebec from Europe on Friday.

Toronto is having another great surprise party over their street railway.

The great strike of railway employes at Paris, France, has collapsed.

Sarah Davis, said to be 133 years of age, was buried at Indianapolis Tuesday.

Men who are suffering from nervous debility, overwork, early indescretions or any of the numerous causes that break down the system, should use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A certain blood builder and nerve restorer. They never fail. Try them. Sold by all dealers or post paid on receipt of price (50c. a box). Address Dr. Williams, Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

In the suit of Hamilton v. the C.P.R. for unlawful ejection from a train a Calgarry jury has returned a verdict for plaintiff, fixing the damages at $1,400.

The evils resulting from habitual costiveness are many and serious; but the use of harsh, drastic purgatives is quite as dangerous. In Ayer's Pills, however, the patient has a mild but effective aperient, superior to all others, especially for family use.

At the City council meeting, Toronto, Monday night a by-law was passed prohibiting Sunday lecturing or preaching in the public parks. This action was taken in view of the frequent disturbances there on Sunday afternoons.

A man named Wm. English, about 55 years of age, was found dead in a well on the farm occupied by his brother-in-law, Paul Dynes, near Acton. It is thought to be a case of suicide.

Don't be discouraged about the eczema till you have given Ayer's Sarsaparilla a persistent trial. Six bottles of this medicine cured the complaint for George S. Thomas, of Ada, Ohio, when all other remedies failed to afford any relief.

now where you were. You'll pass the jessamine bush as you go in, miss."

He took his spade in his hand and would have turned the heap of burning weeds, but Olive thrust him back.

"Will you stifle us with smoke?" she cried angrily.

Her eager manner sent a thrill of strange suspicion through Sir Hilton's mind. He caught up suddenly a garden rake lying on the ground, and thrust it among the pile of embers, Olive's eyes being fastened on him all the while in terror. A bright flame burst up as he stirred the heap, and among the weeds there lay a coil, half dust, half ashes, which scattered as the rake touched it.

"What is that?" said the old gardener, bending forward; "a dead snake he it."

"It is nothing—only a weed," said Olive faintly.

Sir Hilton threw down the rake, and, with a sickness on him like death, he leant against a tree speechless. Was this the missing cord? and how had she gained it? Had she crept up to the wood by a quicker way, and with love speeches and promises bribed young Vigo to give into her treacherous hand? Was it to burn it here she had sent the gardener away under the pretence of wanting flowers; and was it for this she had striven to rid herself, too, of him? It was too much. Let her lover, the boy Vigo, save her now if he would. For him, he would never more stir a finger to keep her from the murderer's doom. He would do his duty. To-morrow, at the inquest, he would give his evidence truly, as became a man, even if grief should kill him. Pity should no more make him false to justice. He had wronged this girl, because as a boy he had loved her, and as a man, being proud, prudent, and worldly, he had forsaken her for a fitter choice. But was that a reason why he should screen this great, this horrible crime? Yes, Heaven help him! it was a reason; because love for him had driven her to murder. But she had gone to Vigo, trusted Vigo—let him help her now.

Olive's voice down upon his terrible thoughts—Olive's voice, indignant and angry.

"Are you satisfied?" she said, clenching her small hand with passion. "You would not go away. I only prayed to be left alone. Have I asked anything else of you? Have I accepted any help or succor from you? I will not have it. I will die a thousand deaths rather than let you help me to live. I will give my life in drops of blood if I choose; but take it from your ungenerous hand—no, never!"

Her eyes flashed upon him as she spoke, and her words fell in rapid indignation from her lips.

"Quarrelling again!" mumbled the [illegible] "Miss Olive's was always her temper, but I can't make out this row."

Sir Hilton and Olive heard him understood nothing then, and no suspicion in his dense mind sigh of relief burst forth from [illegible] room.

MEDICINAL PROPERTIES OF VEGETABLES.

The following information may be useful to some at this season of the year, if not new to many.

Spinach has a direct effect upon the kidneys.

The common dandelion, used as greens, is excellent for the same trouble.

Asparagus purges the blood. Celery acts admirably upon the nervous system, and is a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia.

Tomatoes act upon the liver.

Beets and turnips are excellent appetizers.

Lettuce and cucumbers are cooling in their effects upon the system.

Onions, garlic, leeks, olives and shalots, all of which are similar, possess medicinal virtues of a marked character, stimulating the circulatory system and the consequent increase of the saliva and the gastric juice, promoting digestion.

Red onions are an excellent diuretic, and the white ones are recommended to be eaten raw as a remedy for insomnia. They are a tonic and nutritious.

A soup made from onions is regarded by the French as an excellent restorative in debility of the digestive organs.

The Grand Trunk System.

THE Grand Trunk system differs from the human system in that the same troubles do not affect it and the same remedies are not needed. For all diseases of the human system there is one tonic purifier, renovator and strengthener as good as Burdock Blood Bitters. A weak system can be built up by B. B. B.

Young Adam Forepaugh, though his income is now greater than the president's salary, does his pink tights at every performance of his circus and rides in the hurdle race with all the interest of a ten-dollar a week supe. Young Forepaugh is thirty years old and built like an athlete. He has had something to do about a circus ring since he was a boy of seven.

50,000 dozen eggs wanted at Endacott Bros. for which they will pay the highest price in cash or exchange.

Health, Happiness and Prosperity.

All these depend on pure blood, for without it health is impossible; without health happiness prosperity is a mockery. No means of obtaining pure blood and removing bad blood excels the use of B. B. B., the best blood purifier known.

Rev. Rural Dean Wade of Woodstock has publicly denied that he ever stated Birchall had confessed to him.

What's The Reason?

The causes of summer complaint, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera morbus, etc., are the excessive heat, eating green fruit, overexertion, impure water and sudden chill. Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is an infallible and prompt cure for all bowel complaints from whatever cause.

All Men.

young, old, or middle-aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, emissions, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face or body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eye lids and elsewhere, bashfulness, odpsmts in the urine, loss of will-power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with LARGE OBSCURE, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension very function wanes in consequence. Those who through abuse committed in ignorance may be permanently cured. Send your address for book on all diseases peculiar to man. Address M. V. LUBON, 59 Front St. E., Toronto, Ont. Book sent free sealed. Heart disease, the symptoms of which are faint spells, purple lips, nausheas, palpitation, skip beats, hot flashes, rush of blood to the head, dull pain in the heart with beats strong, rapid and irregular, the second heart beat quicker than the first, pain about the breast bone, etc., can positively be cured. No cure, no pay. Send for book. Address M. V. LUBON, 59 Front Street East, Toronto, Ont.

LOOK OUT FOR HIM—A fraud by the name of Warson, but with various aliases, is going around among the Odd fellows. His plan of operation is to claim that he is waiting for his mail, and asks to have a cheque cashed. He has claimed to be a member of Guiding Star Lodge, New York, from which lodge he has been expelled. He is described as "about twenty one years of age, slender build, tall, light complexion; at the time of leaving New York was clean shaven. Very plausible in conversation, appearently well up in the work; a smooth talker."

Ayer's Hair Vigor

IS the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken; and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—T. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for a dressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," McArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use.

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Yonker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

THE RACE.

To live is but to nobly strive—
To strive against the savage earth,
Against the tireless days that drive
Men deathward from their hours of birth.

Hope, love and faith—these things are real,
More sweet and precious than we know;
Yet, like star-glimpses, they reveal
The country lifted above, below.

And what if some cry: God, forbear!
And other still: Why live at all?
Life moves through triumph or despair,
To its creators deathless call.

Though one man falters on his way,
And one man stands railing to the end,
There is no hand nor will to stay
That purpose which is foe or friend.

That purpose which exalts a soul
Even while it robs a soul of grace,
Which sinks the atom in the whole,
The individual in the race.

The Story Teller.

OLIVE VARCOE
—OR—
TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER X. (Continued.)

"Do as you will," she said to Sir Hilton, in a low voice as she passed him. "Give words to the foolish shadows and suspicions of your mind if you choose—there is no proof," she added, glancing triumphantly at the flaming pile; "a weed—a trailing vine stem—is not a snake, or worse than a snake, except to you."

She swept on proudly, but as she passed him, she saw Sir Hilton start back, and shrink from contact even with her robe; and when the trees hid her from his sight, her pride drooped, her eyes filled with tears, and her face grew wan with a shadow of a great pain.

With the flowers in her hand, Olive went straight towards the justice-room. At the door of the hall, pacing to and fro, flushed restless, and excited, she met Charles Vigo. He seized her hand and kissed it, holding it in an impassioned, earnest grasp, and bending on her the honest light of his deep blue eyes.

"You will explain everything, Olive," he said, eagerly; "they are mad to talk of you as they do. Promise me you will explain all."

"All I can tell I will," replied Olive mournfully.

"One word," replied the young man, eagerly. "You will give me leave to say I met you in the wood? You will release me from my promise?"

Olive hesitated and remained in thought a moment.

"No. I cannot," she said, earnestly. "You must keep your promise with me."

"But I have already betrayed you," said Charles Vigo, turning pale as death. "I have told Damerel in confidence that I met you."

"I am sorry indeed to hear that," she replied; but I believe mere hearsay is not permitted in evidence; so, if you yourself do not witness against me this testimony will not avail."

"I witness against you!" he cried. "Never, Olive! But why not clear your self? Why let so horrible a suspicion rest on you for a moment?"

"I cannot clear myself," she said, in a low voice. "I can escape; that is all I can hope to do. And without your help I dare scarcely hope that."

Charles Vigo gasped for breath. What was she saying?—what was she going to do? His senses swam, and he saw this pale, resolute, passionate girl as in mist, a halo of fiery suffering about her head. His eyes, blinded or cleared by hope—which was it?—saw no guilt, no sea of blood, round the small trembling hands clasped pleadingly on her bosom.

"Olive!" he cried, passionately, "I will not stand by and see you sacrifice——"

But at this moment the door of the justice room opened, and the smiling face of Mr. Eslick beamed out upon them, newly creamed, as it were, by the shining milk of human kindness within him.

"Ah! here is the young lady at last," said he. "Miss Varcoe, I believe?"

Olive bowed in silence.

"Perhaps you are aware, Miss Varcoe," he continued, "that I am sent here by Sir Anthony Roskelly to investigate the circumstances of Miss Maristowe's mysterious death? For the honor of the county, all our magistrates are anxious to have the matter cleared up quickly. Mr. Damerel has been giving me some very interesting information, which I think will materially assist us. He and lady Trewavas have been waiting for you for some time. Will you enter and take a seat?"

Without a word, Olive obeyed him. Young Vigo followed her. On entering, she glanced for a moment at the aged lady, between whom and herself so many bitter words had passed. The sight of her gray hair, her worn face, with the quiver of pain passing over it, seemed to give Olive some unaccountable strength; a smile broke faintly on her lip, then left it trembling, but not with weakness, and she took her seat more calmly, more self-possessed than any there, except the smiling man, who watched her as a tiger watches his prey.

"Before you speak, Miss Varcoe," he observed, "I am bound to caution you not to say anything to criminate yourself. I grieve to say Mr. Damerel's statement throws very grave suspicion on you."

Olive's face flushed, and she turned a scornful look on the embarrassed Mr. Damerel.

"May I be permitted," said she, "to hear what you have said concerning me Mr. Damerel?"

Like a true Englishman, strong in his ideas of duty, he conquered the feelings that rose up hot within him, and spoke manfully.

"I have made a short statement of the painful truth, Miss Varcoe," said he, "namely, that you were seen in the wood a short time before the murder, and after it; you were heard using threatening and violent language to Miss Maristowe; you were known to be her enemy; you were anxious to prevent her marriage with Sir Hilton Trewavas, for reasons of your own, but above all because the marriage would deprive you of your home, at Trewavas; and, lastly, when she was found dead, her wrists were tied with a silk cord, of a peculiar make, which you were seen wearing that day as a girdle."

"And who is the person who saw and heard all this?" asked Olive, unfaltringly. "Is it you, Mr. Damerel?"

"I saw the cord on Miss Maristowe's wrists this morning at six o'clock, when I drew her dead from the pool at the Lady's Bower," he replied. "I decline, and have declined to say who saw you in the wood. I leave the person with whom you had an interview to speak for himself."

"Which he will certainly do now the young lady is present," observed Mr. Eslick, rubbing his hands softly together, and turning his face on young Vigo, with an expression of amiable contentment.

"Pray do not answer for a moment, Mr. Vigo," said Olive, quickly. "Mr. Damerel, may I ask at what hour this unknown person had an interview with me in the wood?"

"I do not know the exact hour," he replied; "but it was between three and half past seven."

"Yesterday?" said Olive.

"Yesterday, Miss Varcoe," he replied.

"Then, Lady Trewavas," said Olive, rising with a flush on her face, "I call upon you to refute the malicious and cruel suspicion, which this statement of Mr. Damerel's brings down on my head. You know that I was locked in my chamber yesterday from three until past sight, and the key of my room was in your possession the whole of that time. Your maid, Tamson, released me at that hour, and brought me some dinner, as, my door being locked, I was, of course, unable to present myself at the family dinner."

The amazement with which Damerel heard her, the astonishment and pain with which young Vigo listened, and the relief that lightened Lady Trewavas' heart, cannot be depicted. As for Mr. Eslick, he forgot to smile, and he picked his twitching lips with a fat forefinger.

"It is true," said Lady Trewavas, steadily. "In the dreadful excitement of the time I had forgotten this fact. It can be proved by my son John, who locked Miss Varcoe in her room, and by the maid who released her."

"And did the key never leave your possession, madam?" she was asked.

"Never!" she replied.

As this short dialogue went on, and Mr. Eslick kept his sharp green eyes fixed on Lady Trewavas, a momentary glance passed between Olive and Charles Vigo. It was a look of great pain on his part, of triumph on hers. He grew paler and paler, but her cheeks were flushed with pride and excitement. Mr. Damerel saw the look, and full of sorrow for his friend, and stifling with indignation at Olive's wickedness, and her power over him, he lost his prudence and cried out angrily, "I do not believe a word of this. I ask you, Miss Varcoe, direct, were you not in the wood yesterday?"

"Sir!" exclaimed Olive, "I recognise no rights in you to ask me questions. If any traducer ventures to accuse me of this crime, I shall answer through my counsel; he will know how to fling away the shadows which your malice throws around me."

With his clenched hand resting on the table, and his face quivering with emotion, Charles Vigo heard her, and wondered. Mr. Eslick, growing more and more interested, regained his smile, and turned his sharp eyes in a mild, blinking way, very much like a leopard, from one to the other of the agitated party.

"Vigo! my dear Vigo!" cried Mr. Damerel, "I appeal to your honor, your sense of duty! Remember your promise to me when we found that poor murdered girl this morning. You would denounce the murderer, you would do justice you said."

"And so I will," he replied, "so help me, Heaven!"

The clenched hand that had rested on the table was raised in the air and came down again with a force that resounded through the room.

The flush died from Olive's face, she grew pale as ashes, and her eyes fell before Mr. Eslick's gaze.

"We must all do our duty, however painful," observed that gentleman, with a serene expression of goodness. "Mr. Vigo, I am pleased to see you so eager in the cause of justice. Perhaps you will have no objections to tell me how far your statement corroborates Lady Trewavas."

"I have every objection," replied the sturdy Charles Vigo. "I object to answer any question put to me by a confounded spy, sent here by my enemy to annoy a distressed family. If you choose, on your own responsibility, Mr. Eslick, to arrest any innocent member of this family, I shall appear at the examination, answer to any question the magistrates put. I shall also open my lips fully to-morrow at the inquest. Until then, I bid you good day."

Olive listened to him with parted lips and as he concluded, she sprang to his side and laid her hand for a moment on his arm. The smile with which Mr. Eslick observed this was seraphic.

"Ah, your friend defends you wonderfully well, Miss Varcoe," he said. "I hope you will live to reward him. I am not going to arrest any one on my own responsibility to-night, Mr. Vigo. We can afford, I think, to leave it till after the inquest; meanwhile, madam I will telegraph to Sir Anthony Roskelly the result of my inquiry here, and, if you will permit me, I will await his reply. I am sorry, as a respectable man, merely doing my duty, to be denounced as a spy; but Mr. Vigo's motive is so transparent that I excuse him."

The manner in which Mr. Eslick smiled and rubbed his hands during this speech was horrible; but the way in which he blinked, fastening his eyes on Olive with a cruel fascination and mild cruelty, was more horrible still. He seemed a snake waiting placidly for his victim to fall into his coils. He quitted them in great benevolence and pity, as though bestowing his blessing upon them in a paternal and forgiving spirit. But all, except Damerel, felt as he closed the door that he had done it like a gaoler, and in his own mind he was busy fastening about them the chains and bolts of a dungeon.

"I have shut that door upon a strange lot," he said to himself as he crossed the hall. "If those four could see each other's spirits, there'd be a queer scene. She isn't deceiving that blue eyed young man; he is sticking to her because he is in love, but she is taking in the old lady nicely. She was shut up in her room yesterday just about as much as I was. I must find out the geography of this old house, and see how she escaped. There's a low window, a ladder, another door, or something. Ah! she can't take me in. I was born in a menagerie, and bred in a lunatic asylum. I'm used to these creatures—they are all alike, and they must be treated with kindness—great kindness. Humanity!—that's the grand thing! And, for the sake of humanity, we must sometimes use a red hot iron bar, a strait waist, and—a gallows."

Very self satisfied, and full of humanity, Mr. Eslick betook himself to the servants' hall, where the quiet inspector awaited him, whose intelligence and manners were quite of another order.

"Inspector, you see how it is here," said Mr. Eslick, pompously.

"I think I do, sir," he replied.

"Very well," said Mr Eslick. The less we say the better. I am going to write a message for Sir Anthony, which one of the men must take to the telegraph office."

He wrote it rapidly, and handed it to the inspector to read.

"You approve of that?" said he. "You are quite of my opinion, I suppose?"

The man read it, handed it back, and nodded assent. The message ran thus:

"One of the family—can put hands on the right party at any time. Shall we arrest now or to-morrow?"

The smiles that ran rippling over Mr. Eslick's face, as he folded and sealed this, were a sight to see.

"I think the money and the place are sure to me now," he said to himself. "This is more than Sir Anthony has gained for so I shall of course expect more. This is a very nice little circumstance to happen to one's enemy, this is—murder, publicity, disgrace; all his private affairs and feelings over hauled by the newspapers! Really one wouldn't wish it better if one had arranged it all oneself.—no, upon my word, not if one had arranged it all oneself, upon the very kindest principles."

Night and darkness fell down upon the ancient mansion of Trewavas, bringing sleep to few, peace to none. The day closed in storm, with a northwest wind, rolling in upon the heavy sea, which echoed and thundered far inland. In the sky, dark clouds, hanging low, whence fell a continuous downpour of thick rain, pitilessly beating on summer flower and green leaf, rustling mournfully in the woods, laying low the climbing vine and the myrtle round the Lady's Bower, falling on the pool like passionate tears for lost love, and beating fiercely against the windows of the old house, where watchers wept for the dead.

As the darkness grew intense, as the winds rose, and the rain fell, a fear and a gloom that the ensuing days had held back crept through corridor and hall, gathering the servants into groups, and chilling the hearts of the stoutest. Each one knew that a murderer was amongst them; each one knew that he must sleep that night near the tortured spirit, and haunted conscience of guilt. And as the rules demounted, and the winds beat upon that ancient roof—now for the first time, after years of power and pride, sheltering a felon—white faces gathered together, and voices whispered with horror of the cruel hand that had taken so young, so innocent, so fair a life.

The desire in the hearts of all, that the murderer should be discovered and taken, grew in intensity, and the suspicions gathering like shadows round the figure of Olive crept closer to her, pointing her out as a mark for indignation and loathing.

"She was always fierce—an evil-tempered little thing," said one.

"And she hated Miss Eleano," said another.

"And she certainly loved Sir Hilton," whispered a third. "Ah, that's the secret of it—love is at the bottom of all."

A selfish feeling of uneasiness pervaded the servants' hall. One of them might be suspected, unless the right person was found.

"Why don't they take her?" asked Mrs. Maristowe's maid, angrily.

"Because she was locked up all yesterday afternoon; therefore she couldn't be in the wood," said a manservant, one of Olive's few supporters.

"Don't believe that tale," replied Tamson, lifting her pert nose victoriously in the air. "I went to her door over so many times, and couldn't hear nobody stirring, and I knocked and called, and got no answer.

She got out somehow, I can tell you. There's the little old stone stairs; nobody hasn't thought of them yet."

"The door at the bottom is always locked," said the man.

"You never mind, said Tamson; "I'll swear she was out. I can tell something, if I like."

"What is it, Tamson?" Tell us, Tamson dear, do."

Eager eyes pressed around the girl greedy for the words that should assure them of Olive's guilt.

"Well, it doesn't matter," said Tamson. "I've got to tell it to-morrow at the inquest, so I may as well let you know what it is. Her black silk dress was wet as if it had been dragged through a pool. What do you think of that? And that isn't all; she tried to light a fire last night in her room to dry her things. Ask Phebe there about it."

Phebe was a girl who sometimes waited on Olive, being too coarse and too great a rustic to wait on any one else. Being thus appealed to Phebe lifted her face stupidly from her red arms, and began to cry.

"I wish I hadn't told," she said; and down went the honest face again, sobbing more piteously than before.

"Don't be a fool, you great gawk! You must tell everything, or go to prison yourself," snapped Tamson, fiercely. "And, moreover, she burnt a heap of things last night—old letters and papers; Phebe found the ashes in the grate."

"Oh, Tamson, Tamson!" cried Phebe; "I never thought you'd go and make mischief of what I told you. What's the harm of burning letters?"

"What's the harm, indeed?" broke in Mrs. Maristowe's maid. "Why, she must have had something to hide, else she wouldn't have done it. On such a night, when we were all sitting up frightened and miserable, she takes to innocent sorting and burning of old letters—don't tell me such trash as that! I'll never sleep in this house again if she isn't took to prison. I'm afraid of getting killed myself, I am. Them as does one murder can do two."

Thus the iron household discoursed, while policemen slumbered in the kitchen, or passed through the rain on the gravelled walks without.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

When offered by auction on June 18th, the residence of Mr. James Muir, Q.C., was knocked down to Mr. T. J. Hamilton at $1,160. This property should have brought between $1600 and $2000, as it is very desirably situated and in a fine state of repair, and cost originally over $3,000. The simple fact is that dwellings are not in demand in Fergus; and especially properties over $800 or $1,000 in value.—Fergus News Record.

The Grand Trunk System.

THE Grand Trunk system differs from the human system in that the same troubles do not affect it and the same remedies are not needed. For all diseases of the human system there is no tonic purifier, renovator and strengthener as good as Burdock Blood Bitters. A weak system can be built up by B. B. B.

During the past two or three months several farms in the vicinity of 4-mile creek west of Lither, have become infested with rats of a very large size! To such an extent have their numbers grown as to be almost unbearable. On one farm several broods of young ducks and chickens have been taken in broad daylight. The other day, on the same farm, some 25 or 30 rats were caught at one time in a small meal bin.

What's The Reason?

The causes of summer complaint, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera morbus, etc., are the excessive heat, eating green fruit, overexertion, impure water and sudden chill. Dr Fowler's Wild Strawberry is an infallible and prompt cure for all bowel complaints from whatever cause.

About one year ago three citizens of Waterford, Messrs. Joyce, Grover and Oalker, built a union block, and were encouraged by some persons of influence to place the same about nine feet upon highway. Last week at the county court, Simcoe, Judge Rook made an order for the owners of the building to remove it within three months. The block which has to be taken down cost about $6,000.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The formal opening of the Sarnia tunnel will probably take place in October. The work of the approaches is being pushed ahead, and the mile of siding in the yards on both sides of the river are being put in good shape.

A summary of the crop reports shows as an average of the accounts given that hay is everywhere light; wheat, rye, barley and oats are looking well, and may yield over the usual returns; peas, heavy; potatoes, looking splendid; apples, light; roots, filling out finely; small fruits give varying promises according to the locality.

THE list of Dominion voter's qualifications may be summarized as follows:—Every male, being a British subject and 21 years of age, who is owner or occupant of real property of actual value of $300 in cities, $200 in towns, $150 in other places; who is a tenant paying at least $2 rent per month, or $20 per year, whose income is $300 a year; the sons of farmers and property owners are qualified by their parents' property when sufficient. In fact, the franchise is broad enough to include almost every man in the community. It will be found that nearly every citizen comes under one or other of these classes.

MARSVILLE.

RELEASED AT LAST.—On Saturday evening Robert, son of Mr. John McBride, 12th con., died at his father's residence at the early age of 24 years after a long illness from consumption, which was borne with Christain patience and fortitude. The funeral took place to McKee's cemetery on Tuesday and was largely attended.

BRIEFS.—The township council will meet here on Saturday.....Mr. Armstrong of Luther has leased Mr. Joseph Collier's farm for $300 per year..... The many friends of Mrs. Robt. Sinclair 12th con., East Garafraxa, will be pleased to hear that she is gradually recovering from her recent severe illness..... The infant son of Richard Anthony, hotelkeeper, died on Saturday last..... Some farmers in this vicinity have commenced cutting their barley, which is a good crop.....On Saturday the hotel property at Hereward was sold by public auction. It brought $570.

LAUREL.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—Anniversary services in connection with the Presbyterian church, Laurel, will be held here next Sunday. Rev. Dr McRobbie, of Shelburne, and other rev. gentlemen will preach.

On Monday, Amaranth's civic holiday, a grand pic-nic will be held in Mr. Nelson's grove, followed by a concert in the town hall. W. H. Hunter, Esq., of East Garafraxa will take the chair at 2 p. m., and Rev.'s McRobbie, Thornley, Crozier, Ferguson, Ballantyne and Moore are expected to be present and deliver brief addresses. The best talent have been secured for the concert. A base ball match will be played for a prize. Reeve Wansborough will be chairman at the concert. A grand time may be expected.

FARMINGTON.

A garden party was held at the residence of Mr. Jas. Golden on Thursday evening last. The gathering was hardly as large as was expected, owing to the unfavorable weather. However, the rain held off and a very enjoyable evening was spent by all. The grounds were nicely decorated with lanterns and flags and during the evening a programme consisting of songs, recitations, etc., was gone through. Miss Grey and Miss Reade deserve special mention for their recitations and we are much indebted to the Rev Mr Burt of Cardwell for some sound advice in the few remarks he made. Rev. Mr Leslie of Grand Valley concluded the programme by asking a vote of thanks to Mr Golden and his family for their kindness and goodwill which was unanimously given.

ALTON.

Mrs. Duffy of the Dixie house visited at Owen Sound last week.

MARRIED.—On Monday, July 20th., Mr. Bert Rowcliffe, blacksmith, of this village was married to Miss Sarah Bacon, daughter of the late James Bacon, of lot 24, Centre road, Caledon. We wish Mr. Rowcliffe and bride every happiness.

A SUCCESS.—The garden party at Mr. Wm. Algie's on Friday evening in aid of the Alton mechanics institute band was as successful financially and otherwise as could be hoped for. The Citizens' band of Orangeville played during the evening. About $75 was taken in.

A FIZZLE.—The great commercial travellers' picnic which was held here on Saturday was a great fizzle, pure and simple. Only about twenty five knights of the grip turned up and it is not necessary to say that the people of Alton were very much disappointed. Nearly everybody in the village baked dainties for the event, but which remained uneaten by the great crowd of commercial men that didn't come. The village was decorated for the occasion, arches were erected, etc. This is likely to be the first and last yearly commercial event to take place in the village. In the baseball match Alton defeated the commercial men by 2 runs to 1.

CHARLESTON.

HE CHARGES NOW.—Mr. John Willoughby, who owns an extensive berry patch around here, is turning it into a source of revenue by charging $2 for a family right for the season. John is quite an American in the line of speculation.

SUCCESSFUL.—Below is a list of persons who passed or were recommended at the late entrance examinations:

| Passed. | Marks. |
|---|---|
| Boylan, Mary A. | 415 |
| Recommended:— | |
| Bacon, Viney J. | 439 |

A CALEDON CASE!

SHOCKING AND DISGUSTING STORIES GOING THE ROUNDS.

A Caledon Man and His Daughter Charged With Child-Desertion.

WHERE WILL IT END?

Readers of THE SUN were considerably puzzled when they read a local in last week's issue of this spicy journal which said that a prominent farmer of Caledon was arrested for child desertion. The offence took place on the eighth day of May last, on the Orangeville and Fergus road, West Garafraxa, and for a long time the perpetrators of the crime remained unmolested. At last, however, leaden-headed justice overtook them and, probably, a much greater crime will be disclosed. The prominent farmer mentioned is Andrew Watson, and the other person connected with the case is Romena, his 16-year old daughter, or adopted daughter, as some say. To tell all the stories that are flying around would take much more space than THE SUN has at its disposal. The following is as fair a report as can be procured at the present time: Some time about the latter end of April or the first of May, a young girl arrived at an hospital in Berlin and remained there for several days. The second day after she came she gave birth to a child and when she recovered from her sickness a man came and paid somewhere in the neighborhood of $25 and they all left the institution. They came to Fergus and purchased flannel and a basket in one of the stores and then drove on to Orangeville. Later in the day a child was discovered by the side of the road and immediately detectives had the case in hand.

The detectives worked hard and as a result Watson and his daughter were placed under arrest. Constable Bird of this town arrested Watson at his home on Wednesday evening of last week and brought him to Orangeville, from which Constable Cowan took him to Belwood. He was tried on Thursday before a full bench of magistrates, Messrs. H. McDonald, R. Black, W. Y. Blyth, J. Cassidy, and W. Alexander. They committed him to Guelph jail to stand his trial at the Wellington fall assizes. The prisoner remained in jail until Saturday morning, when he was liberated on bail to the extent of $1,000. Constable Bird brought the young mother to Orangeville on Saturday evening and she received her trial at Belwood on Tuesday. Bail was also accepted in her case.

The other circumstances of the case had better remain untold for they are of too disgusting a nature to appear in a moral journal like THE SUN.

MONO CENTRE.

THE HARVEST.—Haying is over and harvest is here in earnest. On every side may be heard the hum of harvesting machinery and even the whistle of the steam thresher has been heard in our midst.....At present the spring crops give evidence of a yield far above the average. Farmers have not had such a prospect for years; while the fall crops, although in some cases deficient in quantity, will be an excellent sample.

RECOVERING.—We are glad to state Miss Fannie Henry, who has had to resort to the use of crutches for the past five years, has so far recovered as to be able to walk without them. All will be glad to see Fannie out again, as she was a universal favorite.

RETURNED.—Mr. Wm. Noble, who has been on an extensive tour through the Northwest, returned home last week and gives a glowing account of that part of our fair Dominion. He reports everything as booming and contemplates purchasing a large farm in Manitoba.

PERSONAL.—Rev. G. Ballentyne is holidaying and we are left without a spiritual guide.....Mrs. Laidlaw of Orangeville renewed old acquaintances round the Centre last week.....Messrs. Herb and Will Denton of Toronto, old Mono Centre boys who have been revisiting the scenes of their childhood for a few days returned home Friday.....Miss Sarah Noble of Toronto is visiting at her old home.....Miss Hannah McCutcheon returned home Friday after spending two weeks with Orangeville friends.....Misses Em Foley and Clara Laidlaw of Orangeville are visiting Misses Minnie Maguire and Emma Glover.....Mrs Ward and sister, Miss Hannah White of Toronto are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs J. White.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

THE CROPS.—The grain crops are looking remarkably well in this vicinity. Haying is not in full away. The crop in general will be light, although some fields will give a good average crop. Root crops are looking well.

I. O. O. F. OFFICERS.—The officers elected for the ensuing term in Grand Valley lodge, No. 256, I. O. O. F., are as follows: Bro. S. Tate, N. G.; Bro. W. Buchanan, V. G; Bro. G. Tough, R. S.; Bro. J. McPherson, P. S.; Bro. J. D. Watson, Tres.

ACCIDENTS.—The other day Mr. S. Tweedy had the misfortune to split one of his knee caps by falling on a stone while leading a horse along the street... Mrs. R. Buchanan's little son Dickie while on a visit to his grandpa had the misfortune to break his arm between the wrist and elbow on Monday last.

Mr. E. Fitzpatrick of Luther narrowly escaped a serious accident on Monday of last week. He was taking home a mower, when the horses became frightened and ran away. He was run over and badly bruised, but escaped without any bones being broken. The mower was wrecked before the horses could be stopped.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills are beyond all doubt the most valuable and most convenient medicines that travellers can take across the seas to distant climes, for change of climate and the new conditions and surroundings of life to which they will be exposed will assuredly give rise to great disturbances of the system, and to such especial morbid states of the blood and constitution generally as will render the use of these effectual remedies highly necessary, for they will find in them a ready and safe means of relief in most of the diseases which afflict the human race, and with them at hand they may be said to have a physician always at their call.

A COW THIEF SENTENCED!

One Year's Imprisonment in the Central—Not From Barnardo's Home.

The trial of the young emigrant boy, James Smith, who was charged with stealing a cow from David Watson, Caledon, on fairday took place before P. M. Pattullo on Saturday. The prisoner had previously asked to be tried by the magistrate. Crown Attorney Myers conducted the prosecution and called three witnesses. David Watson, the owner of the cow, swore that the animal was taken from his yard the morning of the fair and he afterwards found her in the Paisley house stables; he knew the prisoner who at one time worked for James Armstrong, about a mile east of Watson's farm. James Bennett was next called and said he purchased the cow for $16. The low price at which the prisoner offered the cow for, and other circumstances connected with the case, aroused his suspicions and he declined to pay for the animal until the afternoon, when the theft was discovered. The prisoner offered no evidence on his own behalf and, consequently, was found guilty. The sentence of the court was that James Smith be confined in the central prison, Toronto, for one year from the 1st of August next. The young criminal took this sentence coolly and did not seem to be the least bit concerned about the matter. He will be taken to Toronto to morrow or Saturday.

Smith was shipped to this county by the Brace agency, not by Dr. Barnardo as stated by one of our contemporaries.

Men and Women—young and old—will find health anew by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, an unfailing blood builder and nerve tonic. Cure suppressions, bearing down pains, nervousness, general debility, and all forms of weakness. No other remedy equals them. All dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price (50c. a box). Dr. Williams Med Co., Brockville, Ont.

H B. Belanger, factor of the Hudson Company's post at Norway House, 300 miles north of Winnipeg, is at Ottawa on his way east to visit friends, after fourteen years' absence from civilization. He has been in the Hudson Bay service 38 years and has only visited his friends three times in that period. He says the statement that that district is barren is false. He grows potatoes, turnips, wheat, barley, etc., and melons and tomatoes have been grown.

The Great Female Medicine.

The functional irregularities peculiar to the weaker sex, are invariably corrected without pain or inconvenience, by the use of Dr. Morse's Indian root Pills. They are the safest and surest medicine for all the diseases incidental to females of all ages, and the more especially so in this climate. Ladies who wish to enjoy health, should always have these Pills. No one who ever uses them once will allow herself to be without them. Dr Morses Indian Root Pills are sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Michael Bowes, of Bathurst township, was instantly killed by lightning Thursday.

A Rationalist Plan.

A proposal, which would obtain favor with even the opponents of Nationalism, contemplates the placing of a supply sufficient for each family of nature's great dyspepsia specific and blood purifier, B. B. B., in every home in the land. The benefits of such a boon to the people would be incalculable.

Matthew Hutchison, near Chatsworth, was accidentally killed at a barn raising on Thursday.

AT THE "HOP."

Round she goes with red lips smiling,
Many, many hearts beguiling—
By her grace.
Bright eyes gleaming,
Sweet smiles beaming,
O'er her face.

Round she trips with fairy lightness,
Winning, dazzling by her brightness—
Charming all.
Rose-cheeks glowing,
Soft curls flowing,
'Round her fall.

As upon my arm she's leaning,
All my heart from me she's stealing—
By her spell.
Soft hands clinging,
Sweet voice ringing,
Like a bell.

But, alas, my joys decreasing,
For the music strains are ceasing—
The dance is o'er.
Now my fairy,
Light and airy,
With another
Trips the floor.

—IDA STEWART, Toronto.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

An Orillia man answered an advertisement the other day by a Western Agency of 150 useful and convenient household articles for 30 cents. He received 150 pins.

Tests made at Washington to show the relative qualities of all steel and nickle-steel plates for the decks of naval vessels have proved the nickel steel to be possessed of greater strength and toughness.

Three roughs fired a number of shots at a resident of Barrie named Johnson on Thursday night, but failed to shoot straight. They were heavily fined for carrying revolvers and have yet to answer the graver charge of attempt to do bodily harm.

A Winghamite has a hen that milks its neighbor's cow. The hen is a thoroughbred brown Leghorn. She waits until the cow lies down, then puts one foot on the cow's teat, presses down on it, squeezes the fluid out and drinks it. The story can be vouched for.

Neville H. Pickthall, who was mentioned frequently in connection with the Benwell tragedy and who enlisted in "C" School of Infantry, Toronto, has been missing for over a week. If he does not turn up in twenty one days he will be marked as a deserter.

Townsman J. A. Brown and wife had a narrow escape Monday night while driving over to Mr. Potter's. Going along at a good rate the horse ran over a cow which was lying on the road. The horse had got all fours over the bovine and when the latter suddenly jumped up she raised the nag clear off the ground. Mr. Brown managed to hold the animal steady until bossy jumped forwards a couple of lengths letting the horse gently slide down to mother earth again, when the travellers, unharmed, proceeded on their way.—Cardwell Sentinel.

CAMILLA.

BERRIES.—Mr. E. J. Cobean is doing a great trade in berries at present. They are very plentiful this year.

FORSYTH'S BARN.—Mr. Forsyth has his barn framed and the raising will take place next week. Particulars then.

AN AVERAGE CROP.—Haying is about done and nearly all of it was got in without being caught in the rain. It is an average crop.

THE MUSE LET LOOSE.—Cardwell is a picturesque little place near Camilla and a wandering muse jotted down the following lines:

Cardwell is a place
Not far from this town,
Known for its pretty girls
And also its renown:
It has a church and P. O.,
And other buildings new,
And young men they are mashers,
And they are not a few.

It possesses an inventer,
Also a comic singer, I say,
For you would know him by his songs:
"Go away, old man; Go away!"
But what about the man
Who ate the quack, quack, quack?
I don't think he was after duck,
But a thousand-dollar check!

We also have a stock-raiser,
Who goes in for Southdown sheep,
He's always 'round at show fair time,
His thoughts are very deep,
But there's no money in a bushel of wheat;
There is John, I should say,
For it cost us thirty-seven dollars
For which we have to pay.

But a public school we must have,
Our children have so far to walk,—
For Connaught men could not be taught
By the way other people talk;
But Jesuits would never stand
To go to a Protestant school;
That's why they got up a petition
For people to sign like fools.

A GREAT MACHINE.

The McMaster Binder is Doing Big Work this year.

The McMaster self-binder, which is manufactured in Orangeville, is doing great work in the grain fields this season. This machine is the simplest, lightest, cheapest and best ever constructed.

The following testimonials are among the many received:

Albion, July 22nd, 1891.

J. A. McMaster:

This is to certify that, having purchased one of your Low Elevator Binders this season and having tried it in fall wheat, part of which was soft and green, on soft bottom and bad side hills, I must say it was as easy on a team as a Beatty reaper. It does not throw the weight on the horses' necks, and is very easily turned at the corners. I am particularly pleased with the knotter, which is very simple and a sure tier.

JOHN MAY.

Norval, July 21, 1891.

J. A. McMaster, Esq.,

Having purchased one of your McMaster Open Elevator Binders, 5½ ft. cut, I beg to say that it gives splendid satisfaction. It makes the best and cleanest sheaf of any binder I have ever seen, and with your cutter-bar I can cut as close to the ground as a mower. I had no trouble, lifting fall wheat which was badly down and tangled, and your knotter is perfection, being very simple and sure.

Yours truly,
GEORGE PATTERSON.

A family named Allen, late removed here from Shelburne, had some difficulty since their arrival. It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Allen have not been living together for some months, and on Sunday evening while Mrs. Allen was at church, he came up and took away one of the children. A warrant was issued and he was arrested. The child was found in Shelburne and when we last heard, the case was likely to be settled.—Dundalk Herald.

Parties desiring to secure a copy of this book can do so by applying to A. McNicoll, G. P. A., Montreal, or W. R. Callaway, D. P. A., Toronto, or at any station. The book is a handsome one for any parlor table.

NEW POTATOES.—On Saturday Andrew Lennox, Caledon, presented us with a bushel of fine, large new potatoes, which were greatly relished by the half-starved newspaper man.

HAVEN'T DECIDED YET.—The committee appointed to arrange for the painting of St. Mark's church spire met on Thursday evening last, but did not decide whether it is to be a spire or tower. Another meeting will be held soon when the question will be definitely settled.

A GREAT MATCH.—The most interesting lacrosse match of the season will be played on the exhibition grounds here to-morrow (Friday) afternoon between the old reliable Dufferins and the Olympics of Milton. The Miltons are crook players, and the game should be a lively one, witnessed by a large crowd.

[illegible] appeared in THE SUN of last week.

THOSE NAMES.—The names of the successful entrance examination candidates are not to hand yet. The candidates' papers are being examined by the education department at Toronto and may be in three weeks before the result is known. The minister of education will not allow the inspector to furnish newspapers with names of the successful candidates until a report has been received from the education department.

[illegible] POTATOES.—On Saturday Mr. [illegible] Lennox, Caledon, presented the [illegible] with a bushel of fine, large new potatoes, which were greatly relished by the half-starved newspaper man.

HAVEN'T DECIDED YET.—The committee appointed to arrange for the re-shingling of St. Mark's church spire met Thursday evening last, but did not decide whether it is to be a spire or a [illegible]. Another meeting will be held when the question will be definitely settled.

GREAT MATCH.—The most interesting lacrosse match of the season will be played on the exhibition grounds to-morrow (Friday) afternoon between the old reliable Dufferins and the Olympics of Milton. The Milton[illegible] are crack players, and the game should be witnessed by a large crowd.

[illegible] GOOD HORSE.—Thomas Gar[illegible] West [illegible] was arrested yesterday [illegible] with shooting Wm. [illegible] was on Friday sen[illegible] to the Central prison. A report of the shooting appeared in THE SUN of last week.

WRONG NAMES.—The names of the successful entrance examination candidates are not to hand yet. The candidates' papers are being examined by the education department at Toronto and it may be three weeks before the result is known. The minister of education will not allow the inspector to furnish the newspapers with names of the successful candidates until a report has been received from the education department.

JOHN HADDEN DEAD.—On Thursday last John Hadden, an old resident of Orangeville, was stricken with paralysis in front of Hawkins' egg packing establishment, east Broadway. The old man was conveyed to his home in the East ward and lingered until 7 o'clock Saturday evening, when death claimed him for its own. The earthly remains of poor old John Hadden were consigned to the tomb in the Forest Lawn cemetery on Monday morning.

THIEVES, TAKE WARNING.—Complaints are pouring into this office about boys and men breaking into orchards and stealing fruit. The other afternoon an unknown desperado made his way into Police-Magistrate Pattullo's garden and helped himself to some of the cook's choice raspberries, but if the outlaw is captured he will have plenty of time to repent in the "castle." If any of the orchard thieves should be arraigned before the P. M., it is safe to say the offender will see the inside of the "jug."

A POPULAR PASTOR RESIGNS.—The announcement that Rev. J. L. Gilmour has sent in his resignation as pastor of the Baptist church will be received with deep regret by all classes of the community, irrespective of party or creed. Rev. Mr. Gilmour, during his three years' stay in Orangeville, has become very popular with those whom he came in contact and his departure, which will be about Sept. 1st., is sincerely regretted. The rev. gentleman intends to spend the next two years in study at New York or Edinburgh.

EVERYBODY WANTS A HOLIDAY.—Civic holidays are becoming more fashionable as years roll by. At first it was only cities that took advantage of the civic holiday law, and then towns and villages followed suit. But now times have changed greatly and rural municipalities have decided that they must have a civic holiday. A couple of weeks ago Reeve John Park of East Luther issued a proclamation setting apart yesterday as that township's holiday. Reeve Wanstrough of Amaranth thinks his township has as good a right to a holiday as East Luther and has chosen Monday, Aug. 3rd, as the day.

THE NEW CANADIAN MAGAZINE.—Canadian literary Monthlies have been short-lived; but Canada the new one dollar magazine, has evidently come to stay. Since it was started in January, it has been enlarged and improved with almost every issue. Being broadly national and thoroughly patriotic, it draws its subscribers from all over the Dominion. Its articles are short and bright and all by Canadian writers or on Canadian themes. To those who remit one dollar before Sept. 1st., the publisher will send Canada for eighteen months—from July, 1891, to Dec., 1892. Address: "Canada," Boston, New Brunswick.

A MISTAKE.—In our last issue a local appeared stating there would be no service in St. Andrew's church on Sunday evening last. Such was not the case, however, as Mr. N. J. Sproul occupied the pulpit in the morning and Rev. Mr. Crozier of Grand Valley in the evening. We received our information from a member of St. Andrew's, and, consequently the announcement was made. It is quite evident everybody reads THE SUN, as on Sunday morning the preacher was put to the trouble of correcting our informant's erroneous statement. People should be very careful to give reporters nothing but what they know to be correct news, as sometimes a little mistake causes a great deal of trouble.

TAXES KNOCKED OFF.—His honor Judge McCarthy heard two appeals against the alleged high assessment of property in the court house on Monday. Reeve Lindsey entered an appeal against the $3000 assessment on his elevator and succeeded in getting it reduced to $2000. Previously the court of revision refused to lower the assessment. The great C. P. R., always for No. 1, asked the court of revision to reduce its assessment of $22000, claiming that amount was altogether too high. That body knocked off $2000, but this did not satisfy the C. P. R. and its representative asked the judge to make a further reduction. The judge reduced it to $12000. Assessors Hughson and Limont are naturally nettled over the result and they say the C. P. R. was not high enough assessed in the first place.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.—A private but pretty wedding took place in this town on Wednesday afternoon, when Mr. Harry R. Kribbs of Grand Valley was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Mary Z., eldest daughter of Mr. Thos. Bird. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, Mill street, in the presence of a few intimate friends of the contracting parties, Rev. A. C. Watt of Mono officiating. The bride was beautifully attired in a dress of cream cashmere and orange blossoms. She was assisted in a pleasant manner by Miss Mary Clark of East Garafraxa, who wore a becoming dress of white lawn with lace trimmings. The groom was supported by Mr. Sylvester Bird, brother of the bride. At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding dinner was partaken of and amidst a shower of rice and good wishes for their future happiness, the young couple left on the evening train for the west to spend their honeymoon, after which they will return to Grand Valley and take up their permanent residence there.

A SATURDAY NIGHT BATTLE.—On Saturday night near the hamlet of Salem, a few miles from Orangeville, in the township of Mono, a pugilistic encounter took place between Messrs. Hugh Dodds and Henry White, both residents of the aforesaid hamlet. For several months past considerable ill-feeling has existed between the parties and on more than one occasion a battle seemed imminent. Mr. White has been labouring under the delusion that Mr. Dodds is THE SUN'S Salem correspondent, although both gentleman received indignation from our unknown representative. The present little unpleasantness took place when Mr. Dodds was on his way home from Orangeville last Saturday evening, when, it is alleged, Mr. White attacked him with a club and knocked him senseless. The dispute was carried into the Orangeville police court and the matter was settled by each paying his own costs. In a previous issue we said Mr. Dodds was not our correspondent and we want the people of Salem to distinctly understand what we said is true.

TRANSFERRED TO ORANGEVILLE.—Mr. J. O. Mowat, nephew of Hon. Oliver Mowat, premier of Ontario, teller of the Bank of Hamilton here for the past two years, has been promoted to the Orangeville branch of the above named bank. During his stay here Mr. Mowat was an obliging and efficient officer of the bank and leaves a legion of sincere friends; who, while regretting his departure, are glad to learn that his removal will give him promotion in the service of the bank. Nowhere will he be more missed than around a table in the dining-room of the Seldon house, he having occupied the seat at its head for some time. His companions greatly regret those happy hours are over—numbered among the pleasant memories of the past. The Sun and Mr. Mowat are friends. It extends warmest congratulations on his promotion and cheerfully commends him to the business men of Orangeville. A glimpse of sunshine will enter his room once a week, as the Sun will arrive there every Friday morning. In fancy he can feel that he is again in Owen Sound.—Sun.

CARRIED HIS OWN CONVICTION.—William Manson, aged 82, is an old resident of Mulmur, and has undoubtedly seen better days. Lately he has had no stopping place outside the jail, and he is no sooner set at liberty than he wishes to re-enter the "castle." On Monday the poor old man came into P. M. Pattullo's office, and requested to be sent down for six months. A SUN reporter was in the justice shop at the time, and the old man related some of his history. He distinctly remembers the battle of Waterloo, and on more than one occasion listened to the ringing speeches of the great Dan. O'Connell. The old man is very zealous in religious matters, and can quote the Scriptures with the best of them. When Paddy McCloskey returns to the "castle," old man Munson will endeavor to convert him to the Protestant faith, and if he succeeds he will get a pound of tobacco. The police magistrate wrote out a committal just before noon and gave it to the applicant, but the latter did not go up to Gov. Sutherland's just then. He waited until evening before he gave the jailer his own committal.

DEATH OF MRS. BENNETT.—It is with extreme sorrow we are called upon this week to chronicle the demise of another resident of this town in the person of Margaret Ann, wife of Mr. Jas. Bennett, proprietor of the Paisley house. For the past twelve months Mrs. Bennett had not been enjoying the best of health, but at that time it was not expected anything serious would result. But she continued to grow worse and three months ago was forced to take to her bed. Notwithstanding the efforts of the best doctors, Mrs. Bennett continued to grow weaker, and the climax was reached about 7 o'clock Sunday evening, when the esteemed lady passed peacefully away. The deceased bore her sufferings with Christian fortitude, and she breathed her last surrounded by the members of the family. The funeral took place from the Paisley house to the Forest Lawn cemetery on Tuesday and was largely attended. The following gentlemen acted as pallbearers: F. C. Stewart, ex-M. P. P., Deputy-Reeve Endacott, J. S. Leighton, A. Turner, J. E. Booth and James May. A husband and a grown-up family—four sons and a daughter—survive her, and they have the sympathy of the entire community in the great loss they have sustained. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. Henderson of St Mark's church, the deceased being a staunch member of that congregation.

Health, Happiness and Prosperity.

All these depend on pure blood, for without it health is impossible; without health happiness prosperity is a mockery. No means of obtaining pure blood and removing bad blood excels the use of B. B. B., the best blood purifier known.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against these spurious imitations, and are asked to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c a box) by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANOTHER BIG BLAZE!

BEATTY'S BIG ELEVATOR THIS TIME.

THE WATERWORKS NOT "IN IT."

TWENTY-FOUR NEW McMASTER BINDERS A HAY PRESS AND OTHER ARTICLES CONSUMED.

Orangeville has always boomed as a great town for fires, and the way it keeps up its reputation is something wonderful. About noon on Thursday the large building on east Broadway, near the old G. V. R. station, owned by Mr. Robt. Beatty, and formerly used by him as an elevator, was discovered to be in flames. The structure, the dimensions of which were 52 x 70 and 50 ft. high, was constructed entirely of pine, and the fire spread with astonishing rapidity. Five minutes after the fire was discovered it had spread to every part of the building. It was a terrible and grand sight to see immense sheets of flame shoot high into the air! The heat was so intense that people could not get within two hundred feet of the building. It was lucky no other building was very near this huge burning pile, for nothing could have saved it from destruction. The employes of McMaster's foundry, which is situated on the opposite side of the street from the old elevator, had just gone to dinner, but when they saw the fire they returned to the foundry and worked like whitebeads to save their employer's property. The foundry is equipped with hose and a powerful steam pump, and if it had not been for these it would have been pretty hard to save the machine works.

Our miserable, antiquated system of fire protection was not "in it," as the nearest hydrant was in front of the Dufferin house, a quarter of a mile away, and there was not sufficient hose to reach half the distance. A pretty state of things for a town like Orangeville!

In the building was stored 24 new McMaster binders, a hay press, weigh-scales and 5 tons of hay. Mr. J. A. McMaster, proprietor of the foundry, carried an insurance of $2000 on the binders and will be a loser to the extent of $800. P. Haynes had just succeeded in paying for the hay press, which cost $350, and will loose all. Mr. Beatty had the building insured for $1,200, weigh scales for $150, and will loose a clear $2,000. The cost of the building was nearly $4,000.

How the fire originated is a mystery and will probably never be known, but it is thought to be due to careless boys who used to hang around the premises.

KING SOLOMON AND THE QUEEN OF SHEBA,

In Connection With John Robinson's 10 Big Shows Combined.

This wonderful spectacle had a breadth of effect which surprises and delights. Its gorgeous pressmonos and splendid ballets are incomparable, and nothing so vast or imposing has ever been seen in this country before. We gaze upon the ancient City of Jerusalem and the Temple of Solomon animated with life and glowing with color. It is no mere artificial show, but a vivid and vast realization of life in the time of Solomon. The senses are beguiled by its reality as well as its surpassing beauty and the perfection of its details. Showing here Tuesday, Aug. 4th.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Every man has his price, but brides are given away.

Beautiful extract—Helping a young lady out of a mud puddle.

Horse thieves are operating at Georgetown, Oakville and other places.

The criminal doesn't realize how hard it is to kill time till he begins to do.

Dixon, the Toronto photographer, crossed over the whirlpool rapids on a three-quarter inch wire cable on Friday.

The body of the late Maitland Young jun., was found floating in Hamilton bay Monday, two weeks from the day of the drowning accident.

A monument of Stonewall Jackson was unveiled at Lexington, Va., Tuesday on the occasion of the 30th anniversary of the first battle of Manassas Lexington.

Arrangements have been completed in the Indian Department for the erection of a large industrial farm at Brandon, Man., to cost $22,000, to be managed by the Methodist church.

J. L. Coleman, agent of the Dominion Express Company at Smith's Falls, pleaded guilty to embezzlement yesterday at Perth, and was sentenced to two years' imprisonment at Kingston.

A movement is now on foot to present to Lady Macdonald a life-sized portrait of herself in recognition of the part she has played in Canadian life and politics. Senator Sanford has the matter in charge.

Joe Ellingsworth of New York and Harry Martin, the Minneapolis "Black Pearl," fought to a finish at Minneapolis on Tuesday night. Ellingsworth was badly battered and threw up the sponge in the fifth round.

A young man named Davis, living near Rodney, was accidentally hit on the head with an axe in the hands of his brother in law, and his wounds it is thought, will prove fatal. The men were chopping timber.

A newly married man, Wm. Marling of Maribank, hearing that some friends were going to treat him to a charivari, borrowed a revolver. In climbing over a fence the firearm was discharged and Marling was instantly killed.

The bronze statute of Henry Ward Beecher was unveiled with imposing ceremonies at the City Hall Park, Brooklyn, on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Gertrude Roxiana Beecher, the preacher's little granddaughter.

McManus, miner, who fell 250 feet down the shaft at the anthracite coal mine near Calgary two weeks ago, was badly smashed in every part of his body, but will recover. He will have the use of his legs, both of which were broken.

Ex City Treasurer John Bardsley of Philadelphia was sentenced a few days ago by Judge Wilson to 15 years' solitary confinement in the Eastern Penitentiary and to pay a fine equaling the sum to which he pleaded guilty of stealing.

Mr. Penwink (stitedly)—Do you think it will be conducive to your happiness to join me in the holy bonds of wedlock?

Papa (overhearing)—Ask him how he's fixed with holy government bonds, Jane.

"And you say you would die for me? I'm afraid you're not so brave as that." "Am I not? Why I show my fearlessness of death every time I come into your presence." "How is that?" "Because you always look so killing." That settled the business.

The overhead check rein for the horse is refined and steady torture, not only for the strain backward of the neck, but because the animal cannot see the ground on which he is stepping. The swaying of his head from side to side is evidence of his trying to find relief.

The Ready-made Clothing is now taking the lead at Leighton's Cash Grocery, Boot & ShoeStore, Orangeville.

Nothing undermines one's faith in a man's liberality to the church so much as to see him run his hands down in his pockets when he sees the contribution box travelling his way, and then look astonished and remark to the person sitting next him; "I have got on my other pants."

The experts who witnessed Kemmler's execution said it was a success. The same experts say the same thing of the executions at Sing Sing and all of the witnesses are pledged to secrecy. Kemmler's execution was a horrible affair. Will the truth ever be known about the killing at Sing Sing?

Edison's phonograph was used for the first time Tuesday in Ottawa in preparing the Senate Hansard. The first cylinder despatched to the Government printing bureau had marked upon its surface the speech of Senator Gowan with regard to the proposal to abolish the functions of grand juries.

An enterprising Windsor barber is working up a large business through a new scheme which appears to have much to commend it. For a payment of $1 50 per month each ticket holder is entitled to one hair cut a month, two baths each week, and unlimited shaving. He has seven assistants, all the work he can handle, and appears to be getting rich by his new scheme.

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without an chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. R. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Felicia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hanel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. John McConnell of Proton lost two fine hogs last week. One of them was found dead, having apparently been poisoned; the other was so severely slashed with an axe, that it died from the effects. It is a pity the perpetrators of the dastardly act cannot be ascertained, and punished as they deserve.

Rev. LeRoy Hooker, the well known pastor of the Metropolitan church, has left Toronto suddenly and gone to Detroit, where he is in the employ of the Canada Life Assurance Company. Dissatisfaction with the action of the Toronto Conference in not appointing him to the London Conference is said to be the cause of the change.

Broker Samuel W. Lewis of New York is on trial for grand larceny. He is said to have swindled Mrs. Alice Bostwick out of $53,000 by pretending to invest in various stocks. Subsequently he married her, after she had obtained a divorce from her husband, and then, after obtaining more of her money ran away with another woman.

Napoleon Leland, of Belle River, is the owner of a cow that is known to have eaten 17 goslings last week. She will follow up a flock of geese and catch the goslings in her mouth and eat them body and bones. When first reported little confidence was placed in the story but now it can be vouched for by over a dozen citizens who have seen her eat them.

The Walkerton waterworks is now in operation. The pressure is furnished by a powerful duplex pump, the cylinders being 18 by 12 inch, and the pumps 10 x12 inch. The capacity of the pumps are about 3,000 gallons per minute. Messrs. Inglis & Son of Toronto were the manufacturers. The steam for operating the pumps is supplied by a 100 h. p. boiler.

The officers of the New York Life Insurance company have instructed their counsel, William B. Hornblower, to commence suit at once against the editors, publishers and proprietors of the New York Times for one million dollars damages for libel, and have retained as associate counsel Messrs. Joseph H. Choate, Frederick R Coudert and Henry Beckman.

A young man named Lahan Walters was instantly killed while felling trees in a bush three miles from Wingham. He and a companion named Joe McDonald had been sawing the tree till it required a wedge McDonald was driving the wedge with an axe, which glanced off, striking Walters in the bowels, almost cutting him through. Death was instantaneous. Walters was 23 years of age and had only been married three months.

The farmers need warning against a new swindle. Two strangers meet at a farmer's house to stay all night, and during the evening they get up a trade between themselves, which requires a witness, and the farmer is asked to sign the papers simply to witness the trade. If he does so he soon finds that his name is signed to a note which he has to pay.—The law does not appear to touch these cases, and farmers should hang the first caught at it.

Some of New York's celebrated millionaires are adept performers on musical instruments. John D Rockefeller is an enthusiast with the flute, and William Waldorf Astor plays classical melodies on the piano and organ. In his boyhood Roswell P. Flower loved to play the bones in an amateur minstrel troupe. Andrew Carnegie's instrument at the same period was a Scotch bagpipe, while Russell Sage used to beat the drum in thanksgiving and other parades.

James Bell, formerly a well-known man of this township celebrated Dominion day by making his escape from Kinmettles Castle. Even the fact that the stronghold was guarded by a "Giffin" more vigilant than the labled animal of antiquity did not deter Old Jimmy from flight. Pursuit was attempted but all trace of the fugitive was lost, though it was supposed he would make for his old home. To settle all doubt in the minds of the authorities we may state that the old gentleman was in this village on Saturday last.—Hillsburg Beacon

The small boy has been freed from trammels two weeks now but he is only about to enter on the main joys of his vacation. Next week he will swarm off in long processions to the distant raspberry fields equipped with pail and tin cup, and seeing vivid mind's eye pictures of "them berries" hanging heavy and misty scarlet from their leaning stems. If there is a swimming place near the rendezvous so much the better. There is money too ahead for the boys, great piles of wealth to be gained in the next two weeks—cherries to be picked at a cent a box, raspberries ditto, gooseberries, currants. It is the youngster's harvest.

50,000 dozen eggs wanted at Endicott Bros., for which they will pay the highest price in cash or exchange.

THE BEST FAMILY PILL IN USE

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS

Keep the Works in good order.

NORMAN, ONT., JANUARY 13, 1890.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

DEAR SIR—Your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" are the best regulator for the system that humanity can use. Life is as the time piece; frail and delicate are many of its works. A tiny particle of foreign substance adheres to the smallest wheel in the works, and what follows? Result—at first, only a slight difference is perceptible in its time-keeping, but wait you; as the obstruction grows, the irregularity becomes greater, until at last, what could have been rectified with little trouble, in the beginning, will now require much care in thoroughly cleansing the entire works. So it is in human life—a slight derangement is neglected, it grows and increases, imperceptibly at first, then rapidly, until what could, in the beginning, have been cured with little trouble, becomes almost fatal. To prevent this, I advise all to purify the system frequently, by the use of Morse's Pills, and so preserve vigor and vitality.

Yours faithfully,
H. F. ATWELL.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

DEAR SIR—For many years, I have been a firm believer in your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills." Not with a blind faith, but a confidence wrought by an actual personal experience of their good and merit. My business is such that I spend much of my time away from home, and I would not consider my travelling equipment complete without a box of Morse's Pills.

Yours, &c.

WHEN they find how rapidly health is restored by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The reason is that this preparation contains only the purest and most powerful alteratives and tonics. To thousands yearly it proves a veritable elixir of life.

Mrs. Jos. Lake, Brockway Centre, Mich., writes: "Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an in my condition, my appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life, and I cannot thank you too much."

"We, the undersigned, citizens of Brockway Centre, Mich., hereby certify that the above statement, made by Mrs. Lake, is true in every particular and entitled to full credence."—O. F. Chamberlain, G. W. Waring, C. A. Walls, Druggists.

"My brother, in England, was, for a long time, unable to attend to his occupation, by reason of sores on his foot. I sent him Ayer's Almanac and the testimonials it contained induced him to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using it a little while, he was cured, and is now a well man, working in a sugar mill at Brisbane, Queensland, Australia."—A. Attewell, Sharbot Lake, Ontario.

THE BOY WHO KILLED HIS MOTHER.

[illegible]
I will not do the deed—
[illegible]
Where, in spite of the frost and snow
Golden and Northern weathers,
Little Dorothy Milton grows.

I heard footsteps behind me,
And the sound of a merry laugh,
And I knew the boy is more than human,
For—let his face be smooth and strong;
In his time and hour of trouble,
Beautiful and brave and strong;
One of the hearts to lean on
When we think all things go wrong.

I turned at the clink of the gate latch,
And met his manly look,
A look like pleasant sunshine,
Like the page of a pleasant book;
Bright of a manifest purpose,
Of a brain and darling will;
A boy with a purpose in it
That I hope this years fulfill.

He went up the garden singing;
[illegible]
Grew bright than a warrior's helmet
As sunshine war on the skies.
"Such a gift, sweetheart mother,"
Hertiel, and bent to kiss
The loving face that was lifted
For what none mothers miss.

That boy will do to depend on;
I hold that this is true—
From lads in love with their mothers
Our bravest heroes grew.
Earth's greatest hearts have been loving hearts
Since time and earth began;
And the boy who kisses his mother
Is every inch a man.

OLIVE VARCOE
—OR—
TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER XI.

Through the pitiless storm, through the rain, wind driven, beating against their resolute faces, two men rode at a hand-gallop, slacking not their pace for hill or dale. One of these was Sir Hilton Trewavas, the other was Dr. Burton. Both rode silently, scarce exchanging a word, though they kept their horses well together. Journeying as they were along the north coast of Cornwall, they met but rarely some solitary wayfarer, who, with a kindly "Good night," stood aside to let them pass, or stared in wonder at their fast retreating figures. The country was wild and sombre. Great hills and bleak, treeless moors swept on from point to point, and ever and anon, between the pauses of the storm, there broke upon the ear the dull thud and roar of some great breaker rolling in, in mighty fury, upon the rock bound coast. At times the spray, dashing far inland, touched the lips of the riders with salt, as the wind brought the foam of the sea in its shriek and whistle, as it howled around them.

Down into a deep glen, the rocky sides of which were clothed with fir, and elm, and ash, the horsemen descended. Here the storm lulled, and the rain fell with a softer touch, while the scent of leaf and flower mingled with the briny air of the sea.

"We are nearly arrived," said Sir Hilton to his companion. "He live there, in yonder house gleaming with a solitary light. It is as lonely a spot as any in Cornwall, but he likes it. After the din of life, silence suits him. Speak frankly to him; it is useless to hold anything back."

The tone of pain in which Sir Hilton spoke moved Dr. Burton to pity.

"My dear friend," said he, "I trust that what I have to say may not appear to him so conclusive as it does to us."

"I have no hope," replied Sir Hilton, gloomily.

They reached a tiny lodge as they spoke, honeysuckle covered, and a woman, in answer to their summons, admitted them within the gate.

"Is Mr. Heriot at home?" asked Sir Hilton,

'He is at the house, sir,' replied the woman, "but I cannot tell if he will see strangers so late."

"Thanks, we will try to see him," said Sir Hilton, and they rode on slowly over the sounding gravel.

Mr. Heriot had been one of the most eminent of Old Bailey counsel. Harder and drier than an Egyptian mummy, he had lived through work that might have killed a camel, and wisely retiring while there was a few drops of blood left in his parched body, he had come down into lonely Cornwall, and bought himself a house by the sounding sea. An old bachelor, loving no one, and believing the whole world a nest of thieves, his life might appear to some solitary and cheerless; but he enjoyed it. Above all, he delighted in his sense of security from interruption, work, and noise. No faint echo of the toil and din of his old life could reach him here; no thieves and lawyers could break in upon his rest.

"Ah," said he, in a sharp, quick voice, "I knew this house had one great fault—it is too near London. You have just arrived, I suppose, with Fish Street Hill in one pocket, and the Monument in the other. What do you want with me, and at such a time of night?"

"I am not from London," said Sir Hilton, pointing to his card. "I am almost a neighbor, Mr. Heriot."

"A neighbor without neighborliness, Sir Hilton Trewavas," returned he, "Way, Hodge the hedger is more of a neighbor to me than you."

Sir Hilton's pride was broken. The hour was come when he could be sorry that he had not made a friend of this hard lawyer.

"Mr. Heriot, I am but a young man," he said, modestly, "and you are old. You must make allowance for me,—an age always must for youth. My life has been a blunder, hitherto—a sad one; and you see me now bowed beneath a bitter burden of grief, and come to implore help from you—you to whom I have never shown the kindness and civilities of a neighbor. I accept your rebuke? Will you accept my apology? and, more generous than I, will you bear my trouble, and help me?"

Even the hardest old age, losing sight and hearing, is touched by the wonderous charm of youth in man or woman. [illegible] though they were soft and courteous, but his bearing, his voice, his look, and all that nameless magic which pertains to the presence of some favored few, that broke the crust of the old lawyer's hardness, and made him extend a parchment hand, and say, in a voice having the ghost of the cordiality of his dead youth in it:

"Not a word more, Sir Hilton. What's your trouble? It must be a queer one indeed if it be anything I can help you out of."

"Is it possible you have not heard the dreadful news?" asked Dr. Burton.

"I have heard nothing," replied Mr. Heriot. "I dare my people to tell me any news. I live here that I may never know anything that goes on outside my garden."

"Then we must tell you," said Dr. Burton; and in a few words he laid down before him the facts of Eleanor's disappearance, and the finding of the corpse in the pool.

"Is it an accident, a suicide, or a murder?" asked the old barrister, his eyes gleaming with the ancient fire of unforgotten fights.

"A murder," replied Dr. Burton, in a low voice.

With eyes full of pity he glanced at Sir Hilton's agitated face; Mr. Heriot's keen gaze followed, and his brows were slightly raised in curiosity or surprise.

"Stop!" said he; "this is no common murder, I suppose—no ruffian, no tramp no robber? Then what is it?"

"Jealousy," replied Dr. Burton.

"Whose?" demanded the lawyer.

"A woman's," replied Dr. Burton.

"Tush!" said the old barrister. "A woman would never have the strength to drown a rival like a dog. She would have poisoned her."

"And so she did," said Dr. Burton, lowering his voice.

The whisper ran through the room, and Sir Hilton hid his eyes with his hand as Dr Burton drew from his pocket a small phial, and laid it on the table.

"Chloroform!" exclaimed Mr. Heriot.

"Yes," said Dr. Burton. "You understand now, how a slight, weak girl could with ease fling a senseless, defenceless form into the water. Thus, too, unresisted, she was able to tie her victim's hands. So even had the shock restored her senses, she would have had no chance for life."

"Ah!" said the lawyer; "and how could she tie her hands? Cords don't grow in woods."

"She wore one round her waist for a girdle," replied Dr. Burton. "She took that."

"She did!" said the lawyer, with a look of surprise. "Then she is either a monstrous fool, or else she did not commit the murder at all."

Sir Hilton started up, with a momentary gladness on his face which passed like a shadow.

"Thank you for those words, Mr. Heriot," said he; "but I fear you are mistaken. Tell the rest Burton. I cannot.

"The cord has disappeared," continued the doctor. "A man who loves her watched the body. When his friend and the police came, the cord was gone. The watcher affirmed he had not touched it, and he is a man above suspicion; yet, infatuated by love, he may have permitted her to take it."

"What proof have you?" asked Mr. Heriot.

Then Sir Hilton spoke in a husky voice.

"To day at three o'clock I saw her in the garden, standing by a pile of smoking weeds. She had sent away the gardener, she tried to rid herself of me. When the man returned, and would have stirred the pile, she pushed him back. I seized a rake, and thrust it among the ashes, and then I saw a cord—a coil that went to dust as I touched it."

Mr. Heriot was silent. It was a dead, blank silence, having in it a world of conviction, and to Sir Hilton a world of hopelessness.

"Then it would appear," said Mr. Heriot, "the young man whom she has infatuated hid the cord, and gave it to her in the course of the day. Was he at Trewavas? Could he have done this?"

"Yes," replied Sir Hilton.

"And how was Miss Maristowe her rival?" continued Mr. Heriot. "Did she, too, love this young man?"

"No," said Sir Hilton, "she was engaged to me. She was to be my wife next week."

"Ah!" exclaimed the lawyer. "Where is the rivalry then? Who is this girl whom you accuse of murder?"

Sir Hilton could not answer; his voice died on his lips, and Dr. Burton spoke.

"We are come to you to entreat your help, Mr Heriot," said he; "we speak frankly, openly, relying on your honor, trusting you implicitly. We know, that to enable you to help us, we must give you our entire confidence."

"Certainly," said Mr. Heriot, gravely.

"Your skill, your learning, your experience, can be of infinite aid, if you will but use it in our behalf——"

"Pass all that, and go on with the story," interposed Mr. Heriot, in his cold, calm voice.

"I pray you," said Dr. Burton. "The lady we accuse is Miss Olive [illegible] Sir Hilton's ward—a second cousin. She was an ambitious girl, and until his engagement, she hoped that he would marry her."

"Burton, be just!" broke in Sir Hilton, passionately. "Olive loved me! Heaven forgive me, she loved me with her whole heart."

"Then the rivalry was between her and the murdered girl on your account?" observed Mr. Heriot.

Oh, the agony in the young manly face! the pain and shame struggling to hide, and breaking forth in trembling lip and shrinking eyes.

"Mr. Heriot," said he, "I am not a vicious man, believe me, or a vain man, or a fool; and yet this horror has fallen upon me. It has come through the sins that the world engenders; it has come through carelessness, selfishness, pride, blindness of heart."

"Stop!" said the lawyer. "Tell me all that by and by. Let me know now where the chloroform was found."

"In the pocket of the dress she wore on the day of the murder," resumed Dr. Burton. "A servant, who dislikes her, found it, and brought it to me this morning."

"And this made you examine the body, with a view to detecting chloroform?" said Mr. Heriot.

"Yes," replied the doctor.

"And, as a medical man, you believe that it was used?" continued Mr. Heriot.

"Yes," said he; "but with an auto- I could—"

"Never mind technicalities, and medical terms and proofs," exclaimed Mr. Heriot—"keep them for the coroner I take your word without them. What other links are there in the evidence?"

Rapidly Dr. Burton repeated Mr. Damerel's statements relative to Olive's interview with Eleanor in the Lady's Bower; to this he added many of those threads and shadows, small in themselves, but weighty when woven into one; and, lastly, he detailed the servant's story of the dress being wet, as though dragged through water, and the finding ashes of burnt letters in the grate.

"Strange to say, I have reason to believe these burnt papers were leaves from my brother's journal," said Sir Hilton, "for he found it torn, and with great difficulty, I have got him to confess to me, that the missing pages elated to conversations he had held with her respecting Miss Maristowe."

"Then your brother will be a reluctant witness!" remarked Mr. Heriot.

"He will indeed," replied Sir Hilton. "He and Olive were great friends."

"And this young man, who loves her, would be an unwilling witness also?" continued the lawyer.

"There is no doubt of that," said Dr. Burton; "and there are other circumstances in her favor. Her defence is, that she was locked in her room from three until eight, Lady Trewavas having the key of the door."

"Ah!" said Mr. Heriot, with sudden and renewed interest, "this complicates the case amazingly. She must be a clever girl. Go on; explain all."

Upon this the doctor sketched the plan of the room, with the closet, the spiral stairs, the locked door at the foot, and the library window close at hand, opening on the unfrequented shrubbery.

"But the door is always locked," observed Sir Hilton, "and the key kept in the table drawer. And it was there last night at nine o'clock—it was there this morning."

"But you know not where it was between three and eight yesterday?" inquired Mr. Heriot.

"No," replied Sir Hilton; "but I never missed it from the drawer."

"Well," resumed Mr. Heriot, "I presume you have laid before me all the evidence which will be put before the coroner to morrow, and you wish me to tell you the result?"

"Yes," returned Dr. Burton.

Sir Hilton did not answer, but, leaning his brow upon his hand, he gazed into the parchment face of the lawyer, with a world of agony in his eyes.

"In spite of Lady Trewavas' evidence of the locked door of the chamber, and in spite of the favoring evidence of unwilling witnesses, the result of the inquest will be a verdict of wilful murder against Olive Varcoe," said Mr. Heriot.

"And then?" asked Sir Hilton, grasping for breath.

"And then she will be tried at the assizes," replied Mr. Heriot, "and—"

"Good heavens! condemned?" exclaimed Sir Hilton.

"No, acquitted," said the lawyer. "She is very young, very pretty, and a woman; the jury won't hang her. There is only circumstantial evidence against her, and some of that doubtful. At the trial she will get the full benefit of that doubt. And by that time, her lover—how do you call him, Vigo?—will have made up his mind to swear through thick and thin for her. He'll deny having seen her in the wood, and he'll contradict his friend Damerel respecting that cord, though if I were her counsel I would not let him. The cord staggers me—a clever woman would not advertise her crime like that. I should make a point of it, to prove her innocent. There is no proof she had, or ever had, the key of the ancient staircase; on the fact of her having been locked in her room being proved by your brother and grandmother, and there being no proof forthcoming of her having got out, she must necessarily be acquitted. You tell she asserts that Mr. Damerel's statement is false, and she met Vigo in the wood, not yesterday, but the day before. Now, this will be her weak point, and his also; so, if you want to get her convicted, I tell you what you must do."

"Convict her!" interrupted Sir Hilton. "Oh, Mr. Heriot, I am come to you to ask what I can do to save her—what I can do to spare her the agony of a trial, the shame and misery of a prison."

"Is that it?" said Mr. Heriot, fixing his keen eyes on the unhappy young man. "Do? Why nothing. You can't save her."

"But I must—I will!" exclaimed Sir Hilton. "My senses leave me at the thought of seeing her perish."

"You believe her guilty?" said Mr. Heriot.

"Heaven help me!—yes!" he replied.

"Then she deserves to be hanged," said the lawyer. "She'll be mighty lucky in getting off with a few months' imprisonment."

"But the shame, the agony," said Sir Hilton; "she will die under it, Oh, Mr. Heriot, tell me what I can do. Must I give evidence to-morrow?"

"You cannot escape that," he replied.

"But I shall not speak of the burnt cord," said Sir Hilton. "It is only a shadow, a suspicion in my mind. I have no right to name it. You will not betray me? I can rely on Dr. Burton."

"You need not fear," said Mr Heriot "I shall say nothing. I never talk when I am not paid for it. If you want to get this girl off, I can give you the address of a first rate man, who will do it, if any one can."

Sir Hilton scarcely seemed to hear him. He leant back in his chair pale and exhausted.

"Let him rest a minute, said Dr. Burton, in a low voice, as Mr. Heriot wrote down the name and address of a celebrated counsel. "You understand his desire is to avoid a trial. It is his bride who is murdered; her family and all the world will expect him to aid in convicting, not saving, the accused. His is a hard position."

"It is an awful mess," said Mr. Heriot. "Why did he not get the girl out of the way this morning?"

"He tried it," replied Dr. Burton; "she would not go."

"What?" exclaimed Mr. Heriot, in a quick, sharp whisper.

"No; she was proud and sulky," said Dr. Burton, "and would not she said, accept anything from his hands."

The keen glance that fell from Mr. Heriot's eyes on Sir Hilton's pale face might have startled him, had he seen it.

"Ah," said he—'and yet she loves Sir Hilton, you think?"

'Or she wanted to be Lady Trewavas,' said Dr. Burton.

"Very likely," said Mr. Heriot. In that case she may love Vigo."

Again Mr. Heriot's glance wandered to the young, worn face, regarding him so wearily

"Sir Hilton," said he, "I am going to ask you an abrupt question. You need not answer it if you don't like. Were you much attached to Miss Maristowe?"

A swift flush went up to Sir Hilton's brow, leaving his face, as it passed away, wan and pale as a dead man's.

"You have asked me a hard question Mr. Heriot," he replied. "To answer truly, I must say both yes and no. This may seem strange, but it is true. If I dared assert it, I would say it is possible for the heart to hold two loves, both different, and yet both being loved. Let any man examine his soul, and say whether there has not been a period in his existence, when such an anomaly presented itself to his own experience. I liked Olive from a child, but, as I grew older, reason and prudence drew me from her side. It was for her own sake, at first, that I cooled towards her. I saw that my regard was drawing on her the unjust dislike of Lady Trewavas. My grandmother is in most things a kind, sensible woman, but in this, her pride or her affection for me rendered

WHEN they find how rapidly health is restored by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The reason is that this preparation contains only the purest and most powerful alteratives and tonics. To thousands yearly it proves a veritable elixir of life.

Mrs. Jos. Lake, Brockway Centre, Mich., writes: "Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an in my condition, my appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life, and I cannot thank you too much."

"We, the undersigned, citizens of Brockway Centre, Mich., hereby certify that the above statement, made by Mrs. Lake, is true in every particular, and entitled to full credence."—O. P. Chamberlain, G. W. Waring, C. A. Wells, Druggist.

"My brother, in England, was, for a long time, unable to attend to his occupation, by reason of sores on his foot. I sent him Ayer's Almanac and the testimonials it contained inclined him to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using it a little while, he was cured, and is now a well man, working in a sugar mill at Brisbane, Queensland, Australia."—A. Attowell, Sharbot Lake, Ontario.

CHAPTER XI.

Through the pitiless storm, through the rain, wind driven, beating against their resolute faces, two men rode at a hand-gallop, slacking not their pace for hill or dale. One of these was Sir Hilton Trewavas, the other was Dr. Burton. Both rode silently, scarce exchanging a word, though they kept their horses well together. Journeying as they were along the north coast of Cornwall, they met but rarely some solitary wayfarer, who, with a kindly "Good night," stood aside to let them pass, or stared in wonder at their fast retreating figures. The country was wild and sombre. Great hills and bleak, treeless moors swept on from point to point, and ever and anon, between the pauses of the storm, there broke upon the ear the dull thud and roar of some great breaker rolling in, in mighty fury, upon the rock bound coast. At times the spray, dashing far inland, touched the lips of the riders with salt, as the wind brought the foam of the sea in its shriek and whistle, as it howled around them.

Down into a deep glen, the rocky sides of which were clothed with fir, and elm, and ash, the horsemen descended. Here the storm lulled, and the rain fell with a softer touch, while the scent of leaf and flower mingled with the briny air of the sea.

"We are nearly arrived," said Sir Hilton to his companion. "He lives there, in yonder house gleaming with a solitary light. It is as lonely a spot as any in Cornwall, but he likes it. After the din of life, silence suits him. Speak frankly to him; it is useless to hold anything back."

The tone of pain in which Sir Hilton spoke moved Dr. Burton to pity.

"My dear friend," said he, "I trust that what I have to say may not appear to him so conclusive as it does to us."

"I have no hope," replied Sir Hilton, gloomily.

They reached a tiny lodge as they spoke, honeysuckle covered, and a woman, in answer to their summons, admitted them within the gate.

"Is Mr. Heriot at home?" asked Sir Hilton,

'He is at the house, sir,' replied the woman, "but I cannot tell if he will see strangers so late."

"Thanks, we will try to see him," said Sir Hilton, and they rode on slowly over the sounding gravel.

Mr. Heriot had been one of the most eminent of Old Bailey counsel. Harder and drier than an Egyptian mummy, he had lived through work that might have killed a camel, and wisely retiring while there was a few drops of blood left in his parched body, he had come down into lonely Cornwall, and bought himself a house by the sounding sea. An old bachelor, loving no one, and believing the whole world a nest of thieves, his life might appear to some solitary and cheerless; but he enjoyed it. Above all, he delighted in his sense of security from interruption, work, and noise. No faint echo of the toil and din of his old life could reach him here; no thieves and lawyers could break in upon his rest.

"Ah," said he, in a sharp, quick voice, "I knew this house had one great fault—it is too near London. You have just arrived, I suppose, with Fish Street Hill in one pocket, and the Monument in the other. What do you want with me, and at such a time of night?"

"I am not from London," said Sir Hilton, pointing to his card. "I am almost a neighbor, Mr. Heriot."

"A neighbor without neighborliness, Sir Hilton Trewavas," returned he, though they were soft and courtious, but his hearing, his voice, his look, and all that nameless magic which pertains to the presence of some favored few, that broke the crust of the old lawyer's hardness, and made him extend a parchment hand, and say, in a voice having the ghost of the cordiality of his dead youth in it:

"Not a word more, Sir Hilton. What's your trouble? It must be a queer one indeed if it be anything I can help you out of."

"Is it possible you have not heard the dreadful news?" asked Dr. Burton.

"I have heard nothing," replied Mr. Heriot. "I dare my people to tell me any news. I live here that I may never know anything that goes on outside my garden."

"Then we must tell you," said Dr. Burton; and in a few words he laid down before him the facts of Eleanor's disappearance, and the finding of the corpse in the pool.

"Is it an accident, a suicide, or a murder?" asked the old barrister, his eyes gleaming with the ancient fire of unforgotten fights.

"A murder," replied Dr. Burton, in a low voice.

With eyes full of pity he glanced at Sir Hilton's agitated face; Mr. Heriot's keen gaze followed, and his brows were slightly raised in curiosity or surprise.

"Stop!" said he; "this is no common murder, I suppose—no ruffian, no tramp no robber? Then what is it?"

"Jealousy," replied Dr. Burton.

"Whose?" demanded the lawyer.

"A woman's," replied Dr. Burton.

"Tush!" said the old barrister. "A woman would never have the strength to drown a rival like a dog. She would have poisoned her."

"And so she did," said Dr. Burton, lowering his voice.

The whisper ran through the room, and Sir Hilton hid his eyes with his hand as Dr Burton drew from his pocket a small phial, and laid it on the table.

"Chloroform!" exclaimed Mr. Heriot.

"Yes," said Dr. Burton. "You understand now, how a slight, weak girl could with ease fling a senseless, defenceless form into the water. Thus, too, unrelated, she was able to tie her victim's hands. So even had the shock restored her senses, she would have had no chance for life."

"Ah!" said the lawyer; "and how could she tie her hands? Cords don't grow in woods."

"She wore one round her waist for a girdle," replied Dr. Burton. "She took that."

"She did!" said the lawyer, with a look of surprise. "Then she is either a monstrous fool, or else she did not commit the murder at all."

Sir Hilton started up, with a momentary gladness on his face which passed like a shadow.

"Thank you for those words, Mr. Heriot," said he; "but I fear you are mistaken. Tell the rest Burton. I cannot.

'The cord has disappeared," continued the doctor. "A man who loves her watched the body. When his friend and the police came, the cord was gone. The watcher affirmed he had not touched it, and he is a man above suspicion; yet, infatuated by love, he may have permitted her to take it."

"What proof have you?" asked Mr. Heriot.

Then Sir Hilton spoke in a husky voice.

"To day at three o'clock I saw her in the garden, standing by a pile of smoking weeds. She had sent away the gardener, she tried to rid herself of me. When the man returned, and would have stirred the pile, she pushed him back. I seized a rake, and thrust it among the ashes, and then I saw a cord—a coil that went to dust as I touched it."

Mr. Heriot was silent. It was a dead, blank silence, having in it a world of conviction, and to Sir Hilton a world of hopelessness.

"Then it would appear," said Mr. Heriot, "the young man whom she has infatuated hid the cord, and gave it to her in the course of the day. Was he at Trewavas? Could he have done this?"

"Yes," replied Sir Hilton.

"And how was Miss Maristowe her rival?" continued Mr. Heriot. "Did she, too, love this young man?"

"No," said Sir Hilton, "she was engaged to marry her cousin. She was an ambitious girl, and until his engagement, she hoped that he would marry her."

"Burton, be just!" broke in Sir Hilton, passionately. "Olive loved me! Heaven forgive me, she loved me with her whole heart."

"Then the rivalry was between her and the murdered girl on your account?" observed Mr. Heriot.

Oh, the agony in the young manly face! the pain and shame struggling to hide, and breaking forth in trembling lip and shrinking eyes.

"Mr. Heriot," said he, "I am not a vicious man, believe me, or a vain man, or a fool; and yet this horror has fallen upon me. It has come through the sins that the world engenders; it has come through carelessness, selfishness, pride, blindness of heart."

"Stop!" said the lawyer. "Tell me all that by and by. Let me know now where the chloroform was found."

"In the pocket of the dress she wore on the day of the murder," resumed Dr. Burton. "A servant, who dislikes her, found it, and brought it to me this morning."

"And this made you examine the body, with a view to detecting chloroform?" said Mr. Heriot.

"Yes," replied the doctor.

"And, as a medical man, you believe that it was used?" continued Mr. Heriot.

"Yes," said he; "but with an auto-I could—"

"Never mind technicalitis, and medical terms and proofs," exclaimed Mr. Heriot—"keep them for the coroner I take your word without them. What other links are there in the evidence?"

Rapidly Dr. Burton repeated Mr. Damerel's statements relative to Olive's interview with Eleanor in the Lady's Bower; to this he added many of those threads and shadows, small in themselves, but weighty when woven into one; and, lastly, he detailed the servant's story of the dress being wet, as though dragged through water, and the finding ashes of burnt letters in the grate.

"Strange to say, I have reason to believe these burnt papers were leaves from my brother's journal," said Sir Hilton, "for he found it torn, and with great difficulty, I have got him to confess to me, that the missing pages elated to conversations he had held with her respecting Miss Maristowe."

"Then your brother will be a reluctant witness!" remarked Mr. Heriot.

"He will indeed," replied Sir Hilton. "He and Olive were great friends."

"And this young man, who loves her, would be an unwilling witness also?" continued the lawyer.

"There is no doubt of that," said Dr. Burton; "and there are other circumstances in her favor. Her defence is, that she was locked in her room from three until eight, Lady Trewavas having the key of the door."

"Ah!" said Mr. Heriot, with sudden and renewed interest, "this complicates the case amazingly. She must be a clever girl. Go on; explain all."

Upon this the doctor sketched the plan of the room, with the closet, the spiral stairs, the locked door at the foot, and the library window close at hand, opening on the unfrequented shrubbery.

"But the door is always locked," observed Sir Hilton, "and the key kept in the table drawer. And it was there last night at nine o'clock—it was there this morning."

"But you know not where it was between three and eight yesterday?" inquired Mr. Heriot.

"No," replied Sir Hilton; "but I never missed it from the drawer."

"Well," resumed Mr. Heriot, "I presume you have laid before me all the evidence which will be put before the coroner to morrow, and you wish me to tell you the result?"

"Yes," returned Dr. Burton.

Sir Hilton did not answer, but, leaning his brow upon his hand, he gazed into the parchment face of the lawyer, with a world of agony in his eyes.

"In spite of Lady Trewavas' evidence of the locked door of the chamber, and in spite of the favoring evidence of unwilling witnesses, the result of the inquest will be a verdict of wilful murder against Olive Varcoe," said Mr. Heriot.

"And then?" asked Sir Hilton, gasping for breath.

"Certainly," said Mr. Heriot, gravely.

"Your skill, your learning, your experience, can be of infinite aid, if you will but use it in our behalf——"

"Pass all that, and go on with the story," interposed Mr. Heriot, in his cold, calm voice.

"I obey you," said Dr. Burton. "The lady we accuse is Miss Olive's cousin. She was an ambitious girl, and until his engagement, she hoped that he would marry her."

"Burton, be just!" broke in Sir Hilton, passionately. "Olive loved me! Heaven forgive me, she loved me with her whole heart."

"Then the rivalry was between her and the murdered girl on your account?" observed Mr. Heriot.

"And then?" asked Sir Hilton, gasping for breath.

"Was your elopement a success?" "No," she said with a sigh: "papa didn't catch us in time, and we got married."

HIS WORSHIP AND THE PRESS.

It was a real nice little lecture his worship Mayor Walsh delivered to the "local scribes" at Monday night's council meeting. The lecture was prompted by a letter which the chief magistrate received from the secretary of the Underwriters' association, regarding our system of fire protection. His worship criticised the local papers for publishing "exaggerated" reports of fires that have unfortunately visited this town. So far as THE SUN is concerned it pleads "not guilty" to the mayor's charge. Everything this journal said about the waterworks is borne out by facts. One of our contemporaries, however, did exaggerate a report of a recent fire, but that did not justify his worship in handling us without gloves.

THE SUN has always done everything in its power to further the interests of the town, and if some of our schemes had been adopted Orangeville would be a much more important place than it now is.

The waterworks scheme which THE SUN proposed seventeen years ago will have to be resorted to in the course of a few years. At any rate the present antiquated system of fire protection will have to go where it properly belongs—on the shelf.

OUR WATERWORKS SYSTEM.

At the council meeting on Monday night Mr. S H. McKitrick, one of the members for the East ward, took occasion to refer to our system of fire protection. During his remarks he said the system had a "world-wide" reputation, and because it did not cost a hundred thousand dollars the local papers had "maligned" it. That the system of waterworks which Orangeville is afflicted with has a world wide reputation we have little doubt, for at nearly every fire that occurs the system proves such a fraud that the press of the town justly "malign" it. Years ago this journal vigorously opposed the introduction of such a system, and advocated the gravitation or a more practical way than the present of obtaining water for both fire and domestic purposes. If our advice had been followed the mayor would not be receiving periodical letters from the Underwriters' association, and the town would not be the laughing stock of Ontario.

Mr. McKitrick was one of the principal workers for the present system and he still defends the foolish stand he took nearly two decades ago; but our readers are fully aware of the disgraceful exhibitions that have taken place at the numerous fires which have occurred in this town.

THE SUN has always given, and will continue to give, faithful reports of fires and other interesting events that occur, and if we come down hard on the waterworks our readers may rest assured it is nothing more than the poor apology deserves. When we refer to the fire apparatus don't imagine the brigade is included, because the firemen are as hard-working and willing as any brigade could possibly be.

Any sane man who declares that our fire protection system is first class must be sadly mistaken as to the meaning of those words.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

All over the broad and joyous land the reaping machine is making music that will probably send Sir Richard Cartwright to an insane asylum.

Ras Wiman, says the Hamilton Spectator, has been heard from. He prints a letter in the English papers in which he says that no monument to Sir John Macdonald is necessary so long as the National Policy exists. Ras says the National Policy erected a "barrier" between the two sections of the Anglo Saxon race in North America. That is supposed to be very severe. Ras forgets that the American side of the "barrier" is very much higher than the Canadian side, and that it extended many years before Sir John's National Policy. Nevertheless, in jumping up on the corpse of a dead political opponent Ras proves himself to be a true Grit.

The anthrax has killed several more cows and pigs in the vicinity of Acton during the past week. A farmer named Flynn noticed that one of his cows was sick the other day. He thought it better not to use the milk in the family, but fed it to some pigs. It was well he did not use it, for the cow died the next morning and a short time afterwards two of the pigs. The most probable cause for the outbreak of this disease is that the hair and scrapings of diseased hides received by the Acton tanneries have been thrown into the stream from which the cattle drink, and the germs of the disease have poisoned the water.

John Jaynes, the whiskey informer, has been at Hamilton a couple of weeks, and summonses will be issued against the dealers who were caught selling whiskey after hours. There will be 30 or 40 cases altogether, some of the saloonkeepers having a couple of charges against them. The liquor people have been catching it recently, and some of them are not very well able to pay fines.

Mayor Walsh Criticises the Local Press for Exaggerating Reports of Fires.

Just as THE SUN'S municipal scribe entered the council chamber two or three minutes after 8 o'clock on Monday evening he heard the wind up of Mayor Walsh's criticism of the local press, for publishing exaggerated reports of fires, etc. The account of the bungling at the recent fires reached the ears of the Underwriters' association, and the secretary of that body commenced corresponding with his worship to find out if the newspaper reports were true. The mayor replied and said the reports were greatly exaggerated, which seemed to satisfy the Underwriters. The chief magistrate hoped the "local scribes" would not exaggerate such reports in future.

All the members of the council were present and the session lasted until nearly 11 o'clock. The following were presented:—J. J. Hall, $1; D. McKenna, $6.57; R. Parkin, $5.50; F. Gildrey, 6.50; T. Parsons, $2; J. Graham, 5.45; J. J. Hubbard, $7.57; K. McLean, $7.57; ordered to be paid. Bills from M. Penalton, $49.44; J. Corbitt, $6.99; Post, $3.50; W. Maxwell, $2.25; referred to their respective committees.

AFTER THE CAPTAIN'S SCALP.

When Ald. Gillespie rose to read the F. & W. committee's report everybody expected trouble, and in this they were not disappointed. The report recommended that John Aiken, jr., be appointed captain in the place of Charles King, who, according to the report, is not capable of discharging the duties of captain of the Orangeville (not Dark town) fire-brigade. After the report was read nail-a-dozen aldermen jumped to their feet, all speaking at the same time. When order was secured the F. & W. chairman explained that the report was delayed since spring, as Capt King promised to resign when his three year term expired, which occurs the last of this month. Capt. King had his monthly report on the mayor's desk, but it was out of order to read it. Ald. Fiddis thought the captain's report should be read and the council consented. This report recommended several changes at the waterworks, purchasing a whistle and an injector. The report also referred to the bungle at the recent Lennox house fire, when the injector of the waterworks boiler failed to work, and steam had to be blown off and the boiler refilled with a watering-can! The council went into committee of the whole on the committee's report and Mr. King addressed the council at some length. He explained his connection with the brigade and said the fault was not with the captain but was with the apparatus. No fault was found with the captain until Gillespie was elected and everything would have been all right if the firemen were not tampered with. Gillespie told what wasn't true when he said the captain would resign when his three years were up. Such were a few of Mr King's charges. Ald. McKitrick quizzed King about not practicing the brigade, but the captain held his own. Mayor Walsh delivered a fifteen minute speech in which he said he supported the report although it pained him to do so. He thought nature had not intended Mr. King for the position, as he never attempted to direct the firemen, but left them to direct themselves. The majority of the brigade were against the captain, consequently friendship and good will did not prevail, and a fire brigade could not be efficient when such did not exist. Mr McKitrick regretted what he was about to say, but he thought it would be an injury to the town to keep Mr. King on. He said the waterworks system was all right, but it was maligned by the press of the town. Everybody knows Mr. McKitrick is away off his base when he makes such bad breaks as this. Ald. Young, Youmans, Fiddis, Reeve Lindsay and Deputy reeve Endacott spoke in favor of King, and the deputy-reeve suggested that the report should be left over until the next meeting. After a few minutes more of this sing song business the report was deferred until the next meeting.

T. P. MATTERS.

Chairman Endacott read the report of the T. P. committee. An extra expenditure had been made at the waterworks building in erecting a stone wall and building extra abutments. Referring to T. T. King's offer of $25 for land in the rear of the waterworks, the committee recommended it to be sold for $100. A debate took place and the aldermen got all mixed up. Finally it was decided to let the matter stand over until the next meeting.

BY LAWS GALORE.

Reeve Lindsay introduced a by-law to raise money to tide the town over for another year. Gillespie—To raise amount required for street watering. Kelchum—To collect poll-tax. Youmans—To exempt McMaster Harvesting Works from taxation. Young—By-law to appoint a truant officer. McKitrick—By-law to fix fees for fence viewers. Coleman—To appoint an inspector to prevent the spread of noxious weeds. The council went into committee of the whole and all the by-laws were passed. Chief Shields was appointed truant officer and noxious weeds inspector, without increase of salary. The rate of taxation was struck at 20 mills in the $, and the total assessment of the town is $816,938. The following amounts are to be made up:—

|---|---|
| County rate | $1107. |
| C. V. R. rate | 747.17 |
| C. V. R. " | 450. |
| Town Improvem'ts | 600. |
| Stevenson & Graham D. | 300. |
| Sinking Fund | 529.86 |
| High School | 1151. |
| Public School | 4300. |
| Town rate | 6969.73 |
| Total | $16 238.76 |

The council adjourned until the first Monday in September, but a special meeting will probably be held before that date.

MARSVILLE.

Visiting.—Mrs. Preston, accompanied by Miss Belle Gray, has gone on a visit to Muskoka. We hope they will have a pleasant time.

Funeral Sermon.—The funeral sermon of the late Robert McBride was preached in the Presbyterian church at Price's corners on Sunday.

Funeral.—The funeral of the late Mr. Alex. Moffatt, who died at his residence in Caledon on Tuesday last, took place on Thursday afternoon to the cemetery here.

Married.—A very pleasant event occurred at the Methodist parsonage, Orangeville, on Monday last, when Mr. Thomas Watson and Miss Sarah Johnston, both from this vicinity, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. M. L. Pearson, the pastor of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a few guests. The party took their wedding dinner at the Paisley house and were much pleased with the spread. We wish the young couple every prosperity.

Who's at Fault Now?—About a month ago Reeve Hamilton of East Garafraxa and Reeve Wansborough of Amaranth met to decide about some road repairs. For a long time East Garafraxa would not fix the cemetery hill unless Amaranth would fill up a waterhole near the 5th line. It was agreed that Garafraxa would repair the hill if Amaranth would fill up the hole, and the former township did as agreed, but Amaranth still holds back and will not fix the defected road. We naturally ask "Who's fault is it?"

MONO CENTRE.

School Re-opening.—The boys and girls who carelessly flung their school books aside a few weeks ago will soon have to use them again. School re-opens on Monday, 17th, and the boys' holiday fun is over.

Personal.—Mr. Jas. Lyoness, of Balleycony, is a guest at Mr. John White's residence....Mr. Lyoness, we regret to say, is in indifferent health.... Little Footie Thompson, of Arthur, is spending his holidays with his uncle, Mr. Charles McCabe...Mr. J. J. White, of Orangeville, visited his parents here on Sunday.

LAUREL.

Typhoid.—Mr. Arthur Rounding of Bowling Green is very low with typhoid fever.

Recovering.—Ex Reeve Braiden, who has been in indifferent health for some months past, is gradually recovering and will soon be himself again. Cris is very popular with the people and all are glad to see him on the mend.

A Grand Success.—The Presbyterian pic-nic advertised to take place here on Monday did take place and in every sense it was a great success. Reeve Wansbrough occupied the chair and discharged his duties in his usual good style. Addresses were delivered by Dr Lewis, Rev. Mr. Crozier, of Grand Valley and others. The affair netted over $80.

CARDWELL.

Crop Report.—Hay proved better than was anticipated and the acreage is up to the average, but the yield is light. Fall wheat, although to some extent killed, is very plump and will be an average crop. Spring wheat will be good if favorable weather continues and barley is fair. Oats are excellent so far and the acreage large. Peas are good and the crop will be above the average. Potatoes and vegetables generally are very good, but there is a poor look out in fruits. Corn rye and flax not grown.

A Camilla Scribe in the Soup.—We are informed the Camilla correspondence to an Orangeville paper went to the waste basket last week. Good. The Camilla scribbler has been writing Cardwell news and not at set intervals, and why? The selfish cop is dissatisfied on account of the decision which the arbitrators gave on the late Cardwell school question. If he has the big head, as his writings and poetical effusions indicate he should take a mental physic and remain quiet for a time until the utopian grievance disappears and the peculiar dolor abates. He must be a rare and rank specimen when the disreputable journal in question ruled him out of the ring. We would say to THE SUN, Rule him out before he does harm, as he is creating a bad odor among decent people and will be at it again if he gets the chance. Rule him out! he has a touch of the "gapes" and his prattle is out of order, stating it emblematically and aesthetically.

SHELBURNE.

(From Press and Economist.)

Killed.—On Sunday night a 2 year old colt belonging to Mr. John Trimble of Coleridge, fell down a well. With some difficulty it was got out, but not till after it had smothered.

Killed by Lightning.—During the thunder storm of last Thursday night a mare and colt belonging to Mr. James Foster, Primrose, were struck by lightning and killed, and another mare was stunned. The animals were in a field.

The Waterworks.—The men under the charge of Mr. Simpson, of Petrolia, who have been engaged for some weeks past deepening the bore at the waterworks well in the hopes of finding a more ample supply of water and preventing the sand obstruction have quit work. We understand a good supply of water has now been obtained and the difficulty from quicksand it is thought has been overcome.

$50,000 to loan on mortgage security. Interest and expenses low, terms to suit borrowers. F. Irwin, office over Endacott Bros' store, Orangeville.

Holloway's Pills.—In the complaints peculiar to females these Pills are unrivaled. Their use for the fair sex has become so constant for the removal of their ailments that cure is the household that is without them. Amongst all classes, from the domestic servant to the peeress, universal favor is accorded to these renovating Pills; their invigorating and purifying properties render them safe and invaluable in all cases; they may be taken by females of all ages for any disorganization or irregularity of the system, speedily removing the cause and restoring the sufferer to robust health. As a family medicine they are unapproachable for subduing the maladies of young and old.

Mr Samuel Hughes of Toronto was in town this week. The next time Sam comes this way he'll not come alone.

Miss Clark and Miss Jull of Orangeville are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Lindsay.—Shelburne Economist.

Mr. Thos. Huston, who has been visiting friends in town and vicinity for some time past, left on Friday for Lamont, Ill.

Messrs. Robt. Kyle of this town and his brother Thomas of Owen Sound left on Tuesday evening for a trip to Manitoba and the Northwest. They will be absent about three months.

Mrs. Norton, wife of Rev. Wm. Norton of Mt. Forest, and daughter, Alice, visited friends in town last week. Miss Norton will remain in town for a couple of weeks, when she will leave on a trip to New York.

CALEDON.

Passed Away.—Mr. Alex Moffatt, a well-known and highly respected resident of Caledon township, died at his residence, 3rd line east, on Tuesday, July 28th, at the age of years. Mr. Moffatt had suffered for the past year with la grippe, and this, with a hurt by a horse dragging him across a fence in the spring, and bleeding from the lungs caused his death. Deceased leaves a widow and four children who have the sympathy of all in their affliction. The remains were interred at Marsville on Thursday last.

Consult Your Neighbor.

Any one may find out just what Burdock Blood Bitters is and does by asking a neighbor who has tried it. It rarely fails to making a complete cure of dyspepsia, constipation, sick headache, biliousness and diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

An exchange thinks there is some thing wrong with the "eternal fitness of things" when a minister gets $5 and a fine supper for performing the marriage ceremony which takes five minutes, while the editor who takes two hours to set up the list of presents only gets a piece of cake. Here is a striking necessity for a reform.

A reader submits a clipping from a paper which says that the longest word in the English language is necrobionosphenolonthydrockthouanthropopithekology. And he asks what that word means. That is not an English word, though it is in an English book—Kingsley's "Water Babies." It means the science of life and death of man and monkeys in bygone times. It was a word invented by Kingsley.

Washington is the only city of 250,000 inhabitants in the Union that has no factory girls. The lack of manufacturing and commercial enterprise reduces the working women to a minimum. A few are employed in retail stores, photographic galleries and private offices, but the majority who earn their living are in politics. Another novelty is the total absence of tenement house life. Even the poorest colored mammy has a house of her own.

Mining News.

Mining experts note that cholera never attacks the bowels of the earth, but humanity in general find it necessary to use Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for bowel complaints, dysentery, diarrhœa, etc. It is a sure cure.

An editor in Ohio lately excited the wrath of his fruit-growing subscribers, when one of them wrote to him for a cure for apple tree worms, by replying in his paper that he could not suggest a cure until he knew what ailed the worms. A man with a devastated orchard is in no mood for joking.

Can Not Compete.

Miss Maud Grant, of Mountain, Ont., writes: "I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for summer complaints and diarrhœa. There is nothing to compete with it as it succeeds even in the severest cases."

THE WORLD OF FASHION.

A WIDE HAT WITH PLUMES AND A SPANISH TOQUE ILLUSTRATED.

The Latest Styles and Materials in Gowns and Bonnets—The Wedding Trousseau of the Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein—Hats and Bonnets.

The wide round hat illustrated in the figure is of black chip, with a balle facing in the brim. A folded band of black velvet surrounds the crown, with a cut jet buckle on the front, and two clusters of black ostrich tips curl forward from the back. The young lady's turban, in the same cut, is of fancy straw, with a puff of black velvet on the deep turned-up brim. The sole trimming is a feather pompon with an aigrette rising on the back.

WIDE HAT WITH PLUMES. SPANISH TOQUE.

The latest Paris dress is called the Concours Hippique. It is a princesse dress of Sicilienne. This dress is draped at the sides, and in front the skirt forms two pleats, confining the draped breadths of the corsage. The front of the corsage forms a blouse, gathered at the inset in embroidery; the back is likewise gathered at the inset, embroidered and continued from the waist in two Watteau pleats. The sleeves very high shouldered and straight. They are open so as to permit of a second sleeve of Venetian lace, draped by a brace of Sicilienne, and forming a volant, which falls over the arm. The bottom of the skirt is embroidered with beads and stones, also the inset and sleeves; the two pleats of the front are ornamented with a high fringe. The corsage is held in to the figure with a fancy hook of beads and stones. A small bade of Venetian lace, with bunches of roses. A hat of fancy straw with undulating border, trimmed with wild flowers and plaid ribbons. Peau de Suede gloves of light color.

In hosiery the latest novelties are silk stockings with foot and ankle in one color and the legs another. Some black feet exquisitely embroidered in red or gold are buckled to bright red uppers; others are black with pink feet and the combinations of lavender or black, green or gold, mauve and orange are intended to match the creations of the modiste. For careful usage some stockings are embroidered with pearl and gilt beads intended to be worn with a dancing toilet. The stockings said to be favored by the aristocratic are more lace work than silk. In some the fronts are composed of Chantilly insertion, between which is a succession of Rhinestones, the designs beginning at the top of the stocking and graduated to the slipper line.

The gray still remains the fashionable color. Here is a dress made of periwinkle gray foulard, strewn with long interlaced rings, white and black. The dress is in redingote form and opens over a flat tablier, of princesse cut, in Longalina cream. No trimming on the front, nothing but a seam which adjusts the figure and a raised of old lace forming a plastron. The sleeves high and square shouldered, and close at the bottom. The bottom of the tablier is ornamented with a little embroidery of white beads, about two centimetres high. With that a round hat of black lace.

The fancy for young girls is most artistic in construction and design. All skirts of wash fabrics are plainly made with a hem four or five inches deep, and gathered to the edge of the round or slightly pointed waist, which may have a round, square or V-shaped neck over the petticoat; and long-sleeves of tucking or embroidery. Again, the gamps is without sleeves, and then the tiny puffed dress sleeves are elongated to the wrists.

Spring goods are nearly all in the so-called natural or undyed colors. It was almost impossible to find in an immense line of the latest materials a single color of the darkish blue or brown shades. Everything is beige, mauve, light and dark gray, and almost ecru. The shades vary to a bewildering extent, but there are rolls upon rolls in the same gamut, with occasional old rose or light gray-blue.

"A dear little bonnet" consists of five or six rows of narrow and manicured pleatings of yellow gauze, with a silk edge. These flat pleats overlap each other and form a little cap, on which is placed a small flat crown of black lace straw and a bunch of white cherries with red ish brown leaves. The strings are of yellow satin or of black velvet.

The severe styles adopted with tweeds and other woollen materials suggest the idea that tailor-made gowns have it all their own way at present, and that those manipulated by women's hands and taste are confined to evening wear. These gowns have lately grown in length at the back and shortened in front, which is not an improvement.

A new corduroy cloth in soft shades of fawn and gray is likely to be popular, being cool, light and soft, and is arranged with silk, velvet and the fashionable jewelled passementerie, or else made up quite plainly with a Louis XIV. coat and a brocade waistcoat. These coats are in the zenith of their popularity at present.

Buy your small girl a big black leghorn or brown chip hat; have the milliner tie two yards of three-inch ribbon as blue as the maiden's eyes into a big beautiful bow. You line the crown with a strip of silk mull or linen lawn, pin on a bow, and you have solved one problem in Summer millinery.

A becoming mantle is made of beige cloth, and crossed silk beige and mordore. The back of the jacket curved of crossed silk, terminated with a full redingote back of piece cloth. The front sailingote closed at the middle with dart at the bosom and dart marking the side of the front.

Every bloom known to the horticulturist is reproduced with almost perfect exactness but those in favor in millinery at this moment are the English spring flowers—cowslips, primroses, stock and wall flowers, wild hyacinths and purplish heather and blue lavender blossoms.

Trailing and "dipping" skirts are dirty. This is not a season of boisterous health, and women disposed to throat troubles cannot afford to sweep up the germs of disease to be found under foot, for future inhalation.

The wedding trousseau for Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein, second daughter of Prince and Princess Christian, who is shortly to be married to Prince Aribert of Anhalt, is now in course of preparation. In order to encourage home industries, Princess Christian and her sons very handsome patterns specially designed, for which silks are being manufactured by the Spitalfields weavers. All comes as are to be ready by June. The wedding will take place at Windsor in the first week in July.

There is a red and white striped bed ticking in the market selling at 10 cents and less which will make an everlasting dress for your tomboy daughter. Some pink red or white braid for trimming will make the little frock pretty.

Never had any article of fashionable clothing a greater run than the high-shouldered, high-collared short cloaks are enjoying at present. Quite young girls wear them, and not only as driving and evening wraps, but for walking.

Feathers seem to have disappeared, although small bunches of black plumes are always used, often combined directly with flowers. Many of the straws are woven with gold threads or with imitation jewels, giving a rich effect.

A sash curtain of bobbinette the length of the window, painted with a flowering vine of morningglory, Virginia creeper, trumpet or passion flower, is one of the latest styles of window decoration.

Cameos are being revived. The old brooches and earrings are pulled out of their oval frames, remounted in circles of diamonds and pearls, and worn in bracelets and necklaces.

The close skirts will give the human ostrich a chance and may induce some to take shorter strides. A graceful walk is rarer than a white blackbird.

Butterfly flounces of lace are now sewed about the skirts of house dresses, caught up with ribbons. The effect is quite Frenchy.

The latest thing in the way of insets to cloaks and mantles is the white cloth embroidered over with black passementerie.

Almost a Swallowtail.

Paletots with long basques have of late become an established fact. When provided with handsome buttons, revers and waistcoat or colored jabot, they forcibly remind us of charming old pictures. A curious whim of the same was then, as now, to appear with the jacket rounded off like a gentleman's frock coat, in spite of the opposition raised against masculine Black Cloth Paletot, line-balking attire. This illustration from the May Season explains a paletot of this description, made of fine black cloth lined with silk and fastened by a double row of pearl buttons.

About Mrs. Harrison Cripps.

A writer in the Illustrated American recounts in an interesting manner the doings of a remarkable Englishwoman. In a huge, gloomy, old-fashioned London house lives Mrs. Harrison Cripps, a beautiful woman, who has effected the unusual combination of chemist, mathematician and athlete, and is, withal, a profound student. Those who are admitted to the sanctuary grow enthusiastic over her unusual accomplishments and charms. She comes down the great dark drawing-rooms, strange and fair, looking like a priestess of Isis, and wearing the pink ribbon tied about her waist as though it were a sacred girdle. A larger portion of the time she takes no part in general conversation, but sits with her marvelous profile turned towards her guests apparently dreaming ineffable things. When in the least excited, however, she rises straight to her feet, and delivers herself with the air of a pythoness. Mrs. Cripps makes pen-and-ink drawings of her husband's microscopical discoveries, and so exquisitely fine in workmanship are they that they look like photogravures. Curiously enough, she is not in the least averse to society, and, gowned in a Paris frock and blazing with diamonds, attends the very smartest balls, the gayest of gay dancers.

An Official Female Uniform.

The German Government has just furnished some of its women employes with a uniform that is as picturesque as it is becoming. The fortunate ones are the telephone operators of the Government service, and every operator receives a summer and winter outfit. As we learn from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch the summer waist is made of some light woolen stuff, striped in white and blue, while the winter jacket is of fine tricot cloth of position blue. The waists have a collar, breast revers and cuffs, bound in red, and they are very natty and attractive.

Telephone Uniform. The imperial telephone service of Berlin is entirely in the hands of women of from 18 to 30 years of age, and they make a very pleasing picture in their new uniform.

University Women in France.

M. Bordeau has caused a list to be made of the number of degrees that have been taken by women at the schools of the Faculties of the College of France since 1906, when women were first admitted. The total number, is 232; this includes 35 in medicine, 61 in mathematics and other sciences, 67 in classics and belles, letters, 16 in both classics and sciences, one in pharmacy, and one has obtained the degree of LL. D. As a record of almost a quarter of a century it would seem that the French women are not howling for higher education. Eight graduates a year would hardly pay for the support of one chair. What the modern girls want is browsing in a good library and the polishing and practical instruction of a wise mother which will do more to make a sweet, womanly, lovable woman than all the college cramming and university degrees in the country.

Their Origin.

Ruffs were invented by a milliner to hide the goitre on the neck of a Queen of France; crinolines for the Empress Eugenie when temporarily threatened with the loss of her figure; high heeled boots increased the height of Louis XIV.; wigs first hid the baldness of James I., of England. Patches, according to one authority, were first worn by Louise de la Valliere, who did not care to appear before her royal lover with half a dozen eruptions on her face, caused by the Spring weather. Woman's vanity, simply—just as the Empress Josephine turned a pocket handkerchief into a dainty portion of a woman's wardrobe by constantly holding it to her mouth to hide a defect in her teeth.

An Electric Housekeeper.

Mrs. Mary Lowell, a practical electrician, has invented a contrivance by which she is enabled to light her kitchen fire from her bed-room. A wire connects her chamber with the kitchen, and pressure upon a knob vesting an electric spark that lights the previously prepared kitchen fire.

Female tramps are becoming quite numerous in Michigan, and are giving the crews of the Michigan Central trains considerable trouble. A conductor on that road says they are fond of clinging to all parts of the cars and in dangerous places where the male tramp will not go.

The phenomenal success of Ayer's Sarsaparilla started into existence a host of competitors. This, of course, was to be expected; but the effect has been to demonstrate the superior merits of Dr Ayer's preparation by a constantly increasing demand for it.

ENDACOTT BROS.

You ought to pitch into so and so, is the remark often made to a newspaper man from citizens. Yes, there are many people who would be perfectly satisfied to see a newspaper in hot water all the time, while they looked on. But suppose that they express their sentiments over their own signatures in a communication to the paper and they won't shoulder any responsibility. Not they.

Local Intelligence.

Yesterday was Orangeville civic holiday.

The gravelling of Broadway is almost completed.

The evening trains from Toronto are seldom on time.

Orangeville whisky is to be had at the old price of 5c. per glass.

Landlord Bennett of the Paisley house is laid up with lumbago.

Orangeville ratepayers will pay 2 cts on the dollar in taxes this year.

Look out for A. M. Harkness' announcement in next week's SUN.

THE SUN gives its readers more local news than any other paper in town.

Quite a number of Orangeville people went to Elora demonstration this morning.

Ex-County-Attorney MacMillan is housing his patent stove in Owen Sound.

Corporation employes took two holidays this week, Tuesday and civic holiday.

Yesterday, civic holiday, this town was on a par with Goldsmith's "Deserted Village."

St. Andrew's Sunday school scholars will hold their annual picnic at Stanley park on Tuesday.

The Citizens' band did not materialize on Friday evening owing to the absence of several players.

Our correspondents would confer a favor if they would pull themselves together and send us in the news.

The Ready-made Clothing is now taking the lead at Leighton's Cash Grocery, Boot & Shoe Store, Orangeville.

A large staff of bricklayers are engaged on the new waterworks building and the work is being rapidly pushed forward.

Mr. James McDonald, who has charge of the carpenter work of Campbell's new block, has done excellent work on that building.

The Select Knights' excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls took place yesterday morning, and a large crowd accompanied them.

The Orangeville and Brampton lacrosse clubs played and interesting game here on Tuesday, the former winning by a comfortable score.

Two negro employes of Robinson's circus fought a terrific battle at the C. P. R. station on Tuesday morning. One fellow's ribs were almost kicked from his backbone.

John D. Shields, son of Chief of Police Shields, is traveling with Barnum's circus in the U. S., and draws $15 per month and expenses. Jack is one of the show's chief singers.

The many friends of Mr. Henry Woods, formerly employed on the C. P. R. here, will regret to learn of the death of his wife, which sad event occurred at Toronto Junction one day this week.

After you get angry and stop your paper, just poke your finger in water pail it out and look for the whole. Then you will know how badly you are missed. A man who thinks a paper cannot live without his support ought to go off and stay a while.

On Thursday death removed an old resident of this neighborhood in the person of John Hunter, which occurred at the residence of his son-in-law, M. W. Burris. The deceased was years of age, and the funeral which took place on Friday, was largely attended.

Exchange of Pulpits.—Rev. Henderson, M. A., of this town, will preach in the different churches of the parish of Mono Mills next Sabbath, and Rev. A. C. Watt will occupy the pulpit in St. Mark's church here.

The Only One.—THE SUN is the only paper published in Orangeville this week, as our uptown contemporaries are taking their summer holiday to-day. Just glance over our newspaper columns and see if THE SUN is not as good as the other two papers combined.

Peddling Without a License.—County Constable Hubbard has been on the look-out for several months past for peddlers who have not taken out licenses. On Saturday he had Carl Peters of this town summoned before P. M. Pattullo for peddling without a license. The case was adjourned until Saturday afternoon.

A Man With Many Positions.—Robert Shields probably holds more positions than any other man in Orangeville. The following is a partial list: He is mayor of the town, chief of the Orangeville police force, caretaker of the town hall, public health inspector, noxious weeds inspector, truant officer, street-light accountant, poll-tax collector; dog tag detective, etc., etc., etc.

Promptly Paid.—On Thursday last a delegation from the A. O. U. W. lodge of this town waited on Mr. James Ferguson at his residence, East ward, and handed him a check for $2 00 being the amount of his late son's insurance in that order. It will be remembered that James, jr., was one of the victims of the railway disaster that occurred at Churchville a couple of months ago.

Looks Lost.—The streak of gravel down the centre of Broadway looks very lonesome out there alone. The quantity of the gravel, too, is not anything near the standard, and this kind of way of doing business should be discontinued. If the committee could not get a first class job on Broadway this year why did they not leave the work over until next year? This has always been a great town for the "penny wise and pound foolish policy."

Got Their Insurance.—Messrs. Robert Beatty and J. A. McMaster, who lost considerable by the burning of the former's elevator a couple of weeks ago, have made a satisfactory settlement with the insurance companies. Mr. Beatty had the buildings and stocks insured for $1275 and the company paid it without a murmur. J. A. McMaster had twenty-four different famed binders consumed on which he had a policy of $2,000. He got $1,750 and the old metal.

LOOKS LOST.—The streak of gravel down the centre of Broadway looks very lonesome out there alone. The quality of the gravel, too, is not any thing near the standard, and this half way of doing business should be discontinued. If the committee could not do a first class job on Broadway this year why did they not leave the work over until next year? This has always been a great town for the "penny wise and pound foolish policy."

GOT THEIR INSURANCE.—Messrs. Robert Beatty and J. A. McMaster, who lost considerable by the burning of the former's elevator a couple of weeks ago, have made a satisfactory settlement with the insurance companies. Mr. Beatty had the buildings and contents insured for $1275 and the company paid it without a murmur. J. A. McMaster had twenty-four of his world famed binders consumed on which he held a policy of $2,000. He will get $1,700 and the old metal.

"O, if I had only taken this medicine earlier in life, what years of suffering it would have saved me!" was the soliloquy exclamation of one who had been cured of rheumatism by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Persons, of such cases are on record.

A TRUANT OFFICER.—Orangeville has now what is wanted for many years—a truant officer. At Monday night's meeting of the town council Chief Shields was appointed to the office, and young vagamuffins who spend their time loafing around the streets instead of being at school will find themselves up at "Castle" Sutherland if they don't alter their ways. For years a number of parents were totally indifferent whether their children received an education or not, but we sincerely hope this state of affairs will not exist under the new regime.

ANOTHER HORSE KILLED.—When the Select Knights' excursion train was returning from Toronto at 2 o'clock this morning, too horses were on the track a little below the station. They all succeeded in getting off except one, which belonged to milkman Rusk, and before the train could be stopped the animal was mangled under the wheels. Mr. Rusk has been very unfortunate with horses this year, as he had a valuable one killed near the same place less than two months ago. The horses escaped from a field and wandered onto the track sometime during the night.

A CONUNDRUM FOR THE CHIEF.—On Monday the editor of this journal found the following communication on the sanctum table, signed by "A Victim": I am a resident of this blooming town, but I have no dollar bills to throw away. A month ago I bought a tag for my cur I thought everybody, rich or poor, who owned a dog had to buy a tag. The fact is I know a town councillor who has a dog and did not purchase a tag, while us poor fellows are compelled to tag our dogs or be fined. This is no square shake, and and I hope the man who looks after this matter will attend to business."

ROBINSON'S GREAT CIRCUS.—John Robinson's "biggest show on earth" pitched his tents near the C. P. R. station on Tuesday morning. From early morning our country cousins began to hie themselves townwards, and before noon there was a tremendous crowd in town, and the day may be said to be the second biggest we've had this year, beaten only by Dominion day. Between 11 and 12 o'clock the street parade took place and it was a grand spectacle to behold. Big crowds attended both afternoon and evening performances, and all were well satisfied with the return for their half dollar. After Barnum's, this circus takes the lead.

WILLIAMSON'S PUMPS TO THE FRONT.—Josh. D Hare, lot 32, con. 4, Mono, writes:—"I have had a well dug only five years, and during that time have had two pumps. I could not get water without the over-exertion of two men, on account of the extreme depth of the well, it being 125 feet. Mr. Cooper, Williamson & Co's agent, dropped in a few days ago and guaranteed to get water out of the well with perfect ease by letting him place therein one of Williamson & Co's pumps, which are manufactured at Orangeville. The pump was placed in the well and it gives entire satisfaction. I can now pump with perfect ease with one hand."

HIS OPINION.—A disgusted citizen accosted one of THE SUN'S representatives on Broadway yesterday afternoon and dashed off the following brilliant remarks: "Say, SUN, I've got a great scheme on hand and I want you to advocate it in your paper. It's about this waterworks question, and my proposal is for the council to make an appropriation to buy dynamite and blow the whole thing up. It's a fraud of the first water and the sooner the d——n thing is gone the better." It is not necessary to say THE SUN is strongly against the use of dynamite for any such purpose. We've had too much of the stuff used in town not many years ago.

MILTON LOSES.—The Dufferins of this town and the Olympics of Milton crossed sticks on the exhibition ground in here on Friday afternoon last. The ball was faced at a quarter to 3 and before half a minute the Orangeville boys scored. The visitors took the second game and the Dufferins the third. Milton took the fourth and fifth and Orangeville the sixth and seventh, there by winning the match by 4 games to 3. Some very scientific plays were made by both teams, but Orangeville had the best of the play throughout the game. Quite a sum of money changed hands on the result of the match, as Milton thought they had a sure thing. The only objectionable thing about the game was the disgraceful talk of a half drunkenca'ne drover from Weston, who backed the Milton team and lost.

THOSE CIRCUS POSTERS.—There has been some comment on the indecency of some portions of the circus posters that now adorn the bill boards of Stratford. In London the lithographs formed the subject of an investigation before the police magistrate, who ordered the objectionable lithos to be torn down. Rev. J. W. Holmes, of the Central Methodist church, on Sunday evening referred to the matter and hinted that the Stratford authorities were not as highly endowed with moral stamina as the London authorities. He said the posters were most corrupting in their influence, and hoped no member of his congregation would attend the spectacular exhibition on Friday next.—Stratford Herald. The same posters were on the bill boards in Orangeville, but nobody "kicked" against them. It is a wonder the people of London and Stratford do not tog out their saw horses with pantloons.

NUT SHELL FAKIRS.—On Saturday night five fakirs arrived in town in advance of John Robinson's circus and put up at one of the leading hotels. When the crowd came to see the circus on Tuesday the fakirs opened out in several hotel sheds, and were "skinning" the rustic lads in great shape. Four or five special cops were on duty and the fakirs could not stay long in one place, but business boomed while it lasted. Several Orangeville boys were caught, one to the tune of $25. We have no sympathy for fools who are sure "I know which one it's under." This nut shell business is an old racket, and the boy or man who tries to beat a fakir at his own game deserves to loose his hard earned cash. But we guess it's of no use for THE SUN to repeat this oft-told warning, for fools are found in every community and they cannot rest until they hand over their money to every fakir that comes along. When will some people get sense?

SUPPOSED SUICIDE.

Samuel Newall, of Rockview, Found in a Barn in a Dying Condition.

(Shelburne Economist.)

Last Friday morning Samuel Newall, of lot 23, con. 4, E. H. S., Melmar, was found in a dying condition in the loft of a stable on another farm owned by him some distance from his place of residence, being lot 23, con. 3. He left home with a horse and buggy about noon the previous day, asked his oldest son for a dollar, as it is said, and told him to be a good boy, as he might not see him again. He was seen again, but it was when life had almost departed and he was in a deathly stupor, and it was the oldest son who made the discovery. Newall had gone to one of the neighboring towns or villages, purchased a quantity of laudanum (25 cents worth it is supposed, for the remaining portion of the dollar was found in his pocket), returned to the unoccupied farm, unhitched his horse and turned the animal into the field, climbed upon a stack outside the barn and affected an entrance to the building, opened the doors and backed his buggy in, and then ascended to the loft and laid down to die. Dr. Lawrence, of Honeywood, was hastily summoned, but medical skill was of no avail, and the man died Saturday morning.

It is said that Newall's actions showed great trouble of mind, people who are charitably disposed attributing his mental trouble to a case of sunstroke received some years ago. There are not a few however, who believe domestic troubles, either real or imaginary, to have been the cause of the rash act. He is said to have passed the previous Wednesday night in the place where he was found Friday morning, and it was no doubt during that night he laid his plans for the following day. He was a hard working and economical farmer and owned considerable property. An inquest was not held.

Since Childhood's Days.

"I have been bothered with neuralgic pains in the head and face since childhood and have tried all possible remedies. A friend persuaded me to try Hordock Blood Bitters, and after having used it I obtained instant relief, and thoroughly recommend B. B. B."—Jas. Ingles, Bradenbury, Ass.

WILD MUSTARD.

Along with other noxious weeds, wild mustard is spreading rapidly in our grain fields. This plant is known in England under the name of charlock, yellows, and kunch kettack. It belongs to the same natural order (cruciferae) as turnips, cabbages, rape mustard and radishes. It is known by its cross-shaped yellow flower, so familiar in our grain fields. This wild mustard is a scourging pest, drying up the ground and starving all other vegitation in its path. It principally affects spring grown grain, and is rarely found among fall wheat. Wild mustard is easily destroyed by frost, and being of the nature of turnips is not distasteful to sheep. Its seed is oily, and heavy and readily rolls into crevices in the ground to a considerable depth. It retains its vitality for many years, and it is reported that in Holderness, Yorkshire, England, a field, after being a pasture for over 80 years, in which no charlock was seen, on being plowed up the dormant seed germinated and the field had as thick a crop as if it had been sown. And it is this characteristic which accounts for the well known fact that deeper plowing than usual often delays a field with it. The seed requires air, and it is only when lifted by the plow and brought near the surface that it germinates. It is best extripated by hoeing, and, therefore, by growing crops suitable to this operation, such as turnips, beans and potatoes. Hand pulling is expensive, but is often resorted to; mowing off the tops is only partially successful. Being as already mentioned, easily destroyed by frost, the harrowing of stubbles immediately after harvest is useful in encouraging its germination before winter. Similarly it is a good thing to plow early for barley, and to harrow the surface and wait for the charlock or mustard to spring up before sowing the crop. Both these means have been employed by good farmers with varying success. If a field is much filled with mustard it should be plowed shallow. Mustard is most injurious on poor land, because, like all weeds, it can thrive where cultivated crops cannot grow luxuriously. Liberal farming and the growth of smothering crops must therefore be claimed among the best means of checking its development. It is often sown with the crop, and care should always be taken to avoid this by the selection of perfectly clean seed. Mustard seed is found in large quantities in the chaff of wheat after threshing, and where wheat chaff is given to stock there is no doubt that much mustard seed finds its way into the manure heap. In the case of oat fields infested with mustard, cutting early is recommended, so as to prevent the fall of seed.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against these spurious imitations, and are asked to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c a box) by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Albert Kelly, who killed a man named Sloan about five years ago on the farm of Robert Atkins in Simcoe county, has died in the Toronto general hospital. Kelly and Sloan worked together on the Atkins farm and both were in love with the same girl. One evening they had some words, and Kelly struck Sloan with a whiffletree on the head. Sloan died of the injuries received. Kelly was tried and sentenced for 15 years to the penitentiary, but became remorseful and melancholy, soon after his confinement. He took a decline and was pardoned on Good Friday of the present year. He was removed to the Toronto general hospital about seven weeks ago.

Brampton bicyclists squirt tobacco-juice on the pavement down and on store windows.

The distribution of the amount, which many people find rather nothing, may be due to improper management of the fund; but, in most cases, if inefficiency is manifested in the distribution, the best remedy for which is one of Ayer's Pills, to be taken after dinner.

Licenses Inspector McKay of Simcoe has recently "nailed" Robert McGowan of Hillsdale for allowing the blinds of his barroom windows to be down on a Saturday night and Sunday contrary to the commissioners' regulations.

her cruel, almost vindictive. She gradually lowered Olive's position in the household—meaning to degrade her in my eyes, and render it impossible for me to marry her. She did this in the sight of strangers and acquaintances, galling the girl often to the quick. To spare her further pain, I kept much away from Trewavas, and when I was there I paid as much attention as possible to others. For the last two or three years Lady Trewavas has been careful, that whenever I returned home, I should meet Eleanor and her mother. You will not think me a coxcomb if I say, that I saw Miss Maristowe liked me. She was very beautiful; she combined, in person and position, every requisite that my friends or I could desire in a wife. I proposed to her, and was accepted. I did so, loving her, for her gentleness had greatly attracted me. In fact, I was fascinated for a time, and it was not till my engagement had lasted a month or two, that I began to think that there was something tame and insipid about her extreme softness. I fought against this reaction. I was resolved to fulfil my promises, and, through all, I was determined to reinstate Olive in her proper position in my house, and make her the companion and sister of my wife."

"Ah—indeed!" said the old counsellor, drily.

"Eleanor's unfortunate jealousy interposed," continued Sir Hilton, "and I found myself obliged to consent to Olive's expulsion from Trewavas. This was the last blow that embittered that unhappy girl into madness and murder. I have told you the whole history now, Mr. Heriot, you will understand my grief—my compunction; you will see why I wish to save her."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

GOOD SAMPLE.—Mr. J. T. Hemstreet, of Shelburne, brought to this office on Wednesday a clover stalk measuring 40 inches in length. The stalk came from Mr. George Tupling's farm at Honeywood. Mr. H informs us that the crops look well in that part.

DISORDERLY.—A scene was enacted on our Main street last Saturday evening which we hope, for the benefit and good name of all concerned, will not be repeated again. The Citizens' band were out giving their regular concert. All went well until the Salvation Army came along, and as is their usual course, started up their singing, drum beating, &c., quite lively. It happened that a solo was being performed by one of the band, and the Army's dissonant noises with no time or order in them, completely nonplussed the soloist. As we have heard, so it appeared, the S. A have been doing their best to interrupt break up or cause the band to quit their regular open air concerts, under the delusion that they were working for God and doing good. But it was clearly demonstrated last Saturday evening that they, instead of doing good have done harm, the effects of which will not soon pass off. The band is under an obligation to furnish these concerts, and rightly concluded not to be run down by the Army. The band and Army stood side by side and waged one against the other for "who's best man." There was hardly music in the band's performances, and the Army's deliberations could not be heard—save occasionally their voices in so called singing. A large crowd gathered around and witnessed the combat, the ultimate issue of which was not at one time clearly seen. Friends grew fast for either side. Neither organization we think raised themselves one jot in the estimation of the people. It would have shown a more Christian spirit on the part of the officers of the Army had they gone back to their barracks when they could not get a hearing. Constable Brundage stood in between band and Army, and more than once interposed for peace and quietitude, but all to no avail. He acted wisely in forcing a retreat as that might have terminated disastrously. We understand necessary steps will be taken to prevent such a meet again. The S. A. were forced to retreat at last being so hoarse that they could not stand out any longer,—and the band boys' lips must have been pretty feverish. $7 25 was collected for the band, and the Army collected a few dimes. The band ended up with God Save the Queen and a dish of ice cream all round.

Baby Was Sick.

My baby was very sick with diarrhœa, and after everything else had failed I tried Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. It acted like magic, and a perfect cure soon followed.—Mrs. Julia Lake, Bloomfield, Ont.

Warden (of insane asylum)—This poor woman imagines she is shopping all the time. Sometimes she sits in silence for whole weeks. Visitor—What is she doing then? Warden—It is supposed that she imagines she is waiting for the change.

It is announced that snoring can be cured by the carbolic smoke-ball. The smoke ball—an indiarubber ball with a small perforated outlet—is lightly pressed under the nostrils, and the smoke that issues from it is inhaled. It is a cure for so many things that every one can find some use for it. If you feel a cold coming upon you use the smoke-ball. Snuff at it for catarrh, asthma, and any sort of lung trouble. It exercises the influenza fiend, whooping cough gives a final whoop after it, and goes away like a bad dream, for it can be administered to a sleeping child. It is good, too for neuralgia and headache. In short, it seems as though most of the ills our heads and chests are heirs to may be made to end in the smoke of the carbolic smoke-ball.

Cotton Root Compound.

Composed of Cotton Root, Tansy and Pennyroyal—prepared by an old Physician. Is successfully used monthly by thousands of women and has been prescribed in a practice of over 30 years. Price, $1. Will be mailed to any address in Canada and U. S. Doctor's consultation hours, 9 to 11 and 2 to 4. Diseases of women treated only. Sealed particulars, two stamps. Ladies only, address POND LILLY COMPANY, No. 3, Fisher Block, 131 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Is the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken; and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—T. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for a dressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," MacArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

The Pill For the People.

Murillo, Ont., Oct. Jan. 13, 1890.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Have been selling your Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills for the past eight years; they are the only Pill for the people. After having used them once, they always come back for more.

Yours truly,

JOS. MCLEAN.

SUNBEAMS.

Every dog has his day, but it is a mean cur that will bark at night.

The farmer's wife who trades goose feathers pays down for what she gets.

There may be newspapers in heaven, but they are not filled with booms and recent arrivals.

"Are you going away this summer?" "No; "I shall stay at home." "Why?" "Because my wife is going away."

She—Don't you sing? Why, how stupid of you! He—If you'd ever heard me you'd think it was everlasting smart of me.

The world owes us all a living, yet no man can collect the debt unless he pulls off his coat and takes it from the world's hide.

Justice—What's the charge against this prisoner? Officer O'Fagan—"Disorin' ther peelace, yer honor. He put ther sound soide av his apples on ther out-side."

Poverty Stricken suitor: Be mine, Amanda, and I will treat you like an angel! Amanda: I should think so! Nothing to eat, and still less to wear. Not me!

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are recommended by the best physicians, because they are free from calomel and other injurious drugs, being composed of purely vegetable ingredients. While thorough in their action, they stimulate and strengthen the bowels and secretory organs.

A recruit was brought up for medical inspection, and the doctor asked him, "Have you any ill feets?" "Yes, sir, I am short sighted." "How do prove it?" "Easily enough doctor. Do you see that mail up on yonder wall?" "Yes." "Well, I don't."

What's the trouble between you and your husband? "He makes me jealous of certain ladies." "In what way?" "He mentions having met them when I wasn't with him." "Pooh! they are not the ones to be afraid of." "Who then?" "Those we can he doesn't mention."

Model Notes.

"I suffered intense pain from canker of the stomach and my face and body were almost covered with pimples. I used Burdock Blood Bitters, the first dose relieved the pain, and I was forever relieved from canker of the stomach. I became completely cured. I think B.B.B. is the most powerful remedy known to science."—Trefflan Edge, Arnold, P.Q.

Jimpson—What is meant by the horn of plenty? Gimcrack—About a quart.

People who are really missed when away never appreciate their importance when present.

Engaged couples may not average larger than any other people, yet they are often distinguished by their sighs.

If you are troubled with Catarrh, but in this warm, dry weather does not strongly experience its evil effects, and you neglect treatment, you mistake. When the disease is dormant is the best time to get rid of it, and this the use of Nasal Balm will accomplish. Sold by all dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price (50c. or $1 in bottle) by T. Pulford & Co., Brockville, Ont.

Parson—Have you something to send to the heathen, Mr. Trotter? Mr. Trotter (mopping his brow)—Yes; I will send them my winter overcoat.

Bud—Why are you so fond of progressive euchre? Miss Revere. O, I do so delight in seeing the Jack of diamonds trump the queen of hearts.

All Men,

Sufferers
FROM Stomach and Liver derangements—Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick-Headache, and Constipation—find a safe and certain relief in Ayer's Pills. In all cases, where a cathartic is needed, these Pills are recommended by leading physicians.
Dr. T. E. Hastings, of Baltimore, says: "Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic and aperient within the reach of my profession."
Dr. John W. Brown, of Oceana, W. Va., writes: "I have prescribed Ayer's Pills in my practice, and find them excellent. I urge their general use in families."
"For a number of years I was afflicted with biliousness which almost destroyed my health. I tried various remedies, but nothing afforded me any relief until I began to take Ayer's Pills."—G. S. Wanderlich, Scranton, Pa.
"I have used Ayer's Pills for the past thirty years, and am satisfied I should not be alive to-day if it had not been for them. They cured me of dyspepsia when all other remedies failed, and their occasional use has kept me in a healthy condition ever since."—T. P. Brown, Chester, Pa.
"Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills, and deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. For over two years past I have taken one of these Pills every night before retiring. I would not willingly be without them."—G. W. Bowman, 35 East Main st., Carlisle, Pa.
"Ayer's Pills have been used in my family upwards of twenty years, and have completely verified all that is claimed for them. In attacks of piles, from which I suffered many years, they afforded me greater relief than any medicine I ever tried."—Thomas F. Adams, Holly Springs, Miss.

LOVING WORDS.

Loving words will cost but little,
Sweetening up the hill of life;
But they make the weak and weary
Stronger, braver for the strife.
Do you count them only trifles?
What on earth are one and all?
Never was a kind word wasted,
Never was one said in vain.

When the cares of life are many,
And its burdens heavy grow,
For the ones who walk beside you,
If you love them tell them so.
What you count of little value
Has an almost magic power,
And beneath their cheering sunshine
Hearts will blossom like a flower

So, as up life's hill we journey,
Let us scatter, all the way,
Kindly words, to serve as sunshine
In the dark and cloudy day.
Grudge no loving word, my brother,
As along through life you go,
To the ones who journey with you,
If you love them tell them so.

The Story Teller.

OLIVE VARCOE

—OR—

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER XI. (Continued.)

"I SEE the girl has been rather hardly treated among you, all," said Mr. Heriot. "The truth is you have jilted her, and your grandmother has ill-used her. Now, if you will take my advice, you will get her safe out of the way until this affair has blown over, or till the right man turns up."

"Who? What do mean?" said Sir Hilton.

"I mean the fellow who committed this murder," replied Mr. Heriot. "She is no more guilty than I am. Even assassins are scarcely such blunderers as you describe her to be. The cord and the chloroform are convincing proofs to my mind of her innocence."

Sir Hilton Trewayss stared at him aghast; but, as the old lawyer yawned in his face, and laid his hand upon a bedroom candlestick on the table, there was nothing for them but to take the hint, and go."

"I never accept a brief now," observed Mr. Heriot, as they rose to say fare well, "else I should be happy to defend this young lady; but, in the hands of my friend, she will be safe—that is, if she abides to take her trial. My advice is, don't let her. These secret murderers always turn up in a year or two, and then the world will see its injustice."

"I wish I could think as you do," said Sir Hilton, in a tone of despair.

He held out his hand as he spoke, and, strange to say, the old dried mummy of a man hesitated to take it. He glanced at a bust placed above the door—the bust of a man with a small head, and mild, melancholy face.

"Well, I shook hands with him the day before he ended his existence in a solemn and public manner," said the cynic to himself: "and so really I don't see why I should be so squeamish."

Upon this, his wiry hand grasped Sir Hilton's, and the two men parted. As the noise of their horses' hoofs died away, Mr. Heriot rubbed his dry palms together, and shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, I don't wonder the young fellow feels uncomfortable," said he. "Of course he committed the murder himself. It is as plain as a pike-staff, and that this girl is trying to screen him. Ah, and she'll do it too."

This was Mr. Heriot's opinion, and it sent him a complacent humor to his late rest.

It was two o'clock when Sir Hilton got back to Trewayss. He went straight to his brother's room. John lay on his bed sleeping, but dressed, and Sir Hilton, bending over, felt a keen pang on seeing how the lines of his patient face had sharpened, and the dark shadow beneath his sunken eyes had deepened. "John!" he said, softly shaking him by the shoulder.

John sprang up with a sudden and ghastly wildness in his manner. "Unhand me!" he cried, furiously. But, almost as he spoke, he saw it was his brother's grasp, that held him, and the mad glare in his eyes died away, and the old patient smile broke over his face again.

"Hilton, is it you? I was dreaming horribly," he said with a shudder.

"Where is Olive?" asked his brother "Is she in her room?"

"No," replied John. "An hour ago she came and stood at my door like an avenging spirit, and she asked for the key—the key of that room where she lies. I could not refuse her. Do not tell Mrs. Maristowe of it, but I dared not say her nay."

In his wild, weary manner, John seemed more like an exalted child than a man, and Sir Hilton felt that it would be cruel to tax his strength further.

"Lie down again, John," said he, "I will go and find Olive."

Sir Hilton descended the stairs with a soft step, and in a moment found himself in the corridor approaching Eleanor's room. A pale light streamed from the door, which was partially open. He looked within, and saw Olive kneeling by the bedside. She was weeping, her face hidden from his view; but the white flowers which he had seen in her hand that day were strewn about the bed, while a wreath of jasmine and myrtle rested gently on Eleanor's bosom.

"Eleanor, forgive me," she murmured, "forgive me if I escape, and bids this crime forever in some dreadful cell hide! Oh, merciful Father! have pity on me!"

"Olive!" said Sir Hilton; and his voice seemed almost a groan.

Olive started up, and how his face hardened as she turned and saw him. His expression, too, changed; the sight of her here in this presence, beside Eleanor's still face, shocked him, and there was a sense of shame, of sin, of loathing about him as she passed him in the doorway.

"I cannot speak to you here," he said; "will you come to the library?"

She was locking the door again softly, and with fingers that scarcely trembled.

"I go to John to give him back the key," she said. "Step lightly, lest Mrs. Maristowe should hear you. We are watched. You do wrong to speak to me, and I do not wish it. There is nothing you can say will do me any good."

As she turned the key with silent fingers, her lips whispered this, scarcely moving; then she fled rapidly away, and almost at the same moment that she disappeared, Sir Hilton felt, rather than heard, a step, and, turning, he faced the smiling visage of Mr. Eslick.

"Ah! you have been to look on a sad sight, Sir Hilton," said he. "You guard the key, I presume? I thought it better to stay here myself to-night. Mrs. Maristowe wished it so much. You have had rather a rough ride, Sir Hilton."

"Mr. Eslick," returned the young man, bitterly, "I will hold no conversation with you. These hypocritical civilities disgust me. I know you for what you are—a spy. Tell Sir Anthony Roskelly, that I fathom his malice and despise it. Let me pass, Sir, if you please"

Mr. Eslick skipped with undignified haste out of Sir Hilton's way, but he took his revenge by posting a spy at Olive's door, smiling to himself like an injured angel as he did it.

Sir Hilton paced the library in vain. The night wore away into morning, and Olive gave him no opportunity to urge upon her the necessity of flight; but when at last, weary and angry, he left the room to seek an hour's rest, he saw that an interview between them, at least here, had been rendered impossible; for Mr. Eslick stretched on a large hall chair, placed close against the door of the spiral stair-case, slumbered serenely.

When Mr. Heriot spoke of the inevitable result of the inquest, he was thinking of a London jury. He did not consider the fact of the jurymen at Trewayss Churchtown being all dependents of the family, with an intense belief in the immaculate truth and honor of all the Trewayssses, down even to the fifth consinship. To them, what was Mr. Damarel's evidence worth, compared to the clear testimony of Lady Trewayss? In vain he might repeat his strong belief that Olive was in the wood; it weighed as nothing against my lady's word, and against John's timid, quiet testimony, that he had himself locked her door and taken the key to Lady Trewayss. As to the ancient staircase, there was not a villager who did not know that it was never used, and that the old arched door at the foot was rarely opened even to curious visitors. Very little then did it avail, when Damerel hinted that Olive had availed herself of this, to escape from the house. Moreover, he created a prejudice against himself by his affected speech and manner, for he could think of no other way to show his disgust, indignation, and contempt than by returning to that assumption of indolence and absurdity, which he had thrown off in the first horror of the discovery of this crime.

"Why did I put my finger in this pie?" he said to himself. It is better to let Cornish cooks alone. "I have lost my friend and gained twenty thousand enemies, and the girl escapes scot free."

Upon this thought he relapsed into his old manner, and watched the rest of the inquest with an appearance of languid indifference.

One important witness was wanting. Charles Vigo was not forthcoming at the inquest. No one had seen him since he had quitted Trewayss house the evening before. He had not returned home; this was all that was known of him. But as Mr. Damerel had proved the finding of the body, it was not considered necessary to adjourn the inquest because of his Malapropos absence.

Olive was not called at all. What could she tell them? If she had been locked in her room from three o'clock until eight, it was clear she could relate nothing concerning the events that had occurred during that period. This view of the matter was placed before the jury with great affability by the coroner, but Damerel felt sure that Olive was spared by Sir Hilton's request.

The verdict was given amid breathless silence—"Wilful murder against some person or persons unknown."

"Thank heaven," said John, in a whisper to his brother, "Olive is saved."

He leant in back his chair ghastly pale. The steadiness and courage with which he had given his evidence forsook him; and, to the surprise of all, he burst into childish tears. As Sir Hilton rose in his nervous haste to assist him, half ashamed of his brother's weakness and agitation, he met the calm, intelligent face of the man Warne, the inspector who had aided him in his search for Eleanor. On this face there rested an expression, that haunted his mind uneasily through all the excitement of that day.

Olive had escaped! This was the one great relief that lifted a mountain weight from Sir Hilton's heart; but none the less was she guilty, none the less was her stay at Trewayss an impossibility and a shame. He scarce spoke a word as pressed around him with kindly greetings: he scarcely noticed those who held aloof, whispering together ominously of guilt, and connivance at guilt. Passing through with Lady Trewayss on his arm, many eyes marked how pale and stern he was, and how, holding his head erect, he neither sought nor avoided any man's gaze. John, on the contrary, turned anxious glances right and left, seeking a kindly look and his hand was stretched out often to grasp another while his meek face was lighted up with an instant and sad smile, as sympathizing words fell upon his ear. He had a dozen friends that day where Sir Hilton had but one.

At the door of the Trewayss Arms stood the carriage, that had brought Lady Trewayss hither. As her grandson placed her in it, she turned and bowed to the crowd. There were old faces there, that had looked upon hers when young—faces that had seen her a bride, a young mother, a widow, bereaved of her children; and as they saw her now, with her pride bent by sorrow, and the traces of tears on her wan cheek, their own eyes was scarcely dry; and women courtseyed, and men lifted their hats in silent respect.

Then John entered the carriage, and the servant still held the door open for Sir Hilton, but he shook his head.

"I shall walk through the park," he said, and taking Dr. Burton's arm, he strode away.

At the park gate Mr. Dameral confronted them; he took off his hat gravely.

"I congratulate you, Sir Hilton," he said, with a marked accent. "This has been the most singular inquest which I have ever had the good fortune to attend. Its purpose has been, not to gain the truth, but to hide it."

Dr. Burton felt Sir Hilton's frame quiver from head to foot.

"Send your opinion to the newspapers, Mr. Damerel," said Sir Hilton; "They may be glad to hear it—I am not. It is scarcely gentlemanly to trouble me at such a time with your vague suspicions."

"Vague!" retorted Mr. Damerel. "No! I repudiate that expression; there is nothing vague about my opinion."

"Then tell the coroner and the jury they have not done their duty; don't bother us," said Dr. Burton, roughly.

Mr. Damerel gave him a languid stare, but vouchsafed no reply.

"Sir Hilton Trewayss," he continued, "yesterday I was sorry for you. I thought there lay before you a sad duty, which you would nobly fulfil. To-day I have more sorrow for you still, because you have trampled duty under foot. Do you know that from henceforth no gentleman will ever enter your doors, no lady will ever sit at your board? Even as I speak, Mrs. Maristowe quits your roof with the remains of her murdered daughter. All hearts sympathize with her, and approve of what she does. One house cannot contain her and Miss Olive Varcoe."

Once more he removed his hat, and turning on his heel, departed, no sign or look from Sir Hilton staying him.

"Is this true, what he says?" asked Dr. Burton.

The workings of Sir Hilton's face, its dead whiteness, and suppressed passion, were a sufficient answer.

"Mrs. Maristow is weak," he said, in a moment recovering himself, "and she hates me. Nevertheless, this is Sir Anthony's doing. Let us hasten on."

"He will not let the matter rest here," said the doctor. "There will be a warrant here to night to apprehend Olive, and she will be examined before this enemy of yours and committed. At the examination the fact of her having had chloroform in her possession will come out. I expected every moment to be questioned on it at the inquest. How it was Tamson did not betray herself I cannot tell."

"She dares not," replied Sir Hilton. "Her whole family will be ruined if she swears to that falsehood. They are tenants of mine."

This was significant. Yet the doctor was director, and loved probing.

"Then you do not believe the girl found that chloroform in Olive's pocket?" he asked.

"No," replied Sir Hilton. "She never had any. I have asked John, and he assures me he never saw any in her possession. My grandmother's maid hates Olive."

Dr. Burton pretended to be satisfied. On the whole he was not sorry that Sir Hilton offered him this salve for his conscience. If the finding of the bottle was a pitful trick of Tamson's, there was no harm in being silent on the matter. Hurrying through the park as they talked, they soon reached the mansion, and saw the great terrace sprinkled with hearse and mourning coaches.

Sir Hilton was too proud to expostulate with Mrs. Maristowe, on the unseemly haste with which she quitted his house; but he felt the insult, and knew what it was intended to convey. She meant to show the world, that she considered the roof that sheltered Olive Varcoe was not a fitting place for her and the remains of her murdered daughter. On entering the great drawing-room, he found her ready dressed for her departure, and saying adieu coldly and languidly to Lady Trewayss; while she, pale and stern, endeavored proudly to hide her sense of wrong and sorrow. The moment Mrs. Maristowe caught sight of Sir Hilton and Dr. Burton, she burst forth into shrieks, and sobs, and ringing of hands, till, spent and worn, she was obliged to cease from sheer exhaustion. When some little quietness was restored at last, Sir Hilton bent over her, and said gently and steadily, "Since you have resolved on departing immediately, I will not urge you to delay your journey longer than the short time requisite, to enable me to get ready to accompany you."

Mrs. Maristowe with an hysterical gasp and sob, waved him away with her hand.

"No, no, Sir Hilton, I cannot let you go with me," she cried. "I could not bear it. The sight of you is too painful to me. My daughter's love, for you has killed her. Gloss it over as you will, cover up the crime as you will, hide it, excuse it, guard the criminal beneath your own roof, the fact is the same. Eleanor's love for you has brought her to a violent death. My poor girl—my poor child! I take you home dead! Oh, would to Heaven I had never seen this accursed house!"

Lady Trewayss and Sir Hilton heard this in silence. Her grief was too bitter, the circumstances of her bereavement too horrible, for them to feel aught but pity for her, say what she would.

"Considering the relation in which I stood to Eleanor," continued Sir Hilton, his voice breaking slightly as he spoke, "I think I have a right to accompany her to her last home."

"No, no!" said Mrs. Maristowe, sobbing aloud. "If you force yourself in this way on me, Sir Hilton, it will be cruel, most cruel. I will not bear it."

"Madam, I forego my right," said Sir Hilton. "It is not my wish to force my presence on you, since it is painful, but I trust you will have no objection to accept the escort of my brother."

"John has utterly broke down," said Lady Trewayss. "He is ill in bed."

"Poor John!" sighed Mrs. Maristowe. "I would gladly let him go with me, but he is really too ill. I thought he would have died just now, when he said farewell to my poor child."

To Sir Hilton it seemed somewhat hard that John should be given a privilege denied to him; yet this, too, he bore silently.

"But it is better as it is," continued Mrs. Maristowe; "for the very name of Trewayss pierces my heart now. Mr. Damerel has promised me his escort and protection. He will see me safely to my desolate, childless home. He is a Devonshire gentleman, a neighbor, and I shall feel tranquil with him."

"You seem to forget, madam," observed Dr. Burton, bluntly, "that this family shares your sorrow, and has perhaps to suffer the harder portion of the burden. I think, for your own sake and that of Lady Trewayss—who is not strong—this painful interview had better end. Will you allow me to escort you to your carriage?"

Bursting into offended tears, Mrs. Maristowe rose at once.

"I am sure I can have no wish to stay here," she said. "No—not a minute longer?"

But at this moment the door opened, and a tiny figure dressed in black barred the way. It was Olive. Placing one hand on the back of a chair for support, she held the other imploringly towards Mrs. Maristowe.

"You are going away," she said, "and I fear it is because of me. I am come to tell you that 'tis I who leave. I quit this house instantly, and I depart from the shores of Cornwall to-morrow. I shall stay in the village to-night—I hope that will not offend you; but things will not be in readiness for my departure till the morning. Mrs. Maristowe, will you stay at Trewayss now? Do not add to their grief here by insult and unkindness."

Was this Olive? Was this the proud,

SIR HECTOR RETIRES.

THE GREAT FRENCH-CANADIA STEPS DOWN FROM THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPT.

Sir Hector Langevin has handed in his resignation as Minister of Public Works. The resignation of Sir Hector has proved a veritable bomb shell in political circles. It was totally unexpected at this stage of the proceedings and is the absorbing topic.

Before the Privileges and Elections Committee Tuesday morning Sir Hector Langevin appeared and made a statement. He preceded it by saying that he had read the evidence in the case, and, as his name had been connected with the charges, he had decided of his own free will to come and make a statement under oath.

He was sworn and read his testimony from a type written document. He said that if Mr. Tarte in making his charges in the House had then directly implicated him he would have resigned, as the custom was in England in such cases. But Mr. Tarte's charges were aimed at Thomas McGreevy, and so far as they had touched him (Sir Hector) they were vague and indeterminate. When the evidence was adduced it became clear that he too was assailed. Had he known this at the beginning of the investigation he would have been represented by counsel while the evidence was being taken. He said he intended to meet the charges with a definite denial, but he also intended to lay in the hands of the First Minister his resignation as Minister of Public Works, so that he might meet the accusations as a private individual. He denied that any one had influenced him in connection with the administration of his department, or that he had ever received money from Larkin, Connolly & Co., or from any one else in their behalf. He denied that during the years Thos McGreevy was his guest when in Ottawa, from 1879 to 1890, he had ever received from him (Thos. McGreevy) any money, presents or loans. Thos. McGreevy had never used undue influence to obtain advantages for any one from the department.

Sir Hector positively denied every thing implicating him with the scandals, and his straightforward manner has raised him even more in public estimation.

A CRUSHED AFFIDAVIT MAKER.

(London Free Press.)

Mr. John Charlton, who subscribed near to a false affidavit, charging Mr. Hickey with conniving with Mr. Hickey to possess a timber limit, has furnished a list of other members of parliament whom he alleges to be equally culpable. But how is any one to know that these fresh allegations are not as false as that which Mr. John Charlton laid against Dr. Hickey, and which is in the affidavit referred to? The feelings of this Mr. John Charlton may be imagined when confronted with the fact that no such application was ever made or Order-in-Council issued. He found it necessary to apologize to Dr. Hickey and the House of Commons for having foully and falsely aspersed a fellow member. In commenting upon the conduct of Mr. John Charlton in this matter Sir John Thompson charged him with prevarication in saying that the affidavit was based on a letter written by Dr Hickey, when it was not. The affidavit was not based on the letter at all. It declared that it was made solemnly, and after a full examination of all the facts. Mr Charlton either had or had not examined into the records. If he had, as he swore he had, he would have found the limit was granted solely to Mr Broder; and if he had not, what must be thought of a man who had deliberately sworn to an action he had never performed? Sir John Thompson said:—

"As for the right of a member of Parliament to apply for timber limits, Mr Mills held that they had that right, and if the law were complied with, he had a perfect right to hold such leases or limits. But Mr. Charlton held the fact of being a lessee of the Crown interfered with the members' independence. Now, he would ask Mr Charlton if he was not a lessee for the Crown?

"Mr. Charlton—I am. I hold a timber limit which I bought at private sale from Mr R C Smith of Port Hope, and am now operating in that limit."

"Sir John Thompson—He is a lessee of the Crown, yet no one on this side of the House has ever thought of accusing him of having any leaning to the Government, and we would ask the hon. gentleman to be as lenient and fair to members on this side of the House as we are to him."

The tables were thus cleverly turned upon the member for North Norfolk, showing that while he preached unto others he was himself but a miserable castaway. While trying to prove that it was unrighteous, per se, in a member of Parliament to hold a timber limit in his own right, or support the application of another person, he was himself working a timber limit as lessee of the Government. No public man ever received so prompt an answer, so caustic and crushing a reproof as that administered to Mr. John Charlton by the Minister of Justice, Mr. C. H. Mackintosh, and other members.

EDITORIAL NOTES

BOODLING has become epidemic. Ottawa, Quebec and E. A. Macdonald of Toronto street railway fame are the big toads in the puddle. More places to hear from.

DID you ever see a farmer smile one of those genuine whole souled forty-bushel to the acre and hope for a dollar-a-bushel smiles? If not, why not? Just that kind of a smile is on deck now, here, there and everywhere, and all around us. The grand crops that are being garnered on every land, and the cool pleasant weather for the heavy harvest work should cure every grumbler.—Norwich Gazette. And still Canada is going to the dogs!—according to the Opposition at Ottawa. What will that gallant knight, Sir Richard Cartwright, do now?

CAMILLA.

NO DAMAGE.—Hardly any damage was done in this vicinity by the terrible storm which swept Ontario last Saturday and Sunday. We consider ourselves pretty lucky these days.

TO THE NORTHWEST.—Wm. Kylee and Jack McNaughton started for the Northwest on Tuesday. If the whole community had been picked so two more popular boys could have left us. We wish them success.

BLESSING THE GOVERNMENT.—The raspberries are nearly all gone, but they were a great crop while they lasted. More than one housewife is blessing the good Conservative government for taking the duty off sugar.

CHURCH RE-OPENING.—The Camilla Presbyterian church will be re-opened on Sunday, the 23rd. It has been extensively repaired and is now a striking edifice. On Monday following a concert will be given in aid of the church fund, and we promise a treat to those who attend.

A DISASTROUS TUMBLE.—While Wm. Howard, jr., was working around Forsyth's barn on the Saturday following the raising he had the misfortune to fall a distance of 16 feet, breaking his leg near the ankle. He is now under medical treatment, but will not be out for a long time.

WAS IT HIMSELF?—Our Cardwell friend should remember that it is better to fight for good than to rail against evil, but by the description of the rejected correspondence to an Orangeville paper we are led to believe that he is the hero of his own story! But he could have described himself more fully if he had said he was well furnished with—well, let her go.

DON'T BORROW.—Quite a number of people make it a weekly practice to borrow THE SUN from their neighbors, who pay $1 a year for it. It must be an oversight of the borrowers, for one cannot imagine they are too mean to pay such a small sum for all the news they would get. We would advise them to quit borrowing and go at once and subscribe for the paper that has so much Camilla news.

PETER'S NEW BARN.—Peter Forsyth's barn was raised on the 7th inst., and over 200 people were present. The greatest excitement prevailed and Mrs Forsyth entertained the gathering royally. In three evening the fiddles supplied music to which the throng tripped the light fantastic, and the dance was greatly enjoyed by all. Peter framed the timber himself and cannot be too highly praised for the work. The stonework is also a model of masonary. But, like everything else, accidents will occur, and while driving three barrels of dishes from the store the barrel that contained the plates fell off the rig and, strange to say, nearly all of them were smashed.

EAST GARAFRAXA COUNCIL.

Council Room, Aug. 1st, 1891.

Council met to-day according to adjournment of May 30th. Members all present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted. A by-law was passed prohibiting the taxing of dogs. By-laws were also passed to enable the reeve and treasurer to borrow money in advance of the assessment, and for the levying of county, township and other rates.

Turner—D. Carroll—That the sum of twenty-five dollars be paid to W. H. Hunter for expenses going to Ottawa on refund of C. V. R. bonus, and the reeve give his order for the same. Carried.

Simpson—D. Carroll—That the commissioners be each paid the sum of ten dollars as part pay for their services, and the reeve give his order for the same. Carried.

Turner—T Carroll—That the clerk be instructed to notify all parties interested in drains No 4 and 5 to clear them out to their original depth, and that it be done not later than the first of October. Carried.

Simpson—D Carroll—That the clerk notify the reeve of Amaranth that if Mr Ferguson does not do his road job on town line immediately that we relet the said job. Carried.

T Carroll—Simpson—That the collector be instructed to have all taxes collected by the fifteenth of December. Carried.

Simpson—Turner—that on the order of the reeve the following accounts be paid:—P Meany, printing financial statement, $6; publishing by-law in SUN and printing the same on sheets, $3; C. J. Wheelock, surveying road between 15th and 16th concessions $25; survey and map of the village of Orton $25; Robt Cooper, for gravel, $17; Div Register D. B & M., $5; Rowell & Hutchison, blank forms, $5; S Depew, repairing road scraper, $1; treasurer for Government statement, $10; A. Redmond, cedar for culvert, $3; W. Hunter, for gravel, 84 cents. Carried.

Turner—Simpson—That the township solicitor be instructed to prepare a by-law empowering the council to enter upon private property and take material for repairing the roads. Carried.

D. Carroll—Simpson—That this council do now adjourn to meet at Monville, Aug. 5th, at the hour of eight o'clock p. m. Carried.

JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

Council Room, Aug. 5th.

Council met this evening according to adjournment. Members all present except D. Carroll. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

Simpson—Turner—That leave be given to introduce a by-law to provide for procuring materials for constructing or repairing highways. Carried.

Council went into committee of the whole and rose, and on motion of Messrs T. Carroll and Simpson, it was read a third time and passed.

Simpson—T. Carroll—That Simpson, Turner, and the mover be a deputation to examine west-half, lots 4 and 5, con 13, for gravel for repairing the roads. Carried.

Simpson—Turner—That this council do now adjourn to meet at the call of the reeve. Carried.

JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

HIS ARM GROUND OFF

DAVID STILL OF MONO GETS HIS ARM MANGLED IN THE

Cylinder of a Separator

IF BLOOD-POISONING OR ERYSIPELAS DO NOT SET IN THE INJURED MAN WILL RECOVER.

At 4 30 o'clock yesterday afternoon David Still, son of Councillor David Still of Mono, met with a terrible accident and one that he will remember until his dying day. The young man, who is about 22 years of age, was in town in the morning and no one would have imagined that such a terrible accident would have overtaken him before the world made another revolution. The accident occured thus: A fellow named Sherra, a cousin of young Still, had some business to transact with James Coulter, who owns a threshing machine and was engaged threshing at Wm Woodland's, 2nd line, Mono. The former was about to start for where Mr. Coulter was working and Still volunteered to accompany him. As soon as they arrived at Mr. Woodland's nothing would satisfy young Still unless he "fed" the machine. The young man is quite familiar with all kinds of machinery and especially threshing machines, and the thought of danger never once crossed his mind. His companion and the other men prevailed upon the unfortunate young man to stay away from the machine, but to no effect. He began to "feed" the thresher and was only working a few minutes when he reached his right hand in a little too far and his arm was drawn between the steel toothed cylinders, which tore and mangled it in a shocking manner. The machine almost stopped and the unfortunate fellow managed to get his arm out of the cylinders. He didn't say a word, but simply looked at the mangled limb and after a few moments asked to be taken to a doctor. Mr. Pierson drove him to town as rapidly as possible. After the young man had been placed under the influence of ether a thorough examination was made and it was found necessary to amputate the mangled limb an inch or two below the elbow. As soon as the operation was completed he was removed to the Dufferin house, where he now lies. This morning young Still was as well as could be expected, and if blood poisoning or erysipelas does not set in he will recover. The young man refered to above was a jolly, rollicking lad and his great affliction is sincerely regretted by his many friends.

BOWLING GREEN.

HARVEST HO!—Harvesting has commenced in real earnest and the farmers are having a very lively time of it. The crops are excellent and the agriculturists will be busy for the next three weeks.

TYPHOID FEVER.—Typhoid fever has made its appearance in this section and Mr Arthur Rounding has been ill with it for the past two weeks. Dr. Lewis of Orangeville is attending him and we hope to see him around again in a few weeks.

THE STORM.—A terrific thunder and windstorm passed over this section of the country on Saturday night and Sunday doing considerable damage to the crops. In some fields the grain is lying flat on the ground, which will make it more difficult to cut.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.—When the storm was at its height on Saturday night Mr. John Whaley had a valuable young mare killed by lightning. The animal was pasturing in the field when the fatal shock came. This loss will fall heavy on Mr. W. as the mare was an extra good one.

LITTLE LOCALS.—News is very scarce around here at present, but what's the matter with Tarbert?...Small boys and old women flock to the huckleberry marsh these days, but they must get disappointed as they return very soon.....The Bowling Green Harmonic band played some very nice selections at a concert at Laurel on Monday night.....Our pedagogue will soon return again.

MONO COUNCIL.

Council met on the 31st day of July pursuant to adjournment. The Reeve in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid: William Babe, expended on 5th line, lot No. 9, $25; Alexander Brimmer, graveling Prince of Wales road, $100; Alexander Brimmer, timber and culvert, $10; Joseph Lidsay, repairing 1st line E. H. S., $17.50; George Moffatt, culvert on Hockley road, $5.50; William Lindsay, repairing Centre road, $26; John Sherra, repairing 1st line E. H. St., lot 14, $10; William Wilson, repairing 6th line, lot 21, $27; H Young, repairing road scrapers, $1 40; Thomas White, lumber for Hockley road, $4 61; Joseph Foster, repairing line, lot 5, con. 1, $11 25; John Leighton, repairing Centre road, lot 10, $12; Thomas Baker, furnishing gravel, $7; R. F. West, surveying, $17 50; and on motion of Mr. Dynes, seconded by Mr. Still, the sum of twenty dollars was ordered to be paid to George Island, 1st Deputy reeve, for time and expenses incurred going to Ottawa re bonus to the Toronto Grey Bruce railway.

By-law No. 183, for the purpose of levying and raising the taxes to meet the liabilities of the township for the current year, was read the usual number of times, and on motion of Mr. Island, seconded by Mr Dynes, was ordered to pass, be engrossed by the clerk, and signed and sealed by the reeve.

Council adjourned to meet again on the first Friday in October at the hour of ten o'clock, a. m.

ANDREW HENRY, Clerk.

Much injury is done by the use of irritating, griping compounds taken as purgatives. In Ayer's Pills the patient has a mild but effective cathartic, that can be confidently recommended alike for the most delicate patients as well as the most robust.

Quite a sensation was caused in the Government Printing Bureau, Ottawa, Friday morning about 10 o'clock, by the arrest of Alfred Barrette a messenger in the bureau. Barrette is a young man about 21 years of age and well dressed. The charge against him was for forging on a couple of checks the name of Mr. J. C. Gagnon of York street. After his arrest he admitted being guilty of the forgery.

REGULAR FIELD-DAY!

P. M. Patullo's Justice-Mill Will Have a Big Grist To-Morrow.

LONG LIST OF DOG-BYLAW OFFENDERS—A STABBING AFFRAY—HE WHIPPED A BOY.

Police Magistrate Patullo will have a big afternoon's work to-morrow if the program, as at present arranged, is carried out. In fact there has never been so many cases up in the police court before to be decided in a single afternoon. It will be a regular field-day and the review will commence precisely at 2 o'clock. As no admission fee is charged everybody is cordially invited to attend. A few of the principal cases are enumerated below.

ALL ABOUT THE DOGS.

Last week "A Victim" wrote a rather sarcastic letter to THE SUN about the half hearted manner in which Ketchum's great dog by law was being enforced. The "Victim's" communication seems to have stirred the proper authorities to action and as a result ten summons have been issued against persons who possess or harbor tagless curs. We all know, because Goldsmith told us, that the dog is the only animal which will leave his own kind voluntarily to follow man, but in this town the dog's peculiar turn of mind generally costs man $1 per year for a brass tag. And if man neglects—forgets, of course—to purchase the aforesaid brass tag he is liable to be yanked up before Cadi Pattullo, and that gentleman of Oriental title generally taxes the forgetful citizen the price of two or three tags. The following is a list of the forgetful denizens who will line up before the P. M.: Isaac Davies, Andy Anderson, Bob. Ferns, Jno. Perdue, H Patterson, Jos. Smith, Jno. Irving, Chas. Cotten, Jas. Bennett and F. C. Stewart.

HE WHIPPED THE BOY.

Mrs Grace Joll dropped around to the police-magistrate's headquarters and laid an information against Robert Corbit for whipping her twelve year-old son. Corbit drives one of Joe Lathwell's drays and we surmise the "kid" was hanging on when the driver brought the whip into play. The alleged offence took place yesterday morning and latter in the day young Joll was stabbed in the arm by a companion. Corbit is the man who speaks so loud at the Salvation Army's open air meetings.

IS IT PERJURY?

Two Melancthon men will also figure in the police court circles. A farmer named Watson has another farmer, who goes by the name of Lusty, up for perjury, which is supposed to have been committed a year or two ago. Some regard this as a chronic case and it will probably go no farther than the police court.

THE EARLY CLOSING BY LAW.

The early closing by law has been in force in this town for three years and up to date nobody has been prosecuted for its contravention. But this state of things will be knocked silly, so to speak, when to-morrow afternoon passes away. Mr. S. Donner, the east Broadway grocer, has been summoned for selling goods after 6 o'clock, p. m. If the police magistrate's decision goes against him Mr. Donner says he will carry the case to a higher court, and more than one are of the opinion that the by-law will be "busted."

A STABBING AFFRAY!

Yesterday afternoon two young boys, George Joll and Walter Riddell, became mixed up in a quarrel and before the battle ended Joll received an ugly stab in the fleshy part of the right arm. The injury was inflicted with a jack knife, but whether it was accidental or intentional we are not in a position to say. Mrs. Joll, the boy's mother, proceeded to the police court and swore out a summons against young Ridell. This is the same boy who was whipped by a dray driver in the morning.

THEY'VE PASSED.

And Can Now go to the High School—Grand Valley and Shelburne Lists Not Received.

The education department examiners have at last got through with their work, and after patiently waiting several weeks THE SUN is able to publish a list of those who succeeded in passing the last entrance examination at Orangeville, the Shelburne and Grand Valley list not having been received by P S I. Gordon. The following are the names, arranged in alphabetical order:

CARDWELL.

BRIEF ITEMS.—Harvesting is in full blast....A Cardwell picnic party explored Mono caves last Saturday. If the Rangers are not dead they must be sleeping—which?

PERSONAL.—Miss C. Burt is visiting friends at Toronto....Revs. Chillcott and Eastman, Toronto, Rev. G. B. Morley and family, Tullamore, the Misses McKim and Mr. E. McKim, Shelburne, were visiting at Cardwell last week.

THE SICK LIST.—Rev F. Burt is indisposed and is confined to his room at the parsonage...Mrs. R. Jackson is suffering from bronchitis, but we hope she will soon recover....Mr. Joseph Leighton is suffering from the effects of a kick from a horse which he received several days ago....Harry Culp is down with typhoid fever.

AN ACCIDENT.—Rev. Mr. Burt loaned a horse some days ago to a pretty little Toronto dude, who wore a white cap, to take a short drive. The horse came back rather badly mangled and Dr. Riddell of Orangeville was called in and prescribed, and pronounced the case a bad one, we understand. It is supposed a bone is broken in that part of the anatomy near to the perineum. We hope the Torontonian learned a lesson or two by experience during his sojourn here. Call again, stranger.

TORONTO GOSSIP.

INTERESTING CITY NEWS BY THE SUN'S FAIR CORRESPONDENT.

If, during these summer days, when visiting the city, you ever become weary of the stone pavements, and the endless succession of red and white creations composed of stone or brick, and long for soft sward and pastures fresh, I should advise you to board a Yonge street car, going north. If you get an open car so much the better. When you have passed Bloor street and gone on a little Yonge street means more and more the appearance of the principal throughfare of a town than that of a city, but as the car takes you rapidly along you soon leave behind all trace of either city or town, and see on one side, bare, dusty brick fields, and on the other the deep ravines and beautiful woods of Rosedale. At the corner of MacPherson Avenue is Chestnut Park, the residence of Sir David MacPherson, and through the open gates you can discern the long perspective of green lawn, brilliant flower-beds, and gravel walks, all well shaded by tall plumy chestnut trees, which give the park its name. Soon you come to the North Toronto station, where you must dismount, for here the car turns. Now, if you wish to visit one of the prettiest spots in all Toronto, you will walk up the gently sloping hill, straight ahead, and then about a quarter of a mile on the level. Now, you turn east, down a wide, green street, destitute, however, of houses for, happily, Toronto enterprise has not resoled this far as yet, and the orchard on the south side, with long grass and old, old trees, whose wide-stretching branches form a circle of shadow all the day long, is still there. Now you pass through the gates at the end of the street and, looking up at the sign-board, discern you are in the Reservoir Park. Right before you, as you enter, magnificent flower-beds of every color, form and plume, and further on something that every one stops to look at, viz., a sun-dial made of flowers, and if it is a bright day, as I hope it will be when you go, you will be able to make a pretty good guess at the time. Now you mount the half a dozen steps up the artifical hill and then bursts upon you in sparkling freshness the reservoir, the large broad basin of blue, blue water, reflecting all the changing beauty of the sky. It is a delightful constitutional to walk around it, and you catch a fine bird's eye view of the city, which seems away down in a valley from this height. Now, if you wish to explore farther you must go down the endless uneven steps into the ravine, where you find the most charming combination of nature and art. Here you see a clump of wood-violets, growing in all their native simplicity, and here a cultivated exotic. Sword ferns and maiden hair, whose roots have never been disturbed, grow side by side with red and white geraniums. The great charm of the place is the intermingling of nature's beauty with the gardener's choicest handiwork, and every part well repays a visit.

St. Michael's Cathedral, on the corner of Church and Shuter streets, has been lately much enlarged and beautified, and is now one of the grandest structures in the city. You seem to be coming into a world of peace, as the heavy doors close noiselessly behind you, and enter into the vast, quiet solemnity of the church, where the light enters in a softened radiance through the stained glass windows; while here and there a bending figure kneels in prayerful, reverent adoration. The congregation of the large Methodist church, the Metropolitan on the opposite side of the road, are also making some alterations in their edifice, which is already the largest and most successful Methodist church in the Dominion. All the services are now held in the school room.

This is the season for flowers, both natural and imitation. In gardens, hats, bonnets and toques, they may be seen in richest luxurance, and the only way to tell the difference between the artifical and the true article, is that the former bloom in unfading splendor, all summer long. The most popular flowers for millinery this season, in Toronto, seem to be delicately tinted wild roses, pink and yellow; brilliant red poppies, daisies and forget me nots; also roses, wall flowers and lilacs from pale mauve to deepest purple, together with many grasses, long stems and sprays. Some parasols that I have seen shading fair pedestrians this summer weather, have a wreath of faded flowers edging them, and are crowned on the top by a garland of flowers.

I saw impudence personified the other day, while I was waiting for a car, in the person of a newsboy, who sauntered up with a paper cigar in his mouth, after a young swell, was puffing away languidly at a cigarette, and said: "Say, old chappie, give us a light, will you?"

* * *

During the Summer months Toronto is well patronized by American visitors, who come over on the morning boats to spend a few hours in the city. Any day of the week you may go down town and see any number of them, walking up and down King street, shopping and investigating. Some of them are very pretty and stylish, and others—well, they are not. Yesterday I saw a charming pair, whom I looked at with delight. One was a young girl, with bright hair, and a face like a wild rose. She wore a sweetly pretty bonnet, literally covered with forget me nots, whose color just matched her eyes. Her gown was of some soft, white clinging material, made simply, but so prettily. She reminded me of a bright May morning, and I involuntarily smiled as I looked at her, as one is apt to do at sweet, rounded dainty things. The other was much taller and darker, and made an excellent foil for her fair companion. She wore one of those linen, blouse shirts, which are so fashionable this summer, a pale blue silk tie, and a white flannel blazer. Her little white sailor hat was worn with a jaunty grace, and as I looked after them both I was sorry to think that the evening boat would soon carry them across the border again.

AMARANTH COUNCIL.

Laurel, August 1st, 1891.

The Amaranth Council met at the Town Hall, Laurel, pursuant to adjournment. All the members present. The Reeve in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted.

Moved by E Hamilton, seconded by J. A. Turner, that Wm. Stack be paid the sum of $7.75 cents for building two culverts over drain 30, on 5th concession line, and 25 side line and the Reeve do issue his order for the payment of the same. Carried.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by W. Johnston, that the following accounts be paid by order on the Treasurer:—Wm. Seymour, clearing and turnpiking, opposite lot 29, concession 7, $27.00; Wm. Manly digging across 7th line, lot 29, and building culvert over the same, $7.00. Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by E Hamilton, that the Clerk notify Mr. Hector McVanel to cause drain 27 to be completed on or before the 15th of August, or the council will take legal proceedings to enforce the conditions of the bond given for the fulfilment of the same. Carried.

Moved by J. A. Turner, seconded by E. Hamilton, that John Banks be paid the sum of 50 cents, for burying sheep found dead on the highway.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by J. A. Turner, that leave be given to introduce a By-law to raise money in advance of the assessment and that it be read a first and second time. Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that leave be given to introduce a By-law to levy rates for the current year and that it be read a first and second time. Carried.

Moved by J. Dudgeon, seconded by W. Johnston, that the clerk obtain the opinion of the Minister of Education on Section 109 of the Public School Act, asking if the council should levy $200 by general rate when there are two schools in one section, one being known as a branch. Carried.

Moved by E Hamilton, seconded by J. A. Turner, that we go into a committee of the whole on By-law 240, to fill up blanks, W. Johnston in the chair. Carried.

Moved by R. Wansbrough, seconded by E. Hamilton, that By-law No. 240, as filled up in the committee of the whole, be read a third time, passed, signed, sealed and engrossed in the By-law book. Carried.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by W. Johnston, that we rescind the motion granting aid to school sections 8 and 11 on account of school law being changed and making it compulsory to raise $100 for each school by general rate. Carried.

Moved by J. A. Turner, seconded by E. Hamilton, the By-law No 241 be read a third time, passed, signed, sealed and engrossed in the By-law book. Carried.

The council then adjourned to meet again on Saturday, Sept. 26th, at the usual hour.

M. G. VANCOR, Clerk.

The Kent county council will request the county judge to inquire into the manner in which ex-treasurer Arnold carried on the affairs of his office and find if possible where the money went to. There are some wild rumors afloat that the shortage—some $9,000—was used in a recent election. The council have solicited the judge to institute an inquiry.—London Free Press.

THE BEST FAMILY PILL IN USE

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS

Keep the Works in good order.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., January 15, 1890.
W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.
DEAR SIR,—Your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" are the best regulator for the system that humanity can use. Life is in the time piece: frail and delicate are many of its works. A tiny particle of foreign substance adheres to the smallest wheel in the work, and what is the result?—at first, only a slight disturbance is perceptible in its time-keeping, but soon you see the obstruction grows, the irregularity increases, greater, until at last, what could have been rectified with little trouble, in the beginning, will need tenfold more care to thoroughly cleansing the entire works. So it is in human life—a slight derangement in the bowels, if neglected, it grows and increases, imperceptibly at first, then rapidly, until what could, in the beginning, have been cured with little trouble, becomes almost fatal. To prevent this, I advise all to purify their system frequently, by the use of Morse's Pills, a most precious vigor and vitality.
Yours sincerely,
H. F. ARNOLD.

[illegible]ANT ACCIDENTS.—In glancing over [illegible] SUN's columns this week the reader [illegible] be astonished at the great number of accidents that have unfortunately taken place around here. Accidents [illegible] and fires seems to go in threes, and when one occurs the prediction of two more is generally fulfilled.

KICKED BY A HORSE.—On day last [illegible]k James White, son of Mr. Thos. [illegible]tte of Caledon, was kicked on the [illegible] by a horse which he was engaged [illegible] flies off the animal. The [illegible]nd was very painful and it will be [illegible]veral days before Mr. White can re[illegible] complete use of the injured [illegible]mber.

[illegible] PIT.—On Saturday afternoon an accident occurred at the town gravel pit which, fortunately, was not attended with serious results. John Huston one of the workmen, was [illegible] under the bank when it caved in, partially burrying him. He was dug out by several other workmen and was not much the worse of the accident.

[illegible]EMEREAL.—Mr. Robert Rasfaub of the Garden house was married to Miss Janet Boothe of Gravenhurst on Wednesday, July 29. The ceremony was performed at the Presbyterian manse, Gravenhurst, by Rev. Peter Sinclair in the presence of a few intimate friends of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Rasfaub have THE SUN's best wishes for their future happiness.

HORSES KILLED BY LIGHTNING.—The great storm that passed over this part of Ontario last Sunday did more or less damage everywhere it struck. Down in the township of Albion James Keaney, a farmer who lives on lot 23 3rd concession, had two horses killed by lightning. The animals were standing in a field when the fatal bolt struck them.

BORN, BOUND, BURIED.—During the month of July only 2 births, 1 marriage and 4 deaths were registered at the town clerk's office. A great many people neglect to register a birth, marriage or death that has occurred in their families although the penalty for neglecting to do so is extremely heavy. Not one quarter of the people in Orangeville obey the law.

[illegible] charge against Calvin [illegible] for peddling without a license which was reported in THE SUN last week, again occupied the magistrate's attention on Saturday morning. The P. M. imposed a fine of $10 and costs, but gave Mr. McMillan, who is acting for the defendant, a few days in which to appeal the case.

AN ERROR.—The fire hall is progressing nicely. The old wall has been left in front of the building. Dissatisfaction is general at this, the feeling is against spoiling a job for the sake of $100.—Hillsburg Beazer. This paragraph appeared in the Orangeville news of the above paper, but our Hillsburg contrere has been misinformed. The fire hall, when finished, will be an entirely new building, walls and every thing else.

THREW UP THE SPONGE.—People who are in the habit of letting their cows run within half a mile of the railway track can laugh at the C. P. R.—for a time at least—as the big Bird has ceased to fly. About a month ago Thomas Bird was appointed to the newly created office of cow detective for the Canada Pacific railway, but after holding the position for one calendar month he has thrown up the job. Up to date nobody has been appointed to the vacant office.

BURNT HIS FOOT.—One day last week a young son of Alex Darrah, South ward, was crossing a field in which stumps had been burning when he met with a painful accident. The fire ignited the dry grass and swept across the field. The boy was in his barefeet and did not observe the smouldering grass until he was in the midst of it, and before he could get out of harm's way his foot was badly burned. While going home the pain became so intense that the young lad bathed his foot in the creek and, as a result, he suffered greatly for several days.

AN ANNOYING MISTAKE.—At the Select Knights' excursion to Niagara, which took place last week, it was advertised that the tickets would be good for two days and on that understanding quite a number remained over. When they boarded the train the following day the conductor demanded full fare and no amount of explanation would convince him that the tickets were good for two days. The railway authorities telegraphed the conductor to accept the tickets, as a mistake had been made in printing the tickets "good for one day." It was the railway's mistake, not the Select Knights'.

HOW TO STICK STAMPS.—The post office department makes a simple but practical suggestion to the public relative to the complaints that postage stamps will not adhere to letters and packages. Complaints are made that the stamps have not sufficient mucilage upon them, but it is suspected that too much is taken off in the process of wetting them. It is, therefore suggested by the departmental officials that, instead of the stamps being moistened, the envelopes or packages be wetted and the stamps then affixed. It is thought all cause of complaint will be removed if this plan be followed.

PRESENTATION.—A very pleasant and appropriate presentation was made at St. Mark's church on Tuesday evening when Rev. A. Henderson, the esteemed pastor, was presented with a private communion set on behalf of the congregation. Rev. G. H. Webb, pastor of St. Bythias church, Toronto, formerly of Caldwell, made the presentation. The communion set is composed of solid sterling silver and was made at Hall's. It was used for the first time at the celebration of communion during the service which followed the presentation. On the case which holds the set are engraved the words: "Presented to St. Mark's church by the congregation." The service cost $45, which was collected by Mrs. Webb, mother of Rev. G. H. Webb.

TERRIFIC STORM.—Early last Sunday morning many of our citizens were suddenly awakened from their peaceful slumbers by a terrific noise, and more than one thought their houses were tumbling down. It was only a great rain storm, however, and they soon dosed off again. But shortly after 10 o'clock the same morning a more violent storm arose and the wind and rain were something terrific. Service was being conducted in all the town churches, but the devoted parsons did not discontinue their sermons on account of the storm. Not a great deal of damage was done in Orangeville, although a great many trees were bereft of a portion of their limbs. Some of the iron cresting which decorated the top of the McKim block on east Broadway was blown off, but luckily the street was deserted at the time.

GET THERE EARLY.—The following item, which is taken from the Shelburne Free Press, applies to this section of the country as well as up north: The habit of leaving off the sending in of copy for change of advertisement until the eleventh hour, and often a little later, is quite common, and by no means pleasant to the staff. As a rule the bulk of the correspondence and nearly the whole of the advertising matter comes in the last day and a half before printing. Now it will be readily seen that when the majority of the week's work comes to hand the last two days, and frequently the last day, it is almost impossible to get it all in respectable shape for the paper that week. What we want is this: for advertisers to send in their change on Friday and Saturday when possible, and on Monday at latest, for the coming week's paper. Correspondents may occasionally send along a portion of their budget earlier, but they, wishing to secure the very latest news, cannot be expected to furnish their part before Tuesday's mail; they should, however, in all cases reach this office by Tuesday's mail.

FIFTY YEARS MARRIED.—Last Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Temple celebrated their golden wedding at their residence, West ward, and a happy time was spent by all present. Fifty long years ago their marriage was solemnized at Kelso, Berwickshire, Scotland, and during that half century the now aged couple were fortunate enough not to lose a member of the family. At this happy reunion all their children—six sons and daughters—except one, and thirty grandchildren came to offer congratulations, some of the latter coming all the way from Michigan. Owing to the absence of Mr. Temple's pastor, a special invitation was extended to Rev. J. L. Gilmour and that gentleman was present. During the evening the Citizens' band put in an appearance and played several appropriate selections. Mr. Temple has reached the allotted three score and ten years, but is as smart and supple as a man of forty. His faithful wife is two years his senior. The following is a few of the many presents received. Mrs. Mickle, two china cups and saucers; Mrs. Sutherland, cream pitcher; Mrs. MacGowan, fruit dish; Mr. MacAdams tobacco tray. The members of the family presented their parents with two pairs of gold-rimmed spectacles, gold brooch hand chain and two handsome easy-chairs. THE SUN wishes the happy couple many more years of wedded life.

FELL FIFTY FEET!

JAMES KELLS' TERRIBLE TUMBLE FROM A BARN.

Internal Injuries Cause His Death After 6 Hours' Suffering.

HE SLIPPED AND FELL.

THE FUNERAL TAKES PLACE AT 3 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON.

Among the numerous accidents that have occurred in this vicinity during the past few days there was none more appalling than that which took place on the farm of Mr. Jacob Cunnington, lot 26, concession 2, Caledon, yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Cunnington is building a large barn and James Kells, an unmarried man 24 years of age, was engaged working on the roof when he stepped on a block of wood and lost his balance, falling to the ground, a distance of over fifty feet. No person saw the unfortunate young fellow fall, but it is supposed he lit on his left side, fracturing his arm and bruising his shoulder and face. As soon as the accident was discovered Kells was carried to the house and made as comfortable as possible. With all haste a messenger was dispatched to Orangeville for a doctor, who soon arrived on the scene, but a glance was sufficient to tell him that no earthly help could save poor Kells' life. His internal injuries were such that death was only a matter of a few hours. The doctor, however, did his utmost to prolong the unfortunate man's life, but he breathed his last at 5 30 o'clock in the afternoon, just six hours and-a-half after the deplorable accident occurred. Mrs. Kells, the dead man's mother, is at present at Penetang, and she has been telegraphed for. The remains will be interred in the English church burying ground, 7th line, Mono, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against these spurious imitations, and are asked to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c. a box) by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

petulant, girl, in whose nature there was no submission, no humility? Then how utterly was her spirit broken down by remorse and guilt! It was so strange to hear humble accents from her lips, that Sir Hilton was inexpressibly touched, and for the first time the shadow of forgiveness came upon his soul, covering her crime and blotting it with tears. He understood that she had suffered, before she could thus humble herself. But not so Mrs. Maristowe. At the sound of Olive's voice, at the sight of her face, she shrunk, and shivered and shuddered, folding herself up in her large shawl, and hiding her eyes with her hands.

"Will no one save me from this horror?" she cried. "Will no one protect me? Am I obliged to bear the torture of this girl's presence? Send her away, she is killing me! Where is John? He is the only one of this family who has any heart or any honor."

Her excitement, her feebleness, her tears, but, above all, her great grief, which rendered her an object of reverence, stifled the words of resentment [illegible] Trewavas' lips. It was [illegible] quick as thought, replied [illegible] fixing her eyes on her [illegible] smile.

"[illegible] are John by sending for him, [illegible]" "Leave him in peace, [illegible] trouble any one of [illegible] passion, and anger, and jealousy, [illegible] wrought an evil work among us—a work that will take him for its next victim. I go, Mrs. Maristowe. I will not grieve you by my presence. Do not proclaim to the world that 'tis I have driven you from this house. No! I leave it before you. Farewell, Lady Trewavas; I dare not say aunt now. There have been bitter words between you and me, during the years I have found a home here. The fault was more mine than yours."

Olive turned her face away; she did not ask forgiveness; perhaps she felt that, with Eleanor's mother standing by, her aunt could scarcely accord her pardon—"Hypocrite!" murmured Mrs. Maristowe, bitterly.

Olive heard her, and for one moment the flash in her eyes looked dangerous, then she smiled sadly.

"Hypocrite, if you will," she said, "if it be hypocrisy to bear and be silent."

Mrs. Maristowe was speechless from indignant astonishment. What! was an assassin to play the martyr, and take her part from her before her eyes? Tears burst from her again, and she sank down on her cushions sobbing. Then Olive spoke once more in a low voice.

"Mrs. Maristowe," said she, "take your posse of police with you when you go. Let them follow my steps, and leave Trewavas in peace. I am easily found. It is not my intention to escape."

She looked round the room half timidly, half proudly, but no eye glanced at her, no hand was held out to her, no voice bade her stay. Then a deadly whiteness crept coldly over her face, her lips began to tremble, her eyelids quivered; she groped blindly with her hand for the door, turned the lock softly, and passed out noiselessly as a shadow.

Sir Hilton knew that she was gone by the sudden emptiness, the chill that fell upon him. Yes, she was gone—gone for ever! and if she were guilty, it was love for him that made her so, and driven her forth from the face of men, an outcast. She was gone, and she had not uttered one word of farewell to him; she had not even glanced at him as she crept silently away.

"Lady Trewavas, I breathe more freely, that girl being gone," said Mrs. Maristowe. "I can bid you farewell more kindly now."

Yet, it was but coldly that the two women took each other's extended hands, and Lady Trewavas dropped restless by her side, as Mrs. Maristowe released it from her languid clasp. Then Sir Hilton offered that lady his arm, and, scarcely touching it with her fingers, she stepped from the window upon the terrace.

"Have no anxiety for me, Sir Hilton," she said, coldly. "Mr. Damerel meets me at the station, and I entrust my [illegible] to him with every reliance. This will be a terrible journey, but I shall survive it. I shall live to see justice overtake the murderer of my child. These are not times when rank can long protect crime."

With this last sting Mrs. Maristowe got into her carriage. When seated, she beckoned to the weeping Tamson, who stood with other servants around the laurels.

"Tamson," she said, in a low voice, "tell Mr. John Trewavas that the flowers he placed in the coffin are not touched, the white garland lies on Eleanor's bosom still. It shall be buried with her—I promise it."

One wave of the hand, and Mrs Maristowe drove away, the hearse containing the mortal remains of her daughter having already departed.

"So John has not dared confess it was Olive who placed the wreath on Eleanor's bosom," said Sir Hilton. "I heard her ask forgiveness. Did the white chaplet seem to her a crown, and emblem of pardon? And it will be buried with her. I wish Olive had wreathed a flower in the garland for me. There is no pardon for me, no flower from my hand resting on her. Pshaw! what does it matter? All this is folly. Heaven help me! Eleanor is dead; and Olive—what is she? My life and my house are left to me desolate!"

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

OBSERVE YOUR FINGER NAILS

Broad nails indicate a gentle, timid and bashful nature.

Pale or lead colored nails indicate melancholy people.

People with narrow nails are ambitious and quarrelsome.

Small nails indicate littleness of mind obstinacy and conceit.

Lovers of knowledge and liberal sentiment have round nails.

Choleric, martial men, delighting in war, have red and spotted nails.

Nails growing into the flesh at the points and sides indicate luxurious tastes.

SUNBEAMS.

The only objection to the self-made man is that in so many cases he has failed to put himself together so as to work noiselessly.

"The Eastern sages believe that there is a sign to each man's forehead that the angels may read," he whispered softly. "What is yours?" she answered. "To let!"

Nicolet Notes.

"I suffered continual pain from canker of the stomach and my face and body were almost covered with pimples. I tried Burdock Blood Bitters, the first dose occasioned slight pain but I soon found relief, and after taking 3 bottles I became completely cured. I think B B B the most powerful remedy known to science."—Stephen Edge, Nicolet, P Q

"I'm going to drop the study of Browning," said the Boston girl. "What for?" inquired the other horrified. "Well, here of late I sometimes imagine I understand what he means."

Baby Was Sick.

My baby was very sick with diarrhoea, and after everything else had failed I tried Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry; the first dose gave relief, and a perfect cure soon resulted."—Mrs. John Clark, Bloomfield, Ont.

Mrs. Bloobumper (indicating a passer by).—"That man is dressed to kill." Bloobumper (admiringly)—"What discernment you have, my dear! That is Dr. Paresis, out making professional calls."

"What I like about Cubleigh is that he gets drunk like a gentleman." "How is that?" "Never breaks less than a hundred dollars worth of any thing, you know."

Consult Your Neighbor.

Any one may find out just what Burdock Blood Bitters is and does by asking a neighbor who has tried it. It rarely fails in making a complete cure of dyspepsia constipation, sick headache, biliousness and diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

"Justice is the goddess of music, isn't she?" asked Blinkers. "No. What made you ask such a question?" "She is always supposed to be running the scales, you know."

Can Not Compete.

Miss Maud Grant, of Mountain, Ont., writes:—"I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for summer complaints and diarrhœa. There is nothing to compete with it as it succeeds even in the severest cases."

Immigrant!—At last I am in free America. A man can do pretty much as he pleases in this country, can't he? Native—Yes, unless he's married.

Huntsville Happenings.

"I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in my family and can highly recommend it for summer complaint, diarrhœa etc."—Mr. Geo. West, Huntsville, Ont.

Chicago Editor—Your poem, I fear, hardly suits us, madam. Your feet are wrong. Chicago Poetess—Sir!

Since Childhood's Days.

"I have been bothered with neuralgic pains in the head and face since childhood and have tried all possible remedies. A friend persuaded me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after having used it I obtained instant relief and thoroughly recommend it."—Miss Inglis, Bredenbury, Assa.

"This river is awful, Maud," said Mr. Nowwed. "I'm very sorry," returned the bride, "but tell cook to speak to the livery man about it."

FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMPOUND

BRONCHITIS

78 Lexington Ave., New York City, Sept. 19, 1891.

I have used the Flax-Seed Emulsion in several cases of Chronic Bronchitis, and the early stages of Phthisis, and have been well pleased with the results.
JAMES K. CROOK, M.D.

CONSUMPTION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 7th, 1892.

I have used your Flax-Seed Emulsion as adjunct to the relief and possibly the cure of all Lung, Bronchial and Nervous Affections, and a good general tonic in physical debility.
JOHN F. TALMAGE, M. D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

It is a certain and speedy cure for Cold in the Head and Catarrh in all its stages.

SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING.

Instant Relief, Permanent Cure, Failure Impossible.

Many so-called remedies are simply palliatives, and do not cure. Catarrh is a Local Disease, being caused by germs in the nasal passages, and should be treated as such. Nasal Balm is a specific for Catarrh, and should be used in preference to a snuff, powder or liquid. Nasal Balm is sold by all druggists, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price (50 cts. and $1.00) by addressing

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

The Safest

AND most powerful alterative is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old are alike benefited by its use. For the eruptive diseases peculiar to children nothing else is so effective as this medicine, while its agreeable flavor makes it easy to administer.

"My little boy had large scrofulous ulcers on his neck and throat from which he suffered terribly. Two physicians attended him, but he grew continually worse under their care, and everybody expected he would die. I had heard of the remarkable cures effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and decided to have my boy try it. Shortly after he began to take this medicine, the ulcers commenced healing, and, after using several bottles, he was entirely cured. He is now as healthy and strong as any boy of his age."—William F. Dougherty, Hampton, Va.

"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether. The child is livelier, its skin is fresher and its appetite better than we have observed for months."—Frank M. Griffin, Long Point, Texas.

"The formula of Ayer's Sarsaparilla presents, for chronic diseases of almost every kind, the best remedy known to the medical world."—D. M. Wilson, M.D., Wiggs, Arkansas.

Poetry.

SHE SIMPLY COULDN'T.

She could play and she could pray,
She could dance from night till day,
She could write the honest way,
So 'tis said;
She could skate and she could paint,
She could play the patient saint,
But she couldn't and she wouldn't
Make a bed.

She could walk eight miles a day
And play tennis charmingly,
Flirting in a saucy way,
Little sense!
She could drive and play base ball,
She could make a stylish call,
But she couldn't and she wouldn't
Clean a lamp.

She could swim and she could sew,
She could always have a beau,
And I'm sure we all know
That she was shy.
She could laugh and she could prance,
She could play a game of chance
But she couldn't and she wouldn't
Make a pie.

She could etch and write a book,
She could vanquish with a look;
She could win by hook or crook,
I confess;
She could scold and she could flout,
She could cry and she could pout,
But she couldn't and she wouldn't
Make a dress.

She could talk of church affairs,
But knew naught of household cares;
Still I'm sure that none compares
With sweet Nan;
Even if she couldn't bake
Bread and pies and angel cake,
She enraptured and she captured
A rich man!

OLIVE VARCOE

—OR—

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER XII.

Who can describe the ghastly quiet at Trewavas now that the excitement had died out of it, now the body of Eleanor Maristowe was borne away and the figure of Olive Varcoe had faded from all eyes? The house was empty and chill, and the echo of a footfall seemed unnatural, breaking on the ear with a sound inopportune and importunate. All life and laughter, song and merriment, had fled; memories alone haunted the rooms like ghosts, bringing reproaches and remorseful thoughts of the past, and of the dead.

Amid these Sir Hilton sat alone, busy with papers and accounts, on which he strove vainly to concentrate his mind. He was looking over the short arithmetic of Olive's little fortune, counting and recounting, as if in the hope that repetition would make the sum bigger. But there it stood, unalterable—a hundred here, two hundred or so there, adding up to the great total of eleven hundred pounds. To a man of Sir Hilton's wealth the pittance seemed beggary, and her coming battle for life pictured itself to him in scenes of agony or shame. But no, that could not, should not be, he was rich. She must accept a sufficient income from Lady Trewavas, and on this she might go abroad and, under a false name, live a life of obscurity, unknown and unmolested.

Thus ran Sir Hilton's thoughts; then he plunged into figures again, or hastily scrawled a line to his solicitors, requesting that a settlement of two hundred pounds a year should be made on Olive Varcoe, and paid to her quarterly. But, to pay her, the lawyers must know her address and her plans. Would she tell them? Yes, surely; she could not mean to separate herself entirely from Trewavas, and cut off all communication between herself and her family. But she was going to leave the village to-morrow; and unless she left some address, unless she told whither letters and remittances could be sent to her, how could he fulfil his plans of aid.

Sir Hilton drew a sheet of paper rapidly towards him, but as he dipped his pen in the ink his hand faltered. He thrust the pen and ink far from him, and went with rapid step to Lady Trewavas' room.

"Grandmother," said he, "I am very sorry to give you a painful task; but you must write to Olive," her name trembled on his tongue, and came from his lips gaspingly,—"and desire her to leave us her address, that matters of business may be arranged between us respecting her small fortune."

"She has done all that already. She sent me this note an hour ago," said Lady Trewavas, handing it to her grandson as she spoke. It contained only these few lines:

"Mr. Truscott, Truro, is my solicitor. He will arrange all necessary business with Sir Hilton Trewavas respecting my affairs. To him I shall entrust my future address; if, therefore, it should become necessary to communicate with me, you can do so through him. I confess it will be painful to me to hear from Trewavas. Spare me, then, if you can. I do not say this in the hope that you will have any anxiety for me but rather in the fear that you will sometimes feel troubled for—

"OLIVE VARCOE."

Sir Hilton laid the letter down and walked to the window. For a moment he could not utter a word, and when he had mastered his emotion his voice was husky and low.

"Grandmother you and I have been hard upon this girl," said he. "You, in your pride and jealousy, deeming a poor relation guilty of an immense sin in aspiring to a Trewavas, have put slights upon her that a worm would scarcely bear; and I have trampled on her heart as ruthlessly as though no gall and bitterness, no death and murder, followed from such things. Grandmother, we have made Olive Varcoe what she is; I ask you what we can do for her now?"

Lady Trewavas was not a woman to deny her deeds, or to whine over them. "My opinions are unchanged by these events, Hilton," she said, proudly. "Eleanor Maristowe was a fitting wife for a Trewavas. Olive Varcoe was not. Her father's blood is hers; a sinful, wild blood it was. If I beat her spirit to a galling yoke in this house, I did it advisedly. It was presumption to think the unstained line of Trewavas could mingle with a Varcoe. She merited that I should lower her into her proper place. What we can do for her now, Hilton, is another question, and one that should be answered generously. We must put her above want, of course."

"It must be done in your name, said her grandson. "She would not accept money from me."

"She would do right to refuse it from you," returned Lady Trewavas. "Let it be done in my name, and from my means; there can be no objection then."

At this moment a servant came to the door, and said:

"A gentleman, sir, who desired me to give you this card, requests to see you."

On the card was written the name of Mr. Heriot. Sir Hilton went hurriedly to receive him.

"I don't often interfere in my neighbor's affairs," said Mr. Heriot, rising as the Baronet entered; "but this is an exceptional case, and I will not apologize now for disturbing you, almost as late as you disturbed me a night or two ago."

The two men had not shaken hands but in his agitation Sir Hilton took no note of the omission.

"What has happened?" he asked, abruptly thrusting aside all ceremony like a feather.

"Two hours ago a bumpkin brought me this letter," replied Mr. Heriot. "I resolved that I would not sleep till you had seen it."

The letter, written on coarse blue paper, ran thus:

"HONORED SIR:

"I know Sir Hilton Trewavas has been to you for advice. Will you tell him to get Miss V. safe out of the country this night? To-morrow will be too late. She will be apprehended in the morning on a charge of murder, by Sir Anthony Rookeby, and if Sir H. T. permits this to happen, he will repent bitterly all his life long. Sir, I am one who does not like to see the innocent suffer for the guilty; and although I have no proof, I have my thoughts, and I can keep these dark, when I see them as should most help Miss V. standing aloof from her. I overheard most of the talk to-day at the station between Sir A. and Mrs. M., therefore you may be sure my information is correct. He must not think Sir A. R. will let Miss Vias V. slip through as the coroner has done. Money and trouble won't stop him when he has a spite in hand.

From yours respectfully,
A LOOKER-ON."

"You perceive," said Mr. Heriot, "that others besides me have doubts respecting your cousin's capability for murder?"

The caustic tone of his voice, the increased coldness of his manner, might have struck Sir Hilton as any other time; but now, in his excitement it passed unnoticed. He even felt towards him a certain degree of warmth and gratitude, because of his belief in Olive's innocence.

"It is easy enough in this country to get a suspected person out of the way," continued Mr. Heriot. "Perhaps you have already followed my counsel, and conveyed your cousin to some safe refuge?"

"No," replied Sir Hilton, "she still refuses my help. She quitted this house this afternoon, and she is now in the village."

A yellower shade passed over the dried countenance of Mr. Heriot.

"You take it coolly, Sir Hilton," said he. "Is it your pleasure to gratify the hate of this venomous magistrate, by giving him a victim to tear to pieces?"

Mr. Heriot was not often indignant now, since he was no longer paid for it; nevertheless, there was a touch of indignation at this moment in the tones of his clear voice. Sir Hilton heard him with astonishment. He had expected the world's condemnation for screening Olive, but to be rebuked for abandoning her, startled him.

"I do not forsake her," he cried; "it is she who forsakes me. She will not let me save her. I have kept a beat off thousand for three days in vain."

The tone of pique in which he spoke surprised Mr. Heriot in his turn.

"I would advise you to go and try her again," he remarked, dryly. "Does your boat still wait?"

"Yes," replied Sir Hilton. "Can you stay here till I return? I will go at once. I will but speak a moment to my brother first. The agitation of the last few days has laid him on a sick bed."

"Then why bother him?" asked Mr. Heriot.

"Oh, his head is clear, and he will advise me how to persuade Olive," replied Sir Hilton. "He has a very patient, calm, nature; a nature for which she has a wonderful respect, being herself passionate; a word from him will influence her more than any intensity of mine."

"Then it is a pity he can't go instead of you," observed Mr. Heriot.

The old dried man's tone was more caustic than ever, but Sir Hilton did not stay to reply to him. He took the key of the low arched door from the drawer of the table, and in a moment his hurried step was heard ascending the spiral stairs.

As Sir Hilton approached his brother's bed, and looked down upon his pale, weary face, he read in every haggard line how great the love was which could cause such suffering. It was not without a pang of remorse and shame that he remarked the change in features once so calm and placid. The calmness was gone; the eyes were wild and worn; the cheeks flushed, the lips dry; the whole body restless, as though swaying to and fro in some great agony.

"John, I have something to tell you; can you bear to hear it?" asked Sir Hilton, in his kindest voice.

"I can bear anything. There is nothing can happen to me worse than has come already," said John, closing his eyes wearily.

Then, in a few words, Sir Hilton told of Mr. Heriot's visit, and of Sir Anthony's resolve to arrest Olive; he related also his own plan for her escape; and, lastly, he asked how he should induce her to listen to him.

"Try every argument you have in store," replied his brother; "and, lastly, if they fail, tell her that, if she will not let you save her, then I must and will."

"Is that all?" asked Sir Hilton, in a disappointed tone. "If she does not listen to me, will she heed you, John?"

The sick man sighed heavily, and turned upon his side, hiding his face from his brother.

"Then I will write her, if you like," he said. "Give me my desk."

He wrote a few words with a nervous hand, his face flushing painfully with the effort; and when he threw down the pen he fell back on his pillow with eyes unnaturally fixed and haggard.

"My dear John, I fear you are worse than you think yourself," said Sir Hilton. "Let me send Dr. Burton to you."

"No—the sight of medicine and doctors is hateful to me," replied John. "Seal that letter, Hilton, and promise me you will not give her save as a last resource. I have written feverishly, so do not frighten Olive with my hot words, unless her obstinacy renders it necessary. Bring the letter back to me, if you spare her the pain of reading it. Give me your word for that, Hilton, before you go."

His rapid utterance, his fevered aspect, impressed his brother painfully. He gave the required word, and was quitting the room when John called him back.

"There is brandy in that flask," said he "Give me some, Hilton, before you leave me."

"My dear fellow, you must not have brandy!" exclaimed Sir Hilton.

"Then I shall take something worse, Hilton," said John—"I shall try opium. I must sleep or I shall go mad!"

"And will brandy make you sleep!" demanded Sir Hilton.

"Lately it has, when nothing else would," replied John. "If it give me sleep, I would take it, if it were poison."

Sir Hilton poured out the brandy, and held it to his lips.

"Did the girl Tamsin give you Mrs. Maristowe's message?" he asked.

At the question John fell back on the pillow, ghastly white.

"You have murdered my sleep now," he said. "The name of Maristowe is written on my brain. Hilton, is it true you saw Eleanor on the cliff that day? She should haunt me—not you! I loved her best. Yes Olive's wreath is in the coffin. Poor Olive! I dared not strew a flower on her bosom. She said she hated me. Why are you lingering here?" he added, passionately; "there is scarcely time to get Olive safely away. She will comfort you when I am gone. Hilton. I do not think I shall trouble you long."

He covered his his face as if to sleep, and Sir Hilton, on his way out, stopped to speak to Lady Trewavas, and my that John's head was a little touched by fever and grief.

* * * * *

There was a small parlor in the "Trewavas Arms," with a sanded floor, whitewashed walls, and honeysuckle-covered lattice. One large trunk, containing all Olive's wardrobe, rested in a corner, and she herself sat by the window, with eyes fixed anxiously on the quiet street, upon which the moonlight shone fitfully. Suddenly she started, and a deep, bright color flashed up over her face and neck. In another moment the door opened, and Sir Hilton Trewavas entered. She rose to receive him, and pointed to a chair silently. There was no greeting between them, beyond a slight bend of the head.

"Olive," said Sir Hilton, in a low, passionate voice, "I am come once more to entreat you to accept my aid."

"I cannot renew that subject," replied Olive. "I have refused once, and forever."

"You think, perhaps," continued Sir Hilton, "that the verdict of the coroner is final, and you are no longer in any danger? In that case you could afford to flout at my help; but you are mistaken it is not so. You are liable, at any time, to be charged with the crime committed three days ago——".

"And what if I am?" interrupted Olive, fiercely. "Do not fear that I shall call upon a Trewavas to own or to defend me."

"You misunderstand me, Olive," said Sir Hilton. "You would be past helping then. If it comes to that, things must take their course, and the consequences to you would be more terrible than I dare to think of."

Olive smiled in sorrowful scorn at his words.

"Are all the Trewavases cowards?" she said bitterly.

"If I have shrunk, it has been for your sake, Miss Varcoe," replied Sir Hilton. "I cannot forget that you are my cousin, and that you were brought up at Trewavas."

"Always for yourself and for the Trewavas name," murmured Olive. "You can deny that I am a cousin," she said, aloud; "and you can comfort yourself with remembering that I have quitted Trewavas for ever."

"I am not come to you in a bitter spirit like yours," he said. "I am come to save you from shame, disgrace, and perhaps death. You will be arrested to-morrow, and taken to prison. Olive, will you let me save you to-night?"

"No," she replied, resolutely. "I am under too many obligations to the Trewavas already. They have overwhelmed me with benefits; I cannot accept anything more of them."

"Olive," said he, "at such a time these sneers are childish, and cruel both to yourself and me——"

"I am not sneering," interrupted Olive; "I speak in bitter earnestness. I have been clothed, fed, and sheltered beneath the Trewavas roof for ten years; the best return I can make them now for this kindness is to refuse to let them meddle with my miserable fortunes. Let my fate and theirs henceforth be seperate; let our names never be spoken by the same lips."

"But this cannot be!" exclaimed Sir Hilton. "You have lived with us too long; our cousinship is too well known. The disgrace of your crime and your punishment must fall on us also. How can we be other than linked together for ever?"

Olive turned very pale, and her large eyes flashed on him a strange look.

"To spare the Trewavas pride a pang I would do much," she replied. "But can it be hurt because a miserable Varcoe suffers?"

"Olive, it is for your own sake I ask," cried Sir Hilton, passionately, "and not for the family pride you scorn so much. Will you let me take you away to-night?"

"Once more, no!" cried Olive. "I would not go a step with you from this door, even to save myself from the scaffold."

"Then it is from hate to me you refuse!" said Sir Hilton, and his color rose high in his face.

Standing by the chimney-piece, clinging to the narrow ledge for support, Olive turned her eyes full on him, and said dreamily:

"No, not for hate, though you merit hate from me. You made me love you when a child; and when I was a woman, you forced me to stand by and see you give your love to another—to one who had all the gifts that you most valued—the gifts that I could never hope to win. For such a prize as Eleanor Maristowe, you were right to fling me by as you would a reed. And because your love for me had been implied, not spoken, I had not even the right to complain."

"Who is the most wronged?" he said, bitterly. "You or Eleanor? She lies dead in her mother's house, therefore I have let that woman heap continually on my head; but I will not bear it from you. I will not let you utter Eleanor's name in my ears. How can you," he added, as his voice broke down huskily, "how can you dare to do it?"

"Are you my judge?" asked Olive, clasping her hands together. "Have pronounced me guilty, and condemned me unheard? A rare judge you make, Sir Hilton Trewavas! And, as to daring, I dare do more than you can dream of."

"I believe you," replied Sir Hilton, mournfully. "You have proved that."

"You insult me!" cried Olive, turning on him with sudden indignation. "Leave me! I will bear this no longer!"

A SHORT SESSION!

A $6,000 Debenture By-Law Passed at the Council's Special Meeting.

A special meeting of the town council was called for Friday evening and when the luckless scribe from this office landed in the stately town hall the council chamber was all but deserted. The 8 o'clock chimes sounded, but there was not a sufficient number of aldermen present to start the civic mill. The chief-of-police kept the small crowd of reporters and counsellors in an orderly manner until two or three more of the "select" eleven arrived, and then the business commenced. Those present were: Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsay, Ald. Young, Fiddis, Cobean and Gillespie.

HIS WORSHIP THE MAYOR

explained that the meeting had been called to pass a by-law authorizing the issuance of debentures for the sum of $6,000 in the Stevenson & Graham matter. Reeve Lindsey presented the Finance committee's report dealing with the subject, after which the council went into committee of the whole on the by-law. A Toronto firm of brokers replied to an ad. in the city papers offering the debentures for sale, and the council fixed up interest blank with 4½ per cent. payable half yearly on the 1st of March and the 1st of September. The by-law, which had received two readings previously, was read a third time and passed. And thus a fifteen minute session came to a close.

TWO LETTERS.

A most damaging thing proven against Sir Hector Langevin in the investigation now in progress at Ottawa is the authorship of the following letter, written to a contractor upwards of nine years ago:

June 17, 1882.

DEAR PETERS,—You promised to send me something about the elections. Will you kindly do so to-day. H. L. LANGEVIN.

No election can be carried without a considerable legitimate expenditure, and it is unfortunate that but few elections are contested without illegitimate expenditures of various kinds. Our Grit friends who are howling so briskly just now about Sir Hector's wrong doing cannot have forgotten a letter written by one of their party leaders in 1872, just previous to the defeat of Sir John Macdonald's Government on the Pacific scandal cry. This letter was as follows:—

TORONTO, Aug 15, 1872.

Hon John Simpson, President Ontario Bank.

MY DEAR SIR,—The fight goes bravely. We have expended our strength in organizing outlying counties and helping our candidates, but a big push has to be made on Saturday and Monday for the East and West divisions. We therefore make a grand stand on Saturday. There are half a dozen people that can come down instantly, and we have done all we can possibly do, and we have to ask a few outsiders to aid us. Will you be one? I have urged to write you, and comply accordingly. Things look bright in Quebec. Faithfully yours, GEORGE BROWN.

After the advent of the Grits to power, Mr. Simpson's bank was specially favored with Government non interest bearing deposits and other profitable favors. At the time the late George Brown penned his famous "Big Push" letter his newspaper and his party friends were disclaiming against the corrupt acts of Sir John's Government on the special cry of purity, and the election contestations that followed showed a degree of corruption in Ontario especially that has never been equalled before or since. There is one thing in Sir Hector's favor—he is not a hypocrite.

EDITORIAL NOTES

James McMullen, M. P., has forwarded to the secretary of the West Wellington agricultural society, his annual donation of $10 00 to be distributed in prizes as the directors deem fit. The secretary returns thanks upon behalf of the directors.—Harriston Tribune. Is Jim preparing for the next elections?

"Here" says the Sarnia Canadian, "is a little local happening, which we commend for consideration to the advocates of unrestricted reciprocity. The first load of this season's wheat that came into Port Huron was sold by Robert Fleming, of Kimball township, to the Farmer's Elevator at 85 cents a bushel. The first load of new wheat that came into Sarnia was sold by Henry Smith of Moore, to Mr. James Major, for 95 cents a bushel. Thus we see how the national policy and the McKinley bill, and several other things continue to ruin the Canadian farmer."

An interesting an instructive tableau was witnessed the other day at Brunswick, Me., in the very heart of the "strict" prohibition section of the State. The fast express train struck a hayrack containing two men, demolishing the vehicle and somewhat injuring its occupants. The train was stopped, and the passengers, pouring out, surrounded the unfortunate farmers, who were unconscious. Some one asked if there was any liquor in the crowd. A drummer passed out a neat little flask of old Burbon, another drummer followed his example, and soon there were hands stretching forth from all directions with pints and half pints, round bottles, flat bottles, and square bottles of all dimensions, from a gill to a quart, and containing everything from imported brandy to Portland rum. There was enough there to start a Lewiston drug store, and the only man in the crowd who didn't have a bottle ran off to a farm house and soon returned with a two gallon jug of some mysterious liquor.

A few days ago John Wilson of the 5th con., West Garafraxa, was thrown from a tree, which was lying on the ground and on which he was standing, and sustained a broken rib and other internal injuries.

A GOOD SHOWING.

Orangeville High School Pupils Who Passed the Exams.

For the past several years the Orangeville high school has been looked upon as a first class educational institution and under the careful supervision of Headmaster Steele its pupils continue to give a very favorable account of themselves at every examination. The daily examinations, the result of which has just been published, is no exception to the rule and should convince any intelligent person that Orangeville possesses one of the finest high schools in the province. At the test examinations, held in the high school in May last, sixteen pupils succeeded in obtaining the required number of marks, and 11 of these have been successful at the departmental examinations. The rest of those who succeeded in obtaining primary certificates came but few marks short of the required 50 per cent. at the test exams. A list of the successful pupils will be found below:

PRIMARY.—John Atkinson, T. H. Cotton, Lillie Delaney, Henry Duke, Maurice Gordon, W. T. Harper, Bella Heuselwood, Bertha Lemon, Annie McKinnon, F. McKitrick, Aggie McCrae, Martha Reid, Bella Bistoul, Albert Rowan, John Shannon, Oscar Skelton, Ethel Thompson, Minnie White.

JUNIOR LEAVING.—Fred Atkinson, J. Buchanan, J. McCutcheon, Alex McKitrick, Hannah Reid, Sarah Turnbull, Thos Walker.

MATRICULATION.—Florence Collier (with honors), Allen Gibson, Charles Lee (honors in English and mathematics), Harvey MacAdam.

CARDWELL.

HAND BRUISED.—While unloading barley the other day with a hay fork Mr. James Leighton had one of his hands severely bruised by being caught in the machine, but is all right again.

WHO IS THE POET.—Say, Mr. Editor, who wrote the Cardwell news last week? Aliens and outsiders should not be allowed to give Cardwell news for reasons many. Chuck the chumps out!

BREEZY BRIEFS.—The farmers have off their coats and are doing brave work in the harvest fields.....Messrs. W. and J. McMaster are building an edition to their residence.....Many visitors are with us at present.

WELL SATISFIED.—Messrs. Sproule and Hewitt purchased McMaster binders recently and they work like a charm. Tom Hewitt's diminutive span of horses can jerk the machine over the hills like a buggy, as it runs so very easy. John A. should plant one of his agents at Cardwell, the centre of civilization, and knock out all competitors.

FEMININE FAULT FINDING.—A few of the boldest of our Cardwell beauties (on the sly) are beginning to find fault with the young men because they don't propose. They (the beauties) are not desirous of waiting till the clouds roll away; but before entering conjugal blessedness we apprehend some of them will have to wait until we thrash as it takes a big pile nowadays to stand the matrimonial disbursements.

DON'T BE A CLAM!—Some weak minded persons have a great time trying to locate the Cardwell scribes. They should devote themselves to something good, say profitable occupation. Other goodnatured people, non subscribers to THE SUN, have a queer time hunting up the Cardwell news, and they smile blandly when they read it in a borrowed paper. Subscribe, for THE SUN and don't sponge on your neighbor. Don't be a clam!

HARD ON VISITORS.—They heap on the agony in harvest time, still they come, visitors from different parts of the orb to see the sights of Cardwell, poor old Joe Agnew among the others, seeking for rest and pleasure and finding considerable of it. By the way married farmers talk they are going to kick against visitors during the harvest months. Who can blame them? There is now a splendid opening for an energetic man with capital to run a free boarding-house and cosmopolitan temperance hotel at Cardwell corners. Next.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

MARSVILLE DONE UP.—The Grand Valley football club went to Reading on Tuesday night and defeated the Marsville club by 1 goal to 0. The grounds were very rough and good playing was almost impossible, although occasional spurts of fine play were made on both sides.

HE THREW POTATOES.—One of our young men was up before the court on Tuesday evening on a charge of throwing potatoes at a certain person known as old Johnnie Mann. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed. It was too bad to lose the potatoes over such characters.

FINED FOR ASSAULT.—John F. Harper was up before Magistrates Osbourne and Richardson on Thursday evening on a charge of assult brought against him by Mrs. Murry, of the 4th line. The room was crowded with spectators eager to hear the trial. Harper was fined $5 and costs.

When Mr. C. H. Walker of Erin, was at Kingston, attending the funeral of Sir John Macdonald, he took the opportunity of looking over the Kingston Penitentiary. As he was passing one of the cells a convict called out "Hallo Erin!" Walker stopped and asked him who he was, and received the reply "Grand Valley pumps." It was the man Brasil in whom many in this section feel a rather sore interest and may be glad to learn that he is putting in his time as cheerfully as possible under circumstances.—Fergus News Record.

Advertising is a science; and although it is becoming to be recognized as a primary and unavoidable expense in the prosecution of any business enterprise, and sometimes the only capital in many undertakings, still there are but few who really appreciate its immense importance, or realize the wonders it is capable of performing. When managed with experience, judgment, skill, perseverance and liberality, we do not believe there ever was an instance known where advertising did not yield most gratifying results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor restores vitality to weak and gray hair. Through its healthy and stimulating qualities it prevents the premature development of dandruff and cures all scalp diseases. The best hair-dressing ever made, and by far the most economical.

'TWAS A BIG GRIST!

MEN AND BOYS CONSULT THE P. M. AND ARE TAXED.

Committed for Perjury.

OWNERS OF TAGLESS CANINES FINED SO MUCH AND COSTS.

JUDGMENT IN THE EARLY CLOSING BYLAW CASE RESERVED.

Corbitt, the Salvationist, Settled His Case Before It Was Called.

Police court business in Orangeville was never better than it has been for the past several days and if the rush continues there is but little doubt that P. M. Pattullo will apply to the powers that be for an assistant. Last week's issue of THE SUN contained a report of the cases that were to come before the cadi the following day, but it was not until yesterday that all the cases were disposed of. By reading further down this column a complete list will be found.

THE SALVATIONIST SETTLED.

Robert Corbitt, the Salvation Army man who chastised young George Joll for swearing on the street, made a wise move when he called at the P. M's office on Thursday and settled the case before it came up for trial. Corbitt paid costs and sneaked out of the courtroom.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

The case against Mr. S. Donner for selling groceries after 6 p.m. occupied the attention of the police court nearly all of Saturday afternoon. Four witnesses were examined, including Mr. Donner, who said the chief was paid for watching his store only and not looking after the rest. The case was adjourned until yesterday, when the magistrate announced that he had reserved his decision. Mr. Donner says that if the decision goes against him he will carry the case to a higher court.

REVENUE FROM DOGS.

The extensive list of persons who forgot to buy tags for their dogs was commenced on Saturday afternoon, but it was too big to finish it in a couple of hours. The charges against F. C. Stewart and Robert Ferns were withdrawn by their paying costs of the court and purchasing tags. Similar charges against H. Patterson, Chas. Coulter, James Bennett, Jos. Smith, Andy Anderson, Isaac Davies, Jno. Irving and Jno. Perdue were adjourned until Wednesday. At yesterday's sitting of the police court H. Patterson, Jas. Bennett, Joseph Smith and Andy Anderson were each fined $2 and costs, Davies and Coulter getting off with $1 and costs.

COMMITTD FOR PERJURY.

The most serious case in the whole batch was the perjury case of Lusty v. Watson, which occupied the attention of the court the whole of Friday afternoon. Both parties are residents of Melancthon, and some time ago the plaintiff leased a farm from the defendant. Things did not run as smooth as they might have, and Watson procured an injunction restraining Lusty from taking water from a well on the premises. Not satisfied with this Watson had Lusty summoned up before Magistrate Dunbar of Shelburne for perjury and he was committed for trial. Lusty took a hand in the legal mill and had Watson up before P. M. Pattullo for perjury. Watson was committed to stand his trial at the fall assizes, bail being accepted.

BAD BOYS.

Three boys, N. MacMillan, R. Mann and J. Graham paraded before his worship yesterday afternoon, charged with assaulting Wm Kirby and Wm. North. On Monday evening the men were engaged working on a building near the R. C. church when the boys came along and began pelting them with stones. They got off with $2 and costs.

THE SWAIN IN COURT.

Several weeks ago THE SUN, which publishes everything worth publishing, told the pitiful tale of an East Garafraxa young man who went to see his sweetheart, and while on his spoony visit a rival lover took the harness off his old gray mare. John Morrow stands first in the girls affection, but Matthew Robson is, or was, trying to oust him in favor of himself. It appears Matthew labored in vain for the fair damsel would not throw John overboard, so the would be lover watched his chance and played the prank that is now causing all this trouble. Morrow thought it was a huge joke, but as time rolled on the missing harness did not turn up and he began to see things in a different light, and had a warrant issued for the arrest of the rival lover. Constable Hubbard took the swain in custody yesterday morning and yanked him before Cadi Pattullo, who accepted bail for his appearance on Monday next. This love business is a terror—especially when there are more than two concerned.

The Smith saw and planing mill, at Tilsonburg, was burned down on Tuesday.

Large deposits of gold, lead and iron have been discovered in Eastern Bokhara.

Fifteen thousand acres of grain were laid low by a hailstorm in Minnesota on Monday.

A man named Fitzspringer fell from a freight car at Glenoe on Tuesday and was killed.

An insane woman at Hamilton asylum was choked to death by one of her fellow female patients.

The political agents at kingston have succeeded in putting 1,500 fresh names on the voters' lists.

As a result of drinking water from a foul well at Milwaukee, 2 persons have died and 24 are ill.

A little girl named Edith Redding was killed on the main street of Mimico on Monday while on her way from school. She was caught by a railway train at the crossing.

Sarah Marshall,

KINGST., Kingston, ought: "I was afflicted with a chronic rheumatism for years and used numerous medicines without success but by the use of 6 bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was entirely cured."

"I am acquainted with the above named lady and can certify to the first as stated."—Henry Wade, Druggist, Kingston, Ont.

A NEAT TRICK.

A pony glass of whiskey and a pony glass of water are placed side by side, both glasses brimming full, and a wager made that the liquids can be made to change glasses without pouring either of them out. If the wager is accepted a thin card is placed over the glass of water, and held tightly on while it is turned upside down and placed on the pony of whiskey. The card is then carefully shoved aside until one end of it is a hair's breadth beyond the rims of the glasses, and the whisky will then work itself slowly into the upper glass, the water descending to the lower. Care should be taken that both glasses are full to running over, and the card should be thin and moved aside very slightly, or the opportunity for capillary attraction, on which the perfect completion of the trick depends, will be lost.

TORONTO GOSSIP.

INTERESTING CITY NEWS BY THE SUN'S FAIR CORRESPONDENT

CROSSING THE BAR.

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound or foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark.

For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar.

This exquisite little gem, so perfect in touch and finish, is Tennyson's latest poem, and it bears sure evidence that the strength and beauty of the great poet's gaining are still in unimpaired vigor, although there are some who believe and have stated the contrary.

My one heart-felt sympathy went out the other day to a stylish looking young fellow, who was turning the corner of Yonge and Queen streets. He wasn't a dude, that is, what is generally meant by that disparaging title, but he was arrayed with particular care. I can recall his elegant summer hat, his rather white coat, and his beautiful gray and black striped trousers, as they were that afternoon of fitful sunshine. Alas! as they were, for such I fear they will never again appear to mortal eye, unless there is an establishment somewhere in the city where mud besprinkled garments are brought back to their former state of beauty. The youth was hurrying down to the fated corner, walking perilously near the outer edge of the pavement, with a firm, confident step. It was shortly after one of those dreadful thunder storms we have had lately, and the streets were covered with a shiny substance whose chief ingredients were mud and rain. At every corner was a miniature Niagara, creating indescribable joy in the hearts of small boys. The youth comes on with a beneficent look in his eyes, at peace with all men. He reaches the corner, and then, suddenly, without a moments warning, he bids farewell to joy, not forever; we are so constituted as to recover these shocks, but for that afternoon at any rate. He is floundering in the hideous mass. His hat has bounded wildly from his head on the first alarm, he makes a desperate effort to reach after it, just in time to see it crushed into oblivion forever under the flattening influence of a C. P. R. wagon wheel. And as the youth slowly gathered himself up, and with a look of sickening dispair, made his way into a near store, I thought, that if there was any time in a man's life when he might be excused for giving vent to his feelings in a good round swear, that unfortunate youth had the first and foremost right to indulge therein.

Toronto people are very proud of their songstress, Mrs. Agnes Thomson, and the success that she has achieved in many large cities, especially New York, where, in a few weeks she rose to eminence in its musical world. To her beautiful voice, Mrs. Thomson adds a pleasant, natural appearance on the concert platform, and she has also the happy faculty of establishing a feeling of sympathy with her auditors as soon as she appears.

"What do you suppose I'll look like when I get out of this?" snapped a young lady at a conductor of an over crowded street car. "A good deal like crushed sugar, Miss," was the reply, and the young lady hung on the strap and rode two miles further with the smile of an angel. IDA S.

TWO KINDS OF SQUEEZE.

'James,' said the father of the family sternly, 'your school reports have been anything but favorable this term. I suppose you failed in your examination as usual?'

'No, sir' protested the boy, 'I passed but it was a tight squeeze.

'Laura,' continued the father turning to his eldest daughter, 'I think I heard voices in the hall last night. I have told you repeatedly not to let that young man stay later than 11 o'clock.'

'It was just 11 o'clock when he left father.'

'That's so,' testified James, coming to the relief of his sister. 'I was at the top of the stairway and saw him go. He got away at 11 o'clock, but it was a tight squeeze.'

'James!' shrieked Laura.

SNAP SHOTS AT THE DEVIL.

The devil feels proud of the man who joins the church to make money.

The man who belongs altogether to the devil is generally the last to find it out.

The devil never gets a chance to loaf in a neighborhood where a good man lives.

The devil has to work extra hard to get hold of the children who have good mothers.

Every time a sermon is heard without repentance the devil gives his fire another stir.

The devil probably finds a good deal of satisfaction in watching the woman who loves to talk about her neighbors

The man who simply wants to be good enough to go to Heaven is not the man the devil wants any power on.

The devil is not much afraid of the preacher who measures his service to God by the amount of money in it for himself.

It isn't likely that the devil feels much out of place in company of a man who doesn't pay for his newspaper.

As soon as the church members begin to give more money for missions than they do for cigars and tobacco the devil will begin to feel uneasy.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against those spurious imitations, and urged to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c a box) by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Restof Rock Salt, for Stock.

Read what Prof Robertson, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, says regarding proper ways of salting stock:—"Dairy cattle should have access to salt every day. A series of experiments has convinced me that when cows are denied salt for a period of even one week they will yield from 14 to 15 per cent less milk, and that of an inferior quality. Such milk will, on an average, turn sour in twenty four hours sooner than milk drawn from the same or similar cows receiving salt every day, all other conditions of treatment being equal."

THE only chemically pure Salt ever discovered, analysed 99 84-100 Pure Salt. All kinds of stock will do better where this Salt is used; one ton will go four times as far as common salt, hence it is cheaper. It is the finest Salt in the world for the preservation of all kinds of meat, all the large packers are using it. It is sold cheaper than any other lump salt. We guarantee this Salt as advertised. Our Salem correspondent has been lying low for some time past, but surely he is not afraid of being clubbed. Send in newsy news.

James Bowers, the new electric light contractor, has purchased the foundry property on Mill street and will commence building immediately.

Mr. Jas. Carson, who was for many years baggagemaster at the C. P. R. station here, is now assistant baggagemaster at the union station, Toronto.

Hand us $1 and we will give you the whole news of the town each week. THE SUN does not make a specialty of sensationalism, but it gets there just the same.

Mr. John Rask, who has had two horses killed by C. P. R. trains during the past couple of months, has entered an action against the company to recover the price of the animals.

Mr. James Morrison's delivery horse, attached to a heavy cart, took a dash around his wood yard Tuesday afternoon and the whole outfit nearly tumbled into the creek. Hardly any damage was done.

The remains of James Kells, who was dashed to death by falling off the roof of Mr. J. Cunnington's barn, Caledon, on Wednesday, were interred in the English church burying ground, 7th line, Mono, on Thursday.

NEW SIDEWALK.—A new sidewalk is being laid on the lower end of John street. It is much needed and will add greatly to the convenience of pedestrians.

GOT LEFT.—A number of our towns' people who intended taking in the excursion to Niagara Falls on Monday arrived at the station in time to see the train disappear around the curve.

EARLY DEMISE.—Alice Maud, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. Isaac Richardson, East ward, died yesterday morning after only three days' illness. Cholera was the cause of the young girl's death.

FORGOT TO CREDIT.—The Guelph Herald and divers other journals copied several of our locals last week, but forgot to credit them to THE SUN. It is not fair to "clip" items and palm them off as original.

A GREAT SUCCESS.—One of the most successful picnics held this year was that of St. Mark's S. S., which took place at Stanley park on Tuesday. A very large crowd attended and a happy time was spent by all.

DEATH.—At Port Stanley on Thursday last the death took place of Mr. Robert Thompson, grain buyer, at the ripe age of 88 years, 50 of which were spent where he died. Deceased was the father of Mrs. McRobbie, wife of Rev. Mr. McRobbie of Shelburne.

A LIKELY TWO YEAR-OLD.—Several days ago Mr. W. H. Riddell, V. S., purchased the two year-old chestnut trotting stallion, Starlight from W. J. Patterson of Owen Sound, and the trotter is now in town. Starlight's sire is Crown Imperial, 2.27½, and her dam Sadie, 2.16½.

REMOVED HOME.—On Friday young Dave Still, who had his arm mangled in a threshing machine the previous Wednesday, was removed from the Deaferia home to his home at Glen Cross. The unfortunate young fellow is recovering from the effects of the accident as rapidly as can be expected.

FORMING A COMPANY.—We have it on unquestionable authority that Mr. J. A. McMaster, proprietor of the Orangeville Harvesting Works, intends forming a joint stock company with a capital of $25,000 or $50,000, to carry on the foundry in the future. The year 200 McMaster self-binders were manufactured and several have been shipped to England, where, according to reports received here, one doing excellent work. If such a company is formed it will be a great boom to the town.

...ED HOME.—On Friday young ..., who had his arm mangled in a threshing machine the previous week, was removed from the Marine House to his home at Glen Cross. The unfortunate young fellow is recovering from the effects of the accident as rapidly as can be expected.

McMaster, proprietor of the Orangeville Harvesting Works, intends forming a joint stock company with a capital of $25,000 or $50,000, to carry on the foundry in the future. This season 1000 McMaster self-binders were manufactured and several have been shipped to England, where, according to reports received here, are doing excellent work. If such a company is formed it will be a great boom to the town.

COURTIN LOAFERS.—Talking about street corner loafers, the Toronto Empire says:—"As every means hitherto tried to remedy the practice has proved futile the advisability of photographing the crowds and placing the pictures on exhibition has been suggested and the idea will likely be carried out."

A CLEVER GIRL.—Miss Florence Collier, eldest daughter of Deputy Registrar Collier, is the first young lady in Orangeville who has succeeded in passing the matriculation examinations from our high school. Miss Collier is about 17 years of age and she will undoubtedly make her mark in her favorite field of study.

THE FIRST WHEAT AND OATS.—On Tuesday Mr. Thomas White, of Mono, brought in the first load of new oats and disposed of them to John McKim. On the same day Mr. H. Moffat of the same township sold the first load of mocca wheat, which weighed 62 lbs. to the bushel, to Clark & McCutcheon. The banner township captured the box this year.

THE SICK.—Mr. John Brown is lying very ill at his residence, Wellington street, with inflammation of the bowles, and there is, we are sorry to say but little hope of his recovery. Mrs. A. Collier, who has been very low, is recovering. Mrs. John Graham, Church street, is seriously ill with inflammation of the bowels. Mrs. J. M. Bennett, who has been very sick for the past week is improving. Mr. A. Heaton, centre road, Caledon, is suffering with an attack of quinsy.

ANOTHER ADDITION.—The Orangeville SUN, discussing the loud hubbub raised in London and elsewhere regarding the "loud" circus posters, says:—"It is a wonder the people of London and Stratford do not tog out their saw horses with pantaloons." Or do like the housekeeper of an Ingersoll gentleman did. During his absence from home this very modest person attired his Greek Slave and Venus de Medici in skirts. This is a fact. —Ingersoll Chronicle.

A LITTLE BLAZE.—Shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon smoke was seen issuing from the roof of the kitchen of the Commercial hotel, and if the fire had not been discovered when it was there is no telling how many thousand dollars worth of property would have been destroyed. A pail brigade was immediately organized and the willing workers soon had the blaze extinguished. Twenty-five dollars will cover the loss. The fire originated from a defective chimney.

MASONIC VISITORS.—At the regular meeting of Harris lodge, No. 216, A. F. and A. M., on Tuesday evening the following visitors were present from Toronto: Wor. Bro. John Patton, P. M., Wor. Bro. J. H. Horswell, W. M., Bro. Frank Hayne, Stevenson lodge; Wor. Bro. Rev. W. E. Smith, P. M., St John's lodge; Bro. G. G. Robinson, Wilson lodge; Bro. Jno. Ridler, Alpha lodge; Wor. Bro. J. E. Knox, W. M., Patterson lodge, Thornhill. After the regular business of the meeting had been transacted the visiting brethren were entertained to a banquet and a pleasant evening was spent in delivering speeches, toasts, etc.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT CONTRACT.—The stockholders of the Electric Light Co. have awarded the contract for supplying power to run the dynamos to Mr. James Bowers. Mr. D. McDonald, who has managed the business since electric lighting was introduced into Orangeville, has done his duty very satisfactorily on the whole, and it was only a matter of price that he lost the contract, Mr. Bower's offer being somewhat lower. The new contractor intends erecting a large brick building on Mill street, opposite the grist mill, and it will be used as a planing mill, saw mill, etc. He has to have everything in readiness by the 21st of October next.

A MAN WITH MANY POSITIONS.—The Orangeville SUN says:—"Robert Shields probably holds more positions than any other man in Orangeville. The following is a partial list of the many offices he fills:—Chief of the Orangeville police force, caretaker of the town hall, public health inspector, noxious weeds inspector, truant officer, street light accountant, poll-tax collector, dog tag detective, etc., etc., etc." THE SUN does not mention Mr. Shields' salary. From his multifarious positions he has a great chance to follow in the footsteps of the SUN's friends in Ottawa, so far as boodle is concerned.—Guelph Mercury.—Our contemporary might properly have added the name of that boodling Grit count, Premier Mercier of Quebec.

CALLED HOME.—Miss Annie A. McKitrick, eldest daughter of Mr. S. H. McKitrick, Church street, peacefully passed away Friday evening. She has been lingering for some time with that dread disease, consumption, and her death was not altogether unexpected. The deceased was very popular with her acquaintances was of a kind disposition. She was an active member of the various ladies' societies in connection with St. Andrew's church. In their loss the bereaved family will have the sympathy of all. The funeral took place from her father's residence on Monday afternoon to the Town cemetery and was very largely attended. Rev. D. C. Hossack and Rev. J. J. Elliott of Hillsburg conducted the services at St Andrew's church and at the grave.

UNFAIR TREATMENT.—The Dufferin lacrosse club has never received favors at the hands of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, but that is no reason why the latter body should go out of their way to add another insult to those they have already heaped upon our club. Several weeks ago the Dufferins played a schedule game with the Lornes at Mount Forest, which resulted in a draw, and the matter was referred to the C. L. A. Drawn games are generally played on neuteral ground after the championship matches are finished, but this particular game, according to the C. L. A's decree, must be played at Mount Forest this month, and the Dufferins must foot their own bills! The result of the match at Mount Forest put Orangeville on a straight road for the championship, but the C. L. A's unjust decision has had the effect of forcing the Dufferins from the association and they have consequently withdrawn. We endorse the club's action.

FEMALE FIGHTERS.—Last Saturday evening the boarders at an east Broadway hotel, while partaking of their evening meal, were startled by the smashing of cats and the yelling of two domestics employed in the house, who were settling a little dispute in John L. Sullivan style. The girls had not been on good terms for some time past and all day Saturday blood could be seen in their eyes. The battle commenced in the kitchen and before it ended the frisky fighters were out in the yard. Quite a number of spectators arrived on the scene of battle before the mill closed, and they were allowed to fight it out. The girl in black was the stronger of the two and seemed to be the most experienced pugilist, but her antagonist held out remarkably well and it was not until the girl in black received a firm grip on her adversary's throat that the latter gave up the ghost and collapsed. The landlord paid off the girls in h, and she immediately left the house. Only a few weeks ago one of the girls concerned in the fight was bound over to keep the peace for threatening to cut the throat of another girl.

MONO CENTRE.

REOPENED.—School reopened on Monday and the "kids" are once more in the toils. They had long holidays, however, and will pay strict attention to their lessons until the holidays come again.

A GREAT HARVEST.—We are having beautiful harvest weather and the farmers are taking advantage of it. Another week will see the grain safely stored, and according to reports, as to the yield, our sturdy yeoman exhibit a smile of satisfaction which has not been equalled during the past decade. Everybody will be prosperous after this.

PERSONAL.—Miss Nellie Laidlaw is spending a two week's vacation with Mono Centre friends.....Mrs. Magwood of Toronto is the guest of her father-in-law, Mr. Wm. Magwood.....Mr. Hamilton McFadden of Markdale is the guest of friends at Relessey.....Mrs. W. E. Rosvear and daughter, Miss Lena, of Toronto are paying a visit to her father, Mr. Jonathan Flatt.

OBITUARY.—The grim monster has been reaping a rich harvest of late. Last Sunday diphtheria laid little Ada Newton low and other members of Mr. Jas. Wilson's family are in a precarious condition. Slightly to the north of us, Mrs J. Morrison, Mr. John Boyle and Mr. John Heatherington have followed in rapid succession. All are old and respected residents of Mono and their death is regretted. The remains of the two former were interred on Monday at Rosemont, those of the latter on Wednesday at the the same place.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—These remedies are unsurpassed throughout the world for bad legs, wounds foul sores, bad breasts, and ulcers. Used according to the directions given with them there is no wound, bad leg or ulcerous sore, however obstinate or longstanding, but will yield to their healing and curative properties. Many poor sufferers who have been patients in the large hospitals under the care of eminent surgeons, and have derived little or no benefit from their treatment, have been thoroughly cured by Holloway's Ointment and Pills. For glandular swellings, tumours, piles and diseases of the skin there is nothing that can be used with so much benefit. In fact in foul, worst form of glandular, dependent upon the condition of the blood, these medicines, used conjointly, are irresistible.

A singular complaint comes from the fire insurance companies. It relates to large losses in the farming dirtricts on live stock, due, as reported by the farmers, to lightning in connection with barb wire fences. Most of the animals killed in this way were near the fences at the time, and it is supposed the metal strands act as a conductor of electricity in a degree sufficient to largely increase the risks of such insurance.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

SELECT KNIGHTS.—The Grand Commander of the order of Select Knights has appointed Major Douglas, of our town, District Deputy Grand Commander for the County of Dufferin.

FINE LOT.—Messrs. R. B. Wilcox and W. C. Richardson sold 60 head of cattle this week, for which they received about $4000. The cattle were sent to Montreal to be shipped on the steamer Oregon for Liverpool.

DAMAGE BY THE STORM.—The storm of Sunday did considerable damage in many parts. The township of Mulmur will be a heavy loser through washouts. In the neighborhood of Mansfield these have been very extensive.

POTATOE DIGGER.—G. B. Irwin, of Toronto, fomerly of Shelburne, has invented and patented a potatoe digger which takes the potatoes from the drill and puts them in bags ready for shipping. The inventor will probably exhibit the machine at the Shelburne fall fair.

BARN BURNED.—A large frame barn on lot 3, con. 6, Mulmur, owned by Mr. R. J. Noble, of Shelburne, and occupied by Mr. Wm Campaign, was destroyed by fire on Monday night. The fire occurred about 12 o'clock. How it happened is a mystery. Mr. Campaign had his hay and fall wheat in the barn and some implements. He had $500 insurance on the contents.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. John Irwin, of Shelburne, met with a serious accident at Crombie's station on Tuesday. He was engaged loading telegraph poles with a horse, and while elevating a pole one end struck the ear and the other flew round and struck him a very hard blow, knocking him insensible and breaking three of his ribs. He was brought home at once and Dr. Norton was sent for to attend to his injuries.

"I will not leave you," he said. "I must and will save you from a prison and a shameful death. You shall let me do this. You owe it to me. For you I have trampled on my honor; for you I wink at crime, and forfeit the world's respect. Will you let me do this in vain?"

"Not for me have you done this, Sir Hilton," she replied, in a sad voice. "But if I let you save me, what will the world say then?"

"It will say either that I connived at your escape, or effected it," said Sir Hilton; "and my best friend of yesterday will cut me to morrow. It will say more; it will perhaps declare that I was secretly your accomplice."

"And are you willing to suffer this?" said Olive, in a softened voice. "Can you bear this load of contumely for the sake of my safety?"

"Yes," replied Sir Hilton, steadily. "This pain will be a feather's weight compared to what I should suffer if you were brought to trial."

"I believe you," she responded. Her voice was very low, and she broke into weeping suddenly. Then she fell upon her knees, and held her clasped hands toward him. "Hilton, if you can still give me your love, you shall save me. I will yield myself to your guidance, to hide where you will, till the shadow be overpast. And I will be content, for your love's sake, to let you suffer the world's contumely, the world's cruel scorn. But only for love—nothing else. Hilton, can you give it?"

Her voice rang out in agony; yet Sir Hilton remained dumb before it; and her clasped hands, resting on his knees, were left there untouched. Then he rose, and shook them off.

"No, Olive; you ask too much. The thought of love for you now makes me shudder. I will save you for pity's sake and for the memory of my boyish affection—no more. The whiteness of Olive's face grew to the hue of death, and her quivering lips, standing apart, gave her a ghastly look.

"I am answered," she said, in a whisper, as her arms fell down by her side, and her head drooped nearly to the ground. "Sir Hilton Trowave, I will never ask you for your love again."

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

GO WEST YOUNG MAN.—A large number of harvesters bound for Manitoba and the North west passed Grand Valley yesterday on the C. P. R. Four more joined the ranks at the station here.

FINE WHEAT.—Yesterday we were shown a sample of fall wheat, of the Canadian Velvet Chaff variety, grown by Mr. Wm. Newson of Peepabun. The wheat looks excellent and will be in great demand for seed this season.

BRIEFS.—Bay Fly went to Toronto to take part in the Toronto races this week.....Mr. George McBride had his foot jammed the other day, but is able to be about again.....The East Luther agricultural society will hold their annual exhibition on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 6th and 7th.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

CONTRACT SECURED.—Mr. G. B. Richardson, of Riverview, has secured the contract of constructing a large dam at Elora for the carpet works to be established there.

MEANEST YET.—A Rockview correspondent says: We believe we have the meanest man in the county. He went to Creemore on the 13th to see the fun, taking with him his better half and a little orphan girl that they have raised. When dinner time came he sent the little girl to sit on a dry goods box on the corner of the street until he and his better half got their dinner.

POISON.—Last Thursday afternoon the little 3 year old son of Mr. Jonah Allen, of Shelburne, was playing with the little girl of Vet. A. McTaggart and they went into the office, which was left without an attendant, and in spying around got hold of a case containing besides other things a little vial in which was some essence, a rare and one of the most power ul poisons. The two came out on to the lawn and probably were anxious to see what it was they had found, when they broke the vial and spilled the deadly contents on to the grass. The little fellow was found holding the cork in his fingers and it is supposed some of the poison clung to his finger from off the cork which he put into his mouth. The boy was suddenly seized with fits and suffered extremely. At one time he was in a dangerous condition, but Drs. Norton and Rooney were speedily summoned, and with a stomach pump averted fatal results. It is a wonder either child escaped certain death.

ON HIS BEAT.

The C. P. R. Cow Detective visits Arthur.

(Arthur Enterprise.)

Mr. Thos Bird of Orangeville, has been (in consequence of the number of animals killed on the track and the attending danger to life and property) appointed by the C. P. R. to impound all animals found running at large within half a mile of a railway crossing, in accordance with the statute. The cow detective notified the people at each station on his beat and we have not so far heard of any seizures. The Act provides that where cattle are herded or attended they escape the penalty attaching to vagrant animals. During the holidays the boys and girls find it a very pleasant task and not at all irksome to sit in some pleasant shade with some nice book or a companion and see that Old Brindle or Crumplehorn does not get in the way of the engine. Even some of the youths and maidens volunteer to go forth and seek the cow. When the school reopens it would cost each owner of a cow but a trifle a week to get a suitable person to keep the cow away from the crossings, their feeding grounds being in the immediate vicinity of the railway. The fine for infriction of the law is said to amount to $10, more than the full value of any ordinary cow.

"Like Magic,"

THE effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Colds, Coughs, Croup, and Sore Throat are, in most cases, immediately relieved by the use of this wonderful remedy. It strengthens the vocal organs, allays irritation, and prevents the inroads of Consumption; in every stage of that dread disease, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral relieves coughing and induces refreshing rest.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children have been subject."—Capt. U. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medicines, I feel justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of the Pectoral is the enduring quality of its popularity, it being more salable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvelous."—R. S. Drake, M. D., Beliot, Kans.

"My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skillful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Unless a man lives as high as he shouts the less noise he makes the better.

Perhaps it is because history repeats itself that some of it gets so very dry.

It is when straws are made up into hats that they show which way the wind blows.

When a sick man refuses to send for a doctor that is a sign that he still clings to life.

The man who selected his wife, as he would his clothes, for wearing qualities, found that she wore him out.

HE WANTED A COCKTAIL, PROBABLY.

He sloughed into a saloon and coming to a dress parade with his foot resting on the counter, he said to the man behind the white apron:

'Got any of the elixir of life?'
'Yep.'
'Fountain of youth?'
'Yep.'
'Golden glory of joy?'
'Yep.'
'Nectar of the gods?'
'Yep.'
'Distilled delight?'
'Yep.'
'Liquid tenderness?'
'Yep.'
'Fluid extract of Happiness?'
'Yep.'
'Angel's food?'
'Yep.'
'Essence of the tasseled field?'
'Yep.'
'Oil of gladness?'
'Yep.'
'Hope of my soul?'
'Yep.'
'Well, gimmie 'em all, he said, laying down a quarter' and the barkeeper, with a single question, reached under the counter and handed him out a bottle of genuine old Indian rye and he took it eagerly.

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in me in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. E. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Pallacia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hanel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

OLIVE VARCOE

—OR—

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER XII. (CONTINUED.)

For a moment there was a breathless silence between these two; then it was broken by Olive's sobs. She sprang to her feet, brushing her tears away, though they fell faster than her hand could wipe them; and, standing thus with streaming eyes before him, she said in a low voice, a swift flush covering her face:

"Hilton, we shall never, never meet again. Take me in your arms, and kiss me before you go. I shall remember that kiss in prison, in sorrow, in exile, in death. It will comfort me when my burden seems heavier than I can bear and, perchance, I lay fainting beneath it. Hilton, you will not refuse me so slight a thing as a caress? A touch of the hand, then—a kind word? What! not even that? Then God's will be done. My heart is breaking!"

The stony look on Sir Hilton's brow relaxed as he saw her break down utterly, as he saw her cover her face with hands, and turn away hopelessly, like one humbled in the dust.

"Olive," he said, coldly, "I should despise myself if I weakly yielded to your prayer. My lips can never touch yours again, either in love or in kindness. I have said compassion is all I can give you now. But for pity I would not stand by your side one minute. What! will you ask for love, for caresses, for tenderness from me? Is it not enough that I criminally shield you from justice, I, who am bound by every tie of honor to punish the murderer of my affianced wife! Olive, you ask too much when you desire even a touch of my hand."

Her face flushed upon him as he spoke not humble, not sorrowful, but flushed, proud, and indignant.

"Do not fear that I shall ask it again," she said. "Have you nothing more to say to me, Sir Hilton?"

"I have to explain to you my plan for your safety—"

"Your plan!" she cried, breaking in upon his speech passionately, her eyes blazing as in the days when no sorrow had touched them. "I will not hear it! I will not owe my safety to your compassion: I scorn it! You have refused me even a kind word. Shall I take anything from your hands now? No! a thousand times no! Sir Hilton Trewavas, Olive Varcoe will never live to be saved contemptuously by your pity."

She was in earnest, bitter earnest and he saw it. Still he importuned he prayed, beating his words against her fiery pride as against the wall; but they fell back useless upon his own heart, chilling it with despair.

"Then John must save you," he cried at last.

"John!" exclaimed Olive. "No, no you are dreaming, Sir Hilton. John cannot save me."

"He will rise from his sick bed, and die to save you, obstinate, ungrateful as you are," returned Sir Hilton. "He said, 'Tell Olive if she will not let you save her, I must.' Here is his letter, read it, and accept his help, since you refuse mine."

Olive took the letter, with a wild terror shining out of her eyes, and a look of firm resolve upon her pale lips.

"I refuse your aid, because you deny it to me upon the only terms on which I could accept it," she said. "I would let the man who loves me suffer for my sake, but not the man who loathes me."

She broke the seal of the letter with trembling fingers, and read it hastily.

"Poor John!" she said; her eyes filled with tears, and crushing the letter in her hand, she turned a changed face towards Sir Hilton.

"Must I bear this too?" she murmured. "Oh Hilton, Hilton! why would you not spare me? It is too late now. Wait, if you will, and see what I can do for John's sake."

Perplexed, angry, weary, Sir Hilton watched her as she burnt John's letter by the lighted taper; then she wrote hurriedly a tiny note, which she folded and tied with white silk. Sir Hilton thought this was for John, and fancying she had yielded now, he waited every moment to hear her say she was ready to accompany him; but, to his surprise, she walked to the window, and unhung from its hook a cage within which there rested a small white pigeon; she tied the note beneath its wing, and opening the latticed with a silent hand, she set the bird free. It flew swiftly upwards into the darkness, and disappeared.

"What nonsense is this, Olive?" cried Sir Hilton. "To whom have you sent that carrier pigeon?"

"It is gone to Charles Vigo," she replied.

A thrill like an electric shock ran through Sir Hilton's frame as she uttered these words. So young Vigo's disappearance was her doing, and she knew all along where he was hiding. Could any new proof of her guilt be needed this seemed to give it; and, added to the pang of this thought, came a sharp, burning pain, which he scarcely recognized as jealousy.

"And why to Charles Vigo?" he asked.

In spite of his horror at Olive's crime, his voice shook, and his hand trembled to touch her as she passed him.

"I have accepted his offer," replied Olive, too calmly, in a dreamy voice. "Perhaps it is cruel to let him suffer so much more; but he loves me; he trusts in me, he believes in me, and love is happy when it suffers."

A smile quivered on her lips—a smile so sad, that it seemed more mournful than the saddest tears ever shed.

"Does Mr. Vigo, for your sake sacrifice home, name, and country?" demanded Sir Hilton in a hard tone; "and do you accept so much from him? His father is an old man, and he will never live to see his son again. And with such a wife as you, he will scarcely wish it."

"You are cruel!" said Olive, calmly.

For the first time her eyes fell upon Sir Hilton in proachfully, and again his restless hand half raised itself, longing only to touch her for a moment. Yet there was a burning anger in him now, quivering through every nerve in his flesh, holding down all kinder words that might have come.

"Cruel!" he echoed. "No, not I. It is but truth I speak. So you elope with Charles Vigo? You do that boy this bitter wrong, rather than accept my aid—rather than let John save you."

"Yes," she returned, in the same dreamy, mournful voice. "Tell John his letter decided me, and I leave England to-night with Charles Vigo. Tell him there was no other way for me to escape—you scorning me as you do; and let no anxiety for me trouble him; I shall be in safe hands. Give him this message, and say yes—yes, say, I prayed God to save him."

Tears! Were these tears upon Sir Hilton's cheek, as the woman he deemed so guilty fixed her large eyes on him, filled with unutterable sadness?

"Olive!" he cried.

But there was no time for further speech; a hand thrust the honeysuckle lattice aside, and Charles Vigo sprang into the room

"Thank Heaven you have sent for me at last!" he exclaimed. "Olive, I have suffered torture—I have feared—"

He had seen but her at first, but now he perceived Sir Hilton Trewavas, and checked himself suddenly.

"Mr. Vigo you disappear and reappear at opportune moments in Miss Varcoe's fate," said Sir Hilton. "I hope your presence to-night will be as happy a thing for her as your absence was to day."

The sarcasm cut Olive to the quick, not for herself, but for Charles Vigo; and she came hastily forward and laid her hand on the young man's arm.

"Do not heed him," she said, softly. "There is no time for quarrels, Mr. Vigo, have you counted the cost of helping me? You will be a mark for scorn—you will be exiled from home and country—"

"Let those scorn who do not understand," interrupted young Vigo, eagerly. "I know what I do. Olive, I am proud to suffer somewhat for your sake. The shame and pain of which you speak will be to me a glory. You know what I feel—you know what I think; why should we talk further? All things are ready. Will you come?"

"This is infatuation indeed!" exclaimed Sir Hilton, sugrily. "Olive, I conjure you, by all that you hold sacred, to pause ere you drag this man into the shame of your guilt. Remember, he is the only son of his father—the sole prop of an ancient house."

"How dare you speak to your cousin in such words as these?" cried Charles Vigo, drawing Olive towards him, and standing proudly by her side. "Do you not see—"

"Stop!" exclaimed Olive, springing up, and putting her hand upon his mouth "Remember your promise to me, Charles Vigo Do not waste words now; there will be time hereafter for all these things. Sir Hilton, I have reflected deeply on what I do, in accepting the aid of this true and generous friend. Mr. Vigo, at that future time of which we have talked, when you come to me, and say, 'Olive, remember, in the day of your shame and humiliation, when the dearest friends forsook you and lovers stood aloof, I came, I understood, I saved you;' then, if you will have the poor gift, I will put my hand in yours, and be your wife."

She said this, not with crimson cheeks, and eyes flashing love-light from their lashes, but with pale face and head drooping forward, bowed humbly as if in shame. Her hand rested on Charles Vigo's arm—the hand that Sir Hilton had flung from his knee and refused even to touch—and taking it in his, he bent his lips upon it reverently.

"I shall never remind you, Olive, of this time," he said, softly "I shall make no claim on your gratitude; you do not think so meanly of me as that. Me, a free will offering—all your heart and soul, Olive, or merely a poor remembrance; I will take nothing between these two"

Sir Hilton heard him and his very soul curdled on fire Either these were noble words, or they were the outpouring of the wildest, maddest infatuation that ever possessed an unthinking heart; surely they were those last, and this boy was crazed by his foolish passion for a guilty girl. This was not love, the grand, reasonable, moderate affection upon which the world bases its happiness; it was Midsummer folly, that could not outlast a month; yet the blood burned with fiery heat as he heard it, and it seemed to him that he was being schooled in love by a heardless youth, whose mind had not yet reached the stature of a man's. He tried to stand by indifferently, and listen with a careless smile to Olive's answer, but his hand clutched the back of his chair, and his heart beat like a hammer against his side.

"I am not worthy of you," said Olive. "You give me a too generous love; it covers me with shame and pain. How can I ever repay you?"

"You pay me when you trust me," replied Charles Vigo "Olive, we have lingered too long. The men wait for us. Let us depart."

"I am ready," she said.

Her voice had the same sad, listless tone. It seemed she scarcely cared to save herself. Sir Hilton watched her as she put on her hat and cloak, and the moments to him now counted like golden sands, unutterably dear, fearful in their value and their pain. Suddenly he constrained himself to speak.

"I know not what arrangements you may have made, Mr. Vigo," he said "I believe mine more safe, but my cousin performs your aid and your plan to mine; so of course I have no right to interfere. Perhaps you are aware that both the Trewavas coach-houses are in the kitchen of this little inn. I believe they would let me pass unmolested, but whether you can——"

"They can have no right to detain me," interrupted Charles Vigo; "and there is no warrant out yet against Miss Varcoe; they dare not interfere with our actions. Nevertheless I am prepared for all things. Olive, I will be with you again in a moment."

He sprang from the window as he spoke, and Sir Hilton, with a hot throb at his heart, saw himself left alone with the girl, who but a few minutes ago had crouched at his feet with tears, praying for a word, a touch of kindness. Now she stood erect, with her head turned away from him, as though listening intently for the slightest sound.

"I see now, Olive, why you have refused to accept the arrangements I made for your safety," said Sir Hilton. "You preferred young Vigo's plans."

"Considering your feelings," she replied, "the obligation to you would have been too great a burden to bear. But why renew this? The subject is closed forever."

"You take advantage of the infatuation of a boy, to ruin him," said Sir Hilton bitterly.

"Do I?" said Olive; and her listless weary tone showed that he could scarcely now rouse her into anger.

"Yes, you do a cruel unwomanly thing," continued Sir Hilton; "and I do not know that I am justified in my conscience in letting him go."

"You had better try to stop him," returned Olive; "you will find his arm as strong as your own. You can do better, Sir Hilton Trewavas; you can stop me. Go to the men in the kitchen and tell them I meditate flight; or try to find Mr Eslick and his watchers they are in the village—and inform them of my plans"

"I am not a police spy; I am not an informer," returned Sir Hilton.

"Then go your way in peace, and leave me to go mine," said Olive. "Of what use is this bitterness between us?"

"Of what, indeed?" said Sir Hilton. "Olive, are you firmly resolved on departing with this young man, when I, your cousin, offer you an asylum in a convent in France?"

"What a delightful and flattering alternative!" answered Olive "Do cease, Sir Hilton, you weary me."

Sir Hilton looked at her gloomily.

"If she would say again, 'Hilton, save me, because you love me, Heaven knows what madness I could be capable of," he speculated to himself.

But no such words broke from her lips. She stood before him, proud and patient, as though she had put her love for him away from her for ever.

"You cannot marry young Vigo with an accusation of murder hanging over your head," remarked Sir Hilton. "It would be horrible for him"

"Would it?" said Olive. "His flesh and blood are not stone and ice, like yours. His heart is not narrow, and hard, and unbelieving."

"You mean, his love is the love of a headstrong boy, whose passion does not even heed blood guiltiness," replied Sir Hilton. "You are a daring woman indeed! Do you mean to marry him, Miss Varcoe?"

He spoke so fiercely that Olive turned and looked upon him in wonder.

"You have heard my words to him," she said. "Must I say them over again? You are a man without mercy, Sir Hilton."

"So you fancy you will be happy!" he continued; "you dare to dream of marriage, of love, of a home—you, who must live in misery and remorse—you, whose victim is not yet buried out of sight of the avenger!"

"Heaven help me!" murmured Olive wringing her hands together. "You are pitiless indeed!"

The anger within Sir Hilton's voice had brought these dreadful words to his lips; but he was sorry now, as he looked upon the dead white face before him.

"Olive, we will not part in anger," he said, more softly. "Here is my hand—will you not take it?"

The girl looked at him with the wildness of fear in her eyes, and thrust his hand away.

"No!" I have told you I won't have your pity," she cried passionately.

"You will not take my hand?" said Sir Hilton, amazed.

It was something new indeed for him to ask a kindness of Olive, and be refused. Like a tyrant, whose slave suddenly rebels, he found his power gone, while he thought it still absolute.

"No! I will not take your hand," she replied. "You insult me, offering it as you do, in the loathing of compassion and disgust."

"Olive," he exclaimed, "can you not see that it is myself I hate? I permit you to conquer my conscience, and break down even my horror of crime. Oh, my miserable weakness! I loath myself while I yield to it. Say farewell to me kindly, Olive; I can hold out no longer. A minute ago you asked me for a kiss of peace; now it is I who ask you. Olive, give me your hand; let me touch your lips once more; and may Heaven have mercy on us both!"

He drew nearer her; the warm hand for whose clasp she had yearned rested on her cheek, and then she started back as one awakening from a dream.

"It is too late," she said, mournfully. "No kiss of yours shall ever touch my lips again. When I prayed you for a caress, the memory of which would have been so dear to me, I was free now I have promised to be a good man's wife. I am no traitress, Hilton. I shall be true to him, now he has my pledged word."

Sir Hilton's face was scarcely less pale than hers, as he stood before her irresolute and trembling. Small, fragile as she was, she was more powerful to subdue him than a lion, and he dared not put forth his hand and touch her.

"We have played together, boy and girl, Olive," he resumed; "and now, in leaving me for ever, you refuse me the poor privilege of a cousin. Do you indeed refuse it?"

His words galled her. It was always cousinship, brotherhood, or compassion this man was forcing on her. She wanted none of it. She paid no heed to the passion of his voice; she did not see the anguish of love in his eyes; she noted only the ill-chosen words.

"You persecute me, as you ever did," she said, bitterly. "Charles Vigo's affianced wife needs no cousin's kisses on her lips. The time of which you speak—the happy playtime of our life—is gone by forever, Hilton. I shall not weep now to leave you without a kiss. I have suffered too much for tears."

Her accent was unutterably sad; yet cold as ice, she moved away from him and walked to the window, leaning her small lithesome figure from the lattice, as she looked out into the moonlight for Charles Vigo. Sir Hilton watched her with a bitter smile on his face.

"Perhaps it is better as it is," he said, subduing his faltering voice into firmness. "I confess my chivalry does not equal your lover's It is my pride to keep the name of Trewavas unstained."

Was it the moonlight falling full on Olive's face, that covered it at this moment with such a wonderous beauty?

"Your pride shall have its way, Sir Hilton," she said; "Olive Varcoe will never throw a stain upon the name of Trewavas."

Her forlorn attitude, her weary aspect changed, as she spoke, into a stronger, nobler look.—it was as if the breath of some brave spirit had passed over her, infusing courage and fortitude into every vein.

"No, your chivalry does not equal Charles Vigo's," she continued, in a less firm tone. "You offer me a convent to which to hide my misery—and even that poor gift is an offering made to the Trewavas blood within me; he intrusts me with his honor, his happiness, and even with his name."

Sir Hilton grew exasperated at her words.

"And can guile, such as yours, relieve in the blind infatuation of a boy, who, for passion's sake, tramples on every duty, dishonors his father's grey hairs, and loses self-respect, to sleep to his bosom—"

"Hold!" exclaimed Charles Vigo's voice. "Insults now are cowardly indeed, because you know at this moment I am powerless to resent them. Repeat your words when I return to England, Sir Hilton, and you shall have your answer."

At the first startling sound of the young man's voice, Sir Hilton looked up, to see him standing by the window, while, grouped silently in the small, quiet, moonlit street, were about half a dozen men, of that rough, strong aspect, that can only be described as enduring. Two of them jumped through the casement, and swung Olive's luggage; but

MANY A LIFE HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in Excellent health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. E. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Felicia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hanel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

---

For a moment there was a breathless silence between these two; then it was broken by Olive's sobs. She sprang to her feet, breathing her tearsaway, though my soul fairer than her hand could wipe them; and, standing thus with streaming eyes before him, she said in a low voice, a swift flush covering her face:

"O Hilton, we shall never, never meet again. Take me to your arms, and kiss me before you go. I shall remember that kiss in prison, in sorrow, in exile, in death. It will comfort me when my burden seems heavier than I can bear and, perhaps, I lay fainting beneath it. Hilton, you will not refuse me so slight a thing as a caress? A touch of the hand, then—a kind word? What! not even that? Then God's will be done. My heart is breaking!"

The stony look on Sir Hilton's brow relaxed as he saw her break down utterly, as he saw her cover her face with hands, and turn away hopelessly, like one humbled in the dust.

"Olive," he said, coldly, "I should despise myself if I weakly yielded to your prayer. My lips can never touch yours again, either in love or in kindness. I have said compassion is all I can give you now. But for pity I would not stand by your side one minute. What will you ask for love, for caresses, for tenderness from me? Is it not enough that I criminally shield you from justice, I, who am bound by every tie of honor to punish the murderer of my affianced wife! Olive, you ask too much when you desire even a touch of my hand."

Her face flashed upon him as he spoke not humble, not sorrowful, but flushed, proud, and indignant.

"Do not fear that I shall ask it again," she said. "Have you nothing more to say to me, Sir Hilton?"

"I have to explain to you my plan for your safety—"

"Your plan!" she cried, breaking in upon his speech passionately, her eyes blazing as in the days when no sorrow had touched them. "I will not hear it! I will not owe my safety to your compassion; I scorn it! You have refused me even a kind word. Shall I take anything from your hands now? No! a thousand times no! Sir Hilton Trewavas, Olive Vareoe will never live to be saved contemptuously by your pity."

She was in earnest, bitter earnest and he saw it. Still he importuned he prayed, beating his words against her fiery pride as against the wall; but they fell back useless upon his own heart, chilling it with despair.

"Then John must save you," he cried at last.

"John!" exclaimed Olive. "No, no you are dreaming, Sir Hilton. John cannot save me."

"He will rise from his sick bed, and die to save you, obstinate, ungrateful as you are," returned Sir Hilton. "He said, 'Tell Olive if she will not let you save her, I must.' Here is his letter, read it and accept his help, since you refuse mine."

Olive took the letter, with a wild terror shining out of her eyes, and a look of firm resolve upon her pale lips.

"I refuse your aid, because you deny it to me upon the only terms on which I could accept it," she said. "I would let the man who loves me suffer for my sake, but not the man who loathes me."

She broke the seal of the letter with trembling fingers, and read it hastily.

"Poor John!" she said; her eyes filled with tears, and crushing the letter in her hand, she turned a changed face towards Sir Hilton.

"Must I bear this too?" she murmured. "Oh Hilton, Hilton! why would you not spare me? It is too late now. Wait, if you will, and see what I can do for John's sake."

Perplexed, angry, weary, Sir Hilton watched her as she burnt John's letter by the lighted taper; then she wrote hurriedly a tiny note, which she folded and tied with white silk. Sir Hilton thought this was for John, and fancying she had yielded now, he waited every moment to hear her say she was ready to accompany him; but, to his surprise, she walked to the window, and unhung from its hook a cage within which there rested a small white pigeon; she tied the note beneath its wing, and opening the lattice with a silent hand, she set the bird free. It flew swiftly upwards into the darkness, and disappeared.

"What nonsense is this, Olive?" cried Sir Hilton. "To whom have you sent that carrier pigeon?"

"It is gone to Charles Vigo," she replied.

A thrill like an electric shock ran through Sir Hilton's frame as she uttered these words. So young Vigo's disappearance was her doing, and she knew all along where he was hiding. Could any new proof of her guilt be needed this seemed to give it; and, added to the pang of this thought, came "Perhaps it is worst to let him suffer so much more; but he loves me, he trusts in me, he believes in me, and love is happy when it suffers."

A smile quivered on her lips—a smile so sad, that it seemed more mournful than the saddest tears ever shed.

"Does Mr. Vigo, for your sake, sacrifice home, name, and country?" demanded Sir Hilton in a hard tone; "and do you accept so much from him? His father is an old man, one he will never live to see his son again. And with such a wife as you, he will scarcely wish it."

"You are cruel!" said Olive, calmly.

For the first time her eyes fell upon Sir Hilton reproachfully, and again his restless hand half raised itself, longing only to touch her for a moment. Yet there was a burning anger in him now, quivering through every nerve in his flesh, holding down all kinder words that might have come.

"Cruel!" he echoed. "No, not I. It is but truth I speak. So you elope with Charles Vigo? You do that boy this bitter wrong, rather than accept my aid—rather than let John save you."

"Yes," she returned, in the same dreamy, mournful voice. "Tell John his letter decided me, and I leave England to-night with Charles Vigo Tell him there was no other way for me to escape—you scorning me as you do; and let no anxiety for me trouble him; I shall be in safe hands. Give him this message, and say yes—yes, say, I prayed God to save him."

Tears! Were these tears upon Sir Hilton's cheek, as the woman he deemed so guilty fixed her large eyes on him, filled with unutterable sadness?

"Olive!" he cried.

But there was no time for further speech; a hand thrust the honeysuckle lattice aside, and Charles Vigo sprang into the room

"Thank Heaven you have sent for me at last!" he exclaimed. "Olive, I have suffered torture—I have feared—"

He had seen but her at first, but now he perceived Sir Hilton Trewavas, and checked himself suddenly.

"Mr. Vigo you disappear and reappear at opportune moments in Miss Varoce's fate," said Sir Hilton. "I hope your presence to-night will be as happy a thing for her as your absence was to day."

The sarcasm cut Olive to the quick, not for herself, but for Charles Vigo; and she came hastily forward and laid her hand on the young man's arm.

"Do not heed him," she said, softly. "There is no time for quarrels. Mr. Vigo, have you counted the cost of helping me? You will be a mark for scorn—you will be exiled from home and country—"

"Let those scorn who do not understand," interrupted young Vigo, eagerly. "I know what I do. Olive, I am proud to suffer somewhat for your sake. The shame and pain of which you speak will be to me a glory. You know what I feel—you know what I think; why should we talk further? All things are ready. Will you come?"

"This is infatuation indeed!" exclaimed Sir Hilton, angrily. "Olive, I conjure you, by all that you hold sacred, to pause ere you drag this man into the shame of your guilt. Remember, he is the only son of his father—the sole prop of an ancient house."

"How dare you speak to your cousin in such words as these?" cried Charles Vigo, drawing Olive towards him, and standing proudly by her side. "Do you not see—"

"Stop!" exclaimed Olive, springing up, and putting her hand upon his mouth "Remember your promise to me, Charles Vigo Do not waste words now; there will be time hereafter for all these things. Sir Hilton, I have reflected deeply on what I do, in accepting the aid of this true and generous friend. Mr. Vigo, at that future time of which we have talked, when you come to me, and say, 'Olive, remember,' in the day of your shame and humiliation, when the dearest friends forsook you and lovers stood aloof, I came, I understood, I saved you;' then, if you will have the poor gift, I will put my hand in yours, and be your wife."

She said this, not with crimson cheeks, and eyes flashing love-light from their lashes, but with pale face and head drooping forward, bowed humbly as if in shame. Her hand rested on Charles Vigo's arm—the hand that Sir Hilton had flung from his knee and refused even to touch—and taking it in his, he bent his lips upon it reverently.

"I shall never remind you, Olive, of this time," he said, softly "I shall make no claim on your gratitude; you do not think so meanly of me as that. No, a free will offering—all your heart and soul, Olive, or merely a poor remembrance; I will take nothing between these two"

Sir Hilton heard him and his very soul seemed on fire Either these were noble words, or they were the outpour- was sorry that we so heard it, and it seemed to him that he was being schooled in love by a boundless youth, whose mind had not yet reached the stature of a man's. He tried to stand by Lindfieldly, and listen with a careless smile to Olive's answer, but his hand clutched the back of his chair, and his heart beat like a hammer against his side.

"I am not worthy of you," said Olive. "You give me a too generous love; it covers me with shame and pain. How can I ever repay you?"

"You pay me when you trust me," replied Charles Vigo "Olive, we have lingered too long. The men wait for us. Let us depart."

"I am ready," she said.

Her voice had the same sad, listless tone. It seemed she scarcely cared to save herself. Sir Hilton watched her as she put on her hat and cloak, and the moments to him now counted like golden sands, unutterably dear, fearful in their value and their pain. Suddenly he constrained himself to speak.

"I know not what arrangements you may have made, Mr. Vigo," he said "I believe mine more safe, but my cousin perfers your aid and your plan to mine; so of course I have no right to interfere. Perhaps you are aware that both the Trewavas constables are in the kitchen of this little inn. I believe they would let me pass unmolested, but whether you can—"

"They can have no right to detain me," interrupted Charles Vigo; "and there is no warrant out yet against Miss Varoce; they dare not interfere with our actions. Nevertheless I am prepared for all things. Olive, I will be with you again in a moment."

He sprang from the window as he spoke, and Sir Hilton, with a hot throb at his heart, saw himself left alone with the girl, who but a few minutes ago had crouched at his feet with tears, praying for a word, a touch of kindness. Now she stood erect, with her head turned away from him, as though listening intently for the slightest sound.

"I see now, Olive, why you have refused to accept the arrangements I made for your safety," said Sir Hilton. "You preferred young Vigo's plans."

"Considering your feelings," she replied, "the obligation to you would have been too great a burden to bear. But why renew this? The subject is closed forever."

"You take advantage of the infatuation of a boy, to ruin him," said Sir Hilton bitterly.

"Do I?" said Olive; and her listless weary tone showed that he could scarcely now rouse her into anger.

"Yes, you do a cruel unwomanly thing," continued Sir Hilton; "and I do not know that I am justified in my conscience in letting him go."

"You had better try to stop him," returned Olive; "you will find his arm as strong as your own. You can do better, Sir Hilton Trewavas; you can stop me. Go to the men in the kitchen and tell them I meditate flight; or try to find Mr Eslick and his watchers they are in the village—and inform them of my plans"

"I am not a police spy; I am not an informer," returned Sir Hilton.

"Then go your way in peace, and leave me to go mine," said Olive. "O! what use is this bitterness between us?"

"O! what, indeed?" said Sir Hilton. "Olive, are you firmly resolved on departing with this young man, when I, your cousin, offer you an asylum in a convent in France?"

"What a delightful and flatteringly alternative!" answered Olive "Do cease, Sir Hilton, you weary me."

Sir Hilton looked at her gloomily.

"If she would say again, 'Hilton, save me, because you love me, Heaven knows what madness I could be capable of,' he mutterd to himself.

But no such words broke from her lips. She stood before him, proud and patient, as though she had put her love for him away from her for ever.

"You cannot marry young Vigo with an accusation of murder hanging over your head," remarked Sir Hilton. "It would be horrible for him"

"Would it?" said Olive. "His flesh and blood are not stone and iron, like yours. His heart is not narrow, and hard, and unbelieving."

"You mean, his love is the love of a headstrong boy, whose passion does not even heed blood guiltiness," replied Sir Hilton. "You are a daring woman indeed! Do you mean to marry him, Miss Varoce?"

He spoke so fiercely that Olive turned and looked upon him in wonder.

"You have heard my words to him," she said. "Must I say them over again? You are a man without mercy, Sir Hilton."

"So you fancy you will be happy!" he continued; "you dare to dream of marriage, of love, of a home—you, who must live in misery and remorse—you, whose victim is not yet buried out of sight of the avenger!"

"a mild, more mildly. "Here is my hand—will you not take it?"

The girl looked at him with the wildness of fear in her eyes, and thrust his hand away.

"No!" I have told you I won't have your pity," she cried passionately.

"You will not take my hand?" said Sir Hilton, amazed.

It was something new indeed for him to ask a kindness of Olive, and be refused. Like a tyrant, whose slave suddenly rebels, he found his power gone, while he thought it still absolute.

"No! I will not take your hand," she replied. "You insult me, offering it as you do, in the loathing of compassion and disgust."

"Olive," he exclaimed, "can you not see that it is myself I hate? I permit you to conquer my conscience, and break down even my horror of crime. Oh, my miserable weakness! I loath myself while I yield to it. Say farewell to me kindly, Olive; I can hold out no longer. A minute ago you asked me for a kiss of peace; now it is I who ask you. Olive, give me your hand; let me touch your lips once more; and may Heaven have mercy on us both!"

He drew nearer her; the warm hand for whose clasp she had yearned rested on her cheek, and then she started back as one awakening from a dream.

"It is too late," she said, mournfully. "No kiss of yours shall ever touch my lips again. When I prayed you for a caress, the memory of which would have been so dear to me, I was free now I have promised to be a good man's wife. I am no traitress, Hilton. I shall be true to him, now he has my pledged word."

Sir Hilton's face was scarcely less pale than hers, as he stood before her irresolute and trembling. Small, fragile as she was, she was more powerful to subdue him than a lion, and he dared not put forth his hand and touch her.

"We have played together, boy and girl, Olive," he resumed; "and now, in leaving me for ever, you refuse me the poor privilege of a cousin. Do you indeed refuse it?"

His words grieved her. It was always cousinship, brotherhood, or compassion this man was forcing on her. She wanted none of it. She paid no heed to the passion of his voice; she did not see the anguish of love in his eyes; she noted only the ill-chosen words.

"You persecute me, as you ever did," she said, bitterly. "Charles Vigo's affianced wife needs no cousin's kisses on her lips. The time of which you speak—the happy playtime of our life—is gone by forever, Hilton. I shall not weep now to leave you without a kiss. I have suffered too much for tears."

Her accent was unutterably sad; yet cold as ice, she moved away from him and walked to the window, leaning her small lithesome figure from the lattice, as she looked out into the moonlight for Charles Vigo. Sir Hilton watched her with a bitter smile on his face.

"Perhaps it is better as it is," he said, subduing his faltering voice into firmness. "I confess my chivalry does not equal your lover's It is my pride to keep the name of Trewavas unstained."

Was it the moonlight falling full on Olive's face, that covered it at this moment with such a wonderous beauty?

"Your pride shall have its way, Sir Hilton," she said; "Olive Varcoe will never throw a stain upon the name of Trewavas."

Her forlorn attitude, her weary aspect changed, as she spoke, into a stronger, nobler look.—it was as if the breath of some brave spirit had passed over her, infusing courage and fortitude into every vein.

"No, your chivalry does not equal Charles Vigo's," she continued, in a less firm tone. "You offer me a convent in which to hide my misery—and even that poor gift is an offering made to the Trewavas blood within me; he intrusts me with his honor, his happiness, and even with his name."

Sir Hilton grew exasperated at her words.

"And can guilt, such as yours, rejoice in the blind infatuation of a boy, who, for passion's sake, tramples on every duty, dishonors his father's grey hairs, and loses self-respect, to sleep to his bosom—"

"Hold!" exclaimed Charles Vigo's voice. "Insults now are cowardly indeed, because you know at this moment I am powerless to resent them. Repeat your words when I return to England, Sir Hilton, and you shall have your answer."

At the first startling sound of the young man's voice, Sir Hilton looked up, to see him standing by the window, while, grouped silently in the small, quiet, moonlit street, were about half a dozen men, of that rough, strong aspect, that one only be described as sealing. Two of these jumped through the casement, and swooped Olive's luggage; but

INVESTIGATE ONTARIO.

(London Free Press.)

THE Ottawa Free Press (Grit) says: "Probably the Senate will next want to investigate Mr. Mowat's administration of Ontario's education system, or the Crown Lands Department."

The sarcasm of this is rather pointless in view of the scandalous laxity, not to use a harsher word, in the management of the Ontario Crown Lands for years past. No department of government in any part of Canada calls for a searching inquiry more loudly than this. Mr. W. R. Meredith has time and again moved for returns respecting the number of timber berths under license, their location and the names of the licensees, but although these have been ordered by resolution of the House of the Assembly, they have not been forthcoming. The Commissioner of Crown Lands ever evades direct inquiry by one subterfuge or another, but was forced to make the admission that it was "impossible to give the details asked for." Meantime, we have the fact of a largely increased expenditure in the timber regions every fourth year—for every year preceding a general election—and there is a standing grievance among settlers that the timber belts are ravaged by the agents of such favorites as H. H. Cook, regardless of the public regulations or the interests of those who are trying to make a home in the wilderness.

The Senate may not have power to inquire into the Crown Lands Administration, yet it is a subject for much needed inquiry. Mr. Meredith has repeatedly moved for a Commission to look into the whole subject; not only to set at rest the frequent causes of complaint among the poor settlers, but to determine and report upon the amount of the public wealth in the form of standing timber which remains to the public credit in this Province.

It is an eminently proper subject for investigation, since it is the timber wealth upon which the Government is relying to make up the excess of current outlay over income, and since it is so often stated on the authority of competent timber merchants that the supply is steadily dwindling under the drafts made upon it, so that a few years at farthest will bring the Legislature face to face with the necessity of some new and more direct oppressive form of taxation as a result of the present extravagance and inefficiency.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

JOINT STOCK COMPANY.—The farmers of Hornings Mills and vicinity are applying for letters patent for the incorporation of a company to erect and equip a farmers' grist mill. The capital stock is we understand placed at $12,000.

AN APPRECIABLE ACT.—No 7 Company, 36th Battalion, have received from the Dominion Government their supply of new clothing. Our defenders will now be able to respectably cover their stalwart frames when they depart for their next annual drill.

SABBATH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA.—Shelburne is nothing if not enterprising. The most recent evidence of this is the introduction of an orchestra into the Methodist Sabbath school. This is a departure worthy of commendation and we hope the members of the orchestra will always maintain a lively interest in the work they have undertaken.

MAGISTRATES CASES.—Last Thursday, Hugh Smith, of the 8th line of Amaranth, was summoned before Col well Graham, J. P., on two charges, one of which was preferred against him by David Gray for assault and battery; the other by—Carton for having violently shoved him into the river. A fine of $2 was imposed in each case. Smith also charged Gray with bathing in the river in too close proximity to the house of the former, and the magistrate fined Gray $2 and costs. It was the bathing exposure on the part of Gray that caused Smith to commit the assault, and no doubt considerable provocation.

INDUSTRY.

Man must have occupation or be miserable. Toil is the price of sleep and appetite, of health and enjoyment. The very necessity which overcomes our natural sloth is a blessing. The world does not contain a briar or a thorn which divine mercy could have spared. We are happier with the sterility, which we can overcome by industry, than we could have been with spontaneous plenty and unbounded profusion. The body and mind are improved by the toil that fatigues them. The toil is a thousand times rewarded by the pleasure it bestows. Its enjoyments are peculiar. No wealth can purchase them. No indolence can taste them. They flow only from the exertions which they repay.

A man in Woodstock named Innes, says the Dundas Banner, has entered an action for breach of promise against a lady who married some other fellow. Innes claims ten thousand dollars damages, so he must feel the blow very keenly. Of course no jury will ever give him a brass farthing, and if he goes into court he will be laughed out of it. Does he not know that there are as good fish in the sea as ever were caught and that a girl has a perfect right to change her mind if she wants to? In fact this is what girls' minds are for. If he doesn't know this he is too innocent for this age and should be put on ice and kept for the millennium.

THE GUN MISSED FIRE.

ORANGEVILLE, Aug. 21.—James Delaney entered Samuel Scott's restaurant while drunk and was ejected, whereupon he drew a revolver, pointed it at Scott's breast and pulled the trigger, but the weapon held fire, the nipper evidently being at the time at half-cock, as the revolver was fully charged and one of the cartridges is indented. Delaney was jailed.

The above dispatch (?) appeared in Saturday's Toronto World, but Sam Scott or any other Scott do not run a restaurant in this town. Owen Sound has the call.

A three-year old colt, belonging to Mr. Jno. McCoy, received rather a bad wound one day last week, while in the pasture field. The flesh of the animal was so badly lacerated that its ribs were visible. Mr. J. B Lindsay is in attendence and it is progressing favorably.

A party of tourists, consisting of a lady and two gentlemen, passed through the village one evening last week. They had evidently travelled a long distance as they appeared to be greatly fatigued. Mr. A. J. Mercer was generous enough to offer them lodging for the night, but for some unknown reason they declined the offer and passed on.

MRS. CARROTHERS ON TRIAL.

BAY PORTAGE, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Carrothers was brought up for trial here this morning before Judge Lyon, charged with the murder of her husband at Rainy River last January. A. R. Lewis, Q. C., represents Mrs. Carrothers, and H. S Osler, Q. C., of Toronto appears for the prosecution. Wm. Cameron, postmaster at Rainy River, was the first witness called and gave evidence as to the finding of the body and Mrs Carrothers' actions at the time. Throughout the day Mrs Carrothers watched the witness closely at times. She appeared to be nervous, and flushed when a handkerchief and revolver were produced, but with the exception of a remark "Say yes, Cameron, at once, you saw me kiss him," she remained quiet, save occasionally whispering a remark or two to her counsel. Mrs. Carrothers, it will be remembered, was arrested in Toronto and brought here for trial.

Is it possible to make dimples to order. It is now an undisputed fact that to place four tiny strips of courtplaster crosswise, and to catch in the bits of flesh just where the desired hollow is to be, will produce an attractive dimple. A plaster frame is placed just under the right eye, on each side of the mouth, on each knuckle of the hand and on elbows and just below the shoulders on the arms and on the shoulders themselves. The feet, too, are dimple plastered near the ankle. The flesh in each place is caught like a pinch, and four tiny bits of plaster form a firm hold. For three days the plaster must remain on the appointed spots, and when it is removed the dimples are made securely, and will last a fortnight or so. Sometimes a day will suffice for the accomplishment of the beauty spot, though it will not be so lasting as that of the three days' pressure.

HE WAS FINED!

JUDGE CHADWICK TAXES ANDREW WATSON $155 IN THE CHILD DESERTION CASE.

He is also Bound Over to Keep the Peace—Will the Proceedings End Here?

Readers of THE SUN are quite familiar with the disagreeable details of the West Garafraxa child desertion case in which Andrew Watson, a hitherto respectable farmer of Caledon, was a prominent figure. The case came up before Judge Chadwick at Guelph on Monday and his honor imposed a fine of $155. The following report of the case is taken from Tuesday's Mercury:

"Yesterday Judge Chadwick gave decision in the Andrew Watson case for child desertion. The case is so recent that it is not necessary to again relate the ugly facts, as they will be well remembered by the reading public, beyond that it is what is known as the "West Garafraxa child desertion case." The judge imposed a fine of $155 altogether. In imposing the fine his honor spoke of the enormity of the offence, and the duty devolving on the parents concerned to take care of the child, and not to shoulder it off on anybody else. He expatiated on the seriousness of the offence, stating that the parties might have been sent to the penitentiary for a term of years. He also referred to the risk of the child's life by desertion. Mr. Peterson appeared for the Crown and Mr. McLean for the prisoner. The prisoner also gave surety to keep the peace for good behavior.

TORONTO GOSSIP.

(SPECIALLY GOT UP FOR THE SUN BY FAIR CORRESPONDENT.)

Numbers of Toronto people, myself included, went down to Hamilton last week, to view the great Sengerfest, which, on reviewing your stock of German, you will ascertain, means Singing Festival. We were not exactly as we are now, or else, as I will put myself in the Queen city always feel pleasure in patronizing the juvenile displays of their smaller sister, which patronage is deeply resented by the ambitious, self-satisfied Hamiltonians. And then, the trip down the lake is very pleasant, and here, by the way, when you make a similar trip, be sure to always take the Modjeska. It is so comfortable, and you are borne swiftly along, with such an easy, delicious gliding, that seems to go on without effort. There is really no perceptible motion whatever. So, illustrating comfort personified, I leant back in one arm chair, with our feet on another, we arrived in Hamilton long before we had inclination whatever to step again on terra firma. Such a rush and scramble ensued to get a car, for the cars were few, and the people were many. A stranger entering the city, utterly unconscious of the sengerfest, would have seen at once that something was up, for out of every window, and in every available nich and corner, were hung pieces of red, blue and white calico, festooned into every imaginable fold and form, and these were called decorations. I thought, as I looked at them, how absurd it is to deck out a big, massive building with these flimsy pieces of colored cloth, giving them something of the appearance a tall, strong limbed man would have, with a child's frill around his neck. The crowd was immense, chiefly composed, however, of Germans, who had gathered from all over the country. The Saengerfest was made up of three concerts at $2 a seat; a banquet, consisting of cheese, lager beer and crackers; a ball and a procession. The latter was, to use an expression, vulgar but expressive, 'Short and sweet,' not that the first adjective was a drawback, as the thermometer stood at 90 in the shade, and we had been waiting fully two hours under the melting influence of a burning August sun. The Saengerfest ended on Friday, with an excursion to Niagara Falls, and the city once more relapsed into its former state of peaceful quiet, in which condition it will probably remain, until the next Carnival or Saengerfest. And just here, I would advise you, when you go there to participate in this kind of festival, to bring along with you a large supply of admiring adjectives, for nothing short of the wildest and most extravagant enthusiasm about everything in the city will satisfy your Hamilton friends.

Oh, dear! when I look into the gardens and see the gay beds of nodding asters, gorgeous in their deep-hued purple and red, it begins to dawn on me that summer is pretty well on the wane, for these flowers are symbolical of her prime. Out in the fields too, her last glory is seen in the golden rod, and the great yellow dahlias. What a short time it seems, does it not, since the first leafbuds unfolded, and the fruit trees were white with blossom? People are thronging home now to the city from Muskoka, from the sea, and from the various places of summer resort, and the holidays are almost over. But we have many sweet days before us yet, and let us hope that the promises of the ripening spring showers, and the days of sunshine will be abundantly fulfilled, this year, by a rich, plentious harvest.

The new Board of Trade building is really a magnificent structure, and we Torontonians are pardonably proud as we point it out to our visitors, when conducting them up from the Union station. The ornamentation above the principal entrance is especially fine. It is grand and massive, and still so delicately beautiful in its color and carving. Altogether it is a model of architectural skill. IDA S.

Women who love their husbands are happy and at rest. Those who do not are disturbed and restless, says the Jennes Miller Quarterly. They are always seeking some means of killing time. They are ready to flirt at any moment. Their children are, according to their means, either hidden in nurseries under the care of French bonnes or handed over to Sally, the nurse, to shake and slap and stuff with sugar, as her wisdom dictates, while society and amusements of all sorts occupy their mother's time. Home is not happy to the poor woman, because she has chosen her mate foolishly—because she trusted to that "love after marriage," which mercenary old people promise those who make what they call sensible match.

Sad as a neglected wife who loves her husband well must be, I believe she is happier than this poor, restless creature, though she be worshipped. The love of one we do not love becomes simply a bore, especially in the close intercourse of home life, and she who does not give her heart to her husband is not likely to care much for his children. So, girls, if you don't love your lover don't marry him. Remember that marriage is a serious step, and that when you give him your hand that he may encircle it with a wedding ring you seal the happiness or misery of your natural life. Don't marry unless you are sure of your love for him and his for you.

It may be interesting to men as well as women who have a habit of carrying canes or umbrellas under their arms to know that in London anyone coming behind the projecting stick or umbrella carried in that manner is, by accepted etiquette, allowed to forcibly knock the dangerous stick or umbrella down. I don't want to wait, now we are published, but I have to. She says you ain't old enough and I don't know anything, and then there is so much expensive about it. My dress will be only nine shillings ($1.50), and my new calf skin shoes would do. She says you won't marry me until you can keep two cows of your own. Father is willing and says he will give us the sheep, but mother says he won't, and you know she always carries the day. Darn it, I wish she never could have got married herself. Now, John, let us stick to each other; I shall be 18 in about 10 months more. Now you will hold on, won't you, John? Come Sunday night with the gray horse and shay, and we will ride out and talk it over. Good night."

BREACHES OF ETIQUETTE.

It is a breach of etiquette to stare round the room when you are making a call.

To remove the gloves when making a formal call.

To open the piano or to touch it if found open when waiting for your hostess to enter.

To go to the room of an invalid without an invitation.

To walk about the room examining its appointments when waiting for your hostness.

To open or shut a door, raise or lower a curtain, or in any way alter the arrangement of a room in the house at which you are a caller.

To turn your chair so as to bring your back to some one seated near you.

To remain after you have discovered that your host or hostess is dressed to go out.

To fidget with hat, cane or parasol during a call.

To preface your departure by remarking "now I must go," or to insinuate that your hostess may be weary of you.

To resume your seat after once risen to say adieu.

For a lady recieving several callers to engage in a tete-a-tete conversation with one.

To call upon a friend in reduced circumstances with any parade of wealth in equipage or dress.

"When in doubt—hire" will be the watchword of future brides of humble means, for Parisian custom of loaning for a trifling consideration, not only the wedding garment, but all possible accoutrements of the occasion, is fast taking root here. Of course, the idea will not appeal to women of refinement, but all brides cannot lay claim to culture, and sentiment, like everything rare is expensive.

Notice to Creditors.

THE creditors of Margaret Stone, late of the Township of Mono, in the County of Dufferin, married woman, deceased, who died on or about the 29th day of May, 1891, and all others having claims against the estate are hereby notified to send by post, prepaid, or otherwise deliver to the undersigned solicitor, on or before the 5th day of September, 1891, their christian and surnames, addresses and descriptions, the full particulars of their claims, a statement of their accounts, and the nature of the security (if any) held by them; and to default thereof and immediately after the said 5th day of September the assets of the said Margaret Stone, deceased, will be distributed amongst the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to claims of which notice shall have been given as above required.

And this notice being given under the provisions of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1887, Chap 110, Sec 38, the Administrator will not be liable for the said assets, or any part thereof, to any person of whose claim or claims he shall not have been required by him or his Solicitor at the time of such distribution.

W. I. WALSH,
Solicitor for the Administrator of said estate.

Dated at Orangeville, this 14th day of August, 1891.

Credit Foncier Franco Canadien vs. Enoch Price.

In the High Court of Justice,
Chancery Division.

Between the Credit Foncier Franco Canadien, Plaintiffs, and Enoch Price, Defendant.

I, William Stiff, of the Town of Orangeville, in the County of Dufferin, agent of the above named Plaintiffs, make oath and say: 1. That since this action has been commenced I have been informed by various persons and verily believe that the said defendant has been systematically engaged in abusing the plaintiffs and complaining of the manner in which he was treated in connection with his said loan and discussing the said action, and he has been doing everything in his power to injure the business of the company in the county. 2. That owing to such fact I verily believe it will be impossible for the plaintiffs to obtain a fair trial of the said action in the county of Dufferin, as the said case has obtained such a notoriety in the said county, owing to the defendant's conduct, that it will be impossible to obtain a jury in the said county, as I verily believe, upon which there would not be certain parties who would be prejudiced against the plaintiffs, owing to the fact of the defendant having practically made it his business to abuse the plaintiffs.

Sworn before me at the Town of Orangeville in the County of Dufferin this Ninth day of May, A. D. 1891.

GEORGE ROSS,
A Commissioner, &c.

George Robb of the Town of Orangeville, Barrister, Alexander A. Hutcheson, John Magee, Still's father in law, and Matthew Wilkins, each made a similar declaration to the following:

In the High Court of Justice,
Chancery Division.

Between the Credit Foncier Franco Canadien, Plaintiffs, and Enoch Price, Defendant.

I, ——of the Town of Orangeville in the County of Dufferin, make oath and say: 1. That for some time past the above named defendant has been systematically engaged, as I verily believe, in interviewing persons in connection with the above action and abusing the plaintiffs for the manner in which they acted towards him and I verily believe it would be extremely difficult to obtain a fair trial of the said action in the county of Dufferin, as in all probability there would be certain persons on the jury who had discussed the case and been prejudiced against the plaintiffs owing to the manner in which the defendant has acted since the institution of proceedings.

Sworn before me at the Town of Orangeville in the County of Dufferin this —— day of May, A. D. 1891.

A Commissioner, &c.

The Best Rock Salt, for Stock.

Read what Prof Robertson, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, says regarding proper ways of salting stock:—"Dairy cattle should have access to salt every day. A series of experiments has convinced me that when cows are denied salt for a period of even one week, they will yield from 14 to 24 per cent. less milk, and that of a poorer quality. Such milk will average, then, a loss in twenty days, equal to one cow's milk thrown from the cans of dairymen who are treating salt every day, all other conditions or treatment being equal."

THE only chemically pure Salt ever discovered, analyzed 99 84-100 Pure Salt. Stock will do better where this Salt is used; one ton will go four times as far as common salt, hence it is cheaper. If is the finest Salt in the world for the preservation of all kinds of meat, all the large packers are using it. It is sold cheaper than common lump salt. We guarantee this Salt as advertised. ## Local Intelligence

Friday was an extremely dull day in town.

Police court business is comparatively dull after the great rush last week.

The foundation of the new electric light station is in course of construction.

The Y. P. A. of St. Andrew's church spent a very pleasant day at Duffer's Park on Tuesday.

Several cases of diphtheria are reported in town, in each case the sufferer is recovering.

It is said Inspector Anderson is on the watch for liquor vendors who are keeping prohibited hours.

The employes of Hughes Bros., merchant-tailors, held a picnic at Stanley Park on Tuesday and all spent an enjoyable day.

If you require pictures framed, take them to F. J. King & Co. They stock of mouldings in town and lowest prices.

Several drunks who were hanging around a Broadway hotel one day last week were drenched with water by an employe of the house.

Owen McHugh of Alliston, who formerly worked in a barber shop in this town, had his ear bitten off in a street fight at Alliston a week or two ago.

Hand us $1 and we will give you the whole news of the town each week. The SUN does not make a specialty of sensationalism, but it gets there just the same.

All the brickwork of the new water works building has been finished and the roof is on. The tower is well under way and the work will be completed soon as possible.

A bad gang of young boys congregate at the C. P. R. every night and imagine they have a special right to the central platform. The kids should be made to move away about their business.

Mr. Thos. Moss, section foreman on the C. P. R. at Waldemar, was married to Mrs. Jane Wilson of Arthur on Monday. The ceremony was performed at Grand Valley by Rev. H. Crozier.

Mr John Scott, the old and popular livery stable proprietor of Orangeville has disposed of his livery business on Mill street to Mr. C. W. Sydie. The sum paid is somewhere in the neighborhood of $2500. We have not heard whether Mr. Scott intends leaving town or striking out in some other business.

Mr. T. R. Glanville spent the first part of last week in Toronto, and among other business attended the meeting of the Executive council C. L. A. of which he is a member, but Orangeville will please notice that he did not vote on the motion which killed the Dufferin county.—Mt Forest Rep. Say Lorne did you read the Empire's opinion of C. L. A. council's decision? If not why not?

REMOVAL.—Miss Burnard has removed her dress and mantle making shop to the rooms over Stewart, Hewson & Co's store on Broadway, opposite Mill street.

FINE POTATOES.—This week Mr. Hughson of East Garafraxa presented us with a bag of potatoes of a very superior variety. Mr Hughson will please accept our thanks for same.

MARRIED.—Mr E. J. Corkill, B. A., of Sarnia high school, formerly of Orangeville, was married at Greenburn near Kingston, on Tuesday to Miss J. F. Fair. Ed's old Orangeville friends wish him and his bride a long life of happiness.

BENNETT—MCDONELL.—Mr. A. Bennett of Exeter, son of Mr. J. Bennett of this town, was married at the former place yesterday to Miss Alma McDonell of the same town. THE SUN wishes the young couple every prosperity.

STILL ANOTHER.—Miss Lillie Cra was successful in obtaining a primary certificate at the recent examination but her name was overlooked in making out the list for publication. This makes a total of thirty successful candidates for district 48. Out of 147 district only 30 have thirty or more successful candidates.

ANOTHER MAIL CONTRACT.—Mr. Henry Laverty has secured the contract of carrying the mail from Orangeville to Camilla and Mono Centre. The contract is to run four years and Mr. Laverty will receive $840 per annum. Quite a number of tenders were received, but the lowest tenderer was awarded the contract.

A SEASONABLE RECEIPT.—An exchange says: "A little camphor sprinkled on window sills is much more effective in keeping flies out of a house than window screens. The kitchen can be rid of flies by sprinkling a little camphor occasionally on the kitchen stoves. It is worth trying.

INFLAMMATION FINE.—After several days' consideration Cadi Pattullo has arrived at the conclusion that Mr. Donner has been guilty of a breach of the early-closing by law and has fixed the penalty at $2 and costs. It is expected that Mr. D. will appeal to once and endeavor to "bust the by-law."

REGISTERING LETTERS.—W. Whitney, deputy postmaster-general, has issued a notice pointing out the necessity of people registering letters and packets containing money. He urges upon them to demand certificates of registration of letters from postmasters. If these precautions are carried out the risk of losing money will be greatly reduced.

He urges upon all to demand certificates of registered letters from postmasters. If these instructions are carried out the risk of losing money will be greatly reduced.

PICNIC.—Misses Addie Bishaby of Toronto and and Annie Meade of Hamilton, who are spending their vacation in town, were entertained by a number of their friends to a picnic at Stanley park, Erin, on Thursday last. The picnic was a most enjoyable one and all returned home feeling the better for the outing, with a wish to meet again at no distant day.

KNOX CHURCH REOPENING.—On Sabbath, Sept 6, Knox church, Charleston, will be reopened, and sermons will be delivered by Rev. Mr. Hager at 10:30 a. m. and by Rev. A. Wilson at 2:30 and 7 p. m. The church has been undergoing extensive improvements for some time past and when completed it will be a handsome edifice.

TELEPHONE EXTENSIONS.—The new Copper Metallic Circuit Lines of the Bell Telephone Co., from Toronto to Peterboro' have been completed, and will be ready for use by the public on 1st September. These lines will also give better connections between Toronto and points west of it, and Belleville, Napanee, Kingston, &c.

DEATH.—Dr. Jas. Bell, surgeon for the Grand Trunk Ry at Chicago, died on Tuesday of last week after a very short illness of tonsilitis. The deceased was a Caledon boy only 29 years of age and had been about four years in Chicago. Mr. Jas. McQuarrie, uncle of the deceased, Miss Bell and the Misses Bell, sisters, left on the midnight train to attend the funeral.—Brampton Banner.

SKIPPED.—One of the boys who was fined for throwing stones at Wm Kirby near the C. P. R station last week has quietly left for parts unknown. The P. M. fined him $2 and costs—about $11 in all—but instead of paying the fine he shook the dust of Orangeville from his feet. No trace of the missing boy has been found and the town laments the loss of police court revenue.

A CARRIER PIGEON.—A couple of weeks ago young George Ager of Toronto came to visit friends in Orangeville and brought with him a carrier pigeon. When the young lad arrived in town he tied a message to the bird's leg and set it at liberty. Just as soon as the intelligent bird was let loose it headed for the city and arrived there about three hours after leaving the capital of Dufferin.

ANOTHER GOOD ONE.—Grip for August 29th is even richer than usual, and if anything were wanting to vindicate Grip's claim to be an independent journal this issue would do it. The principal cartoons deal trenchantly, and at the same time amusingly, with the scandals of the day, and the other pictorial and literary contents are sparkling with humor. Another Irish letter from "Teddy Tierney" is among the best of the good things. Get a copy at the bookstores.

HARRY'S MISHAP.—A few minutes past 6 o'clock Saturday evening Veterinary Surgeon W. H. Riddell was driving down the 5th line, Mono, in a gig at a brisk pace and when nearing the town line the horse, which is something of a trotter, stumbled on a detective culvert and horse, gig and driver rolled over into the ditch. The gig and horse were not damaged, but Harry and the harness were pretty well used up. Mr Riddell's face was cut in several places and his right eye is in deep mourning.

SURROGATE COURT.—A McKechnie, solicitor for the executors P. C. Campbell and John Sullivan, on Tuesday 18th filed the will of the late Robert Longworth, farmer, of Albion, who died on 9th August. The estate is valued at $4,101, $2800 being realty and $1301 personality. Caveat has been filed against the will by W. J. L. McKay solicitor, Orangeville, on behalf of Mary Armstrong, daughter of deceased, who claims that the will filed was not executed by deceased.—Brampton Banner.

THAT STABBING CASE.—A week or two ago there appeared in THE SUN an account of a stabbing affray which took place on the old C. V. R. grounds, during which a young lad named George Joll was stabbed in the arm with a jack knife in the hands of a companion. At the trial on Saturday the complainant, Mrs. Joll, was not inclined to prosecute, and P. M. Pattullo bound the young offender over to keep the peace for one year and pay all costs, which amounted to $16. Other young boys who are rapidly developing into first class candidates for the penitentiary should take warning from this case.

NEARING HIS END.—Years ago Chambers Faloon was considered a prosperous farmer in the township of Amaranth, but misfortunes came thick and fast and the old man could no longer hold out against fate. At regular intervals during the last four or five years Chambers has been committed and recommitted to the Orangeville jail solely because he had not enough money to exist outside of the prison. But his race of life is almost run, and before many days go by the unfortunate man will be with those who have gone before. Some time ago he was stricken with paralysis, from which attack he has not recovered and he is forced to use a stick when walking. Just after 6 o'clock Tuesday he was walking through the lower corridor of the "castle" when he fell, striking his head a fearful blow on the stone wall. The wound is a very painful one and poor Chambers has not been able to sit up since. At present he is lying on a stretcher in the corridor and the jail officials are doing everything they can to relieve his sufferings.

THE SCRAPE IN COURT.—For the past couple of months the people around Hamville have been deeply interested in a case that was tried before P. M. Pattullo at the police court on Monday. John Murrow, a young man of East Garafraxa, had Matthew Robson, another young fellow of the same township, arrested for stealing the former's harness. Of course, as in everything that causes trouble, "there's a woman in the case," and if there had not been a female on the stage the burlesque would never have taken place. John and Matthew were madly in love with a prepossessing damsel of old East Garry, and in the terrible race that ensued John got there a little ahead of his rival. And it appears John got there to stay, and one Sunday evening while visiting his sweetheart somebody removed the harness from his old gray mare. The harness did not turn up—and has not yet—and John charged Matthew with the crime and had him arrested. The evidence at the trial was very weak and P. M. Pattullo dismissed the case and the curtain was rung down on the great comedy of the "Rival Lovers" 'mid applause and hisses from the audience.

CURIOUS CRANSTON.—Until a few months ago Thomas L. Cranston, whose parents reside at Galt, occupied the position of teller at the Bank of Commerce here, and after being a resident of this town for a year or two Thomas was removed to the Dundas branch. There was something very peculiar about Tom's anatomy, for one day he would, according to his own story, be at death's door and the next day he would be playing baseball or sporting the ladies around town. While here Tom met with many "accidents" that would prove fatal to any other person, but in his case it only took a day or two for him to recover. On Monday Tom's many friends here were somewhat shocked to see a death notice in a Toronto daily to the effect that the boy Tom had been drowned at St. Anne's, Que., the previous Friday. A great many believed that Tom had been drowned, but a few who understood the joker's character doubted the truthfulness of the report, the snake editor of this paper being included in the latter crowd. 'Phones and 'grams were sent to the "dead" boy's father at Galt by sympathetic chums of the ex Orangeville, and the replies were that he was perambulating the streets of that town in the best of health and spirits.

TERRIBLE AFFLICTION.—Among the many sad happenings that have occurred in this part of the country during the past few months there has been none more sad than that which is at present afflicting the household of Mr. George Storey, lot 8, con. 2, Amaranth. On Sunday, the 14th, Albert E., aged 10 years and 11 months, was stricken down with an attack of diphtheria in its worst form, and late Thursday night he succumbed to the terrible disease. The remains of the dead boy were interred in the Town cemetery the following day. Eight members of the family were down with the disease at the same time, and since the first death occurred two more have taken place. Alice M., a young woman of 18 years of age, was the next victim and died on Monday. The remains were also buried in the Town cemetery. At 9 o'clock the same evening Death called around again and summoned another member of the family, Richard H., a young boy of 14 years. Five other members of the family are suffering from the disease, but at last accounts nearly all of them were improving and strong hopes of their recovery are entertained. This is indeed a house of sorrow, three deaths having taken place in less than a week. The bereaved family have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in their terrible trial. The disease is supposed to have been carried from Guelph, where it is raging, by two of Mr. Storey's grandchildren who came over on a visit which will be memorable to the surviving members of the family.

BOWLING GREEN.

CONFIRMATION CLASS.—Rev. Mr. Leake is going to organize a confirmation class on Thursday night and we hope he will be successful.

RECOVERED.—Mr. Arthur Rounding, who has been suffering from sickness for some time past, has almost wholly recovered and is able to be around again.

LAID UP.—We regret to say that Mr. Hugh Fennell is seriously ill with inflammation of the bowels, but we sincerely trust he will soon be all right again.

RAIN.—The last week seriously interfered with the harvest and was lamented by all our farmers, but we hope the good crops will counteract this little drawback.

NO MORE HUCKLES.—All the berry-pickers have stopped going to the huckleberry marsh and the hive looks lonely since they've quit. But next year we hope the huckles will be more plentiful.

ON DIT.—Little birds are singing pleasantly this weather and rumors are flying thick and fast to the effect that several weddings will take place here shortly. Get up a guessing club and find out who they will be.

People Wonder

WHEN they find how rapidly health is restored by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The reason is that this preparation contains only the purest and most powerful alteratives and tonics. To thousands yearly it proves a veritable elixir of life.

Mrs. Jos. Lake, Brockway Centre, Mich., writes: "Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an in my condition, my appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life, and I cannot thank you too much."

"We, the undersigned, citizens of Brockway Centre, Mich., hereby certify that the above statement, made by Mrs. Lake, is true in every particular and entitled to full credence."—O. P. Chamberlain, G. W. Waring, C. A. Wells, Druggist.

"My brother, in England, was, for a long time, unable to attend to his occupation, by reason of sores on his foot. I sent him Ayer's Almanac and the testimonials it contained induced him to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using it a little while, he was cured, and is now a well man, working in a sugar mill at Brisbane, Queensland, Australia."—A. Attewell, Stoneboat Lake, Ontario.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT

The man who counterfeits a coin or a bank note, or who is detected in an attempt to pass a counterfeit is speedily placed in prison as a person too dangerous to be permitted to be at large. How much more dangerous is the person who, for the sake of paltry gain, endeavors to impose upon the public a dangerous and worthless counterfeit of a popular medicine. The great popularity of Pink Pills, and the wonderful results that have followed their use for the treatment of all female complaints, nervous diseases and general debility in both males and females, has induced some unscrupulous parties to place upon the market a worthless imitation, resembling the genuine Pink Pills in appearance only. The public are cautioned against these spurious imitations, and are asked to see that every box bears the trade mark and name of The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you any imitation of the genuine pill, as not only will they not produce the expected results, but may prove positively harmful. No other pill made can produce the results obtained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50c. a box) by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

almost at the same moment the door of the little parlor was opened, and the landlord and his wife presented themselves in a sheepish and uncomfortable manner.

"I beg your pardon, Sir Hilton," said the landlord; "I am a quiet man, and I wouldn't wish to be disrespectful——"

"Oh, hold your tongue, Tom," interposed his wife, who had cast a reminiscing glance at the aspect of affairs around her. "You are as long-winded as an organ bellows. The long and short of it, Sir Hilton, is, that these two men spies of Sir Anthony, they are nothing better are getting mighty curious about your stopping so long; and I think the sooner you goes up to the house the better. Are these sailors friends of yours, sir?"

"No," said Sir Hilton, shortly.

"Then I must make bold to say, I can't have no disturbance of the peace at my house," broke in the landlord; "and if they are your men, Mr. Vigo, you had best take 'em off at once."

"Hold your noise, Tom," said his wife, "Yong Squire Vigo hean't nothing to do with this lot, I know; these are folks who have rolled a keg in shore many a night."

"You are mistaken, Mrs. Kinsman," said Charles Vigo; these men are part of the crew of my yacht. Shoulder the baggage, my lads!"

"I've nothing to say agin your going a course in your own yacht, Mr. Vigo, even 'long with oogly company," said the landlady; "but that's Miss Varcoe's box, and she isn't a-going I reckon?"

"Mistaken again," said the young man, laughing "I am sorry to have kept you up late, Mrs. Kinsman, but we shall be off in a minute, and then you can shut up comfortably."

The landlord's fat face turned yellow, but his wife bristled forward angrily

"I shan't stand by and see this,' said she. "I don't help in no such doings. Old Squire Vigo would never forgive me to the longest day I have to live. Ellis! Vinning! you had best come here."

She raised her voice, calling to Sir Anthony's men, who lost in tobacco smoke and beer, had cared very little for the hushed conversation between Olive and Sir Hilton in the parlor.

"This young lady is going right off at once," observed Mrs. Kinsman, "that's contrary to orders, I reckon, isn't it?"

"You can't go, Miss," said the constable, in a surly way.

"What right have you to stop either her or me?" demanded Charles Vigo. "Have you any warrant against this young lady?"

"Mr. Eslick has," grumbled the man.

"Then let Mr. Eslick come and execute it," said Charles Vigo. "I do not intend to stop any man in the execution of his duty, but I will endure no interference from others. Make way for us to pass."

With Olive clinging to his arm, Charles Vigo walked towards the door, and Sir Anthony's two spies found themselves in a moment hustled, overpowered, and pinned in a corner.

"Now, my dears, we don't to hurt 'ee" observed one huge Cornishman, as his fists played on the constable's ribs, "but if you don't keep quiet, I shall be forced to gev'ee a Cornish hug. I shall, sure. We be peaceable men, we be going about our own business, and if ocher folks put their noses into it, and meets with a fist, the fault isn't ours, I reckon"

This was said in the blandest way between bruises and crunchers, that came down heavily upon the chest and face of Sir Anthony's unfortunate spy

The landlord and landlady of the "Trowayas Arms" had at first inclined to join in the fray, but prudence, and perhaps something in Sir Hilton's looks, deterred them. The whole affair was over in a minute, and Olive, Charles Vigo, and the men, were gone. As their tramp resounded through the dead quiet of the slumbering village, the church clock struck twelve, and Sir Hilton, rousing himself at the sound from some strange bewilderment rushed past the discomfited watchers and followed Olive with a swift foot

Stick to the Right.

Right action springs from right principles. In cases of diarrhœa, dysentery, cramps, colic, summer complaint, cholera morbus, etc., stick to the right remedy, to take a Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry—an outstanding cure—made on this principle that nature is right, and never travels with out it.

REFLECTIONS.

Mothers and Nurses.

ALL who have the care of children should know that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry may be confidently depended on to cure all summer complaints, diarrhœa, dysentery, cramps, colic, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, cankers, etc., in children and adults.

SUNBEAMS.

NOT NECESSARY.

"Do you know how to cook?" he said.

"No," she replied sweetly, "but pa has money enough to hire a woman to do the cooking for us."

CIRCUMSTANCES PREVENTED.

Clara—Did you see Miss Palisade in her new Paris bathing dress?

Maude—No; I was with a gentleman as we passed by, and I didn't dare look.

FROZEN OUT.

"Could you not, if you tried, grant me a place in that icy heart of yours?"

"My heart may be of ice, as you say, Mr. Sophleigh. But, all the same, I am yet in the cold-storage business."

VERY TRUE.

Wife—I'm afraid I scoulded the children rather severely while making preserves to day.

Husband—You should have preserved your temper, too.

Wife—How could I when I lost it?

AN UNPARDONABLE LAPSE

Clara—Why, I thought you knew the De peyster girl.

Maude—I did but I don't speak to her any more. The other evening I saw her eating chocolate ice cream in a pink gown.

NOT THE RIGHT QUALITY.

Dashaway—Sorry you haven't but one cigar, old man

Cleverton—Yes (puff); feel as I wouldn't think (puff) of giving one of these cigars to a (puff) friend of mine

Dashaway—Pretty good, are they?

SUSPICIOUS.

"What kind of a girl is that whose acquaintance you made the other day?"

"Very nice, but a little too warm in her manner"

"Too warm? Do you complain of that?"

"Not exactly, but her warmth raises the suspicion that she is somebody's old flame."

A SUCCESS.

"Yes" said Mr. Henpecked, "woman is unboubtedly the masterpiece of creation."

"H'm!" said Mrs. H, "then you do think there is some good in woman?"

"Yes; when man was created he was lonely and needed some one to talk to him, and woman was created for that purpose and she's a success.

NOT WHEN HE HAD HIS ARM AROUND HER

Mamma——Haun't you better come in now, dear?

Gladys Heabeau Oh, mamma, such a lovely night. May'n I stay out a little while longer?

Mamma (solicitously)—It's getting quite chilly. Have you anything around you?

Gladys—Oh, yes; lots!

Mamma—Very well, then.

THE BEST FAMILY PILL IN USE

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS

Keep the Works in good order.

NORMAN, Ont., January 15, 1891.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—Your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" are the best regulator for the system that humanity can use. Life is at the time piece; frail and delicate are many of its works. A tiny particle of foreign substance adheres to the smallest wheel in the works, and what is the result?—at first, only a slight difference is perceptible in its time-keeping, but wait you; as the obstruction grows, the irregularity becomes greater, until at last, what could have been rectified with little trouble, in the beginning, will now require much care in thoroughly cleansing the entire works. So it is in human life—a slight derangement is neglected, it grows and increases, imperceptibly at first, then rapidly, until what could, in the beginning, have been cured with little trouble, becomes chronic and fatal. To prevent this, I advise all to purify the system frequently, by the use of Morse's Pills, and so preserve vigor and vitality.

Yours faithfully,

E. F. ATWELL.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—For many years, I have been a firm believer in your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills." Not with a blind faith, but a confidence wrought by an actual personal experience of their value and merit. My business is such that I spend much of my time away from home, and I would not consider my travelling outfit complete without a box of Morse's Pills.

FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMPOUND

BRONCHITIS

185 Lexington Ave., New York City, Sept. 19, 1890.

I have used the Flax-Seed Emulsion in several cases of Chronic Bronchitis, and the early stages of Consumption, and have met with marked results.

JAMES R. CROOK, M.D.

CONSUMPTION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 24th, 1890.

I have used your Emulsion in a case of Phthisis (Consumption) with beneficial results, where patient could not use Cod Liver Oil in any form.

J. H. DAGGE, M.D.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 27th, 1890.

I can strongly recommend Flax Seed Emulsion as helpful to the relief and possibly the cure of all Lung, Bronchial and Nervous Affections, and a good general tonic in physical debility.

JOHN P. TALMAGE, M.D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 10th, 1890.

I regard Flax Seed Emulsion as greatly superior to the Cod Liver Oil Emulsions so generally in use.

D. A. CORTON, M.D.

WASTING DISEASES

122 West 54th St., New York, Aug. 6, 1890.

I have used your Flax-Seed Emulsion Compound in a severe case of Mal-nutrition and the result was more than hoped for—it was marvelous, and consistent. I recommend it cheerfully to the profession and humanity at large. M. H. GILBERT, M.D.

astonishing glance at the aspect of affairs around her. "You are as long-winded as an organ bellows. The long and short of it, Sir Hilton, is, that these two men spies of Sir Anthony, they are nothing better are getting mighty curious about your stopping so long; and I think the sooner you goes up to the house the better. Are these sailors friends of yours, sir?"

"No," said Sir Hilton, shortly.

"Then I must make bold to say, I can't have no disturbance of the peace at my house," broke in the landlord; "and if they are your men, Mr. Vigo, you had best take 'em off at once."

"Hold your noise, Tom," said his wife, "Yoog Squire Vigo hasn't nothing to do with this lot, I know; these are folks who have rolled a keg in shore many a night."

"You are mistaken, Mrs. Kinsman," said Charles Vigo; these men are part of the crew of my yacht. Shoulder the baggage, my lads!"

"I've nothing to say agin your going a course in your own yacht, Mr. Vigo, even 'long with oogly company," said the landlady; "but that's Miss Varcoe's box, and she isn't a-going I reckon?"

"Mistaken again," said the young man, laughing. "I am sorry to have kept you up late, Mrs. Kinsman, but we shall be off in a minute, and then you can shut up comfortably."

The landlord's fat face turned yellow, but his wife bristled forward angrily.

"I shan't stand by and see this," said she. "I don't help in no such doings. Old Squire Vigo would never forgive me to the longest day I have to live. Ellis! Vinning! you had best come here."

She raised her voice, calling to Sir Anthony's men, who lost in tobacco smoke and beer, had cared very little for the hushed conversation between Olive and Sir Hilton in the parlor.

"This young lady is going right off at once," observed Mrs. Kinsman; "that's contrary to orders, I reckon, isn't it?"

"You can't go, Miss," said the constable, in a surly way.

"What right have you to stop either her or me?" demanded Charles Vigo. "Have you any warrant against this young lady?"

"Mr. Eslick has," grumbled the man.

"Then let Mr. Eslick come and execute it," said Charles Vigo. "I do not intend to stop any man in the execution of his duty, but I will endure no interference from others. Make way for us to pass."

With Olive clinging to his arm, Charles Vigo walked towards the door, and Sir Anthony's two spies found themselves in a moment hustled, overpowered, and pinned in a corner.

"Now, my dears, we don't to hurt 'ee" observed one huge Cornishman, as his fists played on the constable's ribs, "but if you don't keep quiet, I shall be forced to gev'ee a Cornish hug. I shall, sure. We be peaceable men, we be going about our own business, and if ocher folks put their noses into it, and meets with a fist, the fault isn't ours, I reckon."

This was said in the blandest way between bruises and crunches, that came down heavily upon the chest and face of Sir Anthony's unfortunate spy.

The landlord and landlady of the "Trewavas Arms" had at first inclined to join in the fray, but prudence, and perhaps something in Sir Hilton's looks, deterred them. The whole affair was over in a minute, and Olive, Charles Vigo, and the men, were gone. As their tramp resounded through the dead quiet of the slumbering village, the church clock struck twelve, and Sir Hilton, leaning himself at the sound, from some strange bewilderment, rushed past the discomfited watchers and followed Olive with a swift foot.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Stick to the Right.

Right action springs from right principles. In cases of diarrhœa, dysentery, cramp, colic, summer complaint, cholera morbus, etc., the right remedy to take is Plant Extract of Wild Strawberry, an outstanding curiosity on this principle that nature provides a remedy for every ailment. Never travel without it.

REFLECTIONS.

Bread cast upon the water purely as a business speculation is liable to sink before reaching port.

Don't worry your brain about the man in the moon, but study the man in your own overcoat.

The true prince will find it easier to disguise himself than the world would have him believe.

FIRE INSURANCE.—If you want to be insured in the strongest and best companies in Canada, call on F. Irwin, over Badscott's store.

Mothers and Nurses.

ALL who have the care of children should know that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry may be confidently depended on to cure all summer complaints, diarrhœa, dysentery, cramps, colic, cholera, infantum, cholera morbus, canker, etc., in children and adults.

"Could you eat, if you tried, great me a piece in that lay heart of yours?"

"My heart may be of lee, as you say, Mr. Sophleigh. But, all the same, I am yet in the cold-storage business."

VERY TRUE.

Wife—I'm afraid I scolded the children rather severely while making preserves to day.

Husband—You should have preserved your temper, too.

Wife—How could I when I lost it?

Clara—Why, I thought you knew the De peyster girl.

Maude—I did but I don't speak to her any more. The other evening I saw her eating chocolate ice cream in a pink gown.

NOT THE RIGHT QUALITY.

Dashaway—Sorry you haven't but one cigar, old man.

Cleverton—Yes (puff); fact is I wouldn't think (puff) of giving one of these cigars to a (puff) friend of mine.

Dashaway—Pretty good, are they?

SUSPICIOUS.

"What kind of a girl is that whose acquaintance you made the other day?"

"Very nice, but a little too warm in her manner."

"Too warm? Do you complain of that?"

"Not exactly, but her warmth raises the suspicion that she is somebody's old flame."

A SUCCESS.

"Yes" said Mr. Henpeked, "woman is unboubtedly the masterpiece of creation."

"H'm!" said Mrs. H., "then you do think there is some good in woman?"

"Yes; when man was created he was lonely and needed some one to talk to him, and woman was created for that purpose and she's a success."

NOT WHEN HE HAD HIS ARM AROUND HER.

Mamma—Haven't you better come in now, dear?

Gladys Heabeau Oh, mamma, such a lovely night. Mayn't I stay out a little while longer?

Mamma (solicitously)—It's getting quite chilly. Have you anything around you?

Gladys—Oh, yes; lots!

Mamma—Very well, then.

THE BEST FAMILY PILL IN USE

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS

Keep the Works in good order.

HERMAN, Ont., January 13, 189.

W. H. COMSTOCK, Brockville, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—Your "Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills" are the best regulator for the system that humanity can use. Life is as the time piece; full and delicate are many of its works. A tiny particle of foreign substance adheres to the smallest wheel in the works, and what is the result?—at first, only a slight difference is perceptible in its time-keeping, but wait yet; as the obstruction grows, the irregularity becomes greater, until at last, what could have been rectified with little trouble, in the beginning, will now require much care in thoroughly cleansing the entire works. So it is in human life—a slight derangement is neglected, it grows and increases, imperceptibly at first, then rapidly, until what could, in the beginning, have been cured with little trouble, becomes almost fatal. To prevent this, I advise all to purify the system frequently, by the use of Morse's Pills, and so preserve vigor and vitality.

Yours faithfully,
H. F. ATWELL.

FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMPOUND

BRONCHITIS

185 Lexington Ave., New York City, Sept. 19, 1888.

I have used the Flax-Seed Emulsion in several cases of Chronic Bronchitis, and the early stages of Phthisis, and have always found with the results.

JAMES K. CROOK, M.D.

CONSUMPTION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 14th, 1888.

I have used your Emulsion in a case of Phthisis, the patient taking it with benefit, it seems, where pulmonic disease and cod liver oil failed to do any good.

J. H. DROOP, M. D.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 20th, 1888.

I was strongly recommended Flax Seed Emulsion as helpful in the relief and possibly the cure of all Lung, Bronchial and Nervous Affections, and a good general tonic in physical debility.

JOHN F. TALMADE, M. D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 10th, 1888.

I regard Flax Seed Emulsion as greatly superior to the Cod Liver Oil Mixtures so generally in use.

D. A. GORTON, M. D.

WASTING DISEASES

157 West 84th St., New York, Aug. 8, 1888.

I have used your Flax-Seed Emulsion Compound in a severe case of Malnutrition and the result was more than hoped for—it was marvelous, and continuous. I recommend it cheerfully to the profession and humanity at large.

M. H. GILBERT, M.D.

RHEUMATISM

WHY COUGH,
WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use.

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."
"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Yonker, Salem, N. Y.
"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. S. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

SEARCHING THE TITLE.

She was a real estate broker's daughter,
With eyes of a heavenly blue,
And nobody ever had sought her,
So the maid I determined to woo.

We often together went roaming
Along by the marge of the sea,
And I asked her one eve in the gloaming
If her heart's young affections were free.

And her kindness I'll never forget, sir,
And to love her I never shall cease,
For she answered, "My heart is to let, sir,
And on a perpetual lease."

CHAPTER XIII.

IN that loveliest of bay bays, above which stood the Lovers' Seat, with its roof of honeysuckle and jasmine, and its surrounding bower of perfumed shrubs, a large and well manned boat rested on its oars. Upon the white sands, glittering ghostly in the moonlight, the spare figure of Mr. Heriot paced up and down impatiently.

"There goes twelve o'clock," he said, as the chimes from the church across the park faintly reached him; "and that confounded packet sails at two. Upon my word, I believe these Trewavases mean to hang the girl, after all!"

But, as he spoke, Sir Hilton Trewavas came rapidly down the narrow and steep gorge leading from the park above, and ran rapidly to meet him.

"I guessed you would be waiting here," he said.

"Where is the girl?" inquired Mr. Heriot, shortly.

"With Charles Vigo," replied Sir Hilton. "She has refused my aid. She goes with him I know not whither. He has got a crew of smugglers together, and if the police overtake them there will be a fight. I watched them get into a boat on that little lonely creek, which runs up between the wooded cliffs on the other side of the village; then I ran hither. The creek winds and twists for more than a mile before it reaches the bay. Ah, there is the boat now creeping out! It keeps in the dark fringe of shadow made by the cliffs. Do you see it?"

Sir Hilton's own boat was so close in-shore that nearly every word of this dialogue had been heard by the crew; and now one among them—a man in a large pilot coat and slouched hat—started up from the darkness in which he sat shrouded, and displayed to their astonished gaze the serenely smiling face of Mr. Eslick.

"I take the command of this boat," he cried, in an authoritative voice. "Give way, men! Follow the boat you see yonder?"

"Throw down your oars, every one of you!" exclaimed Sir Hilton. "Obey that fellow's orders if you dare!"

"Mr. Heriot, I call upon you to assist me in the discharge of my duty," cried the excited Mr. Eslick. "I have a warrant here to arrest Olive Varcoe on a charge of murder. Give way, men—give way!"

"You must let them go Sir Hilton," whispered Mr. Heriot; "there is no help for it. We are in for a fight if we overtake the smugglers, that's certain."

The agile old mummy sprang into the boat as he spoke, and Sir Hilton Trewavas followed him mechanically.

"I take the helm," said Mr. Eslick, seizing the rudder. "Row for your lives, men! Yonder boat has not seen us yet; their oars go lazily, and we shall overtake her."

There is an excitement in a race which human nature cannot resist, and as the men bent to their oars, even the little dried lawyer, whose bones crackled like parchment as he moved, scanned them with a kindling eye, and with a spot of color rising in his sapless face.

As the boat passed out of the shadow of the cliffs into the full glare of the moonlight, Sir Hilton saw with intense vexation, that the crew did not consist of his own men, but of strangers. In all things, then, Mr. Eslick had been before him in stratagem, and his own rowers had been got rid of by some ruse or by the terrors of the law; and had he brought Olive down here, he would only have led her into a well-concerted part. It was easy to understand now why she was left almost unwatched, and unmolested at the village inn. Mr. Mr. Eslick read the young man's thoughts, and a most seraphic smile broke over his fat face.

"I was sorry to take a liberty with your crew and your boat," said he, "but in the execution of duty ceremony must stand aside. I was obliged to place men there on whom I could depend. You perceive I made sure the young lady would accept your help. I am sorry we are all disappointed. Ah! they see at last we are pulling them. Give way, lads! They are rowing like demons."

It was true that Charles Vigo's crew had set at first perceived that the other boat was following them. Unwilling, perhaps, to attract attention by unnecessary speed, they had piled their oars leisurely, and therefore allowed Mr. Eslick's men to shorten the distance considerably between them; but now they suddenly awoke to suspicion, and the steady, swift stroke of their oars jerked the large gig forward like a bird; but Sir Hilton's pleasure-boat was lighter and smaller, and, to his bitter chagrin, he saw it gaining inch by inch on Olive's ark of refuge.

The moonlight poured down on the set, resolute faces of the crew, and on the beaming countenance of Mr. Eslick, whose smiles grew more and more seraphic as the distance shortened between the two boats; and soon, by the phosphoric light dripping from the swift le plied oars, the faces of the pursuers and the pursued became plainly visible to each other.

Charles Vigo sat in the stern of the gig, guiding the rudder with a skilful hand; his face was flushed, and his lips were fixed tightly together, and his frank blue eyes there quivered a light that flashed across the moonlit sea up on Sir Hilton's shrinking figure.

"Is it you, Sir Hilton Trewavas?" he cried, scornfully. "Give way, lads! The sight of a traitor makes my blood too hot this summer night."

A stroke of the oars from hands that seemed to have a giant's strength carried the boat forward like an arrow out of ear-shot; and Sir Hilton, with a shiver over his strong frame, held back the words that had sprung to his lips. But again their own boat shot forward, her greater lightness and speed making up for the superior strength of the smugglers, and the distance between the two grew momentarily less and less. And now it was that Mr. Eslick caught sight of a figure, wrapped in a large cloak, crouching at Charles Vigo's feet,—a figure so shrouded that nothing of it was visible, except a lady's hat and veil.

"Poor little thing!" said he, a smile of rapture playing over his vapid features. "I am glad to see her safe. We shall be down upon them in a minute now. Really, Sir Hilton, for the sake of humanity, one feels sorry for her; she is so very young, you know."

"Confound it, man hold your tongue," said Mr. Heriot; "a policeman should always keep that impish memory of the human head between his lips."

Now Mr. Eslick did not like to be called "policeman;" as head superintendent of that district, he considered himself quite above such language as this; so he resented it in his usual way, by smiling with supernatural amiability, as he said, blandly, "I believe I know my own business, Mr. Heriot, and I don't wish to be interrupted in my duty by uncalled-for remarks. But for the extra weight of yourself, and Sir Hilton Trewavas in this boat, I should have secured my prisoner before this. Now then, men, two strokes more, and we have them, by—"

An unmistakable oath dropped from the lips of Mr. Eslick, as the two boats got neck and neck with each other. There was no cowardice in the man; his yellow flabby face grew not one whit uglier or yellower as Charles Vigo's crew saluted their pursuers in language of too strong a description to be written.

"Keep off, you d—d ugly varmints. What are you fouling our boat for?" cried one voice.

"Mr. Vigo, I charge you not to break the Queen's peace!" shouted Mr. Eslick in an authoritative tone. "Bid your men to stop rowing, and give up my prisoner, Olive Varcoe."

"Come and take her, you sniggering, mealy-mouthed villain, and be d—d to you!" retorted a second voice.

"Silence, men!" said Charles Vigo. "Am I to understand you are pursuing my boat in search of Miss Varcoe?"

"Yes, I have a warrant against her," replied Mr. Eslick.

"Really," said Charles Vigo, "I thought Sir Hilton Trewavas was trying the skill of his boat's crew against mine. Up with your oars, men! This is no friendly race; it is something rarer—It is a Cornish baronet turned policeman."

The boats grappled as he spoke, and his men, restored suddenly to wondrous good humor, received Mr. Eslick with a great affectation of politeness, and a broad grin of delight, as that gentleman stepped on board and made his way to the stern, smiling more sweetly than he had ever done before. More gentle was his voice, as he stooped down, and laid his hand on the little figure lying still at Charles Vigo's feet.

"Miss Varcoe," said he, "I regret to say it is my painful duty to make you my prisoner."

Then the shawl, the hat and veil fell down, and with a growl and unmistakable snap at the superintendent's fingers, the good dog Bolster stood confessed, his teeth dangerously visible.

A roar of laughter shook the boat from end to end—a roar that rang out into the sky, and began and ended, and began again. The laughter was contagious, for Mr. Eslick's own men joined in it, while the little fusty mummy from the Inns of Court shook and rattled all his bones in glee.

For the first time in his life Mr. Eslick tried to smile, and failed. The attempt was mechanical, for the man was ghastly pale with fury.

"What is the meaning of this?" he tried. "Where is that woman?"

"Keep a civil tongue in your head, policeman," returned Charles Vigo, quietly. "There are no women here, you perceive."

"And there's only one baby, and that's me," said the same huge giant who had bamboozled Sir Anthony's friend "I am the celebrated Cornish baby, six foot six in my stockings, and there isn't a sweeter-tempered infant between this and Lunnun charaktawn."

Charles Vigo checked quickly the laughter that followed this speech.

"Mr Eslick," said he, "having satisfied yourself that Miss Varcoe is not here, I presume you have no further business with me? You had better leave my boat unless you wish to be carried out to sea."

"I shall go on board your yacht, sir, in search of my prisoner," replied Mr. Eslick.

"You are welcome," said Charles Vigo. "The yacht lies in Borrigo Pool six miles from this; your nearest way to it will be across the hills. Have you anything further to say?"

"Yes," said he, "you are not aware, perhaps, that you are guilty of a felony in aiding the escape of a criminal; but such is the case, Mr. Vigo; and I trust the magistrates will prosecute you for the offence."

"I aid no criminal," replied Charles Vigo; "but I am proud to be a friend of Miss Varcoe's. I am proud to defend a most innocent and cruelly aspersed lady."

"I am sorry for your blindness, Mr. Vigo," said Mr. Eslick, his smile returning again to him.

"I am sorry for yours, Mr. Eslick," said Charles. "Take care that I do not prove a better policeman than you. I have sworn to bring the murderer of Eleanor Maristowe to justice, and I will do it. No matter where the coward hides, my hand shall drag him forth and give him up to justice."

"Upon my word," said Mr. Heriot to himself, "that country lad has a glimmer of intelligence in him."

"Sir Hilton Trewavas," continued Charles Vigo, turning to where the young baronet sat, silent and moody, "henceforth I shall be ashamed to confess that you and I are neighbors. You have played a sadly ignoble part to night; and if I do not tell you all I think of it, I am silent, not for your sake, but for that of Lady Trewavas."

"You mistake altogether the part I have played to-night, Mr. Vigo," returned; Sir Hilton; "but your opinion is of little consequence to me."

"You two hot blooded young fellows will be quarrelling in a minute," observed Mr. Eslick, grimly. "Widen the distance between us, my men; this is not precisely the place for a free fight."

"But don't leave Sir Hilton's friend, the policeman, in my boat, if you please," said Charles Vigo.

"Don't see trouble yourselves to row any nearer," remarked the Cornish giant, with the blandest politeness; "I'll hand the wisht little hoddymandoddy over to see. Lor' sure, he can't heavier than a pedupaly."

This last word is Cornish for a tom tit, and certainly Mr. Eslick felt himself quite as small as that diminutive bird, as the giant took him up in one hand, and dropped him into the other boat with no very soft fall."

"I hope you aren't hurt, my dear," observed the Cornishman; "I am cruel 'feared the thwart was hard. Rub 'un down a bit, sons (friends), with th' oars; that 'ull bring 'un too. Well, good night to 'ee comrades, and a pleasant poll home!"

Mr Heriot took off his hat as Charles Vigo's boat rowed away, and he kept it off till the young man's frank face grew dim and misty in the night air; then he turned his smoke-dried and withered eyes upon a face of quite a different aspect.

"I hope you are satisfied with your night's work, Mr. Eslick, he said, politely.

That discomfited individual was ill able to recover his smiles and his self-possession; nevertheless he made a commendable effort to do so.

"We are all liable to mistakes, Mr Heriot," said he. "My mistake was that I watched the wrong gentleman. I made certain Sir Hilton was the favorite. I am sure, sir, I beg your pardon, that I should have thought, even for a minute, that you would befriend that girl. It's really quite awful to see young Mr. Vigo led away, and blinded as he is. I see how it is; they landed her in the creek, and then pulled out here for a blind. She's hid away somewhere close home, and no doubt my men at the inn will know where."

Sir Hilton Trewavas was too proud to make any reply. He was galled by every incident of the night; he was fiercely angry with himself for having followed Mr. Heriot into the boat, and he was enraged with Charles Vigo for misinterpreting his presence; moreover he was bitterly ashamed of his own weakness with regard to Olive. It was horrible to him to hear his name coupled with the runaway criminal, whom police men were hunting up and down the country. Her crime at first had seemed to him wildly strange, a fate brought on her through her love for him; but the curse through which he had just passed vulgarized it, rendered it a common every day affair, a mere brutal murder, committed by female spite. And, after all, there was no grand passion, no absorbing, maddening love to redeem it. For how could the woman that so coarsely eloped with Charles Vigo ever have loved him, Sir Hilton Trewavas?

In Borrigo Pool the little yacht "Pixy" lay at anchor; but when Mr. Eslick boarded her in hot haste, there were not only no signs of a lady's presence to be found, but apparently there was no preparation made for a cruise, and no intention on the part of her owner to remove her from her moorings.

Old Mr. Vigo knew nothing of his son. The young man had not returned home since the morning he had departed with Mr. Dumetvel on that melancholy search. It now became evident that, simple as he looked, he had known how to baffle the astute Mr. Eslick and the malignant Sir Anthony Roskelly. In vain both put forth all their powers, hunting far and near for Olive Varcoe. After a hue and cry of many weeks, they were fain to confess that their search was hopeless.

She had escaped! and after her vanished figure flew the arrows of scorn, indignation, and hatred. A shadow of horror grew round her name. The few voices that dared to raise themselves in her behalf were silenced, half ashamed of their own pity and their own doubt. Unheard, she was pronounced guilty, and condemned by a universal hiss of execration.

A strong tide of sympathy ran towards Mr. Vigo, left lonely in his house; a still deeper flow greeted Mrs. Maristowe at every turn, exalting her to the crown of martyrdom without the suffering, and giving to her feebleness an interest it never possessed before. And if a fresher stream of kindliness set in towards Trewavas, there was still sufficient to uphold the family in their place in the county; and even their enemies dared not that they had connived at Olive's crime, or assisted in her flight.

Thus the suspicions that Sir Anthony Roskelly and Mrs. Maristowe had flung at Trewavas died away, and the old name stood out in men's minds as proud and unsullied as ever.

At first there was a great burst of popular indignation against the little coroner, and he was called upon to resign by half the county; but he defended himself with great spirit, recapitulating the evidence, and showing that no other verdict could have been returned on it. The police were the chief parties to blame for this. They had dwelt but little on Mr. Vigo's absence, whereas it was evident he was a very important witness, and his subsequent departure with the accused showed he had a motive for his silence not guessed at before. The police had reckoned on the girl Tamson as their chief witness, but beyond an assertion that she had knocked twice at Miss Varcoe's door, and received no answer, she really seemed to have nothing of importance to say.

This, and a great deal more of the same kind, was the coroner's defence; and it will be seen by it that Sir Hilton Trewavas had bidden higher for the Skews' family than Sir Anthony Roskelly, while Dr Burton had known how to keep his own counsel.

As a rule, this is an art in which the medical profession might always graduate with honors. If doctors had the tongues of lawyers, or the pride of parsons, what would become of the world? Luckily for suffering humanity, the spirit of the Pharisee, and the coat of the Inns of Court, are not often found beneath the poor coat of the soother and healer. Body and mind are so near a kin, that while he comforts the one he consoles the other; and to him are constantly laid bare sorrows that would never be told to the Law, or confessed to the Church; and these secrets—let us record it gratefully—spoken perhaps in the saddest moments of human weakness, are never betrayed to the babbling and sneering world. Many a man who has proved friends false, and kin cruel, has found both truth and kindness in that insignificant member of the healing art who soothes his sentinary bedside; and if in some rare instance to be silent is to aid in keeping some guilty secret, even this is far better than to be a proclaimer of men's sins on the house-tops. The world cannot afford to make the medical profession the avengers of society. Let fools blab and idlers gossip, wise men hold their peace on many things.

And nature is mighty in her silence. Down in the deep mines where the great laboratories of the earth seethe in their monster caldrons their wealth of ores; or, in the sap of tree and stalk of herb, whence springs the wonderful profusion of leaf and flower, all is silent. Happy they who can copy Nature in this—to do their work diligently, and be still.

Throughout the daily torture of this talking time, while journals teemed with sarcasm, advice, rebuke and slander, and enemies hissed, and friends pitied, both Lady Trewavas and Sir Hilton bore their part bravely. John alone, silent and patient as he was, broke at times into fits of burning indignation when the tongue of gossip or the

WITH PEAS IN THEIR SHOES.

Robert L. Patterson, A. W. Croll, John F. Ellis left for Ottawa last night to give evidence before the Public Accounts Committee. They were accompanied by the editor of the Mimico Craftsman, who is to give expert testimony, and all seemed to be in good spirits at North Toronto where Her Majesty's typefounder got aboard. He was accompanied to the station by a party of friends, who bade him be of stout heart. His brother George cried out: "Be sure Bob and wear the electric belt I gave you when you go in the box, and don't forget the electric soles in your boots when they put you on the plates" The typefounder's friends were with him all day, and encouraged him for the trying ordeal by befitting conversation. Mr. Charley Taylor of the Globe read to him appropriate extracts from a little book he had in his hand, and Mr. Farrer sent him a couple of religious works. His friends also promised to wire him messages of consolation and comfort in the morning.—Thursday's World.

MEN AND MONEY.

John Ireland's Discourse on the Disclosures at Ottawa.

To the Editor of THE SUN:

DEAR SIR,—The disclosures at Ottawa are creating a sensation, but they should not, the thing to be wondered at is, not that men have stolen money, but the concurrent opportunities to do so. It is difficult to decide who is the more censurable, the man that steals money or the careless or conspiring man who is its custodian. Men are like the metals, every metal has its peculiar point of fusion It will stand solid till this degree is reached, then it dissolves. So it is with men, they stand firm till that degree of temptation is reached which overmatches their moral cohesion, then, too, they melt. Tin melts at 440o, iron at 700o, but platina requires the concentrated rays of burning mirrors:—we have tin men and we have iron men. The analogy is capable of farther extension, the metals, if subjected to particular treatment, stand a higher degree, so it is with men, treatment varies their fusing point. The yielding or resistance of the same man depends on circumstances, opportunies and conditions; and as there are very commonly beyond his control, his moral accountability is uniform. Extreme poverty tempts and sometimes even justifies a man in stealing, but the wealthy educated thief has no such excuse. Opportunities have much to do in these matters; if they happen to be favorable, the man is apt to give way. There are men temptation—proof against money and liquor but yield easily to woman; and the better the condition the greater the danger; hence, clergyman who had taken upon themselves the vow of continence have to guard against conditions as well as against temptation. The power to resist is always greater than the temptation, else there could be no moral accountability. We yield, however, by thousands, daily, not through want of power, but through want of will to exercise it. Both the doctrine of human volitation is too extensive to abstruse for the ordinary newspaper readers. A dark cloud is rising over the "Baie des Chaleur" affair that will divide public attention It is a pity that such men as Sir Hector Langevin and Count Mercier do not possess better financial finesse than to be caught in the common trap. The disclosures will discount knight hood and pontifical benediction; both of which should be sacredly respected; the effect will be to make Her Majesty and His Holiness more careful in the conference of future honors. At present Truth and Honesty are more coquired for than title. How ever much we practice falsehood and dishonesty ourselves, we want truth and honesty in others. To get a race of honest men is the great social problem Where shall we start the work? Should the church begin or should the common school begin? Dishonesty is costing the country so much that the subject is a mere economic point of view demands immediate attention. My own opinion is, the school should begin. At present the cardinal virtues are mentioned only incidentally; the reason for the omission seems to be, that, the virtues will be learned in the school of the social and business world. But this is an error Our business in the big school is rather to baffle roguery than to practise honesty. The Church sabbatically is combatting the vices, though she can hardly expurge herself of them. Her members had better pilfer less and pray less. I would rather deal with a plain honest man under a church curse, (anathema) than with a rogue bedizened with the insignia of holy orders. The fact is, we pray too much and do too little; we are continually asking God to do what we could but will not do; this is where the "ancies" comes in. Business prayer is fashionable, hypocritical and profitless. It is the sign of goodness without goodness; just as cheap jewellery is a sign of wealth without wealth. Genuine goodness requires so much restraint so much selfdenial that few have the courage to engage in it. Acknowledgment is about as far as I can get myself

JOHN IRELAND.

"Samuel Holdman, Tilly Foster Mines, New York," is the name and address of a gentleman who deals in "green goods" and is sending out circulars through the country, Mr. Holdman requests a purchaser to telegraph "Send sample of ore" upon receipt of which full instructions regarding green goods will be sent and a meeting arranged. In his circular the swindler says: Don't as long as you ever live write me a letter."

Recently an Elderslie farmer was compelled to pay about $12 for taking his pigs away from a man who was driving them to pound and for using abusive language. Interference with a person who is taking stock to pound is a serious offence in the eyes of the law.

A LONELY DEATH!

Young Archibald Milloy Left Alone in a Barn to Die!

A SAD, SAD STORY FROM EAST GARAFRAXA.

SOMEBODY SHOULD SUFFER FOR THIS SHAMEFUL NEGLECT.

NO INQUEST HELD!

The saddest and gloomiest affair that has ever taken place in East Garafraxa occurred a short distance from Reading some time yesterday morning. The victim of the tragedy—for which it really was—is a young man named Archibald Milloy, 20 years of age, who was working for Robert Donaldson, a well-known farmer of that district. Mr. Donaldson owns several farms in that neighborhood, and on Tuesday his men were drawing oats from a field into the barn. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon young Milloy, who was always in the best of health, took suddenly ill with cholera morbus and laid down on the barn floor. Six o'clock came and the young fellow was no better, but instead of taking him into the house

HIS HEARTLESS COMPANIONS

let him remain in the barn—a fitting place for a poor sick boy! One of Mr. Donaldson's sons remained with the sufferer until midnight, when he left for his cosy couch at home. Young Donaldson said Milloy was some better when he left him at 12 o'clock, but this story is probably not correct, as the sick lad must have been growing weaker all the time. About 8 o'clock yesterday morning two of Mr. McKitrick's little children, who reside on this farm, went down to the barn and saw Milloy's lifeless body lying there, but the little innocents were not aware the poor fellow was dead. As the children could not arouse what they supposed to be the sleeping boy they went and told their mother that "Archey was sleeping in the barn and would not wake up." Mrs McKetrick hurried to the building and, to her horror, she discovered that the grim reaper having come around probably several hours before.

YOUNG MILLOY WAS DEAD,

Nothing at all was done to alleviate the poor fellow's sufferings, and at present much uncomplimentary talk about the people around there is indulged in. The dead boy's mother resides near where the sad affair happened, but she was not informed of her son's sickness, and when the terrible news of his death was broken to her you can well imagine the terrible shock it gave her.

NO INQUEST.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon J. and N. McCormack drove to town and explained the circumstances of the case to Coroner Henry, who considered an inquest unnecessary That the boy received inhuman treatment there is no room for doubt, and an inquest would only result in censuring Donaldson or somebody else. However, we are of the opinion that an investigation should be held, for such disgraceful, unchristian-like proceedings should not be tolerated in a country where Christianity is supposed to be the guiding star. Poor Milloy would be alive to day if a doctor had been summoned, or if he had been taken home. This is indeed one of the saddest cases that has ever come under our notice, and we sincerely trust the like will never occur again.

The remains will be interred this afternoon.

CREDIT FORKS.

A GREAT SUCCESS.—The A O U W concert held in their hall here last Thursday evening was a grand success in every way. The vocal and instrumental music was of the highest order, and the rendition of the various numbers was more than good, judging from the numerous encores. The Grand Lodge officers, like the instrumental music from Orangeville, failed to put in an appearance. However, those who had a taste for real good music were well satisfied with the program We are sorry to be obliged to refer to the very bad behavior of a few in the rear of the hall, and it would have served them right had they been ejected or taken before our worthy magistrate and made to pay for their ill manners. Mr. J.M Ansley occupied the chair and after the opening ode of the order a quartette was rendered in fine style by Misses Glendenning, Gertie McTaggart, and Messrs Gloudennin; and E G Wallace The instrumental music of the Misses Rutherford, of Caledon East, on the violin and organ brought down the house, and in reply to the encore they exchanged instruments and the applause was long and loud. Mr. Wallace's solo was well received, and would have been enjoyed better by the audience had they not been so much confused in the rear of the hall. Mrs. James' solo shared the same fate, along with the excellent instrumental pieces by Miss Reaburn of Charleston. The duet by Misses Glendonning and Gertie McTaggart needs to be heard to be appreciated. Miss Pringles' solo was rendered in an excellent manner. Mr. Theo Donner was in fine form, and as he has been one of the old standbys for the Forks at nearly all their entertainments, it goes without saying, that he is always well received The old favorite, Mrs Tilcock, contributed her full share to the success of the entertainment by singing a solo, and playing accompaniments for a portion of the songs, while Miss Herring of Bellountain ably accompanied the contingent from that town, as well as played an instrumental piece One of the features of the evening was the singing of three little girls, Misses Bertie McDonald, Ada Willis and Jennie Morris, of Credit Forks, and for their age and opportunity did remarkably well. By special request Miss Ada Willis was called upon to sing "Barney Take me Home Again," which she did in a touching manner, and was loudly applauded. Mr. R. G. Wallace sang an excellent song in good style, and having a good, strong voice, could not fail to be heard. After a hearty vote of thanks was passed by the audience to those who so ably contributed to the success of the concert and the singing of the closing ode and the National Anthem, the audience dispersed and the performers, twenty in number, adjourned to Mr. John McCormack's were they found a splendid lunch spread for them and to which they did full justice, and after thanking the genial Mac and his charming wife all went their way fully satisfied with the entertainment, even if it did rain on them. Receipts amounted to over $40.

CARDWELL.

QUARTERLY MEETING.—On Thursday and Friday of last week the quarterly meeting of South Simcoe rural deanery was held at the parsonage, Cardwell, the rural dean presiding. Divine service was held in Herald Angel church on the evening of Thursday, and was brightly conducted, and well attended by the people. Rev. F. Burt was assisted by Rev. Mr. Boyd, the invited preacher being the rural dean; Miss Jackson, organist. On Friday morning there was an early service, and Rev. Secretary French, and A. C. Watt arrived during the business of the second day. A paper on "The Gems of the Church," referring to the collects, was read, (being prepared at the request of the chapter) by Rev. Mr. Burt, who was accorded the thanks of the chapter. Provision was made for holding the accustomed missionary meetings in November instead of the boisterous, snow drifty season of January and February. The next meeting of the Deanery is to be at Horning's Mills. There were two assistant ministers also present The neighboring house-holders provided for the horses, &c., whilst the rural dean was quartered with that ever welcoming host. Mr. Robert Jackson. Mrs. Burt entertained the gentleman at dinner on Friday.

TO MANITOBA.—Mr. Wm. Graham left Monday evening for Manitoba, where he will engage in mission work for the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Graham goes with him.

NEW CLOTHING.—No. 7 company, 36 battalion, have received a supply of new clothing. Our "soldier boys" when next they leave for drill will look gay and wear a more significant military air.

A FATAL KICK.—Sabbath afternoon a young son of Mr. H. Brett's, Primrose, was buried in the burying grounds of the Methodist church. The boy received a severe kick from a horse on Friday last which proved fatal on the following day. Truly death comes to us at all ages!

METHODIST DISTRICT CONVENTION.—The convention of the Orangeville district of the Methodist church was held in the Shelburne Methodist church on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week About 30 ministers and laymen were in attendance. Matters affecting church work were discussed widely and profitably. The financial standing of the different circuits was reported to be good and encouraging. The sessions were public and a good attendance was noted.

TORONTO GOSSIP.

INTERESTING CITY NEWS BY THE SUN'S PAID CORRESPONDENT.

During July and August there is no place so well patronized by all classes of Toronto people as the Island. That long, narrow strip of land, only two miles from the city, is a perfect boon, during the summer, to weary thousands whose circumstances do not permit of their going further away, and who are longing for a whiff of fresh, cool air. But the visitors to the Island, are not, by any means, wholly composed of this class. Let us board one of the Island ferries, any Saturday afternoon, and take note of our fellow passengers, and there will be a fair sample of those, who all season, patronize this charming summer resort. First, there is the poor woman, with the tired eyes, and with two or three pale children, to whom the trip to the Island is a treat talked of for days. Right beside them, is a young girl in bonting costume, who is staying at the Island, and who probably comes from one of those handsome cottages on the lake shore. She has gone over to the city to meet a friend, whom she is bringing back with her, and they are looking bright in anticipation of "lots of fun." Then there is the nervous woman, who almost always has a son of a very venturesome and inquiring nature, and whose explorations in pursuit of knowledge, are always carrying him out of sight of his anxious maid, who fidgets accordingly. Then, of course, there are any number of those mischievous, frolicsome schoolboys, who worry you beyond measure by continually tripping over your feet, and jerking your umbrella, and who throws sticks into the water with a defiant air, and an agreeable sense of being insolent to it. Then, there are the dainty children with their nursemaids, looking down complacently at their tin pails and shovels. The banker or lawyer who is leaning back reading his paper with a satisfied feeling of at last getting where its cool, and along with him two or three young bank-clerks, who are coming over to attend the weekly hop. Oh, then there are ever so many more, the fat woman, and the thin woman, the girl intent on a book, and the hopeful man with a fish-rod, who expects to bring back a long string of fish—everyone enjoying the fresh air, the water, and the sunshine. We are soon at our destination, for the distance is short, and the ferries glide swiftly. Then comes a diversion. Some perhaps, like to sit by the water, and watch the boats out on the bay, others, who have brought over their tea, look for a suitable place to spread it out. But the majority make straight for the Lake Shore. The walk to it is charming, through the Island Park, under the shade of the great, drooping willows, and then across the bridges erected over the lagoons, and then you are by the lake, and a fresher, breezier, finer place to cool off on a hot day, it would be hard to find. Of course, this is only at the Centre Island or Island Park, and some other time, I will endeavor to tell you something about Hanlan's, and the Wiman Baths, which are the Eastern and Western points.

The inhabitants of a large and fashionable boarding house on the corners of College and Huron streets, had a very remarkable and unprecedented misfortune befall them last week. An extension was to be built to the house, and part of the foundation had been removed. However, a stone or two too many must have been extracted, for, at about eleven o'clock Sunday morning, the whole side of the house fell out with a tremendous crash, bringing with it a miscellaneous assortment of furniture. Fortunately none was injured, and when that point was ascertained, the ridiculous side of the affair began to be pre-eminent. It must have been a wild surprise for residents to suddenly find themselves confronted by the street, and the curious countenance of numerous onlookers who instantly collected. It was very funny indeed, to see the rooms having much the appearance of one of those doll's houses, on an immense scale. It will be a great loss to the owner, as the house was a fine one, and he had lately spent more than a thousand dollars on plumbing, and improvements.

The Fresh Air Fund gave five excursions last week, three to Victoria Park and two to the Island Park. It closed its work for the season on Thursday, so that the children might have plenty of time to collect their thoughts and their school books. This is one of the city charities that well deserves the highest commendation and encouragement, its object being to give pleasure to poor children who would otherwise have no recreation of the kind whatever.

IDA S.

SHOULD BE JUGGED.—We have received information to the effect that on Sunday several young men adjourned to a Broadway hotel stable for the purpose of holding an old time dog fight between two bulldogs that are owned in town. It is said the ferocious brutes fought a bloody battle and lacerated each other in a shocking manner, while the human brutes cheered and encouraged their favorites on. This is also said to be going on in the "Town of Churches," and it is no wonder Orangeville is known far and wide as a notorious place. A few toughs in a respectable community can do irreparable damage and that is what's the matter in this town. For the present names are suppressed, but if Sunday's disgraceful proceedings are repeated THE SUN will publish the offenders' names in black-faced type.

The Dundas cotton mills were sold by auction on Tuesday for $150,200 to Mr. Thompson, of the law firm of Thompson, Henderson & Bell, Toronto who are said to be acting for Gault Bros., of Montreal.

One day last week Miss Maggie Austin, a young lady who resides near Guelph, took a dose of paris green in mistake for powdered allspice and nearly died before a physician could be summoned. She is recovering.

MRS. CARROTHERS COMMITTED.

The Rainy River Tragedy Examination Concluded at Rat Portage.

RAT PORTAGE, Aug 28.—The examination of Mrs. Nellie Carrothers, charged with the murder of her husband, John Banks Carrothers, in the Rainy River District, was concluded to day, the prisoner being fully committed for trial. Detective Murray succeeded in presenting very damaging evidence against the accused. It was shown that the letter purporting to have been written by the dead man intimating that he had committed suicide was in Mrs. Carrothers handwriting. Dr McDonnell, who made a thorough examination of deceased's skull, which had been dug up for the purpose, testified that he did not think the wounds could have been self-inflicted. The effect of the shot at the back of the head would for his opinion produce complete paralysis of the whole system. He therefore thought that the wound on the back of the head was received first. It was a fatal wound. In his opinion it would have been impossible for Carrothers to have made the wound at the back of his head and then have made the one at the front. He thought it would be impossible for Carrothers to have inflicted these two wounds upon himself.

The production of the skull and the doctor's evidence have had great effect here with regard to Mrs. Carrothers. It created a profound sensation in the court room when these portions of the remains were laid on the table. The prisoner laid her head on her arms and did not raise it again for a considerable length of time.

THAT "PATENT" SHEET.

To the Editor of THE SUN:

DEAR SIR,—I cannot for the life of me imagine or yet surmise what I ever did to injure the feelings of Bill Wallace or the so called paper that he boasts of being "editor and proprietor of." There hasn't been an issue of his contemptible sheet since I arrived in Orangeville that has not contained an item with my name inserted calling me the "irrepressible tramp printer." Now, Mr. Editor, I do not care one iota for all the insinuation in that respect he wants on a me, but I do detest and think it's high time for retaliation, when last week he came out with a nice headed local announcing to his seventy five readers (half them receiving the paper gratis, if I might style it a paper) that "Bill Hicks was in the Toils," and that when I was arraigned before Squire Pattullo on Wednesday of last week he "let him go by promising to leave town and give Orangeville a wide berth in future." I do not deny being up in the castle, but I do deny being before P. M. Pattullo; I was put there with no intention of injury but for reasons best known to myself. Now, Mr Editor, I don't think that Bill Wallace is responsible for half his deeds and actions and I would advise the proper authorities to keep their eyes on him for their is no telling when their will be a grand blow up in the upper storey of "the editor" If using my name is a drawing card for his miserable sheet why don't he put in the truth, or why don't he write up other bum printers that have been drunk around town for the past two weeks. But I suppose Bill Wallace ain't built that way, his policy is to run on the stranger, and trample the weak. Taking all in all Bill Wallace is mean enough to follow a crow ten miles for a rotton potato, or stop a funeral procession to trade jack knives. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space for this time, and hoping Bill Wallace and his land roller press will be more careful in using my name in the future, I remain, yours etc.,

WM. H. HICKS.

WITH PEAS IN THEIR SHOES.

Robert L. Patterson, A. W. Croll, John F. Ellis left for Ottawa last night to give evidence before the Public Accounts Committee. They were accompanied by the editor of the Mission Craftsman, who is to give expert testimony, and all seemed to be in good spirits at North Toronto where Her Majesty's typefounder got aboard. He was accompanied to the station by a party of friends, who bade him be of stout heart. His brother George cried out: "Be sure Bob and wear the electric belt I gave you when you go in the box, and don't forget the electric soles in your boots when they put you on the plates." The typefounder's friends were with him all day, and encouraged him for the trying ordeal by befitting conversation. Mr. Charley Taylor of the Globe read to him appropriate extracts from a little book he had in his hand, and Mr. Farrer sent him a couple of religious works. His friends also promised to wire him messages of consolation and comfort in the morning.—Thursday's World.

MEN AND MONEY.

John Ireland's Discourse on the Disclosures at Ottawa.

To the Editor of THE SUN:

DEAR SIR,—The disclosures at Ottawa are creating a sensation, but they should not, the thing to be wondered at is, not that men have stolen money, but the concurrent opportunities to do so. It is difficult to decide who is the more censurable, the man that steels money or the careless or conspiring man who is its custodian. Men are like the metals, every metal has its peculiar point of fusion it will stand solid till this degree is reached, then it disolves. So it is with men, they stand firm till that degree of temptation is reached which overmatches their moral cohesion, then, too, they melt. Tin melts at 440o. iron at 700o, but platina requires the concentrated rays of burning mirrors:—we have tin men and we have iron men. The analogy is capable of farther extension, the metals, if subjected to particular treatment, stand a higher degree, so it is with men, treatment varies their fusing point. The yielding or resistance of the same man depends on circumstances, opportunies and conditions; and as there are very commonly beyond his control, his moral accountability is uniform. Extreme poverty tempts and sometimes even justifies a man in stealing, but the wealthy educated thief has no such excuse. Opportunities have much to do in these matters; if they happen to be favorable, the man is apt to give way. There are men temptation—proof against money and liquor but yield easily to woman; and the better the condition the greater the danger; hence, clergyman who had taken upon themselves the vow of continence have to guard against conditions as well as against temptation. The power to resist is always greater than the temptation, else there could be no moral accountability. We yield, however, by thousands, daily, not through want of power, but through want of will to exercise it. Both the doctrine of human volitation is too extensive to abstruse for the ordinary newspaper readers. A dark cloud is rising over the "Baie des Chaleur" affair that will divide public attention. It is a pity that such men as Sir Hector Langevin and Count Mercier do not possess better financial finesse than to be caught in the common trap. The disclosures will discount Knight ood and pontifical benediction, both of which should be sacredly respected, the effect will be to make Her Majesty and His Holiness more careful in the conference of future honors. At present Truth and Honesty are more enquired for than title. However much we practice falsehood and dishonesty ourselves, we want truth and honesty in others. To get a race of honest men is the great social problem. Where shall we start the work? Should the church begin or should the common school begin? Dishonesty is costing the country so much that the subject in a mere economic point of view demands immediate attention. My own opinion is, the school should begin. At present the cardinal virtues are mentioned only incidentally; the reason for the omission seems to be, that, the virtues will be learned in the school of the social and business world. But this is an error. Our business in the big school is rather to baffle roguery than to practise honesty. The Church sabbatically is combatting the vices, though she can hardly expurge herself of them. Her members had better pilfer less and pray less. I would rather deal with a plain honest man under a church curse, (anathema) than with a rogue bedizened with the insignia of holy orders. The fact is, we pray too much and do too little; we are continually asking God to do what we could but will not do, this is where the "excise" comes in. Business prayer is fashionable, hypocritical and profitless. It is the sign of goodness without goodness; just as cheap jewellery is a sign of wealth without wealth. Genuine goodness requires so much restraint so much selfdenial that few have the courage to engage in it. Acknowledgment is about as far as I can get myself.

JOHN IRELAND.

"Samuel Holdman, Tilly Foster Mines, New York," is the name and address of a gentleman who deals in "green goods" and in sending out circulars through the country, Mr. Holdman requests a purchaser to telegraph "Send sample of ore" upon receipt of which full instructions regarding green goods will be sent and a meeting arranged. In his circular the swindler says: Don't as long as you ever live write me a letter."

Recently an Elderslie farmer was compelled to pay about $12 for taking his pigs away from a man who was driving them to pound and for using abusive language. Interference with a person who is taking stock to pound is a serious offence in the eyes of the law.

NO INQUEST HELD!

The sudden and gloomiest affair that has ever taken place in East Garafraxa occurred a short distance from Reading some time yesterday morning. The victim of the tragedy—for whish it really was—is a young man named Archibald Milloy, 20 years of age, who was working for Robert Donaldson, a well-known farmer of that district. Mr. Donaldson owns several farms in that neighborhood, and on Tuesday his men were drawing oats from a field into the barn. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon young Milloy, who was always in the best of health, took suddenly ill with cholera morbus and laid down on the barn floor. Six o'clock came and the young fellow was no better, but instead of taking him into the house

HIS HEARTLESS COMPANIONS

let him remain in the barn—a fitting place for a poor sick boy! One of Mr. Donaldson's sons remained with the sufferer until midnight, when he left for his cosy couch at home. Young Donaldson said Milloy was some better when he left him at 12 o'clock, but this story is probably not correct, as the sick lad must have been growing weaker all the time. About 8 o'clock yesterday morning two of Mr. McKitrick's little children, who reside on this farm, went down to the barn and saw Milloy's lifeless body lying there, but the little innocents were not aware the poor fellow was dead. As the children could not arouse what they supposed to be the sleeping boy they went and told their mother that "Archey was sleeping in the barn and would not wake up." Mrs McKetrick hurried to the building and, to her horror, she discovered that the grim reaper having come around probably several hours before.

YOUNG MILLOY WAS DEAD,

Nothing at all was done to alleviate the poor fellow's sufferings, and at present much uncomplimentary talk about the people around there is indulged in. The dead boy's mother resides near where the sad affair happened, but she was not informed of her son's sickness, and when the terrible news of his death was broken to her you can well imagine the terrible shock it gave her.

NO INQUEST.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon J. and N. McCormack drove to town and explained the circumstances of the case to Coroner Henry, who considered an inquest unnecessary. That the boy received inhuman treatment there is no room for doubt, and an inquest would only result in censuring Donaldson or somebody else. However, we are of the opinion that an investigation should be held, for such disgraceful, unchristian-like proceedings should not be tolerated in a country where Christianity is supposed to be the guiding star. Poor Milloy would be alive to-day if a doctor had been summoned, or if he had been taken home. This is indeed one of the saddest cases that has ever come under our notice, and we sincerely trust the like will never occur again.

The remains will be interred this afternoon.

CREDIT FORKS.

A GREAT SUCCESS.—The A O U W concert held in their hall here last Thursday evening was a grand success in every way. The vocal and instrumental music was of the highest order, and the rendition of the various numbers was more than good, judging from the numerous encores. The Grand Lodge officers, like the instrumental music from Orangeville, failed to put in an appearance. However, those who had a taste for real good music were well satisfied with the program. We are sorry to be obliged to refer to the very bad behavior of a few in the rear of the hall, and it would have served them right had they been ejected or taken before our worthy magistrate and made to pay for their ill manners. Mr. J. M. Ansley occupied the chair and after the opening ode of the order a quartette was rendered in fine style by Misses Glendonning, Gertie McTaggart, and Messrs Glendonning and R. G. Wallace. The instrumental music of the Misses Rutherford, of Caledon East, on the violin and organ brought down the house, and in reply to the encore they exchanged instruments and the applause was long and loud. Mr. Wallace's solo was well received, and would have been enjoyed better by the audience had they not been so much confused in the rear of the hall. Mrs. James' solo shared the same fate, along with the excellent instrumental pieces by Miss Reaburn of Charleston. The duet by Misses Glendonning and Gertie McTaggart needs to be heard to be appreciated. Miss Pringles' solo was rendered in an excellent manner. Mr. Theo Donner was in fine form, and as he has been one of the old standbys for the Forks at nearly all their entertainments, it goes without a ying, that he is always well received. The old favorite, Mrs Tilcock, contributed her full share to the success of the entertainment by singing a solo, and playing accompaniments for a portion of the songs, while Miss Herring of Bellfountain ably accompanied the contingent from that town, as well as played an instrumental piece. One of the features of the evening was the singing of three little girls, Misses Bertie McDonald, Ada Willis and Jennie Morris, of Credit Forks, and for their age and opportunity did remarkably well. By special request Miss Ada Willis was called upon to sing "Barney Take me Home Again," which she did in a touching manner, and was loudly applauded. Mr. R. G. Wallace sang an excellent song in good style, and having a good, strong voice, could not fail to be heard. After a hearty vote of thanks was passed by the audience to those who so ably contributed to the success of the concert and the singing of the closing ode and the National Anthem, the audience dispersed and the performers, twenty in number, adjourned to Mr. John McCormack's where they found a splendid lunch spread for them and to which—they did full justice, and after thanking the genial Mac, and his charming wife all went their way fully satisfied with the entertainment, even if it did rain on them. Receipts amounted to over $40.

service, and Rev. Secretary Preston, and A. C. Watt arrived during the business of the second day. A paper on "The Gems of the Church," referring to the collects, was read, (being prepared at the request of the chapter) by Rev. Mr. Burt, who was awarded the thanks of the chapter. Provision was made for holding the anniversary missionary meetings in November instead of the boisterous, snow drifty season of January and February. The next meeting of the Deanery is to be at Hornby's Mills. There were two assistant ministers also present. The neighboring house-holders provided for the horses, &c., whilst the rural dean was quartered with that ever welcoming host, Mr. Robert Jackson. Mrs. Burt entertained the gentlemen at dinner on Friday.

TO MANITOBA.—Mr. Wm. Graham left Monday evening for Manitoba, where he will engage in mission work for the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Graham goes with him.

NEW CLOTHING.—No. 7 company, 36 battalion, have received a supply of new clothing. Our "soldier boys" when next they leave for drill will look gay and wear a more significant military air.

A FATAL KICK.—Sabbath afternoon a young son of Mr. H. Brett's, Primrose, was buried in the burying grounds of the Methodist church. The boy received a severe kick from a horse on Friday last which proved fatal on the following day. Truly death comes to us at all ages!

METHODIST DISTRICT CONVENTION.—The convention of the Orangeville district of the Methodist church was held in the Shelburne Methodist church on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. About 30 ministers and laymen were in attendance. Matters affecting church work were discussed widely and profitably. The financial standing of the different circuits was reported to be good and encouraging. The sessions were public and a good attendance was noted.

by my name, every employee of the class. Let us board one of the Island ferries, any Saturday afternoon, and take note of our fellow passengers, and there will be a fair sample of those, who all season, patronize this charming summer resort. First, there is the poor woman, with the tired eyes, and wish two or three pale children, to whom the trip to the Island is a treat talked of for days. Right beside them, is a young girl in bonting costume, who is staying at the Island, and who probably comes from one of those handsome cottages on the lake shore. She has gone over to the city to meet a friend, whom she is bringing back with her, and they are looking bright in anticipation of "lots of fun." Then there is the nervous woman, who almost always has a son of a very venturesome and inquiring nature, and whose explorations in pursuit of knowledge, are always carrying him out of sight of his anxious mama, who fidgets accordingly. Then, of course, there are any number of those nice, obliging, fruitcake schoolboys, who worry you beyond measure by continually tripping over your feet, and jerking your umbrella, and who throws sticks into the water with a defiant air, and an unmeable sense of being insolent to it. Then, there are the dainty children with their nursemaids, looking down complacently at their tin pails and shovels. The banker or lawyer who is leaning back reading his paper with a satisfied feeling of at last getting where its cool, and along with him two or three young bank clerks, who are coming over to attend the weekly hop. Oh, there are ever so many more, the fat woman, and the thin woman, the girl intent on a book, and the hopeful man with a fish-rod, who expects to bring back a long string of fish—everyone enjoying the fresh air, the water, and the sunshine. We are soon at our destination, for the distance is short, and the ferries glide swiftly. Then comes a diversion. Some perhaps, like to sit by the water, and watch the boats out on the bay, others, who have brought over their tea, look for a suitable place to spread it out. But the majority make straight for the Lake Shore. The walk to it is charming, through the Island Park, under the shade of the great, drooping willows, and then across the bridges erected over the lagoons, and then you are by the lake, and a fresher, breezier, finer place to cool off on a hot day, it would be hard to find. Of course, this is only at the Centre Island or Island Park, and some other time, I will endeavor to tell you something about Hanlan's, and the Wiman Baths, which are the Eastern and Western points.

The inhabitants of a large and fashionable boarding house on the corners of College and Huron streets, had a very remarkable and unprecedented misfortune befall them last week. An extension was to be built to the house, and part of the foundation had been removed. However, a storm or two too many must have been extracted, for, at about eleven o'clock Sunday morning, the whole side of the house fell out with a tremendous crash, bringing with it a miscellaneous assortment of furniture. Fortunately none was injured, and when that point was ascertained, the ridiculous side of the affair began to be pre-eminent. It must have been a wild surprise for residents to suddenly find themselves confronted by the street, and the curious countenances of numerous onlookers who instantly collected. It was very funny indeed, to see the rooms having much the appearance of one of those doll's houses, on an immense scale. It will be a great loss to the owner, as the house was a fine one, and he had lately spent more than a thousand dollars on plumbing, and improvements.

The Fresh Air Fund gave five excursions last week, three to Victoria Park and two to the Island Park. It closed its work for the season on Thursday, so that the children might have plenty of time to collect their thoughts and their school books. This is one of the city charities that well deserves the highest commendation and encouragement, its object being to give pleasure to poor children who would otherwise have no recreation of the kind whatever.

Those who know tell us that the Exhibition of 1891 will be the finest ever held in Toronto, and in short, will throw all former ones quite in the shade. The exhibition officials are about the busiest people in town just now.

The mayoralty will be contested this year by the present occupant of the chair, and four other representative citizens.

IDA S.

SHOULD BE JUDGED.—We have received information to the effect that on Sunday several young men adjourned to a Broadway hotel stable for the purpose of holding an old time dog fight between two bulldogs that are owned in town. It is said the ferocious brutes fought a bloody battle and lacerated each other in a shocking manner, while the human brutes cheered and encouraged their favorites on. This is also work to be going on in the "Town of Churches," and it is no wonder Orangeville is known far and wide as a notorious place. A few toughs in a respectable community can do irreparable damage and that is what's the matter in this town. For the present names are suppressed, but if Sunday's disgraceful proceedings are repeated THE SUN will publish the offenders' names in black-faced type.

The Dundas cotton mills were sold by auction on Tuesday for $150,200 to Mr. Thompson, of the law firm of Thompson, Henderson & Bell, Toronto who are said to be acting for Gault Bros., of Montreal.

One day last week Miss Maggie Austin, a young lady who resides near Guelph, took a dose of paris green in mistake for powdered allspice and nearly died before a physician could be summoned. She is recovering.

evidence against the accused. It was shown that the letter purporting to have been written by the dead man intimating that he had committed suicide was in Mrs. Carrothers' handwriting. Dr McDonnell, who made a thorough examination of deceased's skull, which had been dug up for the purpose, testified that he did not think the wounds could have been self-inflicted. The effect of the shot at the back of the head would in his opinion produce complete paralysis of the whole system. He therefore thought that the wound on the back of the head was received first. It was a fatal wound. In his opinion it would have been impossible for Carrothers to have made the wound at the back of his head and then have made the one at the front. He thought it would be impossible for Carrothers to have inflicted those two wounds upon himself.

The production of the skull and the doctor's evidence have had great effect here with regard to Mrs. Carrothers. It created a profound sensation in the court room when these portions of the remains were laid on the table. The prisoner laid her head on her arms and did not raise it again for a considerable length of time.

THAT "PATENT" SHEET.

To the Editor of THE SUN:

DEAR SIR,—I cannot for the life of me imagine or yet surmise what I ever did to injure the feelings of Bill Wallace or the so called paper that he boasts of being "editor and proprietor of." There hasn't been an issue of his contemptible sheet since I arrived in Orangeville that has not contained an item with my name inserted calling me the "irrepressible tramp printer." Now, Mr. Editor, I do not care one iota for all the insinuations in that respect he casts on a me, but I do detest and think it's high time for retaliation, when last week he came out with a nine-headed local announcing to his seventy five readers (half them receiving the paper gratis, if I might style it a paper) that "Bill Hicks was in the Toils," and that when I was arraigned before Squire Pattullo on Wednesday of last week he "let him go by promising to leave town and give Orangeville a wide berth in future." I do not deny being up in the castle, but I do deny being before P. M. Pattullo; I was put there with no intention of injury but for reasons best known to myself. Now, Mr. Editor, I don't think that Bill Wallace is responsible for half his deeds and actions and I would advise the proper authorities to keep their eyes on him for their is no telling when their will be a grand blow up in the upper storey of "the editor." If using my name is a drawing card for his miserable sheet why don't he put in the truth, or why don't he write up other bum printers that have been drunk around town for the past two weeks. But I suppose Bill Wallace ain't built that way, his policy is to run on the stranger, and trample the weak. Taking all in all Bill Wallace is mean enough to follow a crow ten miles for a rotton potato, or stop a funeral procession to trade jack knives. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space for this time, and hoping Bill Wallace and his land roller press will be more careful in using my name in the future, I remain, yours etc.,

WM. H. HICKS.

The Restof Rock Salt, for Stock.

Read what Prof Robertson, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, says regarding proper ways of salting stock:—"Dairy cattle should have access to salt every day. A series of experiments has convinced me that when cows are denied salt for a period of even one week they will yield from 3½ to 15 per cent less milk, and that of an inferior quality. Such milk will, on an average, turn sour in twenty four hours [illegible] salt every day, all other conditions of [illegible] treatment being equal."

THE only chemically pure Salt ever discovered, analysed 99 84-100 Pure Salt. All kinds of stock will do better where this Salt is used; one ton will go four times as far as common salt, hence it is cheaper. It is the finest Salt in the world for the preservation of all kinds of meat, all the large packers are using it. It is sold cheaper than any other lump salt. We guarantee this Salt as advertised. Make a trial and you will always use it; we have in stock fine and coarse, at

EAST BROADWAY, ORANGEVILLE.

Parson Endacott Bro's ad in this week's SUN and govern yourself accordingly.

Reopening services will be held in Knox church; Charleston, on Sunday next.

The high, public and model schools reopened on Monday last and all are well attended.

Mr. W. F. Seymour, the new high school teacher, has taken up his residence on west Broadway.

Mr. John Kearns has added a large brick kitchen to his already commodious residence on First street.

In St. Peter's church last Sabbath Rev. Father McPhillips preached a powerful sermon on "Death."

Mr. Bruce, the public school teacher, has rented Mr John McKim's cottage on First avenue and will reside there.

A brakeman named Banks, whose people reside at Toronto, was killed by a G. T. R. train at Inglewood yesterday.

The latest farmer to assign for the benefit of his creditors is John Perry of Mono, and Assignee Hughson is winding up the estate.

The new engine and boiler which will provide power for running the electric light have arrived and are being placed in position.

On Mill street last Saturday evening Pat McCabe's dray collided with a farmer's buggy, the latter coming out of the fray second best.

On Saturday the corporation experts were engaged laying a cedar block crossing across Second street to the market square. Dave knows how to do it.

The entertainment in aid of Credit Forks' A. O. U. W lodge, which was held in their hall at the Forks last Thursday evening, was very successful.

Dufferin fall assizes open in the court house here on Monday next. Both civil and criminal dockets are light, and no interesting cases will be tried.

Mr. Samuel Hughes of Toronto, formerly of this town, was married in Ottawa on Wednesday of last week to Miss Maggie Ashfield of that city. Congratulations.

The Dufferins go to Brampton tomorrow (Friday) to play the Excelsiors of that town a return game of lacrosse, when it is hoped the "Old Reliables" will add another to their already long list of victories.

Referring to the the Camilla mill contract last week a typographical error occurred and made the local read that Mr. Laverty received $840 per annum for carrying the mails. The correct amount Mr. L. receives is $437.

Two or three months ago the R & O committee made an appropriation for the purpose of building a sidewalk on the west side of Mill street, but the work was not commenced until this week. Better late than never.

THE MARKET.—The Orangeville market reopens on Thursday, the 24th of September, and will continue open every Thursday during the fall and winter season for the sale of poultry, butter, eggs, vegetables, etc. 4

DUFFERIN EXHIBITION.—The annual exhibition in connection with the Dufferin Agricultural and the Orangeville Horticultural Societies will be held in Orangeville on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 8 and 9. A number of special attractions have been engaged and every effort is being put forward to make this year's show more successful than any of the previous exhibitions.

THE TOWN'S POPULATION.—The Dominion census, which was published last week, shows that the population of Canada has not increased as rapidly as was expected, and, consequently, there is general disappointment. In 1881 Orangeville had a population of 2,849 and now the population is 2,962, an increase of 113. Our growth has certainly been slow, but many towns in the Dominion have decreased.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—Last Monday morning Miss Gordon, who conducts a dressmaking establishment in the Sloan block, had the misfortune to let a window fall on her left hand, bruising it badly. No other person happened to be in the room at the time and she could not release the imprisoned member. After suffering for about a quarter-of-an-hour Mr. J. W. Ferguson heard her cries for help and promptly went to her aid and released her.

JAWBONE BROKEN.—On Monday last James Pierson of Mono was drawing a load of oats from a field into the barn when the wagon toppled over, throwing Mr. Pierson violently to the ground and injuring his face severely. The injured man was conveyed to town and a medical examination revealed the fact that several of his teeth were knocked out, his jawbone broken and his face otherwise badly injured. After the injuries were attended to he was taken back home.

SPECIAL MEETING.—Mayor Walker called a special meeting of the council on Monday night to pass a new by-law in the matter of the Stevenson & Graham debentures. The Toronto firm of brokers who purchased the debentures found fault with the by law passed a few weeks ago, and requested the council to add another clause thereto. A sufficient number of aldermen were drummed up to turn the musical mill and a grist to suit the broker was ground.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL, ETC.—The Caledon East correspondent of the Belton Enterprise says:—Monday evening the up train on the G. T. R. was one hour late and failed to connect with the C. P. R. at Cardwell Jct. for Orangeville. As a result a number of passengers going to that place were let off the train here. The popular landlord of the Osterio, Mr. Wm. Beamish, would not see them stuck. He hitched up his coursers, of which he has a spanking pair, and ere long had the belated passengers in their happy homes in Orangeville.

SPEEDING ON THE STREET.—Four "blooted capitalists" engaged a handsome turnout at one of the town livery stables on Sunday and all went out to paint the town a brilliant hue. When going down the hill on First street another sport drove up with his trotter and a race for first place immediately took place. It was plainly evident luck was dead against the capitalists, for when near the brick hotel at the exhibition grounds the rigs collided and the four men of money were thrown out and fell to the ground with a "sickening dull thud." The rig was badly smashed, and another one had to be procured before the reckless and "beardless" youths could continue their journey.

CONTEMPTIBLE WORK.—Some time between 1 and 5 o'clock Sunday morning a contemptible coward entered Sydie's livery stable on Mill street and severed the halters that tied six horses in their stalls and let the animals run through the stable. Not satisfied with releasing the horses, the sneaking cur removed the plug in the trough from the oat-bin and let about six bags of oats run out onto the floor. When one of the hostlers got around to the stable at 5:30 Sunday morning he found the horses eating away at the oats, and it was with no little difficulty he got them back to their stalls. Orangeville has a great many respectable citizens, but it also harbors some of the worst characters outside of prison. If the sneak who perpetrated Sunday morning's outrage can be found he should be dealt with in no lenient manner.

MT. FOREST RAZZLE-DAZZLED.—A lacrosse match to decide the championship of the northwestern district was played at Arthur on Friday between the Fergus and Mt. Forest clubs, the former having the game all their own way and winning the match by 3 games to 2. A number from this town witnessed the game and thought it a very rough exhibition of lacrosse. Although the Lornes lost the lacrosse championship they still retain the blowhard title, and disgusted our boys by calling the Dufferins cowards. Five minutes after this declaration was made $100 in crisp bank notes were shaken under the blowers' noses, but the Mt. Foresters didn't mean business and took back water. The Dufferins offered to buy a silver cup at their own expense and play the Lornes a game on any grounds except Mt Forest and also bet $100 on the result, but this exceedingly fair offer was not accepted. What does Mt. Forest lacrosseists want?

A WOMAN GOES WRONG.—A most disgraceful exhibition took place on First street last Friday evening and one which we hope will never be repeated. About 9:30 o'clock a woman who lives a mile or two from town came to Orangeville and imbibed too freely from the cup that brings sorrow to the home. Shortly afterwards the unfortunate woman was joined by four more or less respectable men of the town who were also on a jamboree, and their actions were simply disgraceful. The inebriated woman's husband tried to get her home, but his efforts were fruitless. Finally the whole gang went up to the woman's residence, but the incensed husband, with a potatoe masher in his hand, met them at the door and gave them a lively reception. One of the intruders was struck on the face and an ugly wound was the result. Next day the husband called at J. P. M. Pattullo's to lay an information against the parties, but before the summonses were issued the offenders had bought the man off by paying him $28. We hope it will be a long time before we are again called upon to chronicle a similar case.

A STOREKEEPER SWINDLED.—On Monday a storekeeper came up from Campbell's Cross and told a pitiful story to Chief Shields how he had been swindled out of $12 by a sharper. Two weeks ago to day a man went into the store at the Cross and purchased goods to the amount of $2, to payment of which he tendered a $10 bill. The shopkeeper could not make the change, but a neighbor who happened to be in the store made the necessary change and the purchaser departed. After a while the obliging neighbor returned to the store and informed the proprietor that the $10 note was no good, as it was a "raised" Dominion of Canada bill which was altered to read the "Hamilton Bank will pay to bearer," etc., instead of the "Dominion of Canada will pay to bearer," etc. A representative of THE SUN saw the altered note, and the "raising" process was executed in an extremely clumsy manner. Several weeks ago this journal exposed the bank note forging business, but as the Campbell's Cross storekeeper is not a subscriber he did not see the piece and as a result is lamenting the loss of $12—the forged bill and $2 worth of goods. The swindler has not been seen or heard of since and it is not likely he will ever be caught. Two valuable lessons can be learned from the above: Subscribe for a reliable local paper and keep your eye on the gun.

FRIENDS FALL OUT.

H. L. Atkinson and Wm. Carson, once Firm Friends, Figure in a Toronto Court.

The following, which is taken from the Toronto News of Wednesday last, will be read with interest, as both parties are well known by the people of Orangeville and vicinity:—The only case of any importance or interest tried this morning was that of Atkinson v. Carson. The parties to this suit were H. L. Atkinson, a farmer living in Mono township, and Wm. Carson, who is employed by the Canadian Express Company in this city. Atkinson is the man who a couple of years ago was tried for the killing of a man named Scott, also a resident of Mono township, and Carson was the principal witness for the defence. Scott, Atkinson and Carson were out fishing and a quarrel arose between Atkinson and Scott. Atkinson threw a stone at Scott, striking him on the head, inflicting injuries from the effects of which he died a few days later. Atkinson was arrested, tried and acquitted. Later he was sued for $10,000 damages and the jury awarded $300. Carson was the only man who saw Atkinson throw the stone at Scott, and it was owing to his evidence that the prisoner was acquitted of the charge of manslaughter. Shortly before Atkinson's trial for manslaughter he indorsed two notes for Carson, one of which the latter paid when it fell due, but Atkinson was called upon to pay the other. He sued Carson for the amount of the note and obtained judgement against him. Then Carson put in a counter claim for $93, for work done for Atkinson and also for services rendered him, and money disbursed for him during his trial. Atkinson then filed an account for $100 against Carson, including a bill of $33 for 13 weeks' board and washing in 1887, and garnisheed the Express Company with which Carson works for the amount. The evidence taken was very contradictory, and it was plainly apparent that some one did some very tall swearing. Judgment was given for Atkinson for $50 without costs.

ORANGEVILLE DISTRICT MEETING.

A Successful Gathering and a Delightful Program.

All who attended the convention held in connection with the district meeting on the 25th and 26th August at Shelburne, were profited as well as delighted by the program which was presented. The esteemed chairman of the district, Rev. M. L. Pearson, who gave his best attention to the success of the convention, has in this matter shown an interest in the welfare of his district that many another chairman respite. Rev. H. W. McTavish and his people did not "entertain angels unawares," but they could not have used angels better, and we trust they got some useful hints that even angels could not have given. The best of all God was with us.

The whole work of the church was considered. A. Noble, layman, introduced the subject of Christians "giving" under "church finances."

Sunday school work was well discussed under inspiration from Rev. Mr Tavish, and from a paper on the "Teacher," by Miss Gray of Laurel, and one on "the bad boy and how to manage him," by Mrs. Kearns, Orangeville. "Young Folks" were considered under Epworth League Work, the discussion being introduced by Rev Hager.

"Evangelistic Work" was introduced by Revs. J. E Wilson and Jas. Long who dwelt upon heart purity and Holy Ghost power as necessary qualifications.

Arrangements were made and deputations appointed to assist the pastors on different circuits during fall and winter. "Prayer meetings" and "Class meetings" were shown to be the source of spiritual dawn, but means whereby it was obtained, retained and distributed. "Preaching" was introduced by two of the four probationers, each giving a synopsis of the sermon delivered the Sunday previous. Bros. Adams and Ferguson proved that the possessed grand gifts and grit. (Where were the other probs?) It is to be hoped that the next convention will be taken advantage of by all who can so profit.

"UNSPORTSMANLIKE COWARDS."—That the Dufferin lacrosse club of Orangeville is composed of an unsportsmanlike crowd of cowards is plainly evident to all. Last year they dare not come to Mt Forest at all, and dropped out of the district rather than come here and be defeated. This year they did come and greatly to their own surprise succeeded in getting two games in a match as soon as the Lornes did, when they quit and would not complete the match. Not even the Association's orders to complete the match could force the Dufferins back here, and again for the second year they drop out of the district. As a result the Thistles of Fergus and the Lornes are a tie for the championship. This tie will be broken to morrow when the two clubs will meet in Arthur and settle which is the better team. The match has to be played on neutral ground, which accounts for Arthur being chosen, and will commence at 3:30 p m. No lacrosse event in the history of the game in this section ever attracted the attention to-morrow's match is doing. It will be a great match, and the result a great victory, we trust, for the Lornes.—Mt. Forest Representative. It was a great match, dear Rep. and the manner in which the Thistles razzle-dazzled your alleged lacrosists was really laughable. The Lornes should take a scrub and never mention lacrosse again. But the Dufferin lacrosse club is not "composed of

It is said that Thomas Murphy of Mara has discovered indications of salt on his farm.

The voice of the People.

In every part of canada the voice of the people rules, and the voice of the people adores Burdock Blood Bitters as the best and surest blood purifier known. Nothing drives out boils, blotches, humors, sores and impurity so quickly as B. B. B., and perfect health with bright pure skin always follows its use.

It is said that the Grand Trunk Railway has decided that after this year there will be no more "civic holiday excursions" along the line. They advance a number of reasons, the chief of which is that it is not to the company's interest or convenience to continue them.

The Worst of All Isms.

"Don't talk to me about your political "isms" said a facetious old rabbi to Christian, "I tell you there's no ism worth so bad as Rheumatism." The veritable suffer was right. St. Lawrence's Gridiron or Gaul's broiler a pallet of fire was far more emphatically a bed of roses than the couch of the martyr to rheumatism. It is generally considered by the faculty one of the most obstinate as well as one of the most painful of maladies, and it certainly does resist all ordinary remedies with extraordinary perticacity. Skill and science, however, in this age of progress, seem to master all opposition; and even this painful disease, enemy that it was for ages of progress, seems pen of editor repeated some former or fabor slander, than usual. It was then it only that roused him from a state of depression and weakness that began to alarm the family seriously for his health.

* * * * * *

"My dear Mr. Vigo, is it possible you have never had a line from your son since he left you?" said Mrs. Tobias Gunning, with a face of melancholy interest.

"Since Miss Varcoe went away, you mean?" returned the old gentleman in a sorrowful tone. "No, I have not had a line from Charlie since then."

"My goodness, it's awful!" said Mrs. Gunning. "Isn't it, my dear Tobias?"

This question was addressed to her husband—a member for one of the smallest of boroughs, and a man who never spoke, in or out of Parliament, except on compulsion; and on these rare occasions his tones were so nasal and guttural, that startled listeners came abruptly to the conclusion that in Mr. Gunning's body the nose, and not the tongue, was the organ of speech. In this present instance he answered his wife's appeal by a grunt of assent, which could not be said to reach the dignity of a word.

"I thought so, my dear," answered Mrs. Gunning. "I knew you would be of my opinion. Mr. Vigo, my husband says he considers it atrocious."

"What is atrocious?" asked old Mr. Vigo, with much simplicity.

"We are talking of the conduct of your son, my dear sir," said she. "Mr. Gunning and I have been just remarking to each other how much we feel for you."

"Really! Was Mr. Gunning saying anything?" demanded the old squire. "I didn't hear him. It is very kind of you to feel for me, though I am pretty well, thank you. But I should be much obliged if you wouldn't abuse Charlie; father's feelings, you know, and all that sort of thing."

"Dear Toby is quite charmed, like myself, by your charity and goodness to an undutiful son."

"Not undutiful," persisted the obstinate Mr. Vigo; "he is the best of good fellows. I don't see any charity in saying that; it is just the simple truth."

"Not undutiful! My dear Mr. Vigo you surprise me!" said Mrs. Gunning. "You really mean to say that you countenance your son in his conduct?"

"The whole, yes," replied the old gentleman, with a sigh. "When I was his age I was romantic too."

"Romantic!" said Mrs. Gunning; "it is worse than romance to run away with a girl who is more than suspicion of murder."

Mr. Gunning, as a Member of Parliament you are doubtless well acquainted with jurisprudence. Does not the English law hold a person innocent till proved guilty?" asked Mr. Vigo.

Thus addressed, Mr. Gunning felt compelled to deliver himself of a remark, but as his nose happened to be enveloped in his pocket-handkerchief, the words were completely lost in the folds. Mrs. Gunning, however, came to the rescue with an undaunted front.

"My dear sir," said she, "my husband observes that the law in question does hold a beautiful theory of that sort; but the practice is altogether the contrary; and, moreover, there is the law of Society—and that has entirely condemned this girl. If she were to come back to take her trial, and there was not evidence enough to convict her, that would still make her an outcast."

"Not if she were Charles Vigo's wife, I think," said the old gentleman, in a quiet voice.

ENTERTAINING BROTHER HENRY.

'Mrs. Billus (with a careful side-long glance out of the corner of her eye)—John, brother Henry writes me he will be here next week to spend his vacation.

Mr. Billus (without looking up from his paper)—Humph!

(After the pause) Henry writes me he is coming next week, John

(Still absorbed in his paper) 'M—just so.

(Returning to the attack) 'Of course if you have any objection to his coming I can write to him to stay away.'

'Hum!'

'I say I can write and tell him not to come if you don't want to entertain him.

'Entertain whom, Maria?'

'Now don't pretend you haven't heard me, John Billus. What has my brother Henry ever done to you—

'O you're talking of Hank, are you? What about him? Is he coming here?

'You know very well I said he was coming here next week to spend his vacation.

(Taking up his paper again) Hum, just so'

'I think it is just as mean as it can be for you to act that way. If you don't like my brother Henry—'

'Who said I didn't like him?'

'You know very well you don't. And he's as good a man as any of you're mother's boys, and everybody knows it.'

'O, yes, Hank's an angel.

(Firing up) He'll be a brighter and a better one than you some day, John Billus!

(Deep in his paper again) 'A brighter and better what, Maria?

'Angel.'

'Who will?'

'My brother Henry?'

'In the world to come?'

'Yes. He'll be a million miles above you!

'Who?' your brother Hank?

'Yes.'

(With a tremendous yawn). Then I'll never have to entertain him there, will I?

General Debility.

"For upwards of three years I was much run down in health, suffering from general debility, and had lost much flesh. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after using three bottles of this preparation my health was fully restored. I have since had no return of the disease, and I attribute my present good health to the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—Mrs. E. Coplinger, Dunkirk, Ohio.

It seems to be women who are supporting the propositions to tax bachelors for their single blessedness. That is not very modest of the dear things, but if they think they can drive a man who does not want to marry into the bonds in that way they do not know men very well.

SUNBEAMS.

The riding habit is not a bad habit if it fits well.

The dishonest butcher is always willing to meet his customers half weight.

An after dinner speech—"Have's you forgotten something, sir?"

It was a sad instance of vegetable depravity when the first apple tried to destroy the first pair.

"After mature deliberation I have decided to take this step," remarked the Boston babe, putting out its foot in a first attempt to walk.

Mrs. Kingsley—I see your church is going to send a way your minister for three months. Isn't that a long time? Mrs. Yonge—Yes; but we need rest.

The only radical cure for rheumatism is to eliminate from the blood the acid that causes the disease. This is thoroughly effected by the persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Persist until cured. The process may be slow, but the result is sure.

Elderly maiden, out rowing with a possible suitor and her little sister, who is frightened by the waves—Theodora! If you are so nervous now, what will you be at my age? Little Sister, mockily—Thirty seven, I suppose.

"If I do not get that dress within a week" said young Mrs. Fitts, "I am going home to mother. There, now." "Guess I will go with you," said Mr. Fitts. "Perhaps if we live with the old lady for a month or two I can save up enough to buy what you want."

Justice—"So you wish to be married?" Awaiting Couple—"Aes, sir." Justice—"Slip knot or true lover's knot?"

"They say that he's drinking himself to death on her account." Indeed? And at what bar is her account kept?"

Miss Windcoite—No; that is papa coming home. I know his footsteps. Augustus Newyorke—Miss Windcoite, I bid you good evening.

Solomon's Wisdom.

The Wisdom of Solomon, were he alive to day, would lead him to choose Burdock Blood Bitters as a remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood. It cures dyspepsia biliousness, headache, constipation and all forms of bad blood from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

Miss Amy—I don't believe in throwing kisses." Goslin—"Neither do I. When you have any for me let me know and I'll come and get them."

Mrs. Sweetface—"Is your daughter happily married?" Mrs. Sourface—"Indeed she is. She's got a husband who's as 'raid as death of her."

Lawyer—"I'm not feeling very well, doctor; does it make any difference on which side I sleep?" Doctor (with a wink)—"Well, a good lawyer will never lie on the left side."

"It is all your fault that I am here," said the convict. "You are the man who told me to forge ahead." "I did not tell you to forge a hand, though," replied the visitor.

"Five years ago I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and had been given up by my physicians. I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and after using two bottles of this medicine, was completely cured."—Angus A. Lewis, Ricard, N.F.

Wife—"You don't tell me that Professor A. has been struck dumb?" Husband—"Yes, last night. And he was master of seven languages." Wife—"Is it possible? And was he struck dumb in all seven?"

Stranger—Digging a grave, eh?" Do people die often in this village? Sexton—No, boss, dey nebber dies but once.

When the blood is out of condition disease is the inevitable result. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills supply the constituents necessary to enrich the blood and build up the nerves. They cure suppression, irregularities, debility, etc. Good for men and women, young and old. Sold by all dealers or sent on receipt of price (50c a box) Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

Did you ever try water as a pick me up after a day's outing or shopping, when you are tired, hot, and drowsy, and that when some one comes home to dinner for whose praise you care he will find you looking your homeliest? Pour ice cold water over your wrists, bathe them in it until you begin to feel cool, and then stop or you may get a chill by lowering the temperature of the body too much. Wring a cloth out of boiling hot water and lie down for five minutes, or ten if you can get it, with the cloth spread over your burning face and tired eyes. You will be surprised to see how the tired lines will fade out, and how brightly the dull eyes will shine.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Factory Operatives and Workers in Manufactories.—The remarkable remedies which have been discovered and delivered by Thomas Holloway, and which have for more than fifty years been successfully used in every quarter of the globe, are specially useful to all the male and female members who suffer those which reason of their occupation are confined for years, or all their lives, in crowded buildings, and workshops. Holloway's Pills and Ointment are associated remedies, the former restoring the vital powers when diminished, and always acting as an efficient blood purifier whilst the latter relieves local maladies, checks inflammation and acts as a cleansing and healing agent in cases of bad legs, bad breasts, ulcers and unhealthy sores of all kinds.

Mr. A. H. Whitney of Toronto, died in Detroit of consumption. He was on his way to the south, accompanied by his wife. By a remarkable coincidence, another A. H. Whitney, from Quincy, Ill., died at almost the same time in the same hotel from heart disease, both having reached Detroit the same day.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills remove all obstructions purify the blood and give to the skin that beautiful clear and healthful look so greatly admired in a beautiful and healthy woman. At certain periods these Pills are an inestimable companion. From one to four should be taken each day, until relief is obtained. A few doses seldomly will keep the system in healthy, and the blood so pure that disease cannot enter the body. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are sold by all medicine dealers.

Solemn Stranger (on train)—Young man, death lurks in the cup. Traveler—I know it; that's why I carry my own private bottle. I haven't drank water on fifty railroads for nothing.

TELEPHONE EXTENSIONS.—The new Copper Metallic Circuit Lines of the Bell Telephone Co., from Toronto to Peterboro' have been completed, and will be ready for use by the public on 1st September. These lines will also give better connections between Toronto and points west of it, and Belleville, Napanee, Kingston, &c.

BRONCHITIS

130 Lexington Ave., New York City, Sept. 19, 1888.
I have used the Flax-Seed Emulsion in several cases of severe Bronchitis, and the early stages of Pulmonary Consumption, well pleased with the results.
JAMES K. CROOK, M.D.

CONSUMPTION

Brooklyn, N.Y., Feb. 14th, 1888.
I have used your Emulsion in a case of Phthisis (commencement of consumption), where patient could not take Cod Liver Oil in any form.
J. H. DRAGE, M. D.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 20th, 1888.
I can strongly recommend Flax Seed Emulsion as helpful to a relief and possibly the cure of all Lung, Bronchial and Nervous Affections, and a good general tonic in physical debility.
JOHN F. TALMAGE, M. D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 10th, 1888.
I regard Flax Seed Emulsion as greatly superior to the Cod Liver Oil Emulsions so generally in use.

"Like Magic,"

THE effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Colds, Coughs, Croup, and Sore Throat are, in most cases, immediately relieved by the use of this wonderful remedy. It strengthens the vocal organs, allays irritation, and prevents the inroads of Consumption; in every stage of that dread disease, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral relieves coughing and induces refreshing rest.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children have been subject."—Capt. D. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medicines, I feel justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of the Pectoral is the enduring quality of its popularity, it being more salable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvelous."—R. S. Drake, M. D., Beliot, Kans.

"My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skilful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine; saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.

SLEEP AND DEATH.

When sleep drops down beside my love and me,
Although the worst the commitment of a friend,
A jealous foe we prove her in the end
In separate barks cast on dreamland's sea,
But lower over troubled souls. Wild winds blow fresh,
And drift us wide apart by the road
Toward unknown worlds. Not across our sleep-gray ways blend
Through the long night, while sleep looks on in glee.
Oh! death! be kinder than thy sister seems,
When at thy call we journey forth some day,
Through that mysterious and unclaimed strand
To lands more distant than the land of dreams.
Come, close together let our spirits stay,
Or else, with one swift stroke, annihilate!

OLIVE VARCOE

—OR— TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER XIII.

MRS. GUNNING gave a little scream of horror, while her husband lifted his nose in the air in scornful righteousness and disgust.

"My dear Mr. Vigo, you don't mean to say he has actually married her!" exclaimed Mrs. Gunning. "That is worse than the other—much worse. That is an unpardonable offence against Society, you know, and one we shall never forgive. If he had only run away with her, and, after a year or two, returned to his senses, we should all welcome the prodigal with a smile; but to marry such a woman——"

"It would be a much less sin, I suppose, to leave her in a ditch?" said Mr. Vigo.

"A ditch is the only proper place for some women," remarked the Gunning nose, with unwonted clearness.

"My dear, you always express yourself with force and propriety," exclaimed his wife, with a burst of admiration. "I am quite of your opinion. I trust, Mr. Vigo, that no such frightful misfortune as a marriage with this miserable girl, Olive Varcoe, has befallen your son."

"And yet I don't know anyone I should like better for a daugter," persisted the sturdy old squire.

The amazement that sat on Mr. Gunning's nose at this remark turned it to a purplish aspect; and Mrs. Gunning, who accurately interpreted every shade of that expressive feature, immediately broke forth into a torrent of surprise.

"Tobias is dying to know your reason for that, Mr. Vigo," she exclaimed. "It sounds so absurd, so eccentric, you know, so unnatural! Tobias is asking if you know something more about the girl than we do."

"Oh, dear me!—no, nothing," replied the squire, a little quickly. "You have all known her as many years as I have; you have all seen her a mere dependent on the Trewavas family, with no one very consistently kind to her, I think, except John."

"Ah! and how ungrateful she has been to that family!" said Mrs Gunning, piously; "such silk dresses and things as I have seen Lady Trewavas buy for her. But, as I say, what's a dark closet, or the catechism, to a heathen? They couldn't expect a Turk or Arab (which is she?) to turn out any better. Not consistently kind! My dear Mr. Vigo, they were too kind—they should never have taken such a girl into their house. I can't imagine why you take her part. Perhaps now you positively think her an innocent, ill used creature."

Mr. Gunning here blew his nose loudly, and Mrs Gunning instantly interrupted the speech.

"Excuse me, Mr Vigo," she said; "my husband thinks I have gone a little too far; he says I am quite insulting you. Pray forgive me. But you really do appear to feel favorably towards her, now don't you?"

"Perhaps I do," replied the old squire, as he stared hard at Mr. Gunning's nose, which breathed at him contempt and pity.

"And what possible reason can you have for that?" asked Mrs. Gunning.

"None at all," he replied; "at least none that would be reasons in your eyes Mrs. Gunning. I confess that things look fearfully black against this poor girl, and the world seems almost justified in its condemnation of her; yet Charlie thinks well of her; Charlie believes her innocent, and that's reason enough for me to have full faith also."

Mr. Gunning's nose here snorted contempt and defiance with a loudness that might have startled reporters, and made honorable members turn uneasily in seats.

"Tobias is amazed," exclaimed Mrs. Gunning. "Tobias observes emphatically that your son is infatuated and blinded, and not in a fit state of mind to form an opinion. Tobias asserts, that in all our countries and climes wicked women find dupes, who believe in them and are ready to swear they are angels. Tobias declares justly that a pretty face is every thing with a man."

Here a note of discent broke from Mr. Gunning's organ of speech.

"Didn't you say that my dear?" resumed Mrs. Gunning. "Well, I beg your pardon, I really thought you did. You observed, at all events, that young Mr. Vigo is certainly a dupe——"

"You are mighty mistaken in Charlie," broke in the old squire. "People don't easily take in Charlie. He is as clearheaded a fellow as ever lived, and too goodhearted to be a dupe. In my experience of life, I have seen that thoroughly good, honest folks, like my boy, are rarely deceived. It is the crafty, the hard, the worldly, who get cheated, and make mistakes in their estimate of character. There is a sort of instinct about goodness that holds it safe; your evil-speaker and evil thinker may get duped by appearances, but a pure and honest mind goes deeper, and forms a sounder judgment."

This was rather more than Mr. Gunning's nose was able to bear, it expressed its disgust and weariness in a loud sniff which said, plainly as nose could speak, that the conference had gone beyond the bounds of patience. As usual, Mrs. Gunning instantly interpreted, and obeyed.

"Well, my dear Mr. Vigo," "we shall be quite charmed to answer argument another time, but now really we must go."

Mrs. Gunning rose, and stretched out her hand, but at this moment Mr. Gunning thought fit to make a long remark.

"I wished," said he, to "address a question to the house. There is a dark——"

"My dear Tobias, how wonderfully stupid I am," interrupted Mrs. Gunning. "We came on purpose to ask you, Mr. Vigo, if you had heard the news. Sir Hilton Trewavas complains that he and his brother are followed in their walks by a tall man, a foreigner, very dark, with black hair, and spectacles, and a stoop in his gait. Do you know the man? Have you seen him? Sir Hilton declares that he is a spy of Sir Anthony Roskelly's. An odd story—isn't it? And you can't tell us anything about it?"

"Not a single word," replied Mr. Vigo, gravely.

"That's strange," continued the voluble Mrs. Gunning. "Tobias considers it his duty to bring the matter before Parliament. He says, very justly, we are in a free country—we can't tolerate spies here—and if Sir Anthony is the deputy lieutenant, we are not Russians."

"No, certainly," said Mr. Vigo; "but why does this man follow Sir Hilton Trewavas?"

"Ah, there's the mystery!" cried Mrs. Gunning. "But Tobias has a shrewd guess on the subject."

"Speak out, Gunning," said old Mr. Vigo, turning to the parliamentary nose of that individual. "You and I have known each other too long to be sore at a frank speech."

"I apprehend, and imagine, and understand," said Mr. Gunning, "that Sir Anthony——"

"Being an enemy, you know, of the Trewavases," said Mrs. Gunning, "doesn't in the least believe that Olive Varcoe went off willingly with your son. The girl liked Sir Hilton all along, and she will soon let him know where she is, and, in fact, manage an interview. Then Sir Anthony will quietly put his hand upon her. Now you understand why a spy is set to work. Still we are not in Russia. And I must say—Well, good-bye; when will you come to see us?"

Still talking, the voluble Mrs. Gunning settled herself in her carriage, and bestowed a parting smile on Mr. Vigo.

CHAPTER XIV.

A footfall echoing through the rooms of Trewavas now sounded ghostly, and the sudden closing of a door struck the door like thunder. A ghastly quiet had settled down upon the place, weighing on the spirits like a pall, while through the empty saloons John's pale figure, or Sir Hilton's manlier step, passed slowly, evoking for Lady Trewavas, as she raised her eyes in sorrow, the shadows of Eleanor and of Olive. These two seemed to her fancy ever near at hand. Often at twilight, ere the lamps were lighted, her heart beat quickly, as in the folds of a white curtain, or in a flickering moonbeam, the reproachful face of Eleanor seemed to shine upon her dimly. Olive came to her at happier times. Was there a quicker step upon the stairs, a rare voice of merriment raised in some distant room, then swiftly there danced before her eyes the tiny figure, and the bright, flashing look of the strange girl, who had brought upon their house such sin and sorrow.

On the altar of his pride Sir Hilton had sacrificed his happiness, and the life of a sinless victim. For pride's sake he had persuaded himself to love Eleanor Maristowe, relinquishing the boyish dream that had placed Olive Varcoe by his side. And from this had followed all the dire events that had sprinkled his path with blood. In the blindness of his pride he had gone on headlong in his career, never seeing that he was trampling on John's meek heart, and tempting Olive's fiery nature into sin. Ah! he had played a miserable part through life; and now that it was too late, he was waking up in bitterness to see it.

In this irritable and restless mood, Sir Hilton apparently found even his brother's society irksome, for he wandered away with his gun alone, or he took long solitary rambles on the sea, rowing from point to point of the bay, or sailing up lonely creeks, where nothing met him save the shadow of the great hills. Here, under the pressure of feeling, he sat silent, striving with his own spirit, seeking out of the chaos and the turmoil of passion to find peace.

Returning one evening late from one of these excursions, his brother John met him in the hall with a haggard face and almost dragged him to the library.

"Hilton," said he, in a hurried, fevered way, "I must leave Trewavas. I have troubled this place enough. Promise me you will care for grandmother when I am away, and I will go to morrow."

"What has happened, John? What has agitated you?" asked Sir Hilton kindly. "We must not either of us quit Trewavas, and leave an aged woman exposed to the hate and slander of enemies."

"No, no, of course not," said John, with that same look of patient suffering on his face which it had worn so long. "But you can stay, Hilton. You will not be haunted as I am."

"My dear John," said he, "we must both stay. It is clearly our duty to stand by our grandmother, while this storm of scandal lasts. Do you think I have not longed to get away, and forget myself among more stirring scenes in some foreign land? But I have seen it cannot be. Lady Trewavas is now too old to travel, and to change her residence would be to make her feel that she had been driven from her home. My dear John, do not let us give an aged lady so great a pain; do not let us give Sir Anthony Roskelly so great a triumph."

"I have not your courage, Hilton," said John, looking up meekly at his brother. "I am a poor miserable fellow at the best, and things lately have quite knocked me down."

The worn, wan look of patience on his brother's face cut Sir Hilton to the heart, and he replied, cheerily, "the worst is over, John. You are wrong to let this affair dwell morbidly on your mind."

"The worst over, Hilton?" repeated John. "No; I tell you it comes upon us step by step. Wait till the murderer is taken, then say the worst is over."

His quivering lips, and the glance of agonized terror in his eye, told Sir Hilton how tenacious a hold the horror of this time had taken on his mind.

"Do not fear," said Sir Hilton, kindly. "I firmly believe that most unhappy girl is safe. May Heaven have mercy on her!"

"Olive! do you mean Olive?" said John, and his face quivered with anguish. "I do not believe that she was in the wood that day. I never have believed it, Hilton; if I believed it, I should go mad."

"If it comforts you, John," replied Hilton, mournfully. "Heaven forbid that I should shake your disbelief; but I cannot so deceive myself."

There was a moment's silence between the brothers; and John, throwing himself into a chair, covered his face with his hands. In his weary attitude, in his gaunt thinness, in the long white hands covering his haggard eyes, Sir Hilton read a tale of woe that shocked him. The sense of his own miserable pride, and selfishness, and hardness, struck him like a knife. No matter what his own sufferings were, here was the chief sufferer; here before him, presenting this gaunt spectacle of sorrow was the victim whom this sin had most deeply smitten. Olive's grief was not like this grief; she seemed to hold within her some some consoling power; but John had that upon his face which told that he was pierced to the heart.

Sir Hilton broke the silence in a low voice.

"John," he said, "I fear you loved Eleanor Maristowe very dearly."

John did not take his hands from his face; he only bowed his head in assent.

"I had no idea," continued Sir Hilton softly; "believe me, John, I had not the least suspicion that you loved her."

"I know it, Hilton," said his brother.

As he spoke his hands dropped down, and Sir Hilton saw large drops of sweat standing on his face like beads.

"I wish I could say something comforting," resumed Sir Hilton, hurriedly; "but we men are poor hands at that. I can only say, be a man, throw off this morbid grief, and face the truth bravely. The manner of this poor girl's death was awful, I grant, and the guilt of it lying upon our roof makes it terrible; but beyond this, what have you to grieve for? I hope you won't think me cruel for saying it, but on my life and honor, John, Eleanor would never have loved you. Had there been no question of marriage with me, she would still never have accepted you."

John looked at his brother with such dry, wild eyes, that Sir Hilton started, and laid his hand kindly on his shoulder.

"Hilton," he said, "I repeat I must leave Trewavas. My health is giving completely. Mine is a weaker, a more excitable nature than yours, and I am not able to bear the sight of places, and filled with such agonizing memories. You will think me crazed, or wemanly, if I tell you that I am haunted; yet, nevertheless, it is true. Hilton, I begin to have the most extraordinary delusions. Not only do I see Eleanor and Olive constantly in these rooms, but I see others too. Men I knew at college, who are either dead or in distant lands, and women whom I had forgotten—old servants, childish sweethearts—they come, and vanish as I look at them. Even when I go out the same thing happens. Lately (will you believe it?) I have constantly seen young Vigo following me like a shadow. I know all these things are a delusion, but no effort of my reason banishes them."

The low trembling voice in which John spoke, his haggard look, his wild eyes all attested the truth of his words; and Sir Hilton perceived with surprise and sorrow that his health was far more shaken than he had supposed. Nevertheless, he answered him cheerfully:

"You always were a nervous fellow, John," said he. "All these things will pass away as you get better; but you are right—you must have change. What do you say to going to the Lakes?"

"Water!" said John, with a shudder; "more water, always water! No, no! the thought of those smooth treacherous lakes is hateful to me."

"Well," said Sir Hilton, we shall have the yacht out, and go for a cruise to Norway?"

"We two together!" asked John, dreamily. "No, Hilton, I should kill you before the voyage was over."

"Kill me!" echoed Sir Hilton, laughing. "Not a bit of it, old fellow. I am rather too tough to be killed by a little rough sailing."

"I did not mean that," said John, hurriedly. "I meant my nervous fancies would kill you. Imagine being shut up in a yacht with a haunted creature, a guest lunatic, who is always seeing ghosts!"

John laughed as he spoke—an abrupt hollow laugh that gave Sir Hilton a strange thrill as he heard it. He could not tell by what singular transition of thought it happened, but at that moment his memory travelled back to a boyish visit he had made to Bedlam; thence it recurred to a story he had heard, of a man's going up in a balloon with a madman, whom at length he overpowered, after a fearful struggle for life, up among the clouds. As this story came to his mind, he remembered thorough what gradual doubt, wonder, and final horror, there broke upon the man the fact of the madness of his friend. All this passed through his brain like a flash; but shaking it off for it came like a shadow—he turned to speak to his brother. But John's face struck him for a moment powerless and dumb. With fixed eye, and cheeks of ghastly paleness, he was gazing at the window with a look of horror.

"John!" he exclaimed. "Speak! What is it? Are you ill?"

"Charles Vigo!" replied John, with white lips, recovering himself by a frightful effort.

Sir Hilton turned, and saw the figure of a man just passing by the window swiftly. In a moment he had opened it, and sprung out after him.

"Stop! Who are you? What are you doing here?" cried Sir Hilton, in a voice that rang through the air.

A shambling figure creeping through the shrubs stopped at his command, and stood still patiently till Sir Hilton reached him. He was a tall, dark man, with an ungainly stoop in his gait. He wore spectacles, and through these his piercing eyes shone keenly.

"I hope your honor is not angry," he said, with a foreign accent. "I do not know the premises here, I am a stranger, a poor peddler. I sell jewels, and lace, and fans, and China crape shawls. Curious things from Japan and India, gentlemen. Presents for brides, gifts for cousins and sisters; love tokens for sweet-hearts, daggers for enemies. Shall I show them, my good gentlemen?"
